Soviets Warn Dispute May Break Up United Nations

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union stressed Saturday it would never help pay for the U.N. Congo and Middle East forces and hinted that any challenge to its General Assembly vote on that account might break up the United Nations.

A government statement issued by the Soviet delegation added that if any effort was made to withdraw its vote, "we may be obliged to reconsider our attitude toward United Nations activities."

The International Court of Justice has ruled against the Soviet Union, saying these are legitimate expenses which must be borne by all members.

The Soviet statement said any "groundless charges" prompted by Moscow's position would be regarded as "an unfriendly act towards the U.S.S.R."

The government said it would like to make "absolutely clear" it would regard any actions to take away the Soviet vote "as the actions of those who do not care for the United Nations and who do not take into account the prospect of its breakup as the result of such actions."

The Soviet Union is one of 18 countries that stand to lose their votes in the 113-nation assembly next fall if a controversial financial provision of the charter is applied. This provision, Article 19, says any U.N. member two years behind in its dues "shall have no vote" unless the assembly finds its non-payment stems from conditions beyond its control.

Diplomatic sources said the United States and Britain sought to head off a showdown over this article in a private talk with the Soviet delegation March 6.

They said the two proposed that the Soviet Union pay part of its Congo and Middle East assessments and accept a compromise giving the Security Council more power as against the General Assembly to start new peace-keeping operations, and creating a 15-nation assembly committee with big-power participation to arrange the financing.

The informants said the Soviet delegation had not yet had Moscow's reply to this proposal. But the statement seemed to herald a rejection.

The United States and most other countries contend that Congo and Middle East dues must be counted along with regular budget assessments in figuring whether a country is two years behind.

Adventists Oppose AFA Chapel Service Rules

Members of the Colorado Springs Seventh-day Adventist Church appealed openly to the United States Air Force today to discontinue its policy of mandatory chapel services for cadets at the Air Force Academy.

At the same time, the church asked its pastor, Dwight S. Wallack, to join with other clergymen, if necessary, "to help ensure that cadets receive full benefits of their constitutionally guaranteed liberties."

Mandatory chapel services were described by the church, in a statement approved without dissent, as "a direct contradiction of the principle of church-state separation and an infringement upon the right of free conscience."

The statement contained a recommendation that the policy of freeing cadets for attendance at churches of their own choice be "liberalized, as necessary, to make certain that no cadet is ever denied the privilege of exercising his faith according to his custom before entering the service."

It was noted that the Seventh-day Adventist Church has traditionally supported religious liberty, which it holds to be "a God-given right kept most secure when church and state remain separate."

According to the statement, the Colorado Springs church took the action as the "nearest" group of the denomination to the Academy. The local church asserted a "continuing interest in the religious climate" at the Academy.

The statement was approved on a motion submitted by Gerald M. Santangelo, religious liberty secretary. His position is one found in most Adventist churches.

The following statement was approved Saturday by vote of the congregation of the Colorado Springs Seventh-day Adventist Church, at the regular weekly church service:

"Whereas the Seventh-day Adventist Church believes religious liberty is a God-given right kept more secure when church and state remain separate; and

"Whereas we believe freedom of conscience is an inalianable right of the individual which the government of the United States is divinely ordained — and constitutionally bound — to defend; and

"Whereas we consider the policy of mandatory chapel services for cadets at the United States Air Force Academy to be a direct contradiction of the principle of church-state separation and an infringement upon the right of free conscience;

"We, therefore, acting as citizens and in keeping with the Seventh-day Adventist Church's traditional support of religious liberty, openly appeal to the United States Air Force to make attendance of cadets at

U.S. Faces Silver Dollar Shortage in Two Weeks

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress balks at approving funds to make silver dollars, the government reserve is being depleted at the rate of one million a day, a Treasury official said here.

Last week, he said, the Treasury's inventory was down to about 13 million, which means that if the million-a-day rate is maintained, the government will run out of silver dollars in about two weeks.

There was a large crowd at the Treasury's cash window Friday after the House Appropriations Committee turned down a requested appropriation of $1,925,000 to resume minting cartwheels and suggested the government melt down those still on hand.

However, the Treasury official said many of the silver dollars bought early in the week are flowing back into the Treasury's vaults. This indicates that coin collectors probably are partly responsible for the depletion.

The official said that if exhaustion seems imminent, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon will suspend the regulation which requires the Treasury to redeem silver certificates in silver metal or coin.

Many of those who queued up in front of the Treasury's cash window Friday carried out the coins in bags of 1,000 each.

Two men put at least 20 bags in a station wagon. A bag of 1,000 silver dollars weighs about 50 pounds.

No silver dollars have been minted since 1935. The government has asked for $650,000 to mint 50 million this fiscal year and another $1,275,000 to mint 100 million in the fiscal year which begins July 1.

Gates Denounces Colorado High Tax Disadvantage

DENVER (UPI) —Gates Rubber Co. took a slap at Denver and Colorado Saturday, announcing that the company has no present plans to build new plants in the state.

Charles C. Gates Jr., the company president, revealed that the Denver-based firm had a total sales volume of $166,113,000 during its 1963 fiscal year, which ended Feb. 29, for a gain of 8.5 per cent over 1962. But he said the gain did not represent expansion in Denver.

He said the company decided to do its expanding outside the state because "Denver and the state of Colorado have not kept pace in competition with other areas of the United States in offering advantages and inducements both to industry seeking a new location and to firms wanting to expand right here."

He added: "You can't run a business on fresh air, sunshine and scenery alone."

The Gates firm now has three plants under construction in Texas and Kentucky.

Gates said the main barriers to attracting new or expanded industry to Colorado are the state inventory tax and the high level of corporate and property taxes.

"Other states are getting the new industry we need," Gates said. "We must become more competitive or we'll fall far behind."

He stressed that the company has no plans to cut the size or payroll of its Denver operation.

Washington State Girl Junior Miss

UAW Demands New National Health Program

By A. F. MAHAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —Declaring that medical care "can no longer be organized as private monooply," the United Auto Workers Union Saturday called on its leaders to develop and promote enactment of national health programs for all, regardless of income.

Some 3,000 delegates to the UAW's international convention shouted approval of the proposal after a former prime minister of Saskatchewan reported a government-sponsored medical care program in that Canadian province had resulted in an increase of doctors, and better care.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party of Canada and sponsor of the Saskatchewan plan that sparked a 1962 doctor's strike, said opposition politicians no longer propose to abolish medical care but insist their parties would improve it.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther then called up a resolution proposing medical care

NEW YORK (AP) — The material used in plastic contact lenses does not cause eye irritation, says a spokesman for the American Optometric Association.

Dr. Maurice G. Poster, chairman of the association's contact lens committee, issued the statement Friday. It was his answer to the recent report of a Boston doctor who said he had found eight cases of slight loss associated with use of the lenses.

"This committee," Poster said, "has reviewed thoroughly approximately 30 years of optometric experience in fitting and observing plastic contact lenses made of methyl methacrylate.

"The committee is unanimous in asserting that it has found no evidence to support the claims recently made by Dr. William Stone of Boston that methacrylic acid results in varying degrees of eye irritation."

LBJ Proposes New Peace Talks in Panama Crisis

By FRANK CORMIER

Johnson walked unannounced into a routine briefing being held by press secretary George A. Reedy and surprised reporters by reading a detailed statement of his attitude toward the Panama dispute.

Johnson said: "We are prepared to review every issue which now divides us, and every problem which the Panamanian government wishes to raise. We are prepared to do this at any time and any place."

Although Johnson described the statement as a reaffirmation of U.S. policy, key phrases appeared to be sufficiently vague to leave ample room for man-

Tuition Boost Announced by CU in Boulder

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — University of Colorado raised its tuition Saturday $78 a year for state residents and $202 a year for non-residents.

The increases are those proposed by Gov. John A. Love and the Republican-controlled 1964 legislature in reducing the university's Boulder and extension division state funds $528,000 below the current year's level.

Starting next September Colorado residents attending CU at Boulder will pay $286 in tuition.

'Nude Fashion Season' Invades U. S. From Paris

By HENRIETTA T. LEITH

NEW YORK (AP) — A great many ladies of fashion—high, medium or low—are going to have to toss their mink stoles across their bosoms this spring because there will be nothing much else covering them.

It's a nude season — even shoes are baring more than usual—and it is showing up particularly in the neckline, which is plunging lower and lower.

What is most startling about it is that the Paris-inspired fashion also is plunging lower in the fashion world—right down to the moderate-priced ready-to-wear level.

When a fashion magazine recently published a photograph of a model in a black cocktail gown with the neckline plunging nearly to the waist, it noted that copies of the Dior model could be obtained ready to wear at several department stores in major cities.

Macy's copy of the two-piece, pleated-skirt daytime dress with the deep V-neck is in pastel silk and sells for $69.95.

At both Macy's and its friendly rival, Gimbel's a block away there are plenty of other deep V's—and if you prefer, round or square necklines almost as deep —to be had in the same price range and lower.

King Resigns: People Force Him to Stay

CAIRO (AP)—The Libyan Radio reported early Sunday that King Idris of Libya abdicated and then withdrew his abdication when the Libyan people demonstrated against it.

The radio, monitored in Cairo, said thousands of people demonstrated before the king's summer palace at Tobruk urging the king to keep his throne.

It said the king emerged from the palace and in a short speech told the demonstrators he was staying.

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A posse of lawmakers, headed by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., cantered onto the Senate floor Saturday to defend the cartwheel — the "hard money" silver dollar which is the favored coin of the realm in the Great West.

"We like it," said Mansfield, while also declaring that it should not follow the buffalo, the whooping crane, the bald eagle and the gold piece into oblivion. The coin dollars is, Mansfield said, "preferred usage" in his home state.

Target for Mansfield's comment was Friday's action by the House Appropriations Committee which turned down the Treasury Department's $650,000 re-

'No Lady, This Is Not The Dog Pound'

DENVER (AP)—Prosecuting and defense attorneys in a murder trial were engaged in a vigorous legal argument in court chambers when the private phone of Dist. Judge Sherman G. Finesilver rang.

The judge stopped the attorneys, answered the phone, listened a moment and then replied:

The judge hung up and the arguments continued.

Golschmann Is New Denver Symhony Head

DENVER (AP) — Vladimir Golschmann, former conductor of the St. Louis Symphony, was named Saturday musical director and conductor of the Denver Symphony Orchestra.

Golschmann led the St. Louis Symphony from 1931 until his retirement in 1958. He has been a guest conductor with many of the major orchestras in the United States and abroad.

Born in Paris of Russian parents, Golschmann became an American citizen in 1947. He and his wife, Odette, now live in New York. Golschmann will be in Denver prior to the opening of the symphony season next fall.

Golschmann replaces Saul Caston who resigned.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —Declaring that medical care "can no longer be organized as private monooply," the United Auto Workers Union Saturday called on its leaders to develop and promote enactment of national health programs for all, regardless of income.

Some 3,000 delegates to the UAW's international convention shouted approval of the proposal after a former prime minister of Saskatchewan reported a government-sponsored medical care program in that Canadian province had resulted in an increase of doctors, and better care.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party of Canada and sponsor of the Saskatchewan plan that sparked a 1962 doctor's strike, said opposition politicians no longer propose to abolish medical care but insist their parties would improve it.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther then called up a resolution proposing medical care

Gates Denounces Colorado High Tax Disadvantage

DENVER (UPI) —Gates Rubber Co. took a slap at Denver and Colorado Saturday, announcing that the company has no present plans to build new plants in the state.

Charles C. Gates Jr., the company president, revealed that the Denver-based firm had a total sales volume of $166,113,000 during its 1963 fiscal year, which ended Feb. 29, for a gain of 8.5 per cent over 1962. But he said the gain did not represent expansion in Denver.

He said the company decided to do its expanding outside the state because "Denver and the state of Colorado have not kept pace in competition with other areas of the United States in offering advantages and inducements both to industry seeking a new location and to firms wanting to expand right here."

He added: "You can't run a business on fresh air, sunshine and scenery alone."

The Gates firm now has three plants under construction in Texas and Kentucky.

Gates said the main barriers to attracting new or expanded industry to Colorado are the state inventory tax and the high level of corporate and property taxes.

"Other states are getting the new industry we need," Gates said. "We must become more competitive or we'll fall far behind."

He stressed that the company has no plans to cut the size or payroll of its Denver operation.

Washington State Girl Junior Miss

NEW YORK (AP) — The material used in plastic contact lenses does not cause eye irritation, says a spokesman for the American Optometric Association.

Dr. Maurice G. Poster, chairman of the association's contact lens committee, issued the statement Friday. It was his answer to the recent report of a Boston doctor who said he had found eight cases of slight loss associated with use of the lenses.

"This committee," Poster said, "has reviewed thoroughly approximately 30 years of optometric experience in fitting and observing plastic contact lenses made of methyl methacrylate.

"The committee is unanimous in asserting that it has found no evidence to support the claims recently made by Dr. William Stone of Boston that methacrylic acid results in varying degrees of eye irritation."

He Promises Next Bullet Not by Mail

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) —Anthony Gilbert, 17, is awaiting trial today on charges of sending a driving test examiner who flunked him a live bullet through the mail accompanied by a note that said:

LBJ Proposes New Peace Talks in Panama Crisis

By FRANK CORMIER

Johnson walked unannounced into a routine briefing being held by press secretary George A. Reedy and surprised reporters by reading a detailed statement of his attitude toward the Panama dispute.

Johnson said: "We are prepared to review every issue which now divides us, and every problem which the Panamanian government wishes to raise. We are prepared to do this at any time and any place."

Although Johnson described the statement as a reaffirmation of U.S. policy, key phrases appeared to be sufficiently vague to leave ample room for man-

Tuition Boost Announced by CU in Boulder

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) —University of Colorado raised its tuition Saturday $78 a year for state residents and $202 a year for non-residents.

The increases are those proposed by Gov. John A. Love and the Republican-controlled 1964 legislature in reducing the university's Boulder and extension division state funds $528,000 below the current year's level.

Starting next September Colorado residents attending CU at Boulder will pay $286 in tuition

By HENRIETTA T. LEITH

NEW YORK (AP) — A great many ladies of fashion—high, medium or low—are going to have to toss their mink stoles across their bosoms this spring, because there will be nothing much else covering them.

It's a nude season — even shoes are baring more than usual—and it is showing up particularly in the neckline, which is plunging lower and lower.

What is most startling about it is that the Paris-inspired fashion also is plunging lower in the fashion world—right down to the moderate-priced ready-to-wear level.

When a fashion magazine recently published a photograph of a model in a black cocktail gown with the neckline plunging nearly to the waist, it noted that copies of the Dior model could be obtained ready to wear at several department stores in major cities.

Macy's copy of the two-piece, pleated-skirt daytime dress with the deep V-neck is in pastel silk and sells for $69.95.

At both Macy's and its friendly rival, Gimbel's a block away there are plenty of other deep V's—and if you prefer, round or square necklines almost as deep —to be had in the same price range and lower.

King Resigns; People Force Him to Stay

CAIRO (AP)—The Libyan Radio reported early Sunday that King Idris of Libya abdicated and then withdrew his abdication when the Libyan people demonstrated against it.

The radio, monitored in Cairo, said thousands of people demonstrated before the king's summer palace at Tobruk urging the king to keep his throne.

It said the king emerged from the palace and in a short speech told the demonstrators he was staying.

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A posse of lawmakers, headed by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., cantered onto the Senate floor Saturday to defend the cartwheel — the "hard money" silver dollar which is the favored coin of the realm in the Great West.

"We like it," said Mansfield, while also declaring that it should not follow the buffalo, the whooping crane, the bald eagle and the gold piece into oblivion. The coin dollars is, Mansfield said, "preferred usage" in his home state.

Target for Mansfield's comment was Friday's action by the House Appropriations Committee which turned down the Treasury Department's $650,000 re-

SILVER HAULED AWAY — Purchasers of silver in Washington, haul it away by the bagful in all sorts of conveyances. There has been a $1-million-a-day run for four days on the cartwheels, most of them being bought by coin collectors and speculators. No new cartwheels have been minted since 1935 and the Treasury's inventory is down to about 13 million now. Congress has refused an appropriation to mint more silver dollars. (AP Wirephoto)

DENVER (AP)—Prosecuting and defense attorneys in a murder trial were engaged in a vigorous legal argument in court chambers when the private phone of Dist. Judge Sherman G. Finesilver rang.

The judge stopped the attorneys, answered the phone, listened a moment and then replied:

The judge hung up and the arguments continued.

Golschmann Is New Denver Symhony Head

DENVER (AP) — Vladimir Golschmann, former conductor of the St. Louis Symphony, was named Saturday musical director and conductor of the Denver Symphony Orchestra.

Golschmann led the St. Louis Symphony from 1931 until his retirement in 1958. He has been a guest conductor with many of the major orchestras in the United States and abroad.

Born in Paris of Russian parents, Golschmann became an American citizen in 1947. He and his wife, Odette, now live in New York. Golschmann will be in Denver prior to the opening of the symphony season next fall.

Golschmann replaces Saul Caston who resigned.

HAVE YOU NOTICED CLOUDS?

How quickly the clouds come and how quickly they disappear—especially is this true in Colorado. Clouds are a most interesting study. We have seen white motionless clouds on high peaks that are like pillars, their white tops shining and glistening in the far ether. Sometimes a single cloud with folds so soft and fair, swimming in the pure, quiet blue of the sky.

Again like fleeces of wool bathed in sunlight, while below, far down, the valley, a shadow moves so slowly that it seems to pause cooling all vegetation in its path

We have watched cloud walls of the early morning when no sun has yet come thru Then quickly like a ball of fire it bursts into view. Now all has changed and the leaden gray clouds float silently away giving warmth to a new day.

At noon we see them floating about like snowdrifts, then red at twilight, again ragged and black in tempest, streaked with lightning. In the moonlight, the clouds float gently over the sky and at times cast a shimmering veil over the moon but very quickly it floats out and sends its golden glow over the earth.

All seasons of the year are revealed on a single day and all types of cloud are seen in the sky-black threatening clouds giving way to blue sky and blue sky giving way to gray clouds and white, fleecy clouds turning to dark angry clouds.

When clouds are gray in early morning, we wonder what the weather will be like during the day. Anxiously we look toward them, if we wish the day to be bright. Clouds affect our spirits to a certain degree. When clouds are gray and dark, we become morose but when sun appears, we become happier.

Nature holds for us gay hours, gladness, smiles and eloquence of beauty but quickly can glide into dark shadows across the sunny trail and the day becomes more cheerless.

Yonder peaks look cold and forbidding but not for long for sunshine will break thru. Rain and snow must come when winds call and clouds prepare the way to scatter it over fields but sun is always by.

And now, March with its bad reputation comes forth but even if north winds blow shedding snow, it can be kind hearted and bring warmth. The upper circus clouds, just before sunset are often dazzling in light and color.

That which strikes us peculiar and determinate about every cloud is its drifting and swaying lightness, gliding down vast inclines of air like so many white swans.

Now they scatter over the blue sky never seem in a hurry, an epitome of content, having no abiding or resting place yet wherever they go, gladden the eye and cheer the heart. Bathed in purple in the distance, tinted or shadowed, fire fringed at dawn or brilliant red at twilight, they are there for us to enjoy.

Sometimes one single cloud will float across the sky, a gorgeous color of pink or orange and all look upward. Wherever we go we see the beauty of clouds on the water, in the mountains or on the plains. Night or day, we can observe the wonderful cloud effects.

DO THIS: Assemble the pieces as shown in drawing at left so that the wooden handle will be stopped by the string just above the flywheel. Start the drill by winding some of the string as shown in drawing at the right. By moving the handle up and down, the drill will be made to spin rapidly back and forth. The nail will drill a hole in the wooden block.

WHY? The principle of this instrument is similar to that of the yo-yo, in that the pulling of the string starts the instrument in a rapid turning motion. Then its momentum will carry it on, while the string winds around the broomstick in the other direction. This is supposedly a device actually used by some of the American Indians. It was suggested by Calvin Northcutt, sixth grade, Cary, N. C.

Illiterate Says She Forged Check

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — A woman who says she can neither read nor write admitted to police Friday that she had forged a $250 check.

Lt. Leo Malcom, chief of detectives of the Greeley Police Department, said the woman identified herself as Florence Chavis, 38, of Greeley. He said the woman was arrested after she passed the forged check at a market.

Malcom said she admitted tracing three signatures from other checks or letters in order to forge the check.

School Child Discussion Groups Meet

Leaders for the 25 discussion groups for Project School Child met at Chamberlin School Thursday to organize the project in Harrison School District No. 2. The groups have been divided geographically in units of 10 to accommodeate the more than 300 persons who wish to participate in the study discussions.

The leaders' meeting was addressed by Senator Lawrence Skiffington a member of the State Senate Educational Committee who discussed educational bills; N. V. Gorman, superintendent of schools for District No. 2 who outlined the purpose of Project School Child; by John DeMers principal of Chamberlin School who answered questions about the schools; Mrs. Vernon Cheever, chairman of the project and Mrs. James Sinton.

Members of the Board of Education of School District No. 2; the principals and teachers from the schools will be available as consultants if the discussion leaders wish to call on them for information. Also Representatives to the State Legislature have volunteered their services to answer questions concerning educational bills.

Project School Child discussions begin this week and will continue with weekly meetings until the five categories of study have been covered.

CC Students, Professor Study Indian Language

Nine students and a professor at Colorado College are spending their spare time studying the language of the Tarahumara Indians in preparation, for living and working with the tribe in the mountains of Mexico for two weeks during spring vacation.

They will spend the vacation period, which begins March 25, doing construction work at the Jesuit-operated Tarahumaran Mission, 50 miles west of Chihuhau in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

This is one of three work camps at Indian reservations to be operated by Colorado College students during the spring vacation. A second group will go to the Navajo Reservation in Arizona and a third to the San Carlos Apache Reservation in Arizona.

The work camp in Mexico was organized by Daniel Martin, a junior majoring in anthropology. He said his group would live in tents near the mission. Accompanying the student group is Prof. Carl Roberts, chairman of the department of psychology.

Martin said members of his group hope to learn enough of the language of the Tarahumaras for basic communication. "Very few members of the tribe speak Spanish," he said.

"Although a few live in adobe houses," he said, "most live in caves and many still make fire with flint."

Martin has been studying the customs of the Tarahumaras during the academic year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Martin of Denver.

Leading a group of 10 to the Navajo Reservation in Arizona is Michael Pleasants, a senior from Cincinnati, Ohio. The group will be accompanied by a member of the Colorado College faculty, as will the group to the Apache Reservation. Student leader of the group of nine going to the Apache camp is Jonathan Hetzel, a junior from Haverford, Pa.

Keeping Pipe Burning Requires Much Energy

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — I've switched from cigarettes to pipe smoking. If the national production of matches and lighter fluid keeps steady, I think I might make it stick.

Keeping the pipe burning requires so much time and concentration I've scarcely given a thought to cigarettes.

Besides, a variety of compensations have come to light. For example:

There's a strong camaraderie among pipe smokers. They freely swap tobacco and pipe cleaners—and they welcome a novice as though he were a lodge brother. Generous with advice to neophytes, they even offer tips on pipe smoking by wearers of false teeth, which I have escaped so far.

I've regained a measure of youth in the eyes of my daughters, who say: "Dad, you look positively collegiate."

I had been a cigarette smoker for about 30 of my 54 years when the report of the surgeon general's committee finally prompted me to try to quit.

I had been reporting scientists treatises on the health hazards of cigarette smoking for years without giving up cigarettes.

In fact, some of my heaviest smoking has been done while writing such stories.

When the words wouldn't come the way I wanted them to, it was comforting to light a cigarette and inhale deeply. Maybe, too, there was an aspect of having something to do with temporarily idle hands.

At any rate I've found a pipe to be such a pacifier.

I've picked up some tips about pipes and the art and science of pipe smoking.

Here's a rundown.

Keep your new pipe clean, but you'll never really enjoy it until you build a layer of carbon inside the bowl.

You'd do well to line up a stable of pipes—one for every day in the week — to assure keeping all of them cool smoking.

Don't rush your smoking; and don't chain smoke. If you do, you'll wind up with a tongue that feels like red ants had been at it.

Never inhale — you'll blow your hat off.

You can never hope to get over that ceaseless match-scratching; it's just a cross a pipe smoker has to bear. However, with practice, you'll develop a "smoking rhythm" which will help you keep the fire lit.

However, your pipe has other advantages beyond smoking pleasure. In subfreezing weather, it provides a bit of heat for the nose; and, cradled in the hand, it can prevent frostbite.

If you want to cheat — and still masquerade as a self-disciplined soul — a cigarette crumpled up and shoved into the new pipe's bowl tastes just like a cigarette.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

One autumn after my family had all gone and I was living alone in the big old home I rented a portion of my house to a widow woman and her brother from Paducah, Ky., who wished to spend the winter in Colorado seeking to have the climate improve the brother's failing health.

Fearing the wires between here and Kentucky might not all be down I'll give a couple of fictional names to them, calling the rather plump lady Mrs. Smith and the brother who was extremely thin we'll call John.

"John has never seemed to wish to marry," his sister confided in me but I had reason to wonder before many weeks if it were not because he had been too well sheltered. It was no compliment to my charms that the sister did not have any fears of me, but she did have a few fears about a neighbor across the road. Miss Flora Straub. John liked to walk in Stratton Park and after telling of a visit or two with the handsome lady over there, his sister took to walking with him each day.

As the autumn days wore on and Miss Straub seemed not willing to spend time with the brother and as she had a new car Mrs. Smith found it pleasant to ride to town occasionally with her.

About a week before Thanksgiving the Tompkins Theater advertised that both dressed and live turkeys were being given out to the lucky holders of certain tickets. So Mrs. Smith asked Miss Straub if she would drive with her to the theater some evening and as she, Mrs. Smith, expected to draw a lucky number she would provide the turkey and we'd all be invited to have Thanksgiving dinner with her.

The two ladies returned later that evening calling out, "We got the turkey," and sure enough they had.

"Miss Straub wanted me to choose a dressed bird," Mrs. Smith announced proudly, "but I wanted to see what I was getting, so I took this live one. I'll fatten this one up and have a good one."

Brother John put the "live bird" into the shed till morning, but when I saw that pale-head, those lusterless eyes and that thin, almost emaciated little hen turkey, I could have wept.

I had visions of my mother's 32 pound gobbler that one year, required father's having had to purchase and have made a roasting pan the entire size of the oven to hold it. I also had visions of the delicious dressing we children like to call "stuffing" that smelled just enough of sage to make the mouth water; and the gravy that only mother knew how to make, as well as slices of squash and mince pies.

When Mrs. Smith asked if she might use my kitchen range for the cooking and the baking as the stove in her apartment was too small for the preparing of the dinner I could but say "yes."

John was sent down town to bring out "plenty of food" for the turkey and when he appeared with a paper sack almost as large as the little bird itself, I could only look on in silence while the ground back of the shop was strewn with the chopped up corn, wheat and oats, while she who "saw what she was getting," made a string of old strips of sheeting and picketed out the forlorn birdie that looked as if she would have no inclination to walk away, much less run. She was given a pan of nice fresh water and left to fatten.

For several days poor little turkey then pulled herself at the extreme end of the string and laid listlessly on the ground with her tied leg outstretched as far as it could go, eating very little and showing little inclination to put on any muscle for drum sticks.

But she did and the day before Thanksgiving Harry Gibbs, who lived near, was invited to eat dinner with us on Thursday and incidently to come over at once and bring the axe for the execution.

I am glad yet to recall that I had business down town that morning, as I had helped father many a time pull feathers off turkeys and I wanted no part in that feather-pulling spree. I knew that the less I looked upon that undernourished cluster of bones and skin that the more of it I might be able to put into my mouth.

About 8 o'clock on the morning of the great day, I walked into the kitchen to see that bluish looking little bird lying in the oven in the middle of mother's great roaster, and surrounded by about a quart of water. It's puny little drum sticks were sticking straight up in the air as if in protest about the whole affair.

"Why," I gasped, "are you going to roast that turkey in water?"

"Yes," Mrs. Smith answered calmly, "I'm steaming it first so it will be tender." She placed the cover over it as if the incident were closed and I fled the kitchen.

A few minutes before we were called to dinner, Mrs. Smith called "John will you carry this to the table for me, it is too heavy for me."

We all went to help and found the dressing had been made in one of Mother's black iron pots and it was this that was to be lifted from the stove to the kitchen table.

"Looks as if it ought to be thrown into the garbage pail," John muttered as he lifted if off the stove.

I wish I had words to make you see that dressing. It resembled half burned lignite ashes that had been well mixed with some grease. If one can imagine mixing grease into ashes. It had not seen the turkey nor had the poor turkey seen it. They were destined to meet at the dinner table but not before.

Miss Straub looked into the pot and said, "I'll not eat any of that," and she kept her word, passing it by without comment later while we were seated at the table. Mrs. Smith did not urge her to have any but she did eat some stewed turkey tho it tasted like dried beef. Later in the afternoon after the dinner dishes had been washed and put into the cupboards Miss Straub went home. Mrs. Smith did not ask her to stay any longer and as the great round moon showed up over the Broadmoor prairie, John's sister proposed that we go for a walk in the moonlight. "Just we four, you and Mr. Gibbs and John and I."

So we went up the rutted cowtrails that later were used for roads in Stratton Park and while the moon was bright and the air balmy, we walked in silence, nobody saying what a wonderful dinner we had enjoyed.

Presently Mrs. Smith fell into a rut in the steep hilly road. She not only fell, she rolled. We helped her up, brushed her off and all the time I was wondering just how much of that dressing she had consumed and how much it had had to do with making her top heavy.

Since Mr. Gibbs was about the same age as Mrs. Smith, one of us, I don't really know which, conceived the idea of running off from them and allowing them to walk home without us. So we scampered off and soon left them quite a distance behind, altho I could hear Mr. Gibbs' lame foot trying to scratch enough gravel to keep us in sight. Evidently Mr. Gibbs wanted no poor cook in his household.

I know you would like to hear that none of us ever saw any of that dressing next day nor weeks or months after. But I will gladly tell you that when springtime came to the Rockies, Sister was able to take brother back to Paducah an almost-wellman. I have heard since that he is fully recovered and doing well in some, I think, insurance venture. Probably selling some of the land the recent floods have left behind.

At any rate, I've found a pipe to be such a pacifier.

I've picked up some tips about pipes and the art and science of pipe smoking.

Here's a rundown:

Keep your new pipe clean, but you'll never really enjoy it until you build a layer of carbon inside the bowl.

You'd do well to line up a stable of pipes—one for every day in the week — to assure keeping all of them cool smoking.

Don't rush your smoking; and don't chain smoke. If you do, you'll wind up with a tongue that feels like red ants had been at it.

You can never hope to get over that ceaseless match-scratching; it's just a cross a pipe smoker has to bear. However, with practice, you'll develop a "smoking rhythm" which will help you keep the fire lit.

However, your pipe has other advantages beyond smoking pleasure. In subfreezing weather, it provides a bit of heat for the nose; and, cradled in the hand, it can prevent frostbite.

If you want to cheat — and still masquerade as a self-disciplined soul — a cigarette crumpled up and shoved into the new pipe's bowl tastes just like a cigarette.

Carson Rubey To Be Guest Speaker at Club

Carson Rubey will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Torch Club Tuesday evening at 6:45 p.m., at the El Paso Club.

Rubey and his wife have the only local studio equipped to cast bronze sculpture in the "Lost Wax" method which will be the topic of his speech.

He and his wife make casts for local artists and for many other artists in this part of the country.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

One autumn after my family had all gone and I was living alone in the big old home I rented a portion of my house to a widow woman and her brother from Paducah, Ky., who wished to spend the winter in Colorado seeking to have the climate improve the brother's failing health.

Fearing the wires between here and Kentucky might not all be down I'll give a couple of fictional names to them, calling the rather plump lady Mrs. Smith and the brother who was extremely thin we'll call John.

"John has never seemed to wish to marry," his sister confided in me but I had reason to wonder before many weeks if it were not because he had been too well sheltered. It was no compliment to my charms that the sister did not have any fears of me, but she did have a few fears about a neighbor across the road, Miss Flora Straub. John liked to walk in Stratton Park and after telling of a visit or two with the handsome lady over there, his sister took to walking with him each day.

As the autumn days wore on and Miss Straub seemed not willing to spend time with the brother and as she had a new car Mrs. Smith found it pleasant to ride to town occasionally with her.

About a week before Thanksgiving the Tompkins Theater advertised that both dressed and live turkeys were being given out to the lucky holders of certain tickets. So Mrs. Smith asked Miss Straub if she would drive with her to the theater some evening and as she, Mrs. Smith, expected to draw a lucky number she would provide the turkey and we'd all be invited to have Thanksgiving dinner with her.

The two ladies returned later that evening calling out, "We got the turkey," and sure enough they had.

"Miss Straub wanted me to choose a dressed bird," Mrs. Smith announced proudly, "but I wanted to see what I was getting, so I took this live one. I'll fatten this one up and have a good one."

Brother John put the "live bird" into the shed till morning, but when I saw that pale-head, those lusterless eyes and that thin, almost emaciated little hen turkey, I could have wept.

I had visions of my mother's 32 pound gobbler that one year, required father's having had to purchase and have made a roasting pan the entire size of the oven to hold it. I also had visions of the delicious dressing we children like to call "stuffing" that smelled just enough of sage to make the mouth water; and the gravy that only mother knew how to make, as well as slices of squash and mince pies.

When Mrs. Smith asked if she might use my kitchen range for the cooking and the baking as the stove in her apartment was too small for the preparing of the dinner I could but say "yes."

John was sent down town to bring out "plenty of food" for the turkey and when he appeared with a paper sack almost as large as the little bird itself, I could only look on in silence while the ground back of the shop was strewn with the chopped up corn, wheat and oats, while she who "saw what she was getting," made a string of old strips of sheeting and picketed out the forlorn birdie that looked as if she would have no inclination to walk away, much less run. She was given a pan of nice fresh water and left to fatten.

For several days poor little turkey hen pulled herself at the extreme end of the string and laid listlessly on the ground with her tied leg outstretched as far as it could go, eating very little and showing little inclination to put on any muscle for drum sticks.

But she did and the day before Thanksgiving Harry Gibbs, who lived near, was invited to eat dinner with us on Thursday and incidently to come over at once and bring the axe for the execution.

I am glad yet to recall that I had business down town that morning, as I had helped father many a time pull feathers off turkeys and I wanted no part in that feather-pulling spree. I knew that the less I looked upon that undernourished cluster of bones and skin that the more of it I might be able to put into my mouth.

About 8 o'clock on the morning of the great day, I walked into the kitchen to see that bluish looking little bird lying in the oven in the middle of mother's great roaster, and surrounded by about a quart of water. It's puny little drum sticks were sticking straight up in the air as if in protest about the whole affair.

"Why," I gasped, "are you going to roast that turkey in water?"

"Yes," Mrs. Smith answered calmly, "I'm steaming it first so it will be tender." She placed the cover over it as if the incident were closed and I fled the kitchen.

A few minutes before we were called to dinner, Mrs. Smith called "John will you carry this to the table for me, it is too heavy for me."

We all went to help and found the dressing had been made in one of Mother's black iron pots and it was this that was to be lifted from the stove to the kitchen table.

"Looks as if it ought to be thrown into the garbage pail," John muttered as he lifted if off the stove.

I wish I had words to make you see that dressing. It resembled half burned lignite ashes that had been well mixed with some grease. If one can imagine mixing grease into ashes. It had not seen the turkey nor had the poor turkey seen it. They were destined to meet at the dinner table but not before.

Miss Straub looked into the pot and said, "I'll not eat any of that," and she kept her word, passing it by without comment later while we were seated at the table. Mrs. Smith did not urge her to have any but she did eat some stewed turkey tho it tasted like dried beef. Later in the afternoon after the dinner dishes had been washed and put into the cupboards Miss Straub went home. Mrs. Smith did not ask her to stay any longer and as the great round moon showed up over the Broadmoor prairie, John's sister proposed that we go for a walk in the moonlight. "Just we four, you and Mr. Gibbs and John and I."

So we went up the rutted cow-trails that later were used for roads in Stratton Park and while the moon was bright and the air balmy, we walked in silence, nobody saying what a wonderful dinner we had enjoyed.

Presently Mrs. Smith fell into a rut in the steep hilly road. She not only fell, she rolled. We helped her up, brushed her off and all the time I was wondering just how much of that dressing she had consumed and how much it had had to do with making her top heavy.

Since Mr. Gibbs was about the same age as Mrs. Smith, one of us, I don't really know which, conceived the idea of running off from them and allowing them to walk home without us. So we scampered off and soon left them quite a distance behind, altho I could hear Mr. Gibbs' lame foot trying to scratch enough gravel to keep us in sight. Evidently Mr. Gibbs wanted no poor cook in his household.

I know you would like to hear that none of us ever saw any of that dressing next day nor weeks or months after. But I will gladly tell you that when springtime came to the Rockies, Sister was able to take brother back to Paducah an almost-wellman. I have heard since that he is fully recovered and doing well in some, I think, insurance venture. Probably selling some of the land the recent floods have left behind.

Wasson High School News

By CAROL JENSEN

This year's annual observance of the El Paso County Student County Government Day will be held Friday, May 1, at the El Paso County Office Building and Courthouse. This special day is sponsored by the American Legion Post 5 of Colorado Springs and is designed to aid "schools in promoting their own citizenship training programs."

This year's date, May 1, is the historical date of Marxism's infamous May Day and was chosen to stress and portray the differences between the type of government in America and that in communist countries and those controlled by communism.

Wasson is entitled to send twenty students to this Government Day; seniors may be included if not enough juniors are chosen. Those students — juniors — who are prospective students for the Day are Claudia Matthews, Kathi Ruchiti, JoAnn LaCerte, Shirley Roth, Lanette Otto, Connie Hetzler, Pam Might, Sandy Lavalleur, Sheri Noonan, Ardis Anderson. The junior boys include Yogi Grandcourt, Doug Ancona, Leonard Arnold, Dave Kendrick, William Maxwell, Richard Boughn, Charles Steel, Charles Grigg, Jim Stegner, Robert Otoupolik, and Ed Bever.

Wasson will also be able to nominate four boys to attend Boys' State at the University of Colorado in Boulder campus from June 6 to 13. Wasson sends one junior girl to Girls' State each spring, and any girl interested in attending the convention should see Mrs. Hermine Kilgore, dean of girls, for further information. These special conventions are for high school students and gives them a chance to run a mock state government, with legislative meetings and voting.

A sponsor group will be held on April 6 to inform the students of the voting procedures for the upcoming school elections in April.

Students will learn of seating, the wards, and nominating procedures during this meeting. During election time, the school is divided into two wards, the Silver and the Cardinal Wards, on the basis of sponsor groups, each sponsor group is assigned a certain ward. Then the students in each ward nominate a candidate to run on the ballot from their ward, the positions to be filled are cabinet president, vice-president, secretary of morale, secretary of records, secretary of assemblies, secretary of publicity, secretary of courtesy and secretary of safety.

This year's Cardinal Ward will meet in the auditorium with Harris Hetzler business manager in charge. Steve Leonard will be the moderator with Pat Bailey as his assistant. Other cabinet members will check the legality of the nominated juniors for the position and the return of votes. Mr. Gib Funk, head coach, is in charge of the Silver Ward in the gym. Bill Mitchell will be the moderator and Paula Peak will assist him.

Lists of those juniors eligible for nomination will be posted prior to the Ward meetings. Wasson students vote for their favorite candidates on voting machines loaned by the El Paso County Building and Courthouse.

Last Friday was the last day Wasson seniors could make their down payment for the senior trip. This year's trip will be to Denver and Lakeside and is sponsored by the Burlington Railroad Lines. The total price of the trip will be $11.65, the extra $1.65 from the traditional ten dollars covers the viewing of the Cinnerama.

Wasson has been making available to students the Bell Telephone science series during school hours. Last Thursday, students without classes at 7:45 p.m. or 4 p.m. could view the film "Gateways to the Mind."

Last Thursday and Friday nights Wasson presented its spring musical, "Dubbie Trubble," written and directed by Charles Meeker, Wasson's vocal music instructor. The plot for the show revolved around a mixed up scheduling of events for the same night in a college.

The story was told in song, dialogue, and dance routines.

The drama department, music department, printing shop, art department and physical educational department were all involved in making the musical a success. To preview the musical, a "teaser" assembly was presented to students last Tuesday. Students saw parts of the dialogue and musical scores, just enough to whet their interest.

March 21 was the date of the Wasson turn-about dance, "The Whirl." Last year this girl-ask-boy dance was sponsored by Wasson's C-Club; this year Ski-Club is operating the function. Couples were to either dress alike or to clash, in keeping with the spirit of "togetherness." One of the following boys was crowned as "Mr. Wonderful" at the dance: John Eastlack, Roy Gault, Bill Mitchell, Dennis O'Donnell, or Mike Teague.

At this time, Wasson students and faculty members are on their Spring Vacation. School will resume its operation on March 30.

AFA Team To Compete in Debate Tourney

The Academy debaters, Harry J. Pearce, Bismarck, N. Dak., and Aubrey Fargarson, Carthage, Tex., earned entry into preliminaries of the national competition by taking their third victory of the year in the Top of the Nation Tournament at Colorado College this weekend.

The nationals will be held at West Point.

At Iowa State, the Academy debaters will compete with 15 other teams from a nine-state area.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Baby Needs Love, Patience During Ordeal of Teething

Eruptions of baby teeth are important events in the life of every family. They change your baby's feeding habits and bowel movements and make him considerably more difficult to live with. Also they are tangible signs that your infant is growing up.

By the time the first teeth begin to show themselves, gum tissue covering them has been toughened by six months of chewing everything in sight. Relentless pressure by these razor sharp teeth pushing on this toughened gum tissue causes much pain and sometimes swelling and infection.

During this teething struggle your child may be frequently afflicted with mysterious rashes and fevers. In absence of a readily recognized rash which confirms a particular disease many rashes and fevers and bad tempers are blamed on teething. This may very well be the answer to many undiagnosed health problems which seem to reach a height at about age 14 months when the deciduous or baby first molars appear.

This is a difficult and painful period in your child's life. Patience, understanding and love of a mother are so very important.

Do not be alarmed if your baby's teeth do not arrive according to Dr. Spock's schedule. My daughter's first tooth did not appear until her 13th month and there wasn't much I could do about it. Lancing gums is sometimes successfully done to hasten eruption of a single tooth that stubbornly refuses to break thru.

Early or late eruption of teeth does not seem to have any effect on quality of tooth structure or susceptibility to decay. However, if the teething schedule is far behind, consult your dentist to be sure that everything is normal.

CU Symphony To Present Public Concert

The University of Colorado Symphony Orchestra and Choir will present a free, public concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, in Macky Auditorium.

The program will include Two Psalms for Chorus and String Orchestra. Psalms 140 and 146 by Prof. Jean Berger, CU composer and musicologist, and Brahms' "Nanie, Opus 82, for Chorus and Orchestra."

Other selections will include Mozart's "Concerto No. 20 for Piano and Orchestra, in D minor, K. 466," and Beethoven's Overture to "Egmont." Miss Lois Salgado, Lakewood senior, will be piano soloist for the Mozart selection.

Assoc. Prof. Andor Toth is conductor of the orchestra, and Deral Johnson, also of the faculty, directs the choir.

SALES TAX DEDUCTIONS: As a public service, this newspaper is again publishing the schedule of average state general sales tax payments for use in claiming your sales tax deduction on your federal income tax return. This schedule is to be used where detailed records as to amount of tax paid were not maintained. No plus items are permitted where this schedule is used.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

CHILD CARE EXPENSES: A deduction is permitted for expenses incurred for care of children under the age of twelve (12) while the breadwinner works. This deduction is available to mothers, widows, widowers divorced and legally separated persons who pay for the care of a child under the stated age limit or of any child or other dependent who is mentally or physically incapacitated.

The maximum that can be claimed is $600.00. A working wife is entitled to this deduction if her husband is physically or mentally incapable of providing support. Where the husband is not disabled, the working wife may also take the child-care deduction only if a joint return is filed, and the $600 limit is reduced by the amount that the couple's adjusted Gross income exceeds $4,500.00.

SPECIAL CREDIT FOR RETIREMENT INCOME: Those individuals who are 65 years of age before the end of the year can claim 20 percent on the amount of their retirement income up to $1,524. Retirement income consists of the taxable portion of annuities, pensions, interest, gross rents and dividends. The credit is 20 per cent of the sum of these items but no more than 20 percent of $1,524.00.

Although social security and railroad retirement benefits are not subject to federal income tax they must be subtracted from this maximum $1,524.00.

Therefore, if you received gross rents of $2,000.00 and social security benefits of $720 the amount your tax would be reduced is determined by deducting from the maximum of $1,524.00, the $720.00 social security benefits and multiplying the balance of $804.00 by 20 per cent giving you a credit of $160.80. If you are 62 or older, but under 72, the $1,524.00 limitation must also be reduced by 50 per cent of the earnings from personal services in excess of $1,200.00, but not in excess of $1,700, earnings in excess of $1,700 reduces the limitation dollar for dollar.

Thus if you earn $1,500.00 during the year $150.00 (50 per cent of $300) must be deducted from the $1,524.00 maximum. There is no reduction if you are 72 or older. To qualify for the credit you must have had earned income earnings from personal services) of more than $600.00 a year for any ten calendar years before the taxable year. A widow whose husband would qualify under this test is herself qualified.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

CHILD CARE EXPENSES: A deduction is permitted for expenses incurred for care of children under the age of twelve (12) while the breadwinner works. This deduction is available to mothers, widows, widowers divorced and legally separated persons who pay for the care of a child under the stated age limit or of any child or other dependent who is mentally or physically incapacitated.

The maximum that can be claimed is $600.00. A working wife is entitled to this deduction if her husband is physically or mentally incapable of providing support. Where the husband is not disabled, the working wife may also take the child-care deduction only if a joint return is filed, and the $600 limit is reduced by the amount that the couple's adjusted Gross income exceeds $4,500.00.

SPECIAL CREDIT FOR RETIREMENT INCOME: Those individuals who are 65 years of age before the end of the year can claim 20 percent on the amount of their retirement income up to $1,524. Retirement income consists of the taxable portion of annuities, pensions, interest, gross rents and dividends. The credit is 20 per cent of the sum of these items but no more than 20 percent of $1,524.00.

Although social security and railroad retirement benefits are not subject to federal income tax they must be subtracted from this maximum $1,524.00.

Therefore, if you received gross rents of $2,000.00 and social security benefits of $720 the amount your tax would be reduced is determined by deducting from the maximum of $1,524.00, the $720.00 social security benefits and multiplying the balance of $804.00 by 20 per cent giving you a credit of $160.80. If you are 62 or older, but under 72, the $1,524.00 limitation must also be reduced by 50 per cent of the earnings from personal services in excess of $1,200.00, but not in excess of $1,700, earnings in excess of $1,700 reduces the limitation dollar for dollar.

Thus if you earn $1,500.00 during the year $150.00 (50 per cent of $300) must be deducted from the $1,524.00 maximum. There is no reduction if you are 72 or older. To qualify for the credit you must have had earned income earnings from personal services of more than $600.00 a year for any ten calendar years before the taxable year. A widow whose husband would qualify under this test is herself qualified.

Palmer High School News

By DIANE BORDEN

Last week Palmer High School celebrated General Palmer Week, the purpose of which is to honor General William J. Palmer, founder of our city and the person after whom our school was named. The week began March 14, with the taking of tours thru Glen Eyrie Castle, the home of General Palmer. The tours were conducted by bus, originating at the school at 9:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 3:30 p.m.

Thruout the remainder of the week various showcases contained several articles and possessions of General Palmer. On Friday an assembly was held during which a film of General Palmer's life was shown. Also on Friday students voted for the General Palmer Week King from among these five boys: Don Breeding, Tom Cope, Buddy Inzer, Terry Elliot, and Bill Snyder. The king ruled over the GP Week dance that night.

On Saturday, eleven members of the Palmer High School Debate Club entered the State Debate Meet in Boulder. These eleven, who competed in fourteen different events, are: Pam Stephenson, Norm Peterson, Jim Michel, Bill Gemmill, Bob Mohl, Sherman Gardner, Lee Huffman, Lee McWilliams, Cheryl Hoover, Anne Gillespie.

On Wednesday evening the Palmer High School Orchestra and the Terror Band presented their first concert to the public this year. Under the direction of Norman Smith the orchestra played the following selections:

Slavonic Rhapsody ..... Carl Friedmann
The Barber of Seville-Overture ..... G Rossini
Capriccio ..... Vivaldi
Concert in A minor for Piano ..... Robert Schumann
1st movement
Alex Craig, pianist

Also under the direction of Mr. Smith the band presented this program:

Washington Grays-March ..... C. S Grafulla
Merry Wives of Windsor-Overture ..... Otto Nicolai
Concertuna-Clarinet Solo ..... C. M. Weber
Tom Cope — Soloist
Rhapsody on "Midnight in Paris" ..... Conrad and Magidson
Themes from "First Roumanian Rhapsody" ..... G. Enesco
Little Concert Band
Good Friday Spell from "Parsifal" ..... Richard Wagner
Valdres-Norwegian March ..... Johannes Hanssen

Monday, at 3 p.m. in the General Palmer Room, Henry Lujan of the Palmer High School science department lectured on "Space Satellite Communication."

This was the third faculty symposium at Palmer this year, the other two being the lectures of Richard Wintertitz on "Limnology and Fundamental Fisheries Management" and Jerry Teske on "The Styles and Trends of Contemporary Music." The next faculty symposium will be held immediately following spring vacation, which is next week, by George Lewis who will speak on "Unity in Disunity Buddism."

The Palmer High School International Relations Club held its last meeting before spring vacation on Tuesday. During this meeting Sema Ege and Carol Mendenhall spoke on the social, economic and political views of Turkey and its affiliation with the United Nations.

The next meeting will be held on Saturday at which time new members will be welcomed and told some of the purposes of the club. Also at this meeting Lisa Cross and Janet Howard will speak on Trinidad-Tobago.

Mr. Burch of Trinity Methodist Church served as counselor. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Harrison High News

By GWEN ROSE

The Girls Athletic Association recently took part in a Play Day held at Palmer High School. A volleyball match was held between girls from Harrison and girls from Deaf and Blind School. Mrs. Hankins is the sponsor of G. A. A. There are twenty-five active members in the organization.

A St. Patricks Day dance was held March 13 in the Harrison gym. Dress was semi-formal. Jerry Shafer of KYSN radio was the Master of Ceremonies. The dance was sponsored by the Student Council with the purpose of earning money.

Friday, March 13 was Senior Dress Up Day. Members of the senior class wore dressy clothes rather than casual school clothes. A committee has been chosen to plan a program for Senior Western Day to be held in April. An old fashioned melodrama is being written by the Creative Writing class as part of the day's activities. A senior class meeting was held recently to discuss the senior trip which will take place in May. Another item discussed was the senior motto.

The second Quill and Scroll meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Estella Gill, one of the club's sponsors. Dennis Crowe, the program chairman will plan entertainment for the meeting.

Harrison's Latin class will hold a Roman banquet on April 15. Invitations have been sent to faculty members. Guests will wear Roman costumes and Roman food will be served. Entertainment will be provided by members of all Latin classes.

The Letterman's Club will sponsor a game between the men's faculty and the A squad basketball team, sometime in the near future.

The Future Homemakers of America held a meeting recently to discuss the state convention which will be held in Fort Collins. Representatives to the convention were elected. Next year's officers were also elected at the meeting.

On March 20 Members of the Future Secretaries Association will select Miss Future Secretary from girls who have submitted applications to the association.

Student Tells Story of Bus Trapped in Snow

YUMA, Colo. (AP)—What's it like to be aboard a school bus stranded during a blizzard in the open plains country of eastern Colorado.

Dennis Salvador, 17, a senior at Yuma High School, was one of 10 pupils aboard a bus that stalled in a big drift during last week's blizzard that raked the plains.

There were three girls and seven boys aboard the bus when it left the school at 12:30 p.m.

"It seemed unfair to have so few girls if we were going to get stuck in the country," said Salvador after the six-hour ordeal was over.

The bus got stuck—the first time—about 11 miles north of Yuma. "We scooped our way out of that one," he said. But, after the bus proceeded a mile further east the vehicle plowed into a drift that covered the hood.

This time the driver, Duane Gibson, 25, used the two-way radio aboard the vehicle to call the high school for help.

"I was sure glad the busses were equipped with radios," Salvador said, "that was probably the only thing that kept the kids from panicking—and the bus driver kept us busy scooping.

"If there'd been a little panic or something it would all have been different. However, we had so much confidence in our driver—and with the two-way radio system—that it was just more like a long delay. I knew they'd be out here sooner or later.

"There was no discomfort. We were warm; we were busy and we were cheerful," Salvador said.

Gibson was less optimistic when they first got stuck. "I knew if I could keep them busy that they would be far better off. But actually the children acted better than I would have expected under the circumstances."

Two busses sent from the school to help also became stuck, as did a tractor brought to the scene by nearby farmers.

Yuma County highway maintenance crews finally got the youngsters off the bus and took them back to Yuma where the students were sent to stay with local residents.

Railroad Crossing To Be Eliminated

DENVER (AP) — Colorado's public utilities commission gave its approval today to a plan of the Colorado Highway Department which will eliminate the last railroad grade crossings between Denver and the Wyoming state line on Interstate Highway 25. The road is best known to motorists as U.S. Highway 87.

The commission approved plans of the highway department to construct three twin overpasses in the Loveland-Fort Collins area this year and next. The Union Pacific and Colorado had agreed with the roads department on the projects.

Candidates Spend Money On Campaign

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The major candidates in New Hampshire's presidential primary spent about $275,000 on their campaigns.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller apparently was the top spender, although his report wasn't filed. Campaign director Bert Teague estimated Rockefeller's campaign cost $97,000. He came in third with 19,504 votes. Rockefeller is expected to file a report later.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in second place with 20,692 votes, spent $93,432, according to his report filed with Secretary of State Robert L. Stark.

The big vote getter in the writein was Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge with 33,007. His supporters reported they spent $34,889.

Former Gov. Wesley Powell reported the writein drive he led for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon cost $15,285. The voters gave Nixon 15,287 writeins for president and 8,131 for vice president.

Most costly per vote was the campaign of Harold E. Stassen, who reported he spent $44,834 to get his 1,273 votes.

Palmer High School News

By DIANE BORDEN

Last week Palmer High School celebrated General Palmer Week, the purpose of which is to honor General William J. Palmer, founder of our city and the person after whom our school was named. The week began March 14, with the taking of tours thru Glen Eyrie Castle, the home of General Palmer. The tours were conducted by bus, originating at the school at 9:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 3:30 p.m.

Thruout the remainder of the week various showcases contained several articles and possessions of General Palmer. On Friday an assembly was held during which a film of General Palmer's life was shown. Also on Friday students voted for the General Palmer Week King from among these five boys: Don Breeding, Tom Cope, Buddy Inzer, Terry Elliot, and Bill Snyder. The king ruled over the GP Week dance that night.

On Saturday, eleven members of the Palmer High School Debate Club entered the State Debate Meet in Boulder. These eleven, who competed in fourteen different events, are: Pam Stephenson, Norm Peterson, Jim Michel, Bill Gemmill, Bob Mohl, Sherman Gardner, Lee Huffman, Lee McWilliams, Cheryl Hoover, Anne Gillespie.

On Wednesday evening the Palmer High School Orchestra and the Terror Band presented their first concert to the public this year. Under the direction of Norman Smith the orchestra played the following selections:

Slavonic Rhapsody ..... Carl Friedmann

The Barber of Seville-Overture ..... G. Rossini

Capriccio ..... Vivaldi

Concert in A minor for Piano ..... Robert Schumann

1st movement

Alex Craig, pianist

Also under the direction of Mr. Smith the band presented this program:

Washington Grays-March ..... C. S. Grafulla

Merry Wives of Windsor-Overture ..... Otto Nicolai

Concertina-Clarinet Solo ..... C. M. Weber

Tom Cope — Soloist

Rhapsody on "Midnight in Paris" ..... Conrad and Magidson

Themes from "First Roumanian Rhapsody" ..... G. Enesco

Little Concert Band

Good Friday Spell from "Parsifal" ..... Richard Wagner

Valdres-Norwegian March ..... Johannes Hanssen

Monday, at 3 p.m., in the General Palmer Room, Henry Lujan of the Palmer High School science department lectured on "Space Satellite Communication."

This was the third faculty symposium at Palmer this year, the other two being the lectures of Richard Winterritz on "Limnology and Fundamental Fisheries' Management" and Jerry Teske on "The Styles and Trends of Contemporary Music." The next faculty symposium will be held immediately following spring vacation, which is next week, by George Lewis who will speak on "Unity in Disunity: Buddism."

The Palmer High School International Relations Club held its last meeting before spring vacation on Tuesday. During this meeting Sema Ege and Carol Mendenhall spoke on the social, economic, and political views of Turkey and its affiliation with the United Nations.

The next meeting will be held on Saturday at which time new members will be welcomed and told some of the purposes of the club. Also at this meeting Lisa Cross and Janet Howard will speak on Trinidad-Tobago.

Mr. Burch of Trinity Methodist Church served as counselor. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Harrison High News

By GWEN ROSE

The Girls Athletic Association recently took part in a Play Day held at Palmer High School. A volleyball match was held between girls from Harrison and girls from Deaf and Blind School. Mrs. Hankins is the sponsor of G. A. A. There are twenty-five active members in the organization.

A St. Patricks Day dance was held March 13 in the Harrison gym. Dress was semi-formal. Jerry Shafer of KYSN radio was the Master of Ceremonies. The dance was sponsored by the Student Council with the purpose of earning money.

Friday, March 13 was Senior Dress Up Day. Members of the senior class wore dressy clothes rather than casual school clothes. A committee has been chosen to plan a program for Senior Western Day to be held in April. An old fashioned melodrama is being written by the Creative Writing class as part of the day's activities. A senior class meeting was held recently to discuss the senior trip which will take place in May. Another item discussed was the senior motto.

The second Quill and Scroll meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Estella Gill, one of the club's sponsors. Dennis Crowe, the program chairman will plan entertainment for the meeting.

Harrison's Latin class will hold a Roman banquet on April 15. Invitations have been sent to faculty members. Guests will wear Roman costumes and Roman food will be served. Entertainment will be provided by members of all Latin classes.

The Letterman's Club will sponsor a game between the men's faculty and the A squad basketball team, sometime in the near future.

The Future Homemakers of America held a meeting recently to discuss the state convention which will be held in Fort Collins. Representatives to the convention were elected. Next year's officers were also elected at the meeting.

On March 20 Members of the Future Secretaries Association will select Miss Future Secretary from girls who have submitted applications to the association. ¼¼¼ ¼¼¼ ciation.

Candidates Spend Money On Campaign

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The major candidates in New Hampshire's presidential primary spent about $275,000 on their campaigns.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller apparently was the top spender, although his report wasn't filed. Campaign director Bert Teague estimated Rockefeller's campaign cost $97,000. He came in third with 19,504 votes. Rockefeller is expected to file a report later.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in second place with 20,692 votes, spent $93,432, according to his report filed with Secretary of State Robert L. Stark.

The big vote getter in the writein was Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge with 33,007. His supporters reported they spent $24,889.

Former Gov. Wesley Powell reported the writein drive he led for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon cost $15,285. The voters gave Nixon 15,287 writeins for president and 8,131 for vice president.

Most costly per vote was the campaign of Harold E. Stassen, who reported he spent $44,834 to get his 1,272 votes.

Student Tells Story of Bus Trapped in Snow

YUMA, Colo. (AP)—What's it like to be aboard a school bus stranded during a blizzard in the open plains country of eastern Colorado.

Dennis Salvador, 17, a senior at Yuma High School, was one of 10 pupils aboard a bus that stalled in a big drift during last week's blizzard that raked the plains.

There were three girls and seven boys aboard the bus when it left the school at 12:30 p.m.

"It seemed unfair to have so few girls if we were going to get stuck in the country," said Salvador after the six-hour ordeal was over.

The bus got stuck—the first time—about 11 miles north of Yuma. "We scooped our way out of that one," he said. But, after the bus proceeded a mile further east the vehicle plowed into a drift that covered the hood.

This time the driver, Duane Gibson, 25, used the two-way radio aboard the vehicle to call the high school for help.

"I was sure glad the busses were equipped with radios," Salvador said, "that was probably the only thing that kept the kids from panicking—and the bus driver kept us busy scooping.

"If there'd been a little panic or something it would all have been different. However, we had so much confidence in our driver—and with the two-way radio system—that it was just more like a long delay. I knew they'd be out here sooner or later.

"There was no discomfort. We were warm; we were busy and we were cheerful," Salvador said.

Gibson was less optimistic when they first got stuck. "I knew if I could keep them busy that they would be far better off. But actually the children acted better than I would have expected under the circumstances."

Two busses sent from the school to help also became stuck, as did a tractor brought to the scene by nearby farmers.

Yuma County highway maintenance crews finally got the youngsters off the bus and took them back to Yuma where the students were sent to stay with local residents.

Railroad Crossing To Be Eliminated

DENVER (AP) — Colorado's public utilities commission gave its approval today to a plan of the Colorado Highway Department which will eliminate the last railroad grade crossings between Denver and the Wyoming state line on Interstate Highway 25. The road is best known to motorists as U.S. Highway 87.

The commission approved plans of the highway department to construct three twin overpasses in the Loveland-Fort Collins area this year and next. The Union Pacific and Colorado had agreed with the roads department on the projects.

UAW Demands New National Health Program

It asked both U.S. and Canadian leaders to "take the initiative in bringing together labor and other progressively minded organizations to develop and promote enactment" of national programs.

The delegates also approved approved another resolution endorsing group medical practice such as that provided by Community Health Association of Detroit, Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York and the Kaiser-Permanente Plan of California.

Delegates also approved resolutions calling for a federal workmen's compensation law establishing reasonable standards to which the states would be required to adhere.

They also demanded the same thing in unemployment compensation, and asserted that "the cry of states' rights' is a phony device calculated to obstruct the development of adequate legislation."

Dog Fees Will Remain at $3.50 Seabolt Says

Dog owners who received a tag due notice Thursday or Friday without the amount due on the notice will only have to pay the same fee as in the past, $3.50 per dog, it was announced by M. S. "Skip" Seabolt, manager of the Humane Society animal shelter.

Seabolt said that about 6,000 notices had been sent out in anticipation of a fee change, which did not take effect.

Dog owners who did not receive a notice may obtain the tags by mail, by sending a check in the amount of $3.50 per dog, along with the dog's name, color and breed. Fee is the same for male or female.

As a reminder Seabolt said that dog licenses are due April 1 and become delinquent May 1. A 50 per cent penalty is added as of June 1.

Dog tags can be bought at the City Clerk's office, the Humane Society office, 633 S. 8th St., or by mail.

Liquor Store Looted Of Wine Worth $60

Burglars smashed a large window of M & O Liquors, 1320 S. Nevada Ave., some time Friday night and looted the store of several various-sized bottles of champagne and wines worth about $60, Sheriff's office said. Store is owned by Harold Fox, 26 N. Mead Ave.

Service station owner Dall Overstreet, 1328 S. Nevada Ave., discovered the break-in Saturday morning and phoned authorities.

LBJ Proposes New Peace Talks in Panama Crisis

cuver in any settlement talks.

Initial Panamanian reaction was favorable.

Miguel Moreno, Panama's ambassador to the Organization of American States, said he would have to study the Johnson statement but commented, "It's what we have been working for since January."

Johnson said he was sending his statement to Juan Bautista de Lavalle, chairman of the council of the OAS who has been chosen to try to mediate the dispute. De Lavalle moved at once to set up a meeting with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

After reading his statement, Johnson opened the floor to questions, launching what proved to be another impromptu news conference.

During the questioning, the President said that "obviously" restoration of formal diplomatic relations between the United States and Panama would have to precede any review of divisive problems.

The President had this to say in his statement about the machinery for such a review. "As soon as he is invited by the government of Panama, our ambassador will be on his way. We shall also designate a special representative. He will arrive with full authority to discuss every difficulty. He will be charged with the responsibility of seeking a solution which recognizes the fair claims of Panama and protects the interest of all the American nations in the canal."

Johnson said the instructions to be carried by a special representative would "not prohibit any solution which is fair and subject to the appropriate constitutional processes of both our governments."

The President emphasized that his statement repeatedly referred to a "review" of problems that triggered bloody rioting in Panama nearly three months ago.

"I don't say discuss," he said, "because that is a sticky word. Some of them do not quite understand what it means."

Last Sunday evening, an OAS committee announced that the United States and Panama had agreed to resume diplomatic relations, then "discuss and negotiate" common problems. The Johnson administration disavowed the OAS announcement, which prompted some criticism of Johnson, notably in Latin America.

The President's latest statement on the knotty dispute obviously was designed to put new life into settlement talks in the wake of Sunday's fiasco.

On other questions raised by newsmen, Johnson said:

—He does not see any signs that the resignation of his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, indicates that associates of the late President John F. Kennedy and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy are anxious to leave the Johnson administration.

—The President "was not disturbed" by Salinger's resignation Thursday to seek the Democratic Senate nomination in California. Johnson said Salinger told him about his plans barely two hours before announcing them.

—Johnson talked to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on Saturday morning about the hijacking of a Cuban helicopter flown to Florida after two defecting Cubans killed the pilot. He declined to comment on the matter.

—Comment also was withheld on a Soviet decision to release an injured Air Force officer — one of three seized after their reconnaissance bomber was shot down inside East Germany.

In discussing his Panama statement Johnson said at one point, "I want everyone to know our position and I think this helps."

Johnson said he is hopeful that the method outlined in his statement can be the basis for a settlement of American-Panamanian issues.

"Despite today's disagreements," he said, "the common values and interests which unite us are far stronger and more enduring than the differences which now divide us."

He said he is "well aware that the claims of the government of Panama, and of the majority of the Panamanian people, do not spring from malice or hatred of America."

Instead, he said, they "are based on a deeply felt sense of the honest and fair needs of Panama," adding, "It is, therefore our obligation as allies and partners to review these claims and to meet them, when meeting them is both just and possible. We are ready to do this."

Tuition Boost Announced by CU in Boulder

and $72 in fees for a total of $358. Non-residents will pay $1,034 in tuition and $72 in fees, totaling $1,106.

John W. Bartran, CU budget director, pointed out that the new rates make resident tuition second highest of any state university west of the Mississippi (Oregon State is higher) and makes out-of-state tuition second highest in the nation. University of Vermont is higher.

President Joseph R. Smiley recommended the increases and Regent Charles D. Bromley made the motion, both expressed with regret.

The president told the regents that excessive tuitions "are a form of economic discrimination: the basis of admission to our public colleges and universities becomes ability to pay rather than academic aptitude. Thus is lost to our state and nation some portion of our most precious resource—trained intelligence."

He said that even with the tuition increases the CU budget for next year "will not permit normal progress. . . . In fact, we shall probably lose some ground." He said CU will not be able to add badly needed new faculty members, that for the second year there will be no significant increase in instructional supplies despite an increase of 900 students, that there will be no increase in research support for library book purchases and that physical plant maintenance levels will have to be lowered.

By increasing tuitions a total of $1.2 million, however, Smiley said CU will have funds for an average three per cent faculty salary increases, will be able to add some library staff and will be able to make some improvements in the Denver and Colorado Springs centers.

Smiley said revisions in tuitions are still being studied at the medical center in Denver for graduate students, nursing, medical technology and physical therapy students.

He said because of the substantial tuition increases at Boulder the university will hold the line next year on the second largest item in a student's budget—board and room.

Regents Richard Bernick and Albert Smith criticized the governor and legislature for making the increases necessary. Regent Frank Kemp Sr. also expressed reluctance at the increase but said that state support comes from taxes and that until the tax base is broadened the state has probably reached the maximum level it can get from taxes.

Air Force Shifts Commands After Missile Blasts

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI)—The second high command change since an Atlas missile blew up in a silo March 9 was announced Friday at Walker Air Force Base.

Lt. Gen. Archie J. Old Jr., commander of the 15th Air Force, announced that Brig. Gen. William C. Bacon, formerly commander of the Strategic Air Command's 12th Aerospace Division at Davis-Monthan AFB, Tucson, Ariz., will become commander of the 22nd Strategic Aerospace Wing at Walker.

Gen. Bacon, who previously had been ticketed for command at Dyess AFB, Abilene, Tex., will replace Col. Gerald G. Robinson, reassigned to 15th Air Force headquarters at March AFB, Calif.

Base officials Wednesday announced Col. Richard Hoban would replace Col. Alphonse Chalifoux Jr. as commander of the 579th Strategic Missile Squadron, the squadron governing the 12 Atlas sites at Roswell.

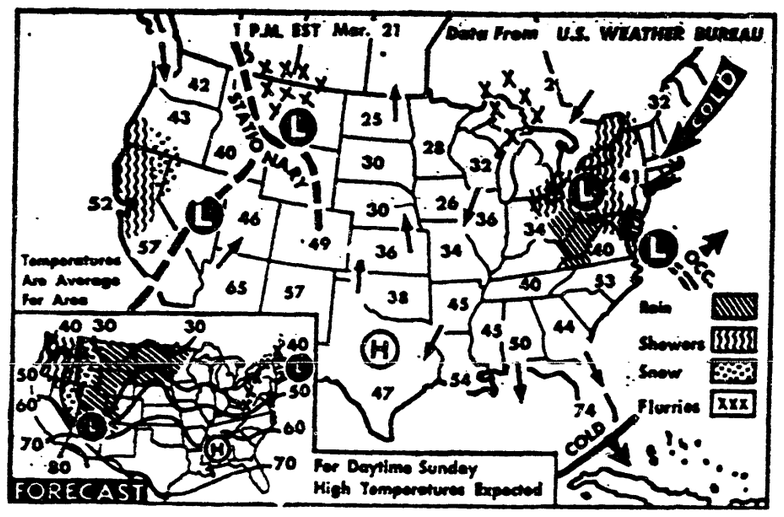
Trapped Mother Snags Phone to Call Police

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Mrs. Darlene Dietrich, 20, was in a closet at home Friday when her 2-year-old daughter slammed the door.

Mrs. Dietrich tried to open the door. She couldn't. Then she kicked the wall—again and again and again. Finally she squished through a small hole. She started to crawl through. Then she stuck.

She took a clothes hanger, bent it into a hook, snagged her telephone, dragged it to her and called for help. Firemen and policemen arrived. It was about four hours from door-slam to freedom.

Mrs. Dietrich was treated at a hospital and released.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Snow and snow flurries are forecast for the Appalachians today. Scattered showers are expected along the north Pacific coast and occasional rain in the lower elevations of the Rocky Mountain region with snow in the higher elevations. Rain will fall in the Dakotas. Cool weather will prevail in the Atlantic states except Florida, while a warming trend will be ...ed in the Mississippi valley.

Adventists Oppose AFA Chapel Service Rules

"Further, we urge that the precedent of freeing cadets to attend churches of their choice be liberalized, as necessary, to make certain that no cadet is ever denied the privilege of exercising his faith according to his custom before entering the service.

"Finally, as the nearest body of our denomination to the Air Force Academy, we assent a continuing interest in the religious climate there. We ask our pastor to take such steps as he deems necessary — singly or by joining with other clergymen — to help ensure that cadets receive full benefits of their constitutionally guaranteed liberties."

Foundations Attacked as Tax Loophole

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Wright Patman of a special House subcommittee on foundations charged Saturday that the wealth of the nation's richest families is being shifted to a tax-exempt foundations and trusts through a "gigantic loophole" in tax laws.

The Texas Democrat said the Treasury Department has not been conscientious enough about plugging the loophole.

His allegation came in the third installment of a report on tax exempt foundations which offered detailed information on the Nemours Foundation of Jacksonville, Fla., set up by the Alfred I. DuPont estate.

"Laid bare here for the first time," Patman said in a letter accompanying the report, "is the detailed anatomy of one of America's great fortunes — a fortune that will one day slip away forever from the payment of any income taxes."

The report estimated the DuPont estate at $292 million at the end of 1962 and said that most of its income over the years had been paid out as annuities to beneficiaries.

On their death, "their portion of the estate's disbursements will go to the tax exempt Nemours Foundation," Patman added. "Thus all income from the DuPont estate's vast fortune will in time escape federal and state income taxes entirely."

Ranch Foreman Facing Charge

LAS ANIMAS (UPI)—Charges of assault with a deadly weapon are to be filed in District Court Monday against Leonard Shannon, 71, foreman for the Trostle Cattle Co.

Shannon was arrested after a shooting incident in which John Ebright, 48, a rancher, and his sister Mrs. Clarice Morrow, 49, were wounded. Neither was hurt badly.

Ebright and Mrs. Morrow had been arguing with Shannon about a fence they were putting up on part of their ranch adjacent to land owned by the cattle company.

Shannon was released on bond.

Taxes Are Too Low; Board Is Shocked

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A citizen appeared Friday before the Lansing Tax Board of Review to complain "my taxes are too low." The shocked board adjourned for a coffee break.

The board currently is hearing complaints from local citizens in a recent adjustment of property valuations.

Leroy Neal, a worker at the Fisher Body plant of General Motors, complained his $800 assessment increase wasn't high enough. Some of his neighbors, he said, have been given tax increases ranging from $1,000 to $1,800.

Radar Probed After Cuban Copter Escape

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The military was reported investigating Saturday whether an armed Cuban helicopter, hijacked in Havana, slipped into Key West International Airport undetected by U.S. radar.

The Russian-built helicopter, armed with a 50-caliber machine gun, arrived Friday. The pilot was dead in the cockpit, wounded seven times by bullets.

Two 20-year-old defecting Cuban army captains said they seized the craft in Havana. When the pilot refused to fly to the United States, the shooting started, they said.

The Cuban government demanded return of the helicopter and of the two defectors. The demand was delivered at the State Department in Washington. A Czech envoy contended that the two defectors had committed desertion, theft, treason and murder.

The Havana demand also asked the United States to hand over a third passenger who wants to return to Cuba.

They were taken to Miami for questioning, along with Sergio Roque, 17, a cadet gunner who witnessed the shooting. Roque said he wanted to return to Cuba.

Generally under international procedures, persons who seek asylum for political reasons are not forcibly sent back to the country from which they fled.

The Cuban helicopter was flown to Key West by Guillermo Santos and Andres Izaguirre, both 20, who told U.S. authorities they had planned the action carefully in advance.

The pilot, Jose Garcia, was killed in a bloody battle over the Atlantic.

Unofficial sources in Key West said the helicopter apparently flew under the U.S. radar screen and that U.S. authorities were looking into the matter.

Capt. Charles Fonvielle, commanding officer of Boca Chica Naval Air Station, where a $4-million radar installation was completed recently, said he did not know whether the helicopter was observed on radar.

The drab green helicopter was held at naval yards in Key West.

Wyoming Town Revolts Against Meat Imports

GILLETTE, Wyo. (AP)— Established selling imported meat in Gillette will be required to advise customers of that fact through use of signs on their places of business.

The Gillette City Council has approved an ordinance requiring posting of a sign reading "imported meat within" in letters at least 10 inches high on the outside of the building. The ordinance calls for a $100 fine if violated.

Restaurant and market owners agreed something should be done to call attention of Congress to the need for limiting meat imports.

The Nation's Weather

The recent Mid-west storm is dying out in the Pennsylvania mountains. Within the six hours, Harrison, Pa. received five inches of snow while Salisbury, Md., collected more than an inch of rainfall. Winds of 45 mph buffeted Atlantic City. Out west, a developing disturbance over Nevada cast a cloud and precipitation shield from California to the northern Rockies. The precipitation fell mostly as showers with some wet snow in the higher mountains. The city of Boise, Idaho was pelted by hail during an evening thundershower. Warm daytime temperatures were confined to the desert Southwest and sunshine state of Florida where the mercury rose above the 80 degree mark.

Many Countries May Drop U.S. Foreign Aid

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aid chief David E. Bell predicted Saturday that country after country will drop from U.S. aid rolls in future years because of growing ability to pay their own way.

Bell said 17 countries, mainly in West Europe, now are self-supporting after once getting U.S. assistance. Of the remaining 76 receiving U.S. economic help, 14 now are on their way to self-support, he said. He did not list the 14.

While some countries with big economic problems will take a decade or more to finance their own way, he said, "the process has begun for the developing countries — as it did in Europe some time ago — and in the following years it will be repeated in country after country."

Bell, who heads the Agency for International Development, made public a situation report in advance of the Monday opening of House Foreign Affairs Committee hearings on President Johnson's request for $3.4 billion in new overseas assistance funds for the coming fiscal year.

Bell's statement was in the form of a summary of the material the administration intends to present to congressmen in support of the program. Bell noted these changes in the program since it began 15 years ago with the postwar Marshall Plan for Europe:

—In 1949, 86 per cent of U.S. aid went to West Europe and Japan. Today none of these countries is receiving American economic assistance. Instead, they are stepping up their help to underdeveloped countries.

—10 years ago 60 per cent of U.S. aid went for military equipment and training. Today 70 per cent of U.S. aid is economic.

—Five years ago two-thirds of U.S. economic aid was in the form of gifts. Now two-thirds is in loans repayable in dollars.

—Five years ago less than half of aid dollars were spent for U.S. goods. Today more than 80 per cent is for American goods and services.

Old Ironsides Will Get Good Luck Pieces

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody and Rear Adm. William B. Sieglaff, commandant of the First Naval District, will place good luck pieces under the new foremast of USS Constitution when it is stepped into place Monday.

quest to finance the minting of $50 million in cartwheels. Other senators quickly chimed in.

Even the thieves like "hard money," Mansfield said, noting that bank robbers recently trucked $20,000 in silver dollars from the bank of White Sulphur Spring, Mont.

"I well remember that my father never felt he had a dollar in his pocket when he had a paper dollar," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, describing the West's "very strong attachment" for the silver piece.

Trouble is, Mansfield said, that collectors hoard silver dollars. On top of that, he said, the silver in a silver dollar is now worth about a dollar, and that has led to hoarding by others who may soon find it profitable to melt cartwheels into "silver bowls or candlesticks."

Mansfield praised his Montana Democratic colleague, Sen. Lee Metcalf, for offering a bill which would reduce the amount of silver in the big coin to frustrate that sort of coin collecting. Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., who heads the Senate Banking Committee, promised to hold hearings as soon as possible on the bill and the nation's general shortage of other coins.

Sen. E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, D-Alaska, said the silver dollar should be kept in circulation. So did Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., who added that the coin is "an honorable means of exchange."

"We should not let the cartwheel go out," said Bible, whose state, like Montana, Idaho and Alaska, produces silver, and also puts the cartwheel to interesting uses in gambling establishments which are legal there.

The rush on the cartwheel market by collectors was prompted by the fact that the Treasury, digging into vaults sealed in 1935, has been issuing the so-called "Morgan" type dollar which has occasionally been valued as high as $2 by collectors.

The run on the dwindling stocks has reduced the treasury's stock from $18 million on March 11 to about $13 million.

As Mansfield commented, the drain will be speeded by the House committee's action. "It will, in short, hasten the day when the 'cartwheel' vanishes from American life," he said sadly.

Sonic Boom Is Blamed as Ceiling Drops

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thomas of Oklahoma City blamed sonic booms today for the collapse of their living room ceiling. Their 6-month-old son narrowly escaped injury when the ceiling fell.

But the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA), which has been conducting the tests in this area since Feb. 3, denied that sonic booms had anything to do with the collapse.

An FAA engineering report said a sudden change in the weather and faulty construction was at fault.

"The joints were uneven and some lumber used was of inferior grade," the FAA report said. "The failure was due to a thermal charge in the weather that made the holding power of the nails less than that required to keep the ceiling stable."

The tests were designed to gauge public reaction to the noise generated by the much-discussed supersonic transports and airliners now on the planning boards.

Mr. Thomas said she fled the house with her two children when the ceiling started falling Friday.

"It was terrible," she said. "I thought the whole house was going to fall down.

'Hanging Prosecutor' Dies in Poverty

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Scott Stewart, famed Chicago lawyer known as the "hanging prosecutor" before he resigned and became a defense attorney who numbered mobsters among his clients, has died in poverty and obscurity.

Death came on March 8 in a modest rented white house in North Miami Beach and was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 74.

There was no funeral — no flowers — no mourners.

His body was taken to the University of Miami Medical School in accordance with Stewart's wish.

New Plan For U.S., Soviet Moon Trip Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House's space adviser has raised the possibility of the United States cooperating with the Soviet Union on lunar research.

Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, said that while international cooperation on the nation's man-on-the-moon project "remains to be seen, we must keep alert to its potential."

Woman Arrested Saturday After Holdup Attempt

A 24-year old woman is being held in custody by city police, pending investigation of attempted armed robbery Saturday at the Hobby Shop, 2531 W. Colorado Ave., police said.

A woman entered the store to "shop around" according to Grace Alice Moore, clerk. After selecting and paying for a ten-cent decal, the woman handed Mrs. Moore a note and told her to hand over the money. The note read, "Hand over all paper money or you get it," police said.

Mrs. Moore refused to obey the order, locked the cash drawer and walked around the woman toward the front door.

Mrs. Moore told police the woman followed, and warned her that if she gave alarm "She would get it." At that time, the woman decided to leave the store. Mrs. Moore said. Mrs. Moore stated that at no time was a gun displayed during the attempt.

Police picked up a suspect answering the description of the woman who was later positively identified as the person who had attempted the hold up at the Hobby Shop, officers said.

Police said that the woman had a single-shot 22 caliber pistol in her purse along with a box of ammunition, but that the gun was not loaded, at the time she was apprehended.

The suspect told authorities that she had bought the gun for protection.

Man Injured Critically in Motorcycle Upset

Jerry A. Levad, 24, of Woodland Park, suffered a fractured skull and other injuries when he lost control of his motorcycle at 1 p.m. Saturday while driving on the Garden of the Gods Road one-half mile west of Interstate 25.

Levad was carried to Penrose Hospital by private car and was listed as being in critical condition Saturday night.

According to Gordon Baumgardner of the Colorado State Patrol, Levad was eastbound on the Garden of the Gods Road when his motorcycle struck a chuck hole and he lost control. The vehicle skidded 38 feet, fell on its side and slid another 77 feet.

Soviet Virgin Land Plan Will Continue

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government made clear here that its virgin lands farming program is far from finished despite dismal results and recent criticism.

Farmers in Kazakhstan promised to produce this year more than twice as much grain as the central Asian region has averaged in the 10 years of the program.

The promise was contained in a letter from directors of state farms, chairmen of collective farms and others in Kazakhshan. Both the Communist party newspaper Pravda and the trade unions newspaper Trud frontpaged the letter.

Boulder Man Escapes Copter Crash Injury

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)— Lt. (j.g.) John Johanson of Boulder, Colo., was among three crewmen of a Navy helicopter who escaped injury Friday in a crash landing in Lebanon State Forest.

The jet-powered helicopter, one of three flying in formation, developed trouble and came down on a narrow fire line in the forest. It was badly damaged when it struck trees.

The other crewmen were Lt. Howard R. Shehan Jr., 32, Lewistown, Pa., the pilot, and Aviation Mechanic William B. Richardson, 20, of Wirtz, Va.

The helicopters were en route to Mayport, Fla., to go aboard an aircraft carrier.

U.S. Airman Released By Russians

took him to the U.S. Air Force hospital at Wiesbaden for treatment of a fractured leg and arm.

The fate and whereabouts of his two comrades, Capt. David I. Holland, Holland, Minn., and Capt. Melvin J. Kessler, Philadelphia, were unknown. They are believed to be uninjured.

Welch, a navigator on the plane, was accompanied in the ambulance by Col. John A. Hennessen Jr., chief of surgery at Wiesbaden Hospital, who had visited the injured pilot twice in Magdeburg and had twice requested his release from the Russians. Both requests were denied at the time they were made.

Newsmen were not permitted to speak with either Welch or Hennessen in Helmstedt.

Those who saw Welch transferred from the ambulance to the plane in Hannover said he was wrapped in blankets and strapped to a stretcher. His right arm was covered with a white plaster cast.

They said Welch looked cheerful and gave all appearances of a "man who is happy to be back among his own."

Welch's release was unexpected, since it was not mentioned in a Soviet note on the downing of his reconnaissance bomber. The note was given to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Walter Stoessel in Moscow Friday night.

The United States has made several demands that the fliers be returned. The Communists contended they were on a spying mission, a charge the United States has repeatedly denied. U.S. officials say the plane strayed across the border about 20 miles and could not be called back before it was shot down.

Gale Dixon Hurt Seriously in Car Crash

One person was still in the hospital Saturday suffering from injuries received in a one-car accident Friday night. Gale Dixon, 1225 W. Kiowa St. was listed by Penrose Hospital as being in good condition. He suffered multiple fractures of the mandible and left leg.

Taken to the hospital by E&E Ambulance, but released, were Jan Olsen of 415 E. Uintah St., and Daniel Loewecke of 912 E. Columbia St.

The car in which the three were riding apparently was making a U-turn in the 1300 block on North Nevada Avenue when the vehicle skidded and the driver lost control. The car went over the west curb of the center parking and struck a tree, city police reported.

UAW Demands New National Health Program

It asked both U.S. and Canadian leaders to "take the initiative in bringing together labor and other progressively minded organizations to develop and promote enactment" of national programs.

The delegates also approved approved another resolution endorsing group medical practice such as that provided by Community Health Association of Detroit, Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York and the Kaiser-Permanente Plan of California.

Delegates also approved resolutions calling for "a federal workmen's compensation law establishing reasonable standards to which the states would be required to adhere."

They also demanded the same thing in unemployment compensation, and asserted that "the cry of states' rights' is a phony device calculated to obstruct the development of adequate legislation."

Dog Fees Will Remain at $3.50 Seabolt Says

Dog owners who received a tag due notice Thursday or Friday without the amount due on the notice will only have to pay the same fee as in the past, $3.50 per dog, it was announced by M. S. "Skip" Seabolt, manager of the Humane Society animal shelter.

Seabolt said that about 6,000 notices had been sent out in anticipation of a fee change, which did not take effect.

Dog owners who did not receive a notice may obtain the tags by mail, by sending a check in the amount of $3.50 per dog, along with the dog's name, color and breed. Fee is the same for male or female.

As a reminder Seabolt said that dog licenses are due April 1 and become delinquent May 1. A 50 per cent penalty is added as of June 1.

Dog tags can be bought at the City Clerk's office, the Humane Society office, 633 S. 8th St., or by mail.

LBJ Proposes New Peace Talks in Panama Crisis

euver in any settlement talks.

Miguel Moreno, Panama's ambassador to the Organization of American States, said he would have to study the Johnson statement but commented, "It's what we have been working for since January."

Johnson said he was sending his statement to Juan Bautista de Lavalle, chairman of the council of the OAS who has been chosen to try to mediate the dispute. De Lavalle moved at once to set up a meeting with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

After reading his statement, Johnson opened the floor to questions, launching what proved to be another impromptu news conference.

During the questioning, the President said that "obviously" restoration of formal diplomatic relations between the United States and Panama would have to precede any review of divisive problems.

The President had this to say in his statement about the machinery for such a review: "As soon as he is invited by the government of Panama, our ambassador will be on his way. We shall also designate a special representative. He will arrive with full authority to discuss every difficulty. He will be charged with the responsibility of seeking a solution which recognizes the fair claims of Panama and protects the interest of all the American nations in the canal."

Johnson said the instructions to be carried by a special representative would "not prohibit any solution which is fair and subject to the appropriate constitutional processes of both our governments."

The President emphasized that his statement repeatedly referred to a "review" of problems that triggered bloody rioting in Panama nearly three months ago.

"I don't say discuss," he said, "because that is a sticky word. Some of them do not quite understand what it means."

Last Sunday evening, an OAS committee announced that the United States and Panama had agreed to resume diplomatic relations, then "discuss and negotiate" common problems. The Johnson administration disavowed the OAS announcement, which prompted some criticism of Johnson, notably in Latin America.

The President's latest statement on the knotty dispute obviously was designed to put new life into settlement talks in the wake of Sunday's fiasco.

On other questions raised by newsmen, Johnson said:

—He does not see any signs that the resignation of his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, indicates that associates of the late President John F. Kennedy and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy are anxious to leave the Johnson administration.

—The President "was not disturbed" by Salinger's resignation Thursday to seek the Democratic Senate nomination in California. Johnson said Salinger told him about his plans barely two hours before announcing them.

—Johnson talked to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on Saturday morning about the hijacking of a Cuban helicopter flown to Florida after two defecting Cubans killed the pilot. He declined to comment on the matter.

—Comment also was withheld on a Soviet decision to release an injured Air Force officer — one of three seized after their reconnaissance bomber was shot down inside East Germany.

In discussing his Panama statement Johnson said at one point, "I want everyone to know our position and I think this helps."

Johnson said he is hopeful that the method outlined in his statement can be the basis for a settlement of American-Panamanian issues.

"Despite today's disagreements," he said, "the common values and interests which unite us are far stronger and more enduring than the differences which now divide us."

He said he is "well aware that the claims of the government of Panama, and of the majority of the Panamanian people, do not spring from malice or hatred of America."

Instead, he said, they "are based on a deeply felt sense of the honest and fair needs of Panama," adding, "It is, therefore, our obligation as allies and partners to review these claims and to meet them, when meeting them is both just and possible. We are ready to do this."

Tuition Boost Announced by CU in Boulder

and $72 in fees for a total of $358. Non-residents will pay $1,034 in tuition and $72 in fees, totaling $1,106.

John W. Bartran, CU budget director, pointed out that the new rates make resident tuition second highest of any state university west of the Mississippi (Oregon State is higher) and makes out-of-state tuition second highest in the nation. University of Vermont is higher.

President Joseph R. Smiley recommended the increases and Regent Charles D. Bromley made the motion, both expressed with regret.

The president told the regents that excessive tuitions "are a form of economic discrimination: the basis of admission to our public colleges and universities becomes ability to pay rather than academic aptitude. Thus is lost to our state and nation some portion of our most precious resource—trained intelligence."

He said that even with the tuition increases the CU budget for next year "will not permit normal progress. . . . In fact, we shall probably lose some ground." He said CU will not be able to add badly needed new faculty members, that for the second year there will be no significant increase in instructional supplies despite an increase of 900 students, that there will be no increase in research support for library book purchases and that physical plant maintenance levels will have to be lowered.

By increasing tuitions a total of $1.2 million, however, Smiley said CU will have funds for an average three per cent faculty salary increases, will be able to add some library staff and will be able to make some improvements in the Denver and Colorado Springs centers.

Smiley said revisions in tuitions are still being studied at the medical center in Denver for graduate students, nursing, medical technology and physical therapy students.

He said because of the substantial tuition increases at Boulder the university will hold the line next year on the second largest item in a student's budget—board and room.

Regents Richard Bernick and Albert Smith criticized the governor and legislature for making the increases necessary. Regent Frank Kemp Sr. also expressed reluctance at the increase but said that state support comes from taxes and that until the tax base is broadened the state has probably reached the maximum level it can get from taxes.

Air Force Shifts Commands After Missile Blasts

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI)—The second high command change since an Atlas missile blew up in a silo March 9 was announced Friday at Walker Air Force Base.

Lt. Gen. Archie J. Old Jr., commander of the 15th Air Force, announced that Brig. Gen. William C. Bacon, formerly commander of the Strategic Air Command's 12th Aerospace Division at Davis-Monthan AFB, Tucson, Ariz., will become commander of the 22nd Strategic Aerospace Wing at Walker.

Gen. Bacon, who previously had been ticketed for command at Dyess AFB, Abilene, Tex., will replace Col. Gerald G. Robinson, reassigned to 15th Air Force headquarters at March AFB, Calif.

Base officials Wednesday announced Col. Richard Hoban would replace Col. Alphonse Chalifoux Jr. as commander of the 579th Strategic Missile Squadron, the squadron governing the 12 Atlas sites at Roswell.

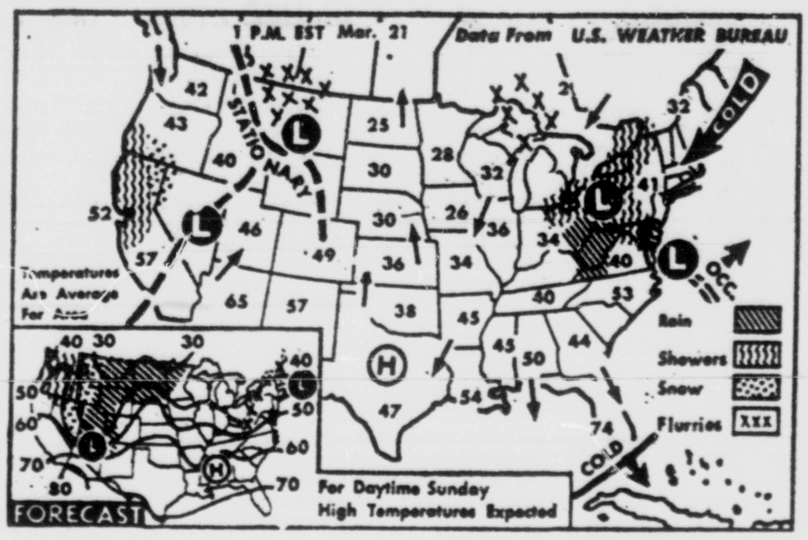
Trapped Mother Snags Phone to Call Police

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Mrs. Darlene Dietrich, 20, was in a closet at home Friday when her 2-year-old daughter slammed the door.

Mrs. Dietrich tried to open the door. She couldn't. Then she kicked the wall—again and again and again. Finally she smashed through a small hole. She started to crawl through. Then she stuck.

She took a clothes hanger, bent it into a hook, snagged her telephone, dragged it to her and called for help. Firemen and policemen arrived. It was about four hours from door-slam to freedom.

Mrs. Dietrich was treated at a hospital and released.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Snow and snow flurries are forecast for the Appalachians today. Scattered showers are expected along the north Pacific coast and occasional rain in the lower elevations of the Rocky Mountain region with snow in the higher elevations. Rain will fall in the Dakotas. Cool weather will prevail in the Atlantic states except Florida, while a warming trend will be noted in the Mississippi valley.

Adventists Oppose AFA Chapel Service Rules

chapel services at the Air Force Academy voluntary.

"Further, we urge that the precedent of freeing cadets to attend churches of their choice be liberalized, as necessary, to make certain that no cadet is ever denied the privilege of exercising his faith according to his custom before entering the service.

"Finally, as the nearest body of our denomination to the Air Force Academy, we assent a continuing interest in the religious climate there. We ask our pastor to take such steps as he deems necessary — singly or by joining with other clergymen — to help ensure that cadets receive full benefits of their constitutionally guaranteed liberties."

Foundations Attacked as Tax Loophole

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Wright Patman of a special House subcommittee on foundations charged Saturday that the wealth of the nation's richest families is being shifted to a tax-exempt foundations and trusts through a "gigantic loophole" in tax laws.

The Texas Democrat said the Treasury Department has not been conscientious enough about plugging the loophole.

His allegation came in the third installment of a report on tax exempt foundations which offered detailed information on the Nemours Foundation of Jacksonville, Fla., set up by the Alfred I. DuPont estate.

"Laid bare here for the first time," Patman said in a letter accompanying the report, "is the detailed anatomy of one of America's great fortunes — a fortune that will one day slip away forever from the payment of any income taxes."

The report estimated the DuPont estate at $292 million at the end of 1962 and said that most of its income over the years had been paid out as annuities to beneficiaries.

On their death, "their portion of the estate's disbursements will go to the tax exempt Nemours Foundation," Patman added. "Thus all income from the DuPont estate's vast fortune will in time escape federal and state income taxes entirely."

Ranch Foreman Facing Charge

Shannon was arrested after a shooting incident in which John Ebright, 48, a rancher, and his sister Mrs. Clarice Morrow, 49, were wounded. Neither was hurt badly.

Ebright and Mrs. Morrow had been arguing with Shannon about a fence they were putting up on part of their ranch adjacent to land owned by the cattle company.

Shannon was released on bond.

Taxes Are Too Low; Board Is Shocked

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A citizen appeared Friday before the Lansing Tax Board of Review to complain "my taxes are too low." The shocked board adjourned for a coffee break.

The board currently is hearing complaints from local citizens in a recent adjustment of property valuations.

Leroy Neal, a worker at the Fisher Body plant of General Motors, complained his $400 assessment increase wasn't high enough. Some of his neighbors, he said, have been given tax increases ranging from $1,000 to $1,800.

Radar Probed After Cuban Copter Escape

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The military was reported investigating Saturday whether an armed Cuban helicopter, hijacked in Havana, slipped into Key West International Airport undetected by U.S. radar.

The Russian-built helicopter, armed with a 50-caliber machine gun, arrived Friday. The pilot was dead in the cockpit, wounded seven times by bullets.

Two 20-year-old defecting Cuban army captains said they seized the craft in Havana. When the pilot refused to fly to the United States, the shooting started, they said.

The Cuban government demanded return of the helicopter and of the two defectors. The demand was delivered at the State Department in Washington. A Czech envoy contended that the two defectors had committed desertion, theft, treason and murder.

The Havana demand also asked the United States to hand over a third passenger who wants to return to Cuba.

They were taken to Miami for questioning, along with Sergio Roque, 17, a cadet gunner who witnessed the shooting. Roque said he wanted to return to Cuba.

Generally under international procedures, persons who seek asylum for political reasons are not forcibly sent back to the country from which they fled.

The Cuban helicopter was flown to Key West by Guillermo Santos and Andres Izaguirre, both 20, who told U.S. authorities they had planned the action carefully in advance.

The pilot, Jose Garcia, was killed in a bloody battle over the Atlantic.

Unofficial sources in Key West said the helicopter apparently flew under the U.S. radar screen and that U.S. authorities were looking into the matter.

Capt. Charles Fonvielle, commanding officer of Boca Chica Naval Air Station, where a $4-million radar installation was completed recently, said he did not know whether the helicopter was observed on radar.

The drab green helicopter was held at naval yards in Key West.

Wyoming Town Revolts Against Meat Imports

GILLETTE, Wyo. (AP)— Established selling imported meat in Gillette will be required to advise customers of that fact through use of signs on their places of business.

The Gillette City Council has approved an ordinance requiring posting of a sign reading "imported meat within" in letters at least 10 inches high on the outside of the building. The ordinance calls for a $100 fine if violated.

Restaurant and market owners agreed something should be done to call attention of Congress to the need for limiting meat imports.

The Nation's Weather

The recent Mid-west storm is dying out in the Pennsylvania mountains. Within the six hours, Harrison, Pa. received five inches of snow while Salisbury, Md., collected more than an inch of rainfall. Winds of 45 mph buffeted Atlantic City. Out west, a developing disturbance over Nevada cast a cloud and precipitation shield from California to the northern Rockies. The precipitation fell mostly as showers with some wet snow in the higher mountains. The city of Boise, Idaho was pelted by hail during an evening thundershower. Warm daytime temperatures were confined to the desert Southwest and sunshine state of Florida where the mercury rose above the 80 degree mark.

Many Countries May Drop U.S. Foreign Aid

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aid chief David E. Bell predicted Saturday that country after country will drop from U.S. aid rolls in future years because of growing ability to pay their own way.

Bell said 17 countries, mainly in West Europe, now are self-supporting after once getting U.S. assistance. Of the remaining 76 receiving U.S. economic help, 14 now are on their way to self-support, he said. He did not list the 14.

While some countries with big economic problems will take a decade or more to finance their own way, he said, "the process has begun for the developing countries — as it did in Europe some time ago — and in the following years it will be repeated in country after country."

Bell, who heads the Agency for International Development, made public a situation report in advance of the Monday opening of House Foreign Affairs Committee hearings on President Johnson's request for $3.4 billion in new overseas assistance funds for the coming fiscal year.

Bell's statement was in the form of a summary of the material the administration intends to present to congressmen in support of the program. Bell noted these changes in the program since it began 15 years ago with the postwar Marshall Plan for Europe:

—In 1949, 86 per cent of U.S. aid went to West Europe and Japan. Today none of these countries is receiving American economic assistance. Instead, they are stepping up their help to underdeveloped countries.

—10 years ago 60 per cent of U.S. aid went for military equipment and training. Today 70 per cent of U.S. aid is economic.

—Five years ago two-thirds of U.S. economic aid was in the form of gifts. Now two-thirds is in loans repayable in dollars.

—Five years ago less than half of aid dollars were spent for U.S. goods. Today more than 80 per cent is for American goods and services.

Old Ironsides Will Get Good Luck Pieces

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody and Rear Adm. William B. Sieglaff, commandant of the First Naval District, will place good luck pieces under the new foremast of USS Constitution when it is stepped into place Monday.

quest to finance the minting of $50 million in cartwheels. Other senators quickly chimed in.

Even the thieves like "hard money," Mansfield said, noting that bank robbers recently trucked $20,000 in silver dollars from the bank of White Sulphur Spring, Mont.

"I well remember that my father never felt he had a dollar in his pocket when he had a paper dollar," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, describing the West's "very strong attachment" for the silver piece.

Trouble is, Mansfield said, that collectors hoard silver dollars. On top of that, he said, the silver in a silver dollar is now worth about a dollar, and that has led to hoarding by others who may son find it profitable to melt cartwheels into "silver bowls or candlesticks."

Mansfield praised his Montana Democratic colleague, Sen. Lee Metcalf, for offering a bill which would reduce the amount of silver in the big coin to frustrate that sort of coin collecting. Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., who heads the Senate Banking Committee, promised to hold hearings as soon as possible on the bill and the nation's general shortage of other coins.

Sen. E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, D-Alaska, said the silver dollar should be kept in circulation. So did Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., who added that the coin is "an honorable means of exchange."

"We should not let the cartwheel go out," said Bible, whose state, like Montana, Idaho and Alaska, produces silver, and also puts the cartwheel to interesting uses in gambling establishments which are legal there.

The rush on the cartwheel market by collectors was prompted by the fact that the Treasury, digging into vaults sealed in 1935, has been issuing the so-called "Morgan" type dollar which has occasionally been valued as high as $2 by collectors.

The run on the dwindling stocks has reduced the treasury's stock from $18 million on March 11 to about $13 million.

As Mansfield commented, the drain will be speeded by the House committee's action. "It will, in short, hasten the day when the 'cartwheel' vanishes from American life," he said sadly.

Sonic Boom Is Blamed as Ceiling Drops

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thomas of Oklahoma City blamed sonic booms today for the collapse of their living room ceiling. Their 6-month-old son narrowly escaped injury when the ceiling fell.

But the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA), which has been conducting the tests in this area since Feb. 3, denied that sonic booms had anything to do with the collapse.

An FAA engineering report said a sudden change in the weather and faulty construction was at fault.

"The joints were uneven and some lumber used was of inferior grade," the FAA report said. "The failure was due to a thermal change in the weather that made the holding power of the nails less than that required to keep the ceiling stable."

The tests were designed to gauge public reaction to the noise generated by the much-discussed supersonic transports and airliners now on the planning boards.

Mr. Thomas said she fled the house with her two children when the ceiling started falling Friday.

"It was terrible," she said. "I thought the whole house was going to fall down.

'Hanging Prosecutor' Dies in Poverty

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Scott Stewart, famed Chicago lawyer known as the "hanging prosecutor" before he resigned and became a defense attorney who numbered mobsters among his clients, has died in poverty and obscurity.

Death came on March 8 in a modest rented white house in North Miami Beach and was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 74.

There was no funeral — no flowers — no mourners.

His body was taken to the University of Miami Medical School in accordance with Stewart's wish.

New Plan For U. S., Soviet Moon Trip Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House's space adviser has raised the possibility of the United States cooperating with the Soviet Union on lunar research.

Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, said that while international cooperation on the nation's man-on-the-moon project "remains to be seen, we must keep alert to its potential."

Woman Arrested Saturday After Holdup Attempt

A 24-year old woman is being held in custody by city police, pending investigation of attempted armed robbery Saturday at the Hobby Shop, 2531 W. Colorado Ave., police said.

A woman entered the store to "shop around" according to Grace Alice Moore, clerk. After selecting and paying for a ten-cent decal, the woman handed Mrs. Moore a note and told her to hand over the money. The note read, "Hand over all paper money or you get it," police said.

Mrs. Moore refused to obey the order, locked the cash drawer and walked around the woman toward the front door.

Mrs. Moore told police the woman followed, and warned her that if she gave alarm "She would get it." At that time, the woman decided to leave the store, Mrs. Moore said. Mrs. Moore stated that at no time was a gun displayed during the attempt.

Police picked up a suspect answering the description of the woman who was later positively identified as the person who had attempted the hold up at the Hobby Shop, officers said.

Police said that the woman had a single-shot 22 caliber pistol in her purse along with a box of ammunition, but that the gun was not loaded, at the time she was apprehended.

The suspect told authorities that she had bought the gun for protection.

Man Injured Critically in Motorcycle Upset

Jerry A. Levad, 24, of Woodland Park, suffered a fractured skull and other injuries when he lost control of his motorcycle at 1 p.m. Saturday while driving on the Garden of the Gods Road one-half mile west of Interstate 25.

Levad was carried to Penrose Hospital by private car and was listed as being in critical condition Saturday night.

According to Gordon Baumgardner of the Colorado State Patrol, Levad was eastbound on the Garden of the Gods Road when his motorcycle struck a chuck hole and he lost control. The vehicle skidded 38 feet, fell on its side and slid another 77 feet.

Soviet Virgin Land Plan Will Continue

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government made clear here that its virgin lands farming program is far from finished despite dismal results and recent criticism.

Farmers in Kazakhstan promised to produce this year more than twice as much grain as the central Asian region has averaged in the 10 years of the program.

The promise was contained in a letter from directors of state farms, chairmen of collective farms and others in Kazakhshan. Both the Communist party newspaper Pravda and the trade unions newspaper Trud frontpaged the letter.

Boulder Man Escapes Copter Crash Injury

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)— Lt. (j.g.) John Johanson of Boulder, Colo., was among three crewmen of a Navy helicopter who escaped injury Friday in a crash landing in Lebanon State Forest.

The jet-powered helicopter, one of three flying in formation, developed trouble and came down on a narrow fire line in the forest. It was badly damaged when it struck trees.

The other crewmen were Lt. Howard R. Shehan Jr., 32, Lewistown, Pa., the pilot, and Aviation Mechanic William B. Richardson, 20, of Wirtz, Va.

The helicopters were en route to Mayport, Fla., to go aboard an aircraft carrier.

U.S. Airman Released By Russians

took him to the U.S. Air Force hospital at Wiesbaden for treatment of a fractured leg and arm.

The fate and whereabouts of his two comrades, Capt. David I. Holland, Holland, Minn., and Capt. Melvin J. Kessler, Philadelphia, were unknown. They are believed to be uninjured.

Welch, a navigator on the plane, was accompanied in the ambulance by Col. John A. Hennessen Jr., chief of surgery at Wiesbaden Hospital, who had visited the injured pilot twice in Magdeburg and had twice requested his release from the Russians. Both requests were denied at the time they were made.

Newsmen were not permitted to speak with either Welch or Hennessen in Helmstedt.

Those who saw Welch transferred from the ambulance to the plane in Harnover said he was wrapped in blankets and strapped to a stretcher. His right arm was covered with a white plaster cast.

They said Welch looked cheerful and gave all appearances of a "man who is happy to be back among his own."

Welch's release was unexpected, since it was not mentioned in a Soviet note on the downing of his reconnaissance bomber. The note was given to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Walter Stoessel in Moscow Friday night.

The United States has made several demands that the fliers be returned. The Communists contended they were on a spying mission, a charge the United States has repeatedly denied. U.S. officials say the plane strayed across the border about 20 miles and could not be called back before it was shot down.

Gale Dixon Hurt Seriously in Car Crash

One person was still in the hospital Saturday suffering from injuries received in a one-car accident Friday night. Gale Dixon, 1225 W. Kiowa St. was listed by Penrose Hospital as being in good condition. He suffered multiple fractures of the mandible and left leg.

Taken to the hospital by E&E Ambulance, but released, were Jan Olsen of 415 E. Uintah St., and Daniel Loewecke of 912 E. Columbia St.

The car in which the three were riding apparently was making a U-turn in the 1300 block on North Nevada Avenue when the vehicle skidded and the driver lost control. The car went over the west curb of the center parking and struck a tree, city police reported.

Local Realtors Sponsor Study Programs at CU

Real Estate courses primarily for persons already working in the industry are being offered by the University of Colorado and Colorado Springs Board of Realtors. Two more courses will complete the real estate certificate program this year. They are Introduction to Real Estate Appraisal and Commercial and Invetsment Properties.

The Appraisal course is a general study of the market, residence values and the principles of property appraisal. Classes meet for 11 weeks on Thursdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Instructor is Lee Lyon who is a local appraiser and has taught several courses in real estate.

Commercial and Investment Properties is one of the newer courses in the certificate program and falls into the advanced group of subjects. This means that a student must have completed the 4 basic courses before he is eligible to enroll. The course will cover the analysis and selection of investment properties.

Instructor C. V. LeForce is the broker of Faith Realty Co and has also had considerable teaching experience in the certificate program. Classes meet Wednesdays from 7 to 9.00 p.m. beginning March 25.

Registrations must be completed by the first night of class at the Extension Center, 1105 N. Nevada Ave. The Appraisal class begins Thursday, March 26 and tuition is $22.00. Tuition for the Commercial course is $20.00 and it will meet for 10 weeks.

IT'S IN THE BAG — The doff-and-don bag shown here is designed to protect Apollo astronauts in depressurization emergencies. It is being tested under airborne weightlessness by NASA and Air Force researchers at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio. Aim of the experiment is to develop a bag in which astronauts can move around and which can be pressurized even if the spacecraft loses pressurization. Fighting weightlessness in the plane, and working in the tight confines of the bag, Lt. Edwin H. Sasaki dons the suit in two minutes. Test director keeps feet by pressing downward from Plane's ceiling. Plane achieves absence of gravity by flying in parabolic arcs.

Civilian Groups To Hear of Army Improvements

The 2nd Battalion, 61st Infantry, of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Ft Carson has initiated a program on Army improvements to present to civilian groups.

Included in the program are talks and demonstrations on improvements of Army weapons and material since World War II.

Lt. Roger C. Lee, who is in charge of the program, has worked up a program with four soldiers to help answer questions.

Materiel used in the program includes radar equipment, the modern protective mask, the new C rations and the M-60 machine gun. Other weapons and materiel used at Ft. Carson by the 5th Infantry Division are covered in the program.

Shooting Down Fighter Plane Being Probed

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — American authorities are investigating the possibility that a Cambodian fighter plane shot down a Vietnamese spotter plane flown by an American near the Cambodian border.

The American pilot was injured and his Vietnamese observer killed in the crash, which occurred during a Vietnamese air strike on a village the Cambodians claimed was in their territory.

American sources said circumstances surrounding the shooting down of the L19 plane were "extremely unusual." They claimed the plane was hit a mile inside South Viet Nam territory, but the border is poorly defined in that area.

It was first believed that a Vietnamese fighter-bomber unintentionally hit the low-flying spotter plane while strafing the village. But authorities now feel that a foreign aircraft, probably Cambodian, may have been in the area at the time.

The Cambodian government charged that the Vietnamese forces violated the Cambodian frontier, killing several persons and wounding others. Cambodia asked the International Control Commission to investigate.

Hudson Ecker, Noted Insurance Executive, Dies

He was associated with the company for more than 80 years and helped it become the nation's largest insurance firm with assets of more than $20 billion.

Ecker had held the post of honorary board chairman since 1951. He started as a $4-a-week mail clerk after writing company officials in 1883 he wanted a job that offered opportunities for advancement.

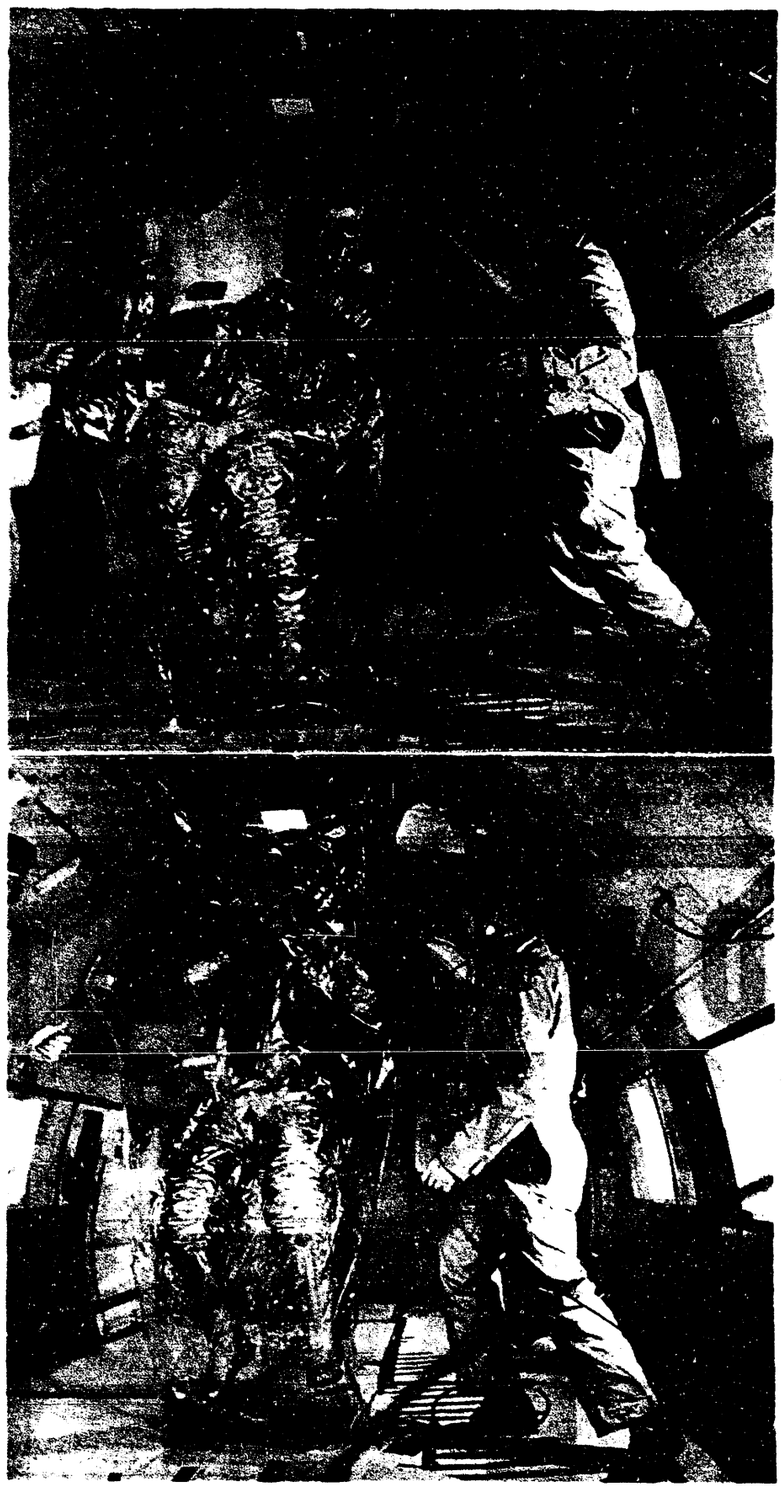
Ecker had been a company director since 1909. He was president from 1929-36 and chairman from 1937-51.

The death follows by less than a month that of his son, Fredric, who was Metropolitans president and chairman.

According to Metropolitan officials, none of Ecker's grandchildren or great-grandchildren now is associated with the company he helped build.

When he became a mail clerk the company's assets were $2 million and it had 531,000 policyholders with $62.4 million insurance in force.

Now Metropolitan has $20 billion assets, 44.5 million policyholders, $106 billion insurance in force.



Critic Who Panned Actress-Wife, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — James Whittaker, a newspaper reporter and drama critic who set a classic example of journalistic impartiality by panning his wife's performance in a show in which she was starring, is dead at age 73.

In 1919, Whittaker married Ina Claire, the actress. But because there was a clause in her contract forbidding her to marry, the wedding was kept secret.

The secret came into the open the following year when Whittaker, then a drama critic for the New York Daily News, reviewed the opening of a production starring his wife. He began his review this way:

"Last year when I married Ina Claire she gave her profession as an actress, but nothing in last night's performance would make me believe that was true."

He and Miss Claire were divorced five years later.

In 1926 he married Halycone Hargrove. She survives him, along with their daughter, Pamela.

Whittaker, whose novel, "Run For Your Life," was published in 1950, died Thursday in St. Luke's Hospital.

Queen, Infant Son To Stay in Palace

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II and her baby son, who are reported "in excellent health," will stay at Buckingham Palace with Prince Philip until after Easter, court sources said Friday.

Manitou High School News

By JOY BORMANN

Almost 300 students interested in a medical career, spent March in listening to people connected with various professions of medicine.

This was sponsored by the Auxiliary of the El Paso County Medical Society. The talks took place in the Margery Reed Auditorium at Penrose Hospital. After the lecture students were taken to the hospital of their choice. Penrose, St. Francis, or Memorial. There they were fed in the cafeteria and then were taken on a tour of the hospital.

To start things off a movie was shown "Helping Hands of Julie" that told the number of people involved with one person in a hospital to take care of him.

Opening the series of lectures, Dr. James Carris, M.D. and president of the El Paso County Medical Society described the growing shortage of doctors.

There were speeches on almost all types of medical workers, such as Physiotherapy, Occupational Therapy, Speech Therapy, X-Ray Technology, Nursing, Medical Records, Dietetics, Laboratory Technology, Pharmacy, Monitors, Candy Stripers, and Business Opportunities in the Hospital.

The same day members of the band and chorus went to Pueblo to compete in the state music festival. There were solo entries, ensembles, duets and singing groups from all over the state present. The judging was done on a basis of a 1, 2, 3, 4, rating and all Manitou entries did quite well. The contest was held at Southern Colorado State College.

Chorus members who attended: Cathy Marshall, Creig Campbell, John Steddom, Ken Crabtree, Bruce Preschold and Nancy Pennington. There were Manitou Junior High School entries, also.

All the ratings are not back from Pueblo yet, so it is not known how well everyone did.

Manitou High School was represented at the first regional High School Art Exhibit and Workshop held Friday, March 13. Taking part in the program were Mrs. Joani Olsen and Linda Hendricks. Registration was at the Fine Arts Center in Canon City.

A tour of the new Fremont County Courthouse was taken. The luncheon was given at Christ Episcopal Church. Next the Canon City High School art department was viewed. A workshop was attended, headed by Professor Truchsess and Mrs. Ann Trucksess Dignan.

First year Home Economics class is working on such projects as skirts, blouses, and dresses. The second year class has finished sewing and is chiefly concerned with the construction of a notebook containing the types of furniture each girl would like to furnish her furture home with. Also with learning how to be a good housewife, which includes cooking, the class enjoys a frequent discussion of typical problems concerning the home.

Mrs. Mary Felt's English class has just finished reading three plays, "Trysting Place," "Enter the Hero," and "Sorry Wrong Number."

Harry Foulke's Biology I Classes have been experimenting in the laboratories with chemical reactions of the human body.

Bill Phelps Senior Social Studies are concerned with State Legislatures and have viewed two movies entitled "CBS Report, the Water Famine" and "The NORAD Site (phase one)".

Nine weeks tests were given to all students on Thursday March 19 and Friday March 20. The first three periods were given on Thursday and the last three were on Friday.

Future Secretaries of America met at Manitou High School on Thursday. The speaker told about IBM.

about IBM. The Miss FSA contest was also discussed. Manitou Chapter's sponsor is Miss Fern Latcher.

The Booster Club Talent Show try-outs were held Wednesday, March 18, after school.

Spring vacation began on Friday and MHS students will return to school on March 30.

Savings Associations Show Net Increases

The Savings and Loan League of Colorado reports that the eleven associations which comprise the Southeast District of the State of Colorado netted $710,001 in new savings for the month of February. This reflects an increase of 356.9 per cent over the net decrease of $35,693 in new savings for January. The comparative state figure was an increase of 123.3 per cent.

The monthly mortgage loans were $1,845,125 compared to $2,628,578 for January, a decrease of 29.8 per cent. Statewide there was a 3.38 per cent decrease.

Total assets for the eleven reporting associations are $118,677,520 compared to $97,297,326 as of February 28, 1963, an increase of $21,380,157 or 21.9 per cent. This compares to a statewide increase of 14.2 per cent.

Springs Drivers Win Patrol Commendations

Two Colorado Springs motorists last week won commendations for safe driving from the state Highway Patrol and will compete for the March Highway Safety Award to be made by the Denver Post and Denver U. S. National Bank.

They were Shirley L. Williams, 1000 Main St., Security, and Russell M. Fleming Jr., 814 Prairie Rd.

Widefield High Windup

By CINDY HUTTER

Recently the WHS Student Council has been considering the reorgainization of extracurricular clubs along with the administration. The purpose is to encourage the clubs which are active in name only to become more active. Many of the WHS clubs were first organized for academic reasons but have gradually become social clubs.

In the process of investigating the club situation, the Student Council members will check the clubs' constitutions to see whether or not the club members follow them. In connection with this project, student council representatives have been trying to help the Pep Club to achieve a greater representative membership.

The committee has been comparing constitutions from other schools' Pep clubs with WHS' Pep Club's constitution. One possibility to increase membership is to combine the Girls' Club and Pep Club.

There are now fourteen clubs that are active and organized at WHS. These clubs are the chess club, girls' club, Latin club, art club, math club, distributive education club, Spanish club, science club, French club, the W club, industrial arts club, home economics club, library club and the National Honor Society.

This year class and student council elections will be conducted with the use of voting machines. The elections will be held on April 17. The week of April 13 has been designated as campaign week. Students will only be eligible to run for one office. Names of people who had all C average and wished to run for an office were turned in to a student council member Friday.

Senior Kids Day was held March 13. All seniors were asked to revert to their childhood for the day by dressing as youngsters. Knee socks, bow ties, lollypops, dolls, diapers, and beanies were showered on faculty and students as the seniors happily did as they had been asked.

A dance was held in the WHS all purpose room for the seniors on Friday night. Senior class officers are Bob Gentry, president, Claude Burke, vice-president, Heather Miller, Secretary-treasurer.; Susan Parnell, Lynn McCord and Joan Barr, representatives.

Students from the WHS music department attended the State Music Contest in Pueblo March 14. The department was honored to return with 9 Superior (I) ratings, 19 Excellent (III) ratings and 13 Good (III) ratings. Those students winning Superior ratings were Ed Lane, Baritone Saxophone; Mark Haggar, Trumpet; Lola Pfanenstiel, twirling; Donna Gaherty, twirling; Lloyd Wright, Trombone; Boys Quartet; John Griffith, Clarinet; Girls Triple Trio; Girls Trio. Those winning Excellent ratings were Sax Quartet; Maryellen Brada, Flute; Brass Septet; Sue Gates, twirling; Clarinet Quartet; Sue Parnell, twirling; Pam Rains, twirling; Cornet Trio; Don Woods, Sousaphone; Linda Reed, vocal; Bob Cronkhite, Trumpet; Melva Reed, Vocal; Paul Snell, French Horn; Oma Jean Cornils, vocal; Denise Bernhoft, vocal; Ed Lane, vocal; Mixed Quartet; Berry Zaiger, Alto Saxophone; Clarinet Quartet. Those receiving good ratings were Ann Lively, Piano; Bradley Douglas, Trumpet, Donna Buchanan, Oboe; Wanda Floyd, Clarinet; Horn Quartet; Andy Armstrong, French Horn; Angela Goodwin, Clarinet; Flute Trio; Bill Ferrier, Baritone; Brass Quartet; Carol Luedecke vocal; Donna Smith, vocal; Connie Hensen, Clarinet.

Senior class representatives gave out envelopes and instructions to all seniors who wish to have their annuals sent to a particular address next year. The seniors were instructed to fill out the slip in the envelope, put in a quarter to cover postage and drop the envelopes into the absentee box in front of the office.

Spring vacation began Friday, 12:30 p.m.

Due to the spring vacation there will be no hot lunch program this week.

CHANGED BUSINESS

Responding to major population shifts in the United States after 1985, large mail order companies established hundreds of retail stores throughout the country and, by midcentury, retail sales exceeded those of mail order divisions, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

An imprinted code on all pills and capsules was urged today to improve the existing method of identifying unlabeled drugs.

Without doubt, the drug identification guide published in the Journal of the American Medical Association in 1962 is "today's most comprehensive and useful source available for identifying unknown drugs," Joseph G. Caldwell, BA, Alfred F. Shoman Jr., BS, Charles B. Hurst Jr., BS, and William O. Robertson, MD, Columbus, Ohio, wrote in the current JAMA.

It succeeds as an effective measure in narrowing the range of possibilities for unknowns, they said.

However, they reported studies indicating that the possibility of erroneous identifications appears significant, particularly for white unmarked tablets.

"It is our opinion that for the busy general practitioner no method would be ideal, but the addition of an imprinted code on all tablets would vastly simplify and enhance the success of the current method," they commented.

Steps should be taken to develop and implement a system for imprinting additional coded information on all solid medication forms to allow for greater precision in identification, they recommended.

One recommendation that has been made advocates imprinting the manufacturer's trademarks or initials on one side of a tablet and a three-digit code on the other. A more elaborate proposal calls for coded imprinting of a tablet to include its general therapeutic classificating, year of production, dosage, manufacturer and other data.

Were these suggestions able to be followed, the authors said, it is believed that accuracy in identification would rise significantly.

Such an imprinting system requires the cooperation of the profession, the pharmaceutical industry and government, they pointed out. The industry, they said, has indicated it is eager to cooperate to the fullest of its capacity.

All of the authors have been affiliated with the Columbus Poison Control Center. Dr. Robertson is now at the University of Washington, Seattle.

The AMA's "Identification Guide for Solid Dosage Forms," published in the Dec. 22, 1962, JAMA, contains coded data on 5,000 drugs, representing the bulk of the nationally distributed prescription pharmaceuticals. One of the primary reasons for developing the guide was the need for quick identification of drugs taken by poisoning victims.

Food Expert Will Speak at Fine Arts Center

Miss Helen Corbitt, famous food expert and cook book authoress, will be in Colorado Springs April 22 to give a talk at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center at 10:30 a.m.

Her talk, sponsored by the Fine Arts Center Members Volunteer Assn., will be open to the public. Tickets, which will be available April 6 at the main desk on a first-come, first-served basis, are $1 for Fine Arts Center members and $2 for non-members.

Miss Corbitt, probably the most famous woman in the field of foods, is presently director of restaurants for Neiman-Marcus of Dallas.

Her first cook book, "The Helen Corbitt Cook Book" is in its 20th printing since it was published in September of 1957. Her second book, "The Pot Luck Cook Book," is on its way toward the same success.

Since her graduation from Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Miss Corbitt has had an impressive career in all types of food management and instruction in cooking.

She is a member of "Confrerie de la Chaine des Rotisseurs," the world's oldest gourmet society. In 1961, she received the Golden Plate Award as Food Service Operator of the Year, the only woman ever to be so honored.

In Colorado Springs, she will talk on "Fashions in Food," giving cooks and gourmets a Springtime boost in the food department.

De Gaulle Gains Popularity in Latin America

By GARY MOLEON

In fact, some of the American republics seems to regard such a visit as the New Hemispheric status symbol.

"If De Gaulle goes to a particular country it has to mean that . . country is important enough for him to come from Paris to visit," was the way one Latin American diplomat put it.

While questions have arisen over U.S. policy toward Latin America, De Gaulle has invited Latin America in simple terms to join France "hand in hand" toward a world undergoing a "complete transformation."

His visit to Mexico has been impressive.

Now the French leader has chosen September — the southern hemisphere's spring—for a visit to the countries which, with Mexico, are among the leaders of Latin America: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru.

"We will be glad to have this formidable leader of France," a Peruvian diplomat said. He recalled that Peru's cultural bonds with France have been close and that President Fernando Belaunde attended school in Paris.

The Latin-American countries not yet on De Gaulle's visiting list are almost scrambling to get on it.

From the embassy of Panama with which the United States is currently at odds over the Panama Canal treaty, came this remark by an official: "De Gaulle absolutely must come to Panama. His Panamanian welcome would be ecstatic."

Newspapers and the government in El Salvador, according to reports reaching here, decided to play down accounts of the De Gaulle visit to Mexico when informed the French leader was unable to visit Central America for the time being.

Said an Argentine diplomat: "The contact with the most outstanding leader of the Western world could not but be a towering event."

A Chilean diplomat: "How could I not be interested in expansion of French activities in Latin America?"

A Uruguayan official "Anyone who knows De Gaulle's attitude should know he will do anything rather than forget Uruguay. We were the first to recognize his government in exile in World War II."

A Brazilian: "With France internal problems, it is natural to expect France to turn its attention to the New World, to which it is linked by old traditions."

Malaysia Plans Quick Expansion Of Armed Forces

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia tightened arrangements here for quick expansion of the armed forces if necessary to meet the threat of possible war with Indonesia.

Proclamations published in the government Gazette provided for calling into service the regular army and air force reservists, the territorial (home guard) army, and the navy and air force volunteer reserves.

However, Abdul Kadir Bin Samsuddin, a defense ministry secretary, told a news conference the move does not constitute general mobilization and is entirely separate from an announced but unimplemented plan to draft men from 21 to 29 for military service.

He said the reservists and territorial forces will not report for duty until specifically notified.

The secretary declined to reveal the total number of men in the reserves and territorial army, but said they exceeded 5,000. The Malaysian army numbers 15,000. The major responsibility for defending this anti-Communist federation of former British colonies falls to Britain.

Chicago Hoods Plead Innocent In Denver Court

DENVER (UPI)—Two Chicago crime figures pleaded innocent Friday to extention and conspiracy charges amid reports that the target of the alleged extortion, disbarred attorney Robert Sunshine, would be transferred from the Colorado state penitentiary.

Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio, 51, and Americo (Pete) DePietto, 49, entered the pleas before U.S. Dist. Judge Alfred A. Arraj. Arraj gave defense attorneys 14 days to file motions.

Alderisio and DePietto were accused in a grand jury indictment of using interstate communications facilities to plot extortion and to threaten the 42-year-old Sunshine, a former Denver lawyer now serving a jail term for theft.

Two other men indicted on the charges, Ruby Molod, 52, part owner of the Desert Inn at Las Vegas, Nev.; and Willie Israel Alderman, 62, also of Las Vegas, previously pleaded innocent.

They are accused of threatening Sunshine in an attempt to collect $65,000 he had been given for a business investment.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Sunshine would be transferred from the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City to the Federal Correctional Institute at La Tuna, Tex., soon.

Sunshine and his attorney Robert T. Kinsley, have said the underworld might try to silence Sunshine.

Sunshine is serving a four to eight years for stealing money from a client, and one and one-half to five years concurrently in another larceny case.

Poole Warns Against Teaching Children Fear

Last summer millions of tiny tots scampered across ocean beaches; in high glee they headed for the pounding waves. Millions of mothers, or fathers, screamingly pursued, and frightened them with stories of death and drowning.

Last summer millions of inquisitive youngsters chased rhythmic snakes, held pop-eyed frogs, ran after rabbits, gathered skittering ants, and fondled wriggling worms. Millions of mothers and fathers knocked the fascinating creatures from the children's hands; frightened them with stories about poisonous snake bites, venomous frog spittle, death-dealing rabbit fever, paralyzing ant bites and filthy worm fluid.

We adults pass on to children ingrained fears inherited from our parents. Psychologists know, from years of study, that a child, by nature, has little or no fear. Its enthusiasm and curiosity about the world provides the child with a direct, inquisitive approach to everything.

It learns fear only by being taught that it should be frightened of snakes, rabbits, ants, frogs, worms and other creepy crawlies.

A child's positive curiosity is badly maimed, permanently crippled by fears imposed on it by adults. Much pleasure in nature is destroyed and the child goes through life inhibited by fears, fears it eventually passes on to its own children. The cycle of learn-and-teach can be broken.

Psychologists, with whom I talked after a symposium on "Fear," agreed that a child must be restrained from gleefully toddling into ocean waves. But its joy in the freedom of wide expanses and deep water can be retained if parents will quietly take the child to water's edge, let it play and gradually teach the child rules of safety.

Psychologists suggest that children be taught that of the more than 2500 species of snakes, only one-tenth are poisonous. In the teaching, children must not be told lies that snakes are slimy (they aren't), that they have poisonous tails (none does), that snakes hypnotize people (they can't), that they are charmed by music (snakes are deaf), that snakes will charge and fang any living object (none attacks a human being).

Instead of perpetuating misunderstandings, in order to scare the living daylights out of a child and ruin its pleasure, retain its mental and tactile curiosity through learning the truth.

First, parents themselves should learn which snakes in the region are and are not poisonous; then instruct the child who is delighted with the snakes. If the child likes snakes, teach facts, not fables. Facts about snakes are exciting. A snake's anatomical structure, especially its ability to eat, widens the eyes of an un-frightened child.

For instance, a snake can swallow a prey large enough to keep it going for long periods of time. Giant pythons in Africa are often 30 feet long, thick as a tree, and capable of swallowing a whole deer. All snakes eat prey far bigger than its own mouth and many species can go without eating for months (sometimes years) and still live.

The common field, garden and water snake in the United States has such remarkable endowments as a stomach that can digest bones, a yellow eye-lens that gives sharper vision by filtering out ultraviolet rays. It is not slimy; its skin is dry and exceptionally clean.

Snakes do not attack people. When flushed from undergrowth the snake's total desire is to escape. They bite only when tormented, frightened, startled or teased.

Thousands of facts about dozens of living creatures of which kids are frightened only because parents are frightened, are readily available to the child with interest in nature. A child can learn safety without fear IF a parent will take time to seek out the many fascinating fact-books about living creatures.

Local bookstores and libraries are delighted to assist; to recommend the authentic, well written, stimulating books published for youngsters. Three nature books I wrote with my wife ("Weird and Wonderful Ants," "Deep in Caves and Caverns" and "Insect Eating Plants") have brought us hundreds of letters from parents and children, and given us much pleasure in knowing we have stimulated a real interest, rather than perpetuated false fears in children.

There are the ALL ABOUT books; and a series of books by Ruth Hogner, one of which is an instructive volume on "Earthworms," and a series called "Read and Learn" that opens the world to inquisitive, fearless children.

How about this coming summer? Will you destroy a child's pleasure in the world around it by superimposing your own fears? Or, will you preserve a child's natural fearlessness and foster his pleasure in life?

Robber Robs Robin, Leaves Good Advice

CHICAGO (UPI) — A "kissing bandit" had some advice for a young woman after robbing her in her apartment. He told her to install a latch on her door.

Wallace Seeks Northern Votes In Wisconsin

By HARVEY BREUSCHER

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama rode an airplane emblazoned with the Confederate battle flag into Yankee territory last week to make his first bid for Northern votes in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But once he left the plane, his campaign turned, in his own words, "Cautious—we don't want to press it too hard at first."

Cautious, seemed a fair description when compared with Wisconsin's political style, which finds the office-seeker on the go from factory gates at dawn to dinners after dark.

He found that a lot of voters won't accept the distinction he makes between a segregationist and a racist, and that at least three of his 60 delegate candidates have tried unsuccessfully to get off the ballot.

The governor's political experience is enough to tell him he is the long odds entrant in his primary fight with Gov. John W. Reynolds, who heads a Wisconsin delegation pledged to President Johnson.

But, the three-day Wallace tour was anything but the intense effort expected of a politician trying to catch up.

"I thought this guy would be a tiger, but he's not pushy enough," said a Wallace admirer.

Wallace said that's partially due to "leftwing, pinko press" descriptions of him and happenings in Alabama.

"I'm a segregationist, but that doesn't mean I hate people—a racist hates people," the governor told challenging Protestant and Jewish clergymen in Oshkosh.

Some students encircled him at Oshkosh State College voicing disapproval, and published criticisms came from Wisconsin's three Roman Catholic diocesan newspapers.

Wallace reacted good naturedly to the student demonstrations and said Catholic voters would make up their own minds.

En route from Oshkosh to Milwaukee, Wallace told newsmen he was surprised by the number of people who said they supported his opposition to the civil rights bill now in the U.S. Senate.

"There are a lot of folks in Wisconsin, just like in Alabama, who are tired of all this federal meddling," he said.

Vivian Leaves Estate For Musical Teaching

DENVER (UPI) — The will of the late former Colorado Gov. John Vivian instructs that most of his estate be used to establish a chair at the University of Denver School of Music in the name of his late wife, Maude.

The will was filed for probate in Denver County Court Thursday. Vivian died at 76 on Feb. 10. No valuation has been placed on the estate.

The will provides that personal items be given to a brother and nieces and nephews and that the balance of the estate be used as a trust for the music school purpose.

UAW Denounces 'Flirtation' By Republicans

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union (UAW), in the first action of its 1964 convention, called upon "those leaders of the Republican party who are engaged in a flirtation with the radical right to put a forthright end to that flirtation in the interest of both the nation and of their party."

This action came in the wake of an address by UAW President Walter P. Reuther in which he emphasized fringe benefits would get top priority in contract bargaining later this year with the automakers.

The UAW resolution on civil rights was adopted late Friday and said that "a total break between the Republican party and the radical right will constitute a mighty blow for democracy."

It also put the union on record against wire-tapping legislation, renewed its call for abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee and the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, and opposed what it termed "continued government harassment of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers."

Regarding the latter, it said, "the civil liberties of that union must be protected without regard to any affinity to the Communist movement — past, present or future."

De Gaulle Gains Popularity in Latin America

By GARY MOLEON

In fact, some of the American republics seems to regard such a visit as the New Hemispheric status symbol.

"If De Gaulle goes to a particular country it has to mean that country is important enough for him to come from Paris to visit," was the way one Latin-American diplomat put it.

While questions have arisen over U.S. policy toward Latin America, De Gaulle has invited Latin America in simple terms to join France "hand in hand" toward a world undergoing a "complete transformation."

His visit to Mexico has been impressive.

Now the French leader has chosen September — the southern hemisphere's spring—for a visit to the countries which, with Mexico, are among the leaders of Latin America: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru.

"We will be glad to have this formidable leader of France," a Peruvian diplomat said. He recalled that Peru's cultural bonds with France have been close and that President Fernando Belaunde attended school in Paris.

The Latin-American countries not yet on De Gaulle's visiting list are almost scrambling to get on it.

From the embassy of Panama with which the United States is currently at odds over the Panama Canal treaty, came this remark by an official: "De Gaulle absolutely must come to Panama. His Panamanian welcome would be ecstatic."

Newspapers and the government in El Salvador, according to reports reaching here, decided to play down accounts of the De Gaulle visit to Mexico when informed the French leader was unable to visit Central America for the time being.

Said an Argentine diplomat: "The contact with the most outstanding leader of the Western world could not but be a towering event."

A Chilean diplomat: "How could I not be interested in expansion of French activities in Latin America?"

A Uruguayan official: "Anyone who knows De Gaulle's attitude should know he will do anything rather than forget Uruguay. We were the first to recognize his government in exile in World War II."

A Brazilian: "With France internal problems, it is natural to expect France to turn its attention to the New World, to which it is linked by old traditions."

Duke's Coach Bids for Best In the Nation

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI)—Victor Albert Bubas, head basketball coach at Duke, came from a city of steel to flatroll the Atlantic Coast Conference into a roadway to national prominence.

"Vic" Bubas, after five years at Duke, is bidding to become one of the winningest coaches in the history of the ACC and ranks among the best in the nation.

At 35, Bubas has probably the best won-lost record of any coach of comparable age in the country, with his Blue Devils giving him 110 victories against only 25 defeats through the regular season this year.

And, Duke, ranked fourth nationally, entered the NCAA playoffs as the ACC representative for the third time since Bubas, a native of Gary, Ind., took over five seasons ago.

Last year, the Blue Devils finished third in the country in the NCAA playoffs.

Bubas, who graduated from Lew Wallace High School in Gary, home of U. S. Steel, in 1944, started his ride to the top of the ACC as a player at N. C. State and he played on the great Wolfpack teams that included All-Americas Dick Dickey, Sammy Ranzino and Bob Speight in the late 40s and early 50s.

"There was never any doubt about what I wanted to do," said Bubas. "I wanted to coach basketball."

Denver Lawyer Seeks CU Post As Regent

DENVER (AP) — A Boulder resident who practices law in Denver, Daniel F. Lynch, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for regent at the University of Colorado.

Lynch, who graduated from Central High School at Pueblo in 1948, is a former legislative aide to former U.S. Sen. John A. Carroll. Lynch received his bachelor's degree from University of Colorado in 1952.

In his candidacy letter to Democratic State Chairman Robert Maytag, Lynch blamed the Republican state administration for raising college tuition rates.

Lynch called it "a blow against economic development as well as against those least able to pay for Gov. Love's fiscal follies."

March On Washington May Be Planned Again

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said Friday he is thinking about organizing such a march this summer among unemployed persons, both Negro and white, to demonstrate their demands for jobs.

Thousands marched on the nation's capital from all parts of the country last August to focus attention on the civil rights issue.

Duke's Coach Bids for Best In the Nation

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI)—Victor Albert Bubas, head basketball coach at Duke, came from a city of steel to flatroll the Atlantic Coast Conference into a roadway to national prominence.

"Vic" Bubas, after five years at Duke, is bidding to become one of the winningest coaches in the history of the ACC and ranks among the best in the nation.

At 35, Bubas has probably the best won-lost record of any coach of comparable age in the country, with his Blue Devils giving him 110 victories against only 25 defeats through the regular season this year.

And, Duke, ranked fourth nationally, entered the NCAA playoffs as the ACC representative for the third time since Bubas, a native of Gary, Ind., took over five seasons ago.

Last year, the Blue Devils finished third in the country in the NCAA playoffs.

Bubas, who graduated from Lew Wallace High School in Gary, home of U. S. Steel, in 1944, started his ride to the top of the ACC as a player at N. C. State and he played on the great Wolfpack teams that included All-Americas Dick Dickey, Sammy Ranzino and Bob Speight in the late 40s and early 50s.

"There was never any doubt about what I wanted to do," said Bubas. "I wanted to coach basketball."

March On Washington May Be Planned Again

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said Friday he is thinking about organizing such a march this summer among unemployed persons, both Negro and white, to demonstrate their demands for jobs.

Thousands marched on the nation's capital from all parts of the country last August to focus attention on the civil rights issue.

Denver Lawyer Seeks CU Post As Regent

DENVER (AP) — A Boulder resident who practices law in Denver, Daniel F. Lynch, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for regent at the University of Colorado.

Lynch, who graduated from Central High School at Pueblo in 1948, is a former legislative aide to former U.S. Sen. John A. Carroll. Lynch received his bachelor's degree from University of Colorado in 1952.

In his candidacy letter to Democratic State Chairman Robert Maytag, Lynch blamed the Republican state administration for raising college tuition rates.

Lynch called it "a blow against economic development as well as against those least able to pay for Gov. Love's fiscal follies."

CC Professor Named English Chairman

Dr. Thomas W. Ross, professor of English at Colorado College, today was named chairman of the department of English.

Prof. Ross will assume the departmental chairmanship in September. He succeeds Prof. Frank A. Krutzke, chairman during the past few years, who has been named Judson M. Bemis professor of English.

Prof. Krutzke recently was awarded the Louis T. Benezet Faculty Rotating Fellowship, endowed by the Danforth Foundation, for the coming academic year. He will spend the year examining the teaching of college freshman English.

Prof. Ross earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in English at Colorado College. He received his Ph. D. at the University of Michigan in 1951.

As an undergraduate at Colorado College, where he was graduated magna cum laude, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary scholastic society. At Michigan, he was a University Fellow.

The chairman-elect is an authority on Middle English and is the author of articles in scholarly journals. He currently is reassembling from various sources the anonymous 14th century poem "A Satire on Edward II."

Prof. Ross began his academic career as a teaching fellow at the University of Michigan in 1947. He joined the faculty at Colorado College as an instructor in 1951.

He was assistant dean of the college from 1953 to 1956 when he went to Austria as assistant director of the Salzburg Seminar in American studies. He returned to Colorado College in 1958 and served as director of admission for three years.

During the summer of 1955, he was a visiting professor of English at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, the Medieval Academy of America, the American Association of University Professors and former president of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

He is married to the former Miss Mary McCarty of Manitou Springs, Colo. They have two children, Thomas and Margaret.

Motel Owner Dies At Local Hospital

Joe S. Clements, 3415 E. Colorado Ave., owner and operator of the El Rancho Motel, died Saturday at a local nursing home. He had been a resident of Colorado Springs 18 years. He was a member of Ponca Lodge No. 83, AF and AM, of Ponca City, Okla.; Garfield Commandery No. 18, Knights Templar, of McPherson, Kan.; Al Kaly Shrine Temple, Pueblo; Royal Arch Masons in Ponca City, the Colorado Springs Shrine Club and Colorado Springs Elks Lodge No. 309.

Mr. Clements was born in Pawnee, Okla. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lucille Clements, of Colorado Springs; his mother, Mrs. Florence Clements and a sister, Mrs. Myrtle Randel, both of Ponca City; sister-in-law and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Reeves, Colorado Springs, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Esther Calvert, Colorado Springs.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Blunt Mortuary Chapel. The Rev. Warren M. Hile, pastor of the First Christian Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery and services at the grave will be conducted by Memorial Masonic Lodge No. 2, AF and AM. Active pallbearers will be members of Pikes Peak Commandery No. 6, Knights Templar. Honorary pallbearers are George Hammond, Henry Clark, Ernest Naples, Richard Hayes, Loren Bean, Kenneth McWhirt, Harold Cron and Ernest Kuns.

Japanese Girl Writes Asking For Pen Pals

Another Japanese girl, the third recently, has written the Gazette Telegraph that she is seeking American "pen friends." She signs herself Eiko Higuchi, 8788 Machume, Fujimi-machi, Suwa-gun Nagano-ken, Japan. She writes that she is 14 and that the Youth Council for International Contact suggested to her that she communicate with an American newspaper.

She writes that this organization has tens of thousands of members thruout Japan and that its purpose is "to create friendship and understanding internationally."

"We are trying to introduce your country to Japan, with best of our knowledge," she writes. "The organization's address is Youth Council for International Contact 20-1 Jimbocho, handa, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, Japan."

AFA Landmark Featured in Publication

An Air Force Academy landmark will be featured in the upcoming issue of a publication distributed worldwide.

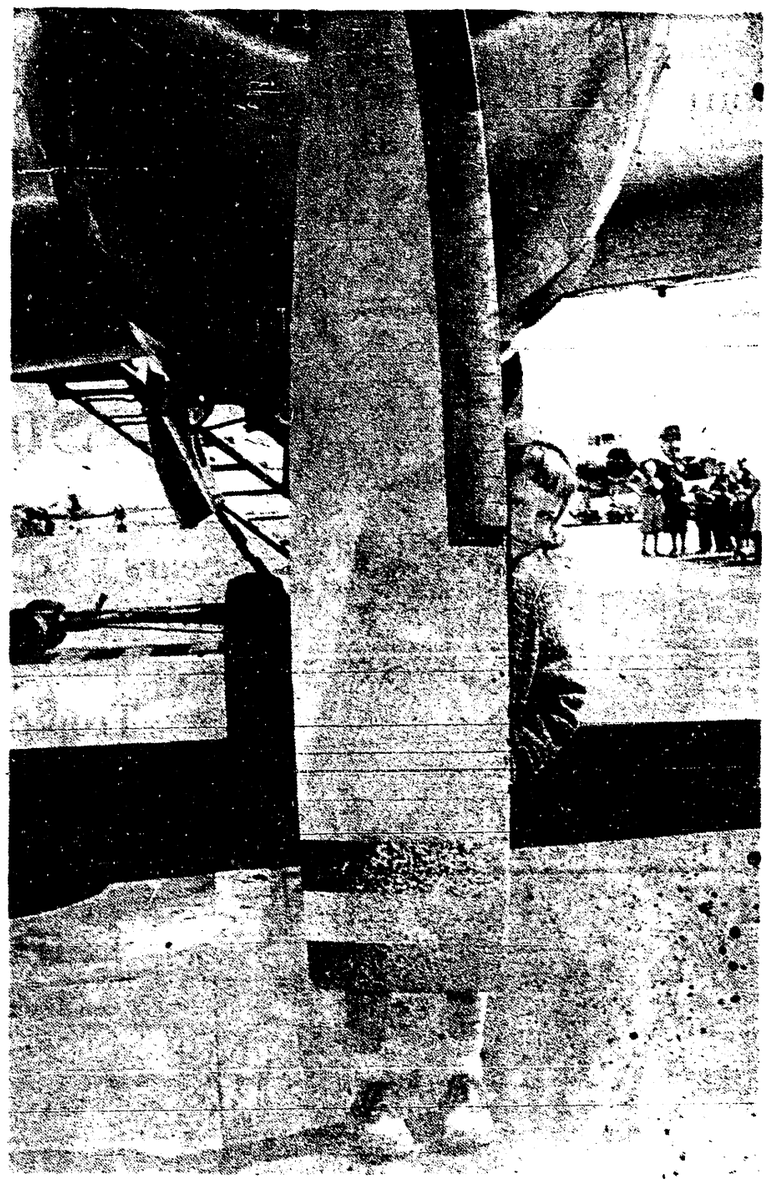
In the article, the year-long labor of sculptor Carl C. Morse is described.

Morse was commissioned by the Air Training Command to design and sculpture a fitting monument for the (then) new Air Force Academy.



PEEK-A-BOO — Smiles and more smiles are typical characteristics on the faces of 110 children who payed a visit to Peterson Field. The kids, all first graders from the S. A. Wilson Elementary school in Security are given a "cook's tour" of the Pete facility, six miles east of Colorado Springs. Miss Donelda Duskey tries to get away from it all and hides behind the prop of a twin-engine T-29 aircraft. The youngsters were accompanied by 12 adults on the tour.

ADC Notes Maturity on 18th Birthday

The Air Defense Command, with headquarters in Colorado Springs since 1951, observed it's 18th birthday Saturday, serving as the nation's Air Force aerospace defense force under the North American Air Defense Command commander-in-chief, with the duty to counter the air threat, and serve as a deterrent to any would be aggressor.

Childhood days of ADC are gone-along with memories of the Ground Observer Corps, propeller driven and sub-sonic aircraft, and puny radar systems. The growing up years have seen the command attain capability to detect, identify, intercept, and if necessary, destroy any manned bomber or air breathing missile attack on this country.

Organized at Mitchell Field, N.Y., ADC grew from a relatively small unit attempting to guard the nation's widespread boundaries, into a far-flung team of more than 100,000 specialists, who maintain and operate modern and complex weapons and systems.

ADC is the Air Force component of the joint U.S.-Canadian North American Air Defense Command, also headquartered in Colorado Springs.

Army Publication Carries Story of Antimissile

Its subject was the oft-discussed antimissile missile which NORAD has long said it needs to keep the aerospace defense system abreast of changing times.

It will take care of a missile coming over the North Pole, or all the way around the South Pole. It will kill a missile launched from an aircraft or a submarine. It is designed to get them all.

Col. I. O. Drewry, Jr., project manager for the system, says Nike X won't be able to pick its customers. It must be ready to handle any that come along.

The Nike X is an advanced version of the Army's Nike Zeus system. It incorporates the Zeus missile and picks up some new stuff — an advanced radar and a new high-acceleration missile called the Sprint.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced a year ago the decision to use Nike Zeus as a building block in the defense of the U. S. against ballistic missiles launched by enemy powers.

The U. S.-Canadian North American Air Defense Command is the agency charged with providing a defense against aerospace attack for its two partner nations. It has radars to warn of missile raids but no hardware to stop them.

Gen. John K. Gerhart, NORAD's commander in chief, has listed an active defense against ballistic missiles as one of the most urgent requirements of his command.

Nike X is the fourth-generation Nike. The family also includes Nike Ajax and Nike Hercules surface-to-air missiles contributed to NORAD by Army Air Defense Command for use in defending against a bomber attack.

The intended primary role for Nike X is that of urban or city defense. Its use concepts, Colonel Drewry says, envision a mix of Sprint and Zeus missiles sited in the same launch area or battery site tucked beneath the surface in underground launch cells.

The Zeus missile could be used for long-range intercepts if circumstances permit. The Sprint weapons — smaller, lighter and faster than the three-stage, 48-foot Zeus — will provide the backbone of the defense, however.

A typical Nike X engagement, Colonel Drewry explains, might go like this:

The MAR (Multi-function Array Radar) would make initial detection, begin tracking and assign targets to individual "farms" for engagement as soon as their trajectories are determined, a matter of seconds.

Nike Zeus missiles might be launched automatically as soon as a clearly defined threat came within engagement radius. As the engagement continued, Sprint missiles would pop from their cells to intercept the remaining objects posing a threat.

"There is no cheap or easy solution to ballistic missile defense," he notes. "Neither is there a complete defense that stops everything. Any rifleman knows that. But he also knows—or should — that there is a great difference between no defense and an effective defense."

State Colleges To Take Part in AFA Assembly

Ten Colorado colleges and universities will send faculty representatives or student delegates to the sixth annual Air Force Academy Assembly April 1-4.

The delegates will hear nationally known speakers such as Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert and NASA administrator James Webb discuss "Outer Space," will meet in small groups to consider the topic, and then formulate a final written report.

Schools scheduled to send delegates or representatives include Colorado College, Colorado State College, Colorado State University, the University of Colorado, Denver University, Loreto Heights, Regis College, Western State, Colorado Women's College and the Air Force Academy.

The public may attend Sec. Zuckert's keynote address April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Arnold Hall theater.

A total of 65 schools ranging from Princeton on the East Coast, San Francisco State on the West, the Citadel in the South, and Wisconsin in the North will send delegates.

All four U.S. service academies will take part.

Daniel Lynch Is Candidate For CU Regency

Daniel F. Lynch today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Regent of the University of Colorado.

In a letter to Robert Maytag, Democratic Party State chairman, Lynch denounced the state administration for causing tuition increases in state colleges and universities.

He stated that the tuition increases "struck a blow against economic development as well as against those least able to pay for Governor Love's fiscal follies". He termed a fine public university the most "effective" institution for attracting, retaining and developing space age industry.

In announcing his candidacy, Lynch expressed opposition to proposals for an appointive Board of Regents. He stated his belief that "the integrity and independence of the University is best preserved by an independent Board of Regents who owe their office to the people and not to any man's political favor".

He expressed support for efforts to permit the University to establish degree granting branches.

Lynch is a resident of Boulder. He is married and the father of four children. After graduating from the University of Colorado, Lynch served for three years in the Marine Corps.

Upon his discharge he attended the University of Colorado Law School before becoming an aide to former Democratic Senator John A. Carroll. He has been practicing law in Denver since his return to Colorado from Washington, D.C. in 1960.

In 1956 Lynch was an intern of the Rocky Mountain Citizenship Clearing House, an educational foundation, and in that capacity, worked with the Democratic State Central Committee.

Lynch has been a college instructor and has taught courses in American history, government and real estate law.

Hintin Announces For District Judge Position

District Attorney Patrick M. Hinton today announced he will seek the Republican party's nomination as candidate for district judge for the Fourth Judicial District, Western Division. Hinton's intention to seek the judgeship was contained in a letter to Bernard L. Trott, republican chairman of the Fourth Judicial District.

Prior to his appointment as district attorney last year he had served as assistant district attorney since 1962, and previously was deputy district attorney from 1954 through 1956.

In addition to his years as prosecuting attorney he has been engaged in private law practice continuously for the past ten years in this community. His civil practice has included experience in all types of cases before the local courts and before the Colorado Supreme Court.

PATRICK M. HINTON

Hinton's background also includes a wide experience in the field of business. He received an A.B. degree from the University of Florida in 1938. He received his law degree from the University of Denver.

He served as an air force pilot from 1940 through 1945, spending 14 months in combat in the Pacific theater. His decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, Silver Star with one cluster, Air Medal with two clusters and the Presidential Theater Citation. He was separated from the services as a B-29 section commander with the rank of major.

The district attorney is a member of the First Baptist Church, the Colorado and El Paso County Bar Association; he is area vice president of the Colorado District Attorney's Association, a member of the National District Attorney's Association, the Y.M.C.A., the American Legion, Post No. 5, the Quarterback's Club and the Footprinter's Association.

Evans to Make First Official Congress Bid

Rep. Frank E. Evans of Pueblo will make his first official bid for El Paso county Democratic support as candidate for Congress Monday night in an address at the Antlers Hotel.

The meeting, scheduled to start at 8 p.m. in the Green Room, was announced by the El Paso county Evans for Congress Committee.

Evans' formal address in which he will bid for local support as the Democratic candidate for Congress will be followed by a question-and-answer session.

The meeting is open to all persons interested in meeting Evans.

Evans announced his intention to seek Democratic party designation as a candidate for congress last Wednesday at a press conference held in Pueblo.

During his youth Evans was a resident of Colorado Springs. He attended Steele grade school and North Junior High School. He later graduated from Fountain Valley School.

A two-term legislator in Colorado's House of Representives, Evans was voted the outstanding freshmen legislator by the press corps at the end of his first term.

CC Professor Named English Chairman

Dr. Thomas W. Ross, professor of English at Colorado College, today was named chairman of the department of English.

Prof. Ross will assume the departmental chairmanship in September. He succeeds Prof. Frank A. Krutzke, chairman during the past few years, who has been named Judson M. Bemis professor of English.

Prof. Krutzke recently was awarded the Louis T. Benezet Faculty Rotating Fellowship, endowed by the Danforth Foundation, for the coming academic year. He will spend the year examining the teaching of college freshman English.

Prof. Ross earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in English at Colorado College. He received his Ph. D. at the University of Michigan in 1951.

As an undergraduate at Colorado College, where he was graduated magna cum laude, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary scholastic society. At Michigan, he was a University Fellow.

The chairman-elect is an authority on Middle English and is the author of articles in scholarly journals. He currently is reassembling from various sources the anonymous 14th century poem "A Satire on Edward II."

Prof. Ross began his academic career as a teaching fellow at the University of Michigan in 1947. He joined the faculty at Colorado College as an instructor in 1951.

He was assistant dean of the college from 1953 to 1956 when he went to Austria as assistant director of the Salzburg Seminar in American studies. He returned to Colorado College in 1958 and served as director of admission for three years.

During the summer of 1955, he was a visiting professor of English at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, the Medieval Academy of America, the American Association of University Professors and former president of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

He is married to the former Miss Mary McCarty of Manitou Springs, Colo. They have two children, Thomas and Margaret.

Japanese Girl Writes Asking For Pen Pals

Another Japanese girl, the third recently, has written the Gazette Telegraph that she is seeking American "pen friends." She signs herself Eiko Higuchi, 8788 Machume, Fujimi-machi, Suwa-gun Naganoken, Japan. She writes that she is 14 and that the Youth Council for International Contact suggested to her that she communicate with an American newspaper.

She writes that this organization has tens of thousands of members thruout Japan and that its purpose is "to create friendship and understanding internationally."

"We are trying to introduce your country to Japan, with best of our knowledge," she writes. "The organization's address is: Youth Council for International Contact. 20-1 Jimbocho, handa, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, Japan."

AFA Landmark Featured in Publication

An Air Force Academy landmark will be featured in the upcoming issue of a publication distributed worldwide.

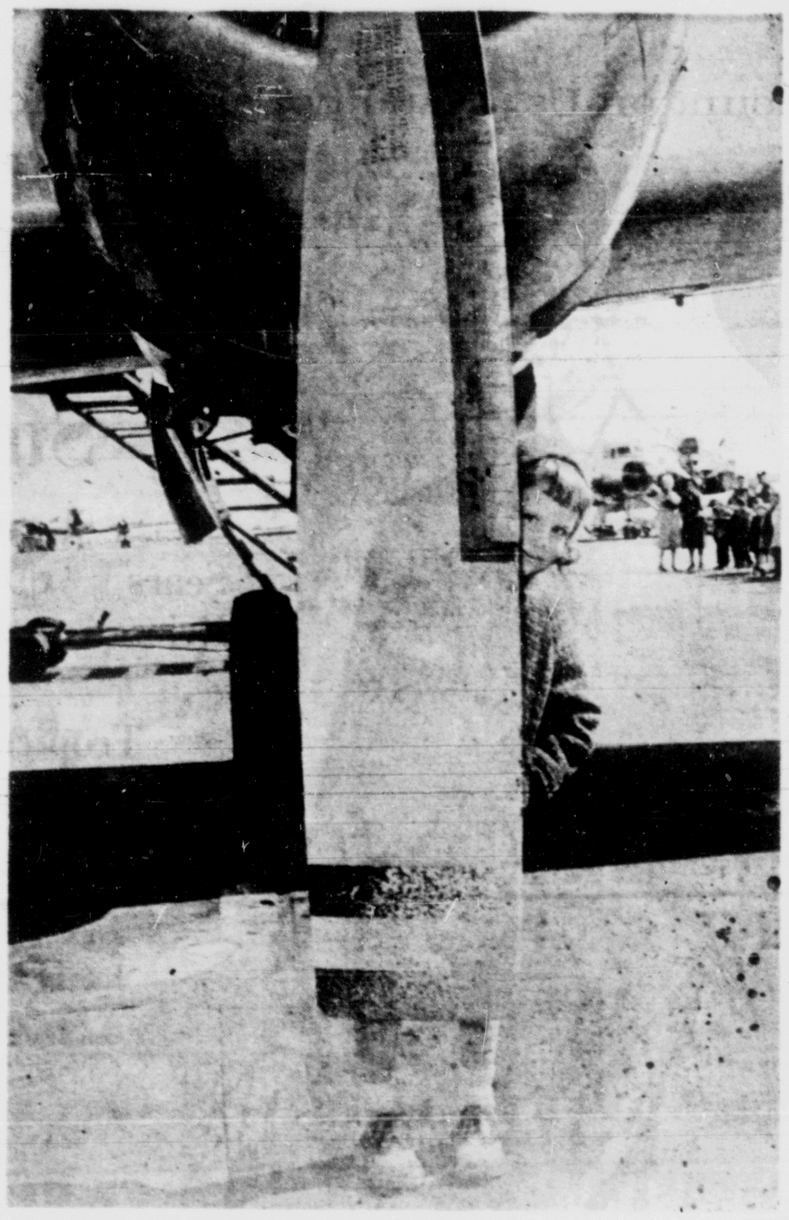
In the article, the year-long labor of sculptor Carl C. Morse is described.

Morse was commissioned by the Air Training Command to design and sculpture a fitting monument for the (then) new Air Force Academy.



PEEK-A-BOO — Smiles and more smiles are typical characteristics on the faces of 110 children who payed a visit to Peterson Field. The kids, all first graders from the S. A. Wilson Elementary school in Security are given a "cook's tour" of the Pete facility, six miles east of Colorado Springs. Miss Donelda Duskey tries to get away from it all and hides behind the prop of a twin-engine T-29 aircraft. The youngsters were accompanied by 12 adults on the tour.

ADC Notes Maturity on 18th Birthday

The Air Defense Command, with headquarters in Colorado Springs since 1951, observed it's 18th birthday Saturday, serving as the nation's Air Force aerospace defense force under the North American Air Defense Command commander-in-chief, with the duty to counter the air threat, and serve as a deterrent to any would be aggressor.

Childhood days of ADC are gone-along with memories of the Ground Observer Corps, propeller driven and sub-sonic aircraft, and puny radar systems. The growing up years have seen the command attain capability to detect, identify, intercept, and if necessary, destroy any manned bomber or air breathing missile attack on this country.

Organized at Mitchell Field, N.Y., ADC grew from a relatively small unit attempting to guard the nation's widespread boundaries, into a far-flung team of more than 100,000 specialists, who maintain and operate modern and complex weapons and systems.

ADC is the Air Force component of the joint U.S.-Canadian North American Air Defense Command, also headquartered in Colorado Springs.

Army Publication Carries Story of Antimissile

A recent issue of the "Army" accelerated development of the magazine, official voice of the more advanced system and "to Association of the U. S. Army, proceed with the greatest urgency in the development of the contained a story of great interest to the North American Air Defense Command headquarters staff here.

Its subject was the oft-discussed antimissile missile which NORAD has long said it needs to keep the aerospace defense system abreast of changing times.

It will take care of a missile coming over the North Pole, or all the way around the South Pole. It will kill a missile launched from an aircraft or a submarine. It is designed to get them all.

Col. I. O. Drewry, Jr., project manager for the system, says Nike X won't be able to pick its customers. It must be ready to handle any that come along.

The Nike X is an advanced version of the Army's Nike Zeus system. It incorporates the Zeus missile and picks up some new stuff — an advanced radar and a new high-acceleration missile called the Sprint.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced a year ago the decision to use Nike Zeus as a building block in the more advanced system and "to proceed with the greatest urgency in the development of the Nike X system."

More than $300 million has been allotted this year to continue testing and development of Nike X.

A decision to produce and deploy, following the development effort, would give North America an active defense against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The U. S.-Canadian North American Air Defense Command is the agency charged with providing a defense against aerospace attack for its two partner nations. It has radars to warn of missile raids but no hardware to stop them.

Gen. John K. Gerhart, NORAD's commander in chief, has listed an active defense against ballistic missiles as one of the most urgent requirements of his command.

Nike X is the fourth-generation Nike. The family also includes Nike Ajax and Nike Hercules surface-to-air missiles contributed to NORAD by Army Air Defense Command for use in defending against a bomber attack.

The intended primary role for Nike X is that of urban or city defense. Its use concepts, Colonel Drewry says, envision a mix of Sprint and Zeus missiles sited in the same launch area or battery site tucked beneath the surface in underground launch cells.

The Zeus missile could be used for long-range intercepts if circumstances permit. The Sprint weapons — smaller, lighter and faster than the three-stage, 48-foot Zeus — will provide the backbone of the defense, however.

A typical Nike X engagement, Colonel Drewry explains, might go like this:

The MAR (Multi-function Array Radar) would make initial detection, begin tracking and assign targets to individual "farms" for engagement as soon as their trajectories are determined, a matter of seconds.

Nike Zeus missiles might be launched automatically as soon as a clearly defined threat came within engagement radius. As the engagement continued, Sprint missiles would pop from their cells to intercept the remaining objects posing a threat.

"There is no cheap or easy solution to ballistic missile defense," he notes. "Neither is there a complete defense that stops everything. Any rifleman knows that. But he also knows—or should — that there is a great difference between no defense and an effective defense."

State Colleges To Take Part in AFA Assembly

Ten Colorado colleges and universities will send faculty representatives or student delegates to the sixth annual Air Force Academy Assembly April 1-4.

The delegates will hear nationally known speakers such as Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert and NASA administrator James Webb discuss "Outer Space," will meet in small groups to consider the topic, and then formulate a final written report.

Schools scheduled to send delegates or representatives include Colorado College, Colorado State College, Colorado State University, the University of Colorado, Denver University, Loreto Heights, Regis College, Western State, Colorado Women's College and the Air Force Academy.

The public may attend Sec. Zuckert's keynote address April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Arnold Hall theater.

A total of 65 schools ranging from Princeton on the East Coast, San Francisco State on the West, the Citadel in the South, and Wisconsin in the North will send delegates.

All four U.S. service academies will take part.

Daniel Lynch Is Candidate For CU Regency

Daniel F. Lynch today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Regent of the University of Colorado.

In a letter to Robert Maytag, Democratic Party State chairman, Lynch denounced the state administration for causing tuition increases in state colleges and universities.

He stated that the tuition increases "struck a blow against economic development as well as against those least able to pay for Governor Love's fiscal follies". He termed a fine public university the most "effective institution for attracting, retaining and developing space age industry."

DANIEL LYNCH

In announcing his candidacy, Lynch expressed opposition to proposals for an appointive Board of Regents. He stated his belief that "the integrity and independence of the University is best preserved by an independent Board of Regents who owe their office to the people and not to any man's political favor".

He expressed support for efforts to permit the University to establish degree granting branches.

Lynch is a resident of Boulder. He is married and the father of four children. After graduating from the University of Colorado, Lynch served for three years in the Marine Corps.

Upon his discharge he attended the University of Colorado Law School before becoming an aide to former Democratic Senator John A. Carroll. He has been practicing law in Denver since his return to Colorado from Washington, D.C. in 1960.

In 1956 Lynch was an intern of the Rocky Mountain Citizenship Clearing House, an educational foundation, and in that capacity, worked with the Democratic State Central Committee.

Lynch has been a college instructor and has taught courses in American history, government and real estate law.

Jack Roeser Announces for County Judge

The Chairman of the Republican Party of El Paso County, Weldon Tarter, announces that Jack L. Roeser will be a candidate for County Judge of El Paso County.

Roeser is a practicing attorney in Colorado Springs and is presently the senior Deputy on the staff of the District Attorney. He has a total of four-and-one-half years experience in the District Attorney's office and has successfully handled many cases in all Courts in the County. His duties include supervisory responsibility of County Court criminal cases which he has had for over three years.

He was formerly, for one year, deputy county attorney in charge of mental health cases and his background also includes approximately 1½ years as Legal Aid Attorney as well as experienced as experienced as a Trustee in Bankruptcy and purely private practice Roeser is a member of the El Paso County Bar Association, the Colorado Bar Association and is admitted to practice in all Courts, state and federal, in Colorado.

He has been quite active in community affairs. He is a member of the First Congregational Church of Colorado Springs and is presently Chairman of the Church Board of Trustees. He also sings in the choir and is active in the Christian Education Department of the Church. He is a member of the American Legion, Post No. 39 of Manitou Springs, Colorado, and is on the Executive Board of that Post. He served as Commander of the Post in 1962 at which time the Post was the host to the Colorado State Convention of the American Legion and also completed a building program. He is a past member of the Board of Directors of Civic Players, and has been a member of that organization for many years. He is a past member of the Executive Committee of the Community Council and at one time chaired an Agency Fee Study Committee for that group. Other organizations to which Roeser belongs are the Colorado Mountain Club, the 40 and 8, the Footprinters and National District Attorney's Association.

Roeser has been active a number of years in the Republican Party of El Paso County and is presently the Chairman of the El Paso County Young Republican League.

Roeser is a native of Colorado Springs having been born here in 1924. He attended grade school in Colorado Springs, but graduated from high school in Custer, South Dakota in 1942 where he lived while his Father was stationed there with the U. S. Forest Service.

During World War II he served in the U. S. Army in the United States and in the European theatre of operation with the combat Engineers. He was discharged from the service and re-entered college at the University of Colorado in 1946. He is a 1950 graduate of the Colorado University School of Law. Roser and his wife, Betty, a Registered Nurse, were married in 1947 and now have four children. The family resides at 1719 West Kiowa St.

AFA Cadets Win Coveted NSF Fellowships

Winners include: Clark A. Carne, Salt Lake City, Utah; Ronald S. Hershel, San Francisco; Michael J. Gilliom, Indianapolis, Ind.; Campbell A. Kidd, Madison, Wis.; Robert A. Lodge, Lynbrook, N.Y.; Robert L. Reeves, Roswell, Ga.; William C. White, W. Simsbury, Conn.; and 1st Lt. John Giffen, now assigned as a navigator to Otis AFB, Mass.

Award of fellowships is made on three criteria: performance in classes, performance in the graduate record examination, and research projects.

Cadet Crane will work toward a master's in Electrical Engineering at the California Institute of Technology; Cadet Hershel, Mechanical Physics, at Cal Tech; and also at Cal Tech, Cadet Gilliom will study Aeronautical Engineering.

Cadet Kidd has been assigned to Iowa State University to study Nuclear Engineering; Cadet Lodge, Astronautics at Purdue; Cadet Reefes, Metalurgy at the University of Michigan; and Cadet White, Aeronautics at Stanford.

Lt. Giffen will study Astronautics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

All eight will begin their work in the fall.

In the mid 1950s, mail order sales constituted less than 1 per cent of the total sales volume in the United States.

Solon Says U. S. Must Not Abandon Viet Nam

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — The United States has a duty to continue aiding South Viet Nam and must not abandon the country even if there is peril of losing the war to the Communist guerrillas, in the opinion of two ranking members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"It is clear that with our nuclear capability, the Communists could not win a general or even a limited war," Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Friday.

"We must show them that they cannot win this kind of war."

Agreeing with Jackson was Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, who said it is important that the United States "show the people of Viet Nam who might be inclined to support the guerrillas that proper self-government can be achieved without the so-called "war of national liberation."

Jackson and Javits are among about 100 leaders of the Western world who have come to this Virginia colonial capital to attend an off-the-record bull session on international affairs, the Bilderberg conference. They gave their views at a news conference between sessions.

College Grads Offered Direct Commissions

Direct commissions in the Regular Army are now being offered graduates of accredited colleges and universities, under a new program to develop a continuing supply of qualified leaders, it was recently learned at Ft. Carson.

Under this program, an individual may be commissioned in one of a wide range of technical specialties. A holder of an advanced degree or an individual with a bachelors' degree and practical experience may apply under the provisions of Section VI, AR 601-100 for the technical specialist program, either before or after he enlists in the Army.

Rusk Warns U.S. Must Not Let Down Defenses

By GREG NOKES

SALT LATE CITY, Utah (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said last week that if the country's "quitters" had their way, the U.S. would be playing into the hands of its adversaries.

"There are those," Rusk said, "who would quit the struggle by letting down our defenses, by gutting our foreign aid programs, by leaving the United Nations.

"They would abandon the field to our adversaries, which is what our adversaries want."

In a speech opening a three-day meeting of the Western Political Science Association, Rusk said the State Department is working to build a decent world order "bit by bit."

He said the "world struggle is going well from our viewpoint.

"West Berlin remains free and prosperous," he said "so does Western Europe as a whole. So does Japan. Many of the less developed nations have moved ahead impressively.

"Meanwhile, the Communist world is not only torn by disputes but beset with economic difficulties.

"The notion that communism is a short cut to the future for developing nations has been proved false."

Rusk noted that "we are living in a world of 120 foreign policies.

"We don't give orders to other nations—we don't believe in the kind of world in which any government takes its orders from others."

He said that world quarrels, no matter how "remote and complex," must involve the United States.

He added that as long as the possibility exists that minor quarrels can result in war, or a confrontation of the major powers, "The United States has a fundamental national security interest in the peaceful settlement of such disputes.

"The role of the peacemaker is usually thankless. But it is a responsibility we dare not shirk."

Lt. Col. Hardy To Head Carson Battalion

Command of the 1st Tank Battalion, 77th Armor, 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Fort Carson, Colorado was turned over recently by Lt. Col. Harry B. Hardy to Lt. Col. William H. Stites, just arrived at this mountain post from duty in Korea. Col. Hardy is being assigned to duty in Washington, D.C. with the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

Col. Stites is a graduate of the advanced armor officers course and Command and General Staff College. He assumes command of the 77th as the battalion prepares to leave for the West Coast for ten weeks of training, range firing and maneuvers.

A winner of the Bronze Star during the Korean War, Col. Stites received the Air Medal for duty as G2 operations officer, I corps. He served as an instructor in tactics in the Command and Staff Department of Armor School and also had ROTC duty at New Mexico Military Institute.

Married to the former Cordelia Lambert of Henderson, Kentucky, a graduate of Sweetbriar College, the Stites have four children.

Udall to Tell About Dispute With Navajos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall was called upon Friday to appear voluntarily in Federal District Court to answer contempt of court charges in connection with the handling of Navajo tribal affairs.

A strong suggestion that Udall testify was made by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. Subsequently government lawyers indicated the Interior Department head would be on hand when the court proceedings resume on Tuesday.

Referring to the fact that three days of testimony has centered around Udall and Navajo Tribal Chairman Raymond Nakai, whose headquarters are in Window Rock, Ariz., the judge said he thought attorneys should consider whether Udall and Nakai should testify in their own behalf.

"I think their testimony is indispensable in this case," the judge said. "I think they should be here."

The contempt of court proceedings against Udall resulted from an accusation by Norman M. Littell, general counsel of the Navajos, that Udall violated a Nov. 29 district court injunction. That injunction was obtained by Littell in a successful move to block Udall's announced plan to cancel Littell's $35,000-a-year attorney contract with the Navajos.

The injunction ordered Udall not to interfere improperly with Littell in the performance of his duties as general counsel of the Navajos, whose reservation occupies 16 million acres in Arizona and New Mexico.

Udall has complained that Littell "overreached his authority" in connection with retainer fees on claims cases. Littell says Udall wants to put a political friend in his job.

Farmers Urged To Store Their Surplus Grain

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced today it will give farmers a chance to earn upwards of $100 million during the next 12 months for continuing to store surplus grains on their farms.

The grain that would be involved is about 900 million bushels of wheat, corn, sorghum grain, oats and barley on which the department has made price support loans to growers. The department is offering to extend these loans another year.

Growers extending loans will earn storage payments of 14 cents a bushel on all grains except oats, where the rate will be 10 cents.

The department has followed a policy for years of extending price support loans to keep grain sealed in farm storage. It says the reseal program encourages the holding of grains—particularly feed grains — on the farms where they eventually are consumed.

It also is essential, the department says, to promote decentralized storage for disaster and defense reasons.

The reseal program will not be offered on 1959-crop wheat and corn, 1960-crop grain sorghum and 1961-crop barley and oats. As a normal practice, the older crops are periodically dropped from the program to lessen the possibilities of deterioration and to put such grain in a position to be moved into markets before losses occur.

Covered by the reseal program will be farm-stored corn, wheat, barley, grain sorghum and oats from the 1963 and 1962 crops; corn, sorghum and wheat from the 1961 crops, and corn and wheat from the 1960 crops.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — Now for the first time, President Johnson has put the LBJ brand on a piece of requested major legislation — not the combined Kennedy-Johnson tag. This is because the anti-poverty program he sent to Congress today is pure, unadulterated Lyndon Johnson.

In an anticipatory historical sense, therefore, the poverty message is likely to mark the date when the Johnson Administration really began to operate on its own. All that has gone before since John F. Kennedy's tragic death on Nov. 22 had the imprints of "carry on" or "follow through."

Johnson could take pride almost solely in supervising a masterly transition in the nation's leadership. Now he can take pride in a domestic effort he alone has sparked. The format for the anti-poverty project was Johnson's own brainchild. He even coined the slogan "war on poverty" to give the program popular appeal in a Presidential election year.

Looking backward, the significance of this forward thrust is indisputable.

Johnson's early ballyhooed economy drive (including lights off in the White House) was not really new. He used his own slickly political methods, to be sure, aimed at producing budget economies which would soften Congressional opposition to Kennedy's original $11 billion tax cut bill.

And Johnson succeeded. But Kennedy had he lived, would have pressed similar budget cuts for the same purpose.

The present civil rights free-for-all in the Senate would have developed similarly. Johnson rode herd to get House passage of the Kennedy-sponsored legislation JFK would have done the same.

GRASPING BEINS IN WAR ON POVERTY

Scarcely anything has happened in the foreign area which shows a new and distinct Johnson touch. Would Kennedy have acted differently on Guantanamo? Or would South Viet Nam be any worse or better? The Alliance for Progress was falling apart before Kennedy's death. It still is.

It is odd in a way that it has been LBJ rather than JFK who had the imaginative appreciation to grasp political leadership in an all-out war on poverty. Especially as Kennedy in the 1960 campaign was warning about the necessity of action to help the underprivileged, particularly those "17 million Americans who go to bed hungry every night."

And especially as Kennedy promised so much and so often, particularly in distress areas of Appalachia like West Virginia, to act so quickly if elected.

Yet once he was in the White House and for almost three years thereafter, never even the skeleton shape of a massive attack emerged. Oh, yes, there were palliatives, like the food stamp plan and aid to distressed areas. And he did get around in June of 1963 to having his chief economic adviser, Walter Heller, "explore the possibilities of more streamlined and effective action."

THE PROBLEM IN ALMOST EVERY STATE

But the fact remains that the blight of decaying communities in Appalachia has increased since 1960, and the so-called "poverty problem" exists in pockets of almost every one of the 50 states. At least, there are few states which have not been asking federal aid for so-called lowest income groups.

Johnson has simply dramatized a situation with his "total victory" appeal and somewhat victory" appeal and somewhat fuzzed up the "all-out" nature of the proposed campaign by not asking much from Congress in the way of funds. While the figure used is $962.5 million for the next fiscal year, the total new money is less than $500 million. The rest is involved in projects which have been going on for some time and which would be financed with or without a declaration of war on poverty.

A typical Johnson touch is involved in the administrative setup for running the war. Sargent Shriver as "coordinator" will direct the "job corps" and "domestic Peace Corps" activities, but with a very small staff.

Shriver's main headache will be trying to knock bureaucratic heads together in those divisions of three departments — Health, Education and Welfare, Agriculture, and Labor — dispensing funds for particular programs.

MOVE TO BREAK DOWN PETTY BARRIERS

This "coordinator" setup is a novel administrative idea of Johnson's. He has tried in the interest of public efficiency to break down departmental control generally, which is always jealously fought for.

For example, in January he named Esther Peterson, an assistant Secretary of Labor, as "coordinator" for consumer affairs. Her main job has been to get all agencies with an interest in consumers to function under her policies, not operate in their own bureaucratic feudal interests.

Similarly, Johnson has tried to break down the petty barriers between other departments. He has used CIA chief John McCone on foreign policy "troubleshooting" missions abroad.

And it should be noted that recently he referred to the FBI as having a right to be heard in connection with security safeguards around the President — a responsibility the Secret Service would never agree to share except on White House orders.

There will be more of this effort to coordinate agencies as Johnson steps out on his own as he now has legislatively in his anti-poverty message.

His general activities in the next few months on all fronts will bear close watching now that he has started to move. Certainly at this point, he is off to a good political start — for what Republican can oppose a war on poverty, especially when it's going to cost so little?

Castro Juggles Economy for Foreign Buys

EDITOR'S NOTE — Cuba's financial deals are puzzling to outsiders: The sugar crop is bad and yet Cuba has money to buy British buses. Here's an explanation by a veteran observer of the Latin American scene.

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big economic troubles still plague Fidel Castro in Cuba, but he will have more money to spend abroad for urgently needed goods than he has had in several years.

As if this were not enough of a paradox, the reason he has more money is that under the Communist system the production of sugar — Cuba's biggest dollar earner — has been going from bad to worse. The Cuban crop has been so bad it has helped put sugar prices up so high that Castro's dictatorship now gets more money for a poor crop than it did for a good one.

That's where the money came from which Castro is using to buy buses in England, machinery and supplies in France and Japan, and is dangling before other friends of Uncle Sam to tempt them to do more business with Cuba.

Washington clings to its theory that its economic boycott is making things tougher and tougher for the bearded prime minister.

In 1963, the short crop in Cuba and reduced yields in Europe put sugar prices at their highest in years. U.S. officials say the outlook for 1964 is not nearly so bright from the Cuban viewpoint.

In addition, the world price recently has been around 7 cents a pound, against a peak of 16 cents and an average of about 8.5 cents in 1963.

Curiously, some pessimistic reports on Cuban production have been coming out of Cuba and some traders wonder if the Castro regime might not be spreading these reports for their effect on prices. The speculation here is that the 1964 Cuban crop will be about the same as 1963 —3.8 million metric tons.

How much Castro's purchases of badly needed machinery and equipment will be able to help Cuba's troubled economy remains to be seen.

Dulles Declares Red Subversion Greatest Danger

NEW YORK (UPI) —Former Central Intelligence Agency chief Allen W. Dulles warned Friday that the greatest menace facing the free world today is a Communist takeover through subversion "in a war of the minds."

Dulles pinpointed the Communist menace in an address before some 1,000 guests of the Foreign Policy Association, a private, non-profit, non-partisan organization devoted to citizen education in world affairs.

The one-time CIA boss told the group that the United States is so superior militarily to the Russians that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev fears to get engaged in an all-out war and instead has decided on a plan of insidious conquest through the Communist party's worldwide machinery to subvert governments.

"If we tolerate a subverted Communist Cuba at our doorstep," Dulles said, "that has given Khrushchev a key to try it out on a worldwide basis."

Asked later by newsmen what he would do about Cuba, Dulles noted that he presently is out of the government and cannot advise a course of action, but only "act as a physician diagnosing a disease, but not proposing the cure."

Pressed, however, for some idea of what should be done, he replied only: "Action."

Singers Invited To Join Local Chorale

Rehearsals will resume Monday night for the Colorado Springs Chorales forthcoming concert which will be held May 1 at the Fine Arts Center.

This program, under the direction of David Porter, will feature a salute to strictly American music and American composers. It will range from spirituals, folk songs. American show tunes to beautiful classical, contemporary, and patriotic numbers. Included in this program will be the ever popular Norman Cornick dancers.

Porter invites all area singers to join with the Chorale for the presentation of this program. Music is furnished and there are no membership fees, however, membership for this program will be limited to 45 voices and singers are urged to be present for 75 per cent of scheduled rehearsals. There are no auditions but a good choral blending voice and sight reading ability is required.

Rehearsals are held each Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Riss Trucking Co. building (third floor) on the corner of Cascade and Bijou Street. Enter the East Bijou street street entrance. For additional information, call Mrs. Marie Gardner at 633-6234.

Rusk Warns U.S. Must Not Let Down Defenses

By GREG NOKES

SALT LATE CITY, Utah (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said last week that if the country's "quitters" had their way, the U.S. would be playing into the hands of its adversaries.

"There are those," Rusk said, "who would quit the struggle by letting down our defenses, by gutting our foreign aid programs, by leaving the United Nations.

"They would abandon the field to our adversaries, which is what our adversaries want."

In a speech opening a three-day meeting of the Western Political Science Association, Rusk said the State Department is working to build a decent world order "bit by bit."

He said the "world struggle is going well from our viewpoint.

"West Berlin remains free and prosperous," he said "so does Western Europe as a whole. So does Japan. Many of the less developed nations have moved ahead impressively.

"Meanwhile, the Communist world is not only torn by disputes but beset with economic difficulties.

"The notion that communism is a short cut to the future for developing nations has been proved false."

Rusk noted that "we are living in a world of 120 foreign policies.

"We don't give orders to other nations—we don't believe in the kind of world in which any government takes its orders from others."

He said that world quarrels, no matter how "remote and complex," must involve the United States.

He added that as long as the possibility exists that minor quarrels can result in war, or a confrontation of the major powers, "The United States has a fundamental national security interest in the peaceful settlement of such disputes.

"The role of the peacemaker is usually thankless. But it is a responsibility we dare not shirk."

Lt. Col. Hardy To Head Carson Battalion

Command of the 1st Tank Battalion, 77th Armor, 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Fort Carson, Colorado was turned over recently by Lt. Col. Harry B. Hardy to Lt. Col. William H. Stites, just arrived at this mountain post from duty in Korea. Col. Hardy is being assigned to duty in Washington, D.C. with the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

Col. Stites is a graduate of the advanced armor officers course and Command and General Staff College. He assumes command of the 77th as the battalion prepares to leave for the West Coast for ten weeks of training, range firing and maneuvers.

A winner of the Bronze Star during the Korean War, Col. Stites received the Air Medal for duty as G2 operations officer, I corps. He served as an instructor in tactics in the Command and Staff Department of Armor School and also had ROTC duty at New Mexico Military Institute.

Married to the former Cordelia Lambert of Henderson, Kentucky, a graduate of Sweetbriar College, the Stites have four children.

Udall to Tell About Dispute With Navajos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall was called upon Friday to appear voluntarily in Federal District Court to answer contempt of court charges in connection with the handling of Navajo tribal affairs.

A strong suggestion that Udall testify was made by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. Subsequently government lawyers indicated the Interior Department head would be on hand when the court proceedings resume on Tuesday.

Referring to the fact that three days of testimony has centered around Udall and Navajo Tribal Chairman Raymond Nakai, whose headquarters are in Window Rock, Ariz., the judge said he thought attorneys should consider whether Udall and Nakai should testify in their own behalf.

"I think their testimony is indispensable in this case," the judge said. "I think they should be here."

The contempt of court proceedings against Udall resulted from an accusation by Norman M. Littell, general counsel of the Navajos, that Udall violated a Nov. 29 district court injunction. That injunction was obtained by Littell in a successful move to block Udall's announced plan to cancel Littell's $35,000-a-year attorney contract with the Navajos.

The injunction ordered Udall not to interfere improperly with Littell in the performance of his duties as general counsel of the Navajos, whose reservation occupies 16 million acres in Arizona and New Mexico.

Udall has complained that Littell "overreached his authority" in connection with retainer fees on claims cases. Littell says Udall wants to put a political friend in his job.

Farmers Urged To Store Their Surplus Grain

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced today it will give farmers a chance to earn upwards of $100 million during the next 12 months for continuing to store surplus grains on their farms.

The grain that would be involved is about 900 million bushels of wheat, corn, sorghum grain, oats and barley on which the department has made price support loans to growers. The department is offering to extend these loans another year.

Growers extending loans will earn storage payments of 14 cents a bushel on all grains except oats, where the rate will be 10 cents.

The department has followed a policy for years of extending price support loans to keep grain sealed in farm storage. It says the reseal program encourages the holding of grains—particularly feed grains — on the farms where they eventually are consumed.

It also is essential, the department says, to promote decentralized storage for disaster and defense reasons.

The reseal program will not be offered on 1959-crop wheat and corn, 1960-crop grain sorghum and 1961-crop barley and oats. As a normal practice, the older crops are periodically dropped from the program to lessen the possibilities of deterioration and to put such grain in a position to be moved into markets before losses occur.

Covered by the reseal program will be farm-stored corn, wheat, barley, grain sorghum and oats from the 1963 and 1962 crops; corn, sorghum and wheat from the 1961 crops, and corn and wheat from the 1960 crops.

Seafaring Steeplejack Weds His First Mate

Less than 24 hours after the wedding, Quinn left by plane for Tahiti, where he is planning a cruise to New Zealand and Australia with a four-girl crew.

Mrs. Quinn, the former Beatrice Berkson, was scheduled to fly today to the West Coast. She plans to join her husband in Australia in several weeks.

It was the second marriage for both newlyweds.

Shouting Match Ends Proposed Law in Ontario

TORONTO (AP) — Ontario Premier John P. Robarts culminated a wild shouting match in the Ontario legislature Friday by announcing what amounts to withdrawal of the province's proposed bill giving the Ontario Police Commission broad new powers.

The bill, introduced Thursday by Atty. Gen. Frederick Cass, would allow persons to be detained in jail indefinitely without trial. Opposition Leader Farquahar Oliver said never in his 38 years in the House had a bill aroused such concern and anger.

Cass, whose job was described as in danger by the Toronto Telegram, earlier had called the measure necessary for the public good.

The Ontario Police commission issued a special report on Thursday declaring it had found evidence that organized crime was increasing in gambling, narcotics, counterfeiting, armed robbery, theft, prostitution, extortion, intimidation and protection rackets in Ontario.

Carson Achieves 65 Per Cent Saving Goal

Ft. Carson achieved a total savings of more than 65 per cent of the set goal in the first two quarters of the fiscal year, it was reported by Col. H. V. Middleworth, chief of staff.

The original cost savings goal for the year was put at $261,310. At the midpoint in the fiscal year, the division and post had realized a savings of $168,310, said Col. Middleworth.

He called the accomplishment "thoro and successful" and praised the work of commanders and supervisors responsible for the overall savings.

All areas of management exceeded their required or estimated savings goal for the two quarters and are continuing to excell in their specific field of endeavor, he stated.

The economy drive was in compliance with current directives, letters and regulations to implement U.S. Continental Army Command's Project Trim. It is being executed under the supervision of Capt. Chester C. Coln.

Additional savings are expected in numerous other segments of the overall cost reduction program media, Col. Middleworth said, and every effort should be made to curtail waste or loss as one way of increasing savings for the Army.

WASHINGTON — Special to Gazette Telegraph — Members of the House voted down the pending pay increase measure for Federal employes, rather than vote in favor of it on a roll-call. A roll call would have identified the vote of each Congressman. Included in the rejection was the proposed $10,000 increase for members of Congress.

The rejection of the Federal pay increase bill leaves some doubt as to the future of the pending 1964 military pay increase. The Pentagon, when hearings begin on the increase, is expected to stress the point that the measure is designed to eliminate some of the inequities the 1963 pay measure created.

Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee is expected to double his efforts to get the military pay bill enacted. In spite of this, it is doubtful that it will be passed.

Budget people say that more than one million dollars would be added to the cost of military retirement in 1965 if Congress enacts the pending 1964 pay raise bill. This would be an increase of $190 million over the current expenditure.

Much of this cost has been charged to the evergrowing list of Reserve officers retiring under Title III of PL 810, or at age 60. Many budget planners look upon this category of retirees as not really retired officers — many no longer hold their Reserve commission — but as a classs of glorified veterans. They argue that the financial care should be transferred from the Defense Budget to that of the Veterans Administration. Conceding that the cost to the taxpayer would remain the same, they argue that it would present a truer picture of the National Defense costs.

For example, in February of 1964 the Army announced the retirement of three first Lieutenants and one second Lieutenant as Reserve officers. Of the four, only one had eight years of active duty out of his total service of 30 years. This officer's retired check will be retroactive to July 1948 and his first check is estimated to come to $13,867, to cover the retroactive feature. Thereafter he will be entitled to about $77.04 a month or $924.48 a year.

The other three first Lieutenants, each with less than eight years of active duty, will receive the estimated $77.04 a month or $924.48 a year. One of these three retirees had his effectiev date set as of October 1951. His initial check should be about $11,556. The 60-year old second Lieutenant's effective retirement date is February, 1962 so his first check should be only $1,537.68; His monthly check thereafter about $64.07, and the annual cost about $768.84. During the estimated 15 years that he may receive his military retired check, his less than eight years of active duty will cost the tax payers in the neighborhood of $11,532.60.

This illustrates the arguments advanced by the budget planners that the cost of the Reserve retirement should not be charged to the military but to the Veterans Administration "for past services as a superior type veteran." Their most hard-hitting point is that this ever growing Reserve retirement budget is decreasing the retirement benefits of the active duty career officers and men and could well result in Congress discarding service retirement. A start has already been made in this direction by eliminating recomputation of retired pay for career retired officers.

The Defense Department is expected to initiate retroactive payments to servicemen without delay. The pay will come to $150 for some. Informal word is that 98 per cent of married servicemen overseas on short tours will start to receive the $30 monthly allowance.

Pentagon sources say that Army units overseas will stay static for 1964.

Soldiers who deliberately drop airborne duty may not volunteer for further airborne training and assignment, as a result of a change in Army Regulations 611-7.

Pentagon definitely has a study underway, looking to the possibility of a new canal to replace the Panama Canal. The Administration believes the present Panama Canal facilities will be adequate until 1980. The study is being directed at a new Canal in a new location to replace military use of the Panama Canal.

Rear Admiral Elonzo B. Grantham Jr. will relieve Rear Admiral Henry S. Persons as Deputy Chief of Staff for Foreign Military Aid Logistics and Administration of the Pacific Fleet in June. Admiral Persons will take command of the Hawaiian Sea Frontier.

Rear Admiral Eugene B. Fluckey will take command of the Submarine Force Pacific Fleet in June. His assignment as President of the Navy Board of Inspection and Survey will be taken over by Rear Admiral Harry L. Reiter Jr.

Army Brig. Generals making changes include Patrick H. Devine and William J. McCaffrey to Fort Monroe and Seth L. Weld Jr. to Ft. Sam Houston.

The present Deputy Chief of Army Information, Brig. General Raymond L. Shoemaker Jr., will leave Washington June 30 for new assignment with Hq 8th Army, Korea. His replacement in public relations has not been announced.

The Navy is hopeful that the present shortage of some 33,000 petty officers in critical skills may be overcome by a special re-enlistment bonus, payable for each year of the re-enlistment period. Prior to leaving as Chief of Naval Personnel, retired Admiral William Smedberg made a proposal to Congress that it authorize such a re-enlistment bonus in the amount of $1,000 per year. Top level Navy officials are considering the idea. No immediate decision is expected.

The Navy will soon cut out most of the check-cashing service it has been providing in its commissaries. Payment for purchases may still be made by check but only in the exact amount of the purchases.

Joint Travel Regulations have been amended to eliminate per diem for prospective crews of nuclear powered ships and submarines when duty at a building site is longer than six months.

Denver Official Says State Liquor Law Is Outdated

DENVER (UPI) — Denver Safety Manager Daniel Hoffman said here Colorado's liquor code was "miserable... archaic and outdated."

"It's only good because we have come to live with it," Hoffman told a seminar of state liquor enforcement officers and law officers from the Denver area.

The EXCHANGE was only 11 years old when the first autos began to arrive in Colorado Springs back in 1899!

Although automobiles were seen driving through town in the mid-nineties, the first horseless carriage to be owned here appeared in 1899. It was reported to be a homemade model and was built in Denver for $2000. Its top speed was 15 miles per hour. Automobiles here drew much attention, not because of their beauty but because they were an oddity and were so noisy. Few people were convinced that the auto ever had a chance of being accepted by the American people. Now each year more than 250,000 persons make the beautiful automobile trip to the top of Pikes Peak.

Whether you "bank by auto" at one of our convenient drive-up windows, or whether you drive to one of the many parking lots offered by our bank, then walk into the lobby; you'll find that an Exchange National checking account is the safe, convenient way to handle money. You'll be the owner of the finest set of professionally imprinted checks in the area — free — and you'll save many miles of shoe leather and tire rubber. If you "ask the man who has an ENB account" you'll find that paying bills once a month with ENB checks can be a joy. No muss, no fuss, one trip to the mailbox and you have legal proof of payment. WASHINGTON — Special to Gazette Telegraph — Members of the House voted down the pending pay increase measure for Federal employes, rather than vote in favor of it on a roll-call. A roll call would have identified the vote of each Congressman. Included in the rejection was the proposed $10,000 increase for members of Congress.

The rejection of the Federal pay increase bill leaves some doubt as to the future of the pending 1964 military pay increase. The other three first Lieutenants, each with less than eight years of active duty, will receive the estimated $77.04 a month or $924.48 a year. One of these three retirees had his effectiev date set as of October 1951. His initial check should be about $11,556. The 60-year old second Lieutenant's effective retirement date is February, 1962 so his first check should be only $1,537.68; His monthly check thereafter about $64.07, and the annual cost about $768.84. WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

The churches are losing many good theological graduates to sociology and psychology. Seminary graduates do as much work as medical and dental students, yet they are given only a bachelor's degree (B. D.) after seven years of college and graduate school. Let's stop the political finagling with the D. D.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "why is it that the clergymen who are poor orators often want to go in for 'depth' counseling and a Ph. D. degree?

"For example, two of my classmates have decided to take graduate work in sociology and psychology, mainly to win their Ph. D.

"Then they want to conduct clinics for the rest of the clergymen on how to handle pastoral counseling.

"But these two men were very unsuccessful in the pulpit. And they neither got along very well with young people, nor even in their own domestic life.

"I suppose they crave a doctoral degree for ego inflation, eh?"

EGO INFLATION

Clergymen are the most abused of all the professions.

For they spend four years in college and three years in graduate school, but then receive only a B. D. (Bachelor of Divinity) degree from their seminary.

Yet they deserve a doctor's degree, especially if they have successfully handled the pastoral duties of a parish for at least a year or so.

But still they don't get this doctoral recognition.

Many time I have suggested this unfairness and have urged that it be remedied by automatically awarded the D. D. to all seminary graduates after one to three years' success in a parish.

But do you know the worst critics of my logical plan?

"Dr. Crane," you may guess, "the strongest objectors to your idea were probably physicians or dentists, eh?"

No, not at all! Those doctors admit the merit in awarding that D. D. to clerics.

The real objectors are the clergymen who have already wangled a D. D. from some seminary or small college! You can easily guess why!

It is awarded to outstanding men, I'll admit, but no more outstanding than thousands who don't get such an award.

For the D. D. at present is largely a political plum, allotted to a clergyman who causes a wealthy parishioner to endow the college or build a new library or gymnasium for it.

Or, that D. D. is allotted because of old fraternity ties between a few ringleaders in a given religious denomination.

"Patrick deserves a D. D.," his friend will say, who is now luckily the possessor of a D. D. himself and head of a school or seminary.

"So we'll invite him to deliver the Commencement Address and then repay him with a D. D."

Such political trafficking in the D. D. is much like that in other honorary doctorates made even to the President of the U. S. A.

Sometimes it is a deft bribe for pork barrel handouts via religious groups, as well as the White House.

So this finagling for a D. D. should stop at once!

Instead, the D. D. should immediately be termed an "earned" doctoral degree and awarded to EVERY graduate of an accredited theological seminary at least after he has handled the perplexing problems of a parish for one to three years.

Then we'd not lose so many clerics to sociology and psychology just because they crave that "Doctor" handle in front of their names!

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

Radiation Seen As Great Help Against Cancer

By FRANK CAREY

PALM BEACH SHORES, Fla. (AP)—New evidence was reported today that medicine's heavy artillery against cancer—super-voltage radiation — can help certain victims of inoperable lung cancer cheat death for years beyond the usual expectancy.

Dr. Ruth Guttmann of Columbia University told about it in a report to the sixth annual seminar for science writers, sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

She said that at present many surgeons and radiologists do not offer their lung-cancer patients any treatment at all after an exploratory operation shows cure is impossible and if the patients are free of symptoms for the time being.

But new studies of her own indicate, she said, "that it might be worthwhile to revise this attitude."

Describing use of high dose of supervoltage X ray in 82 patients who had undergone an exploratory operation and were found to be inoperable, she said 58.5 per cent survived more than a year. She added that in appreciable numbers survival ranged as high as eight years, with eight patients still alive between three and eight years after the completion of treatment.

The average survival time so far has been 21 months—compared with 10 weeks to 6 months for patients who received no treatment, the scientist said.

Dr. Guttman also said that the large majority of the patients showed "subjecutve improvement" — that is, freedom from such things as pain and cough.

Even in another group of 150 patients who were so obviously incurable that no exploratory operation was done, the super X-ray treatment helped, she said.

Forty per cent of this latter group survived for one year; 13 per cent for two years; 7 per cent for three years; 5 per cent for four years; and 2.5 per cent for five years or more.

The treatment employed in both groups consisted of 5,000 to 6,000 "rads" of radiation delivered over five to six weeks with a two million volt X-ray unit.

Speaking of the results in the group of 82 patients, the doctor said: "It cannot be conceived that such beneficial results can be achieved when the tumor is permitted to grow and spread after an unsuccessful exploration, and it is urged (upon doctors) to offer well-planned radiotherapy immediately after the exploratory (operation)."

Seat Belts Give 'Status' to Buyer AAA Says

If you won't buy seat belts to save your neck, buy them at least to save your reputation, the Rocky Mountain AAA Club urged this week.

What does seat belt ownership have to do with reputation? Seat belts, said the auto club, have become an important status symbol, according to a recent survey.

For example, explained the auto club, better educated (and, presumably, more intelligent) car owners are far more likely to buy seat belts than are their less scholarly brethren.

The survey, said the AAA club, indicates that more than two in five motorists with graduate school education have seat belts, compared to only one in 10 motorists who have no more than a grade school education.

Likewise, added the auto club, seat belt ownership is much higher for professional people than for persons otherwise employed, including skilled laborers, clerical workers and even technicians. Unskilled laborers are the least likely car owners to buy seat belts, according to the survey.

The age of the car also has much to do with whether or not the owner installs seat belts, reported the auto club. As an example, the owner of a 1963 vehicle is four times more likely to have seat belts than is the owner of a car 1954 or earlier vintage.

Suggested the auto club: If you can't afford a new car to improve your status, install seat belts in your old car and join the "upper class" that way.

Wife of Producer Kramer Seeks Divorce

The former actress, 38, charged extreme cruelty in the suit she filed in Los Angeles. She and Kramer, 50, were married in 1950 and separated last June.

YMCA Pool Will Be Closed For Repairs

The YMCA swimming pool will be closed this week with no swim classes or recreation swims. The purpose of closing the pool is to clean it and to do necessary minor maintenance work.

In order to do the work in question it will be necessary to drain the pool.

The pool will be open again on its regular schedule beginning March 30th.

All other YMCA facilities will be open, with the gym, handball courts and exercise club operating on the regular schedule.

Extension Singers To Hold Meeting Monday Night

Extension Singers will hold their last organizational meeting Monday evening at the Lehmberg Chapel, corner Boulder Street and Nevada Ave. Rehearsal begins at 7:30 and singers who have not registered should report promptly at that time.

Adult singers who would like to combine working earnestly on Mendelsohn's Hymn of Praise, with some study of voice and singing techniques are urged to try out this unique Extension activity.

The group will meet weekly until June 8 for a tuition of $10.00 which includes the music and instructional material.

Archer Hayes has been named conductor of the choral group and he brings a rich background to this new assignment.

Formerly a college faculty member and director of various community music groups, Hayes is well-qualified to conduct the mixed voice chorus organized here. He urges prospective choral members to contact him this weekend at 632-0813 or at the 7:30 rehearsal Monday evening.

111-Year-Old Woman Is Freed From Prison

MANILA (AP)—The wish of a woman said to be 111 years old to see her grandson freed from prison before she dies has been granted by President Diosdado Macapagal.

Macapagal signed a conditional pardon for Aristotle O. Rosales, sentenced in 1960 to serve 4 to 10 years for assault. The move had been recommended by the parole board.

Fort Collins Bird Club to Host Meeting

Plans are being made for the Second Annual Colorado Field Ornithologists' Meeting to be held at the student center, Colorado State University, Fort Collins. This meeting will be May 23 and 24, 1964, and will be hosted by the Fort Collins Bird Club, authorities said.

This meeting, like the one last year sponsored by the Colorado Bird Club of Denver, will feature technical papers on various phases of ornithology, field trips to interesting bird areas, a banquet Saturday night, and a chance for ornithologists from the entire state to meet with each other and exchange ideas, information, and viewpoints.

Those desiring to present a technical paper at the meeting, send your paper, or at least a title and outline, to Dr. Paul H. Baldwin, Department of Zoology, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado. Please include an estimate of the time needed for your presentation. All papers should be submitted by April 25th so that we may finalize the program.

Bull to Present Recital at CC Music Hall

Prof. Storm Bull of the University of Colorado College of Music will present a free, public piano recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday, in the Music Hall.

His program will include two works by Bartok, "Three Hungarian Folksongs From the Csik District" and "Suite, Opus 14"; Schumann's "Sonata in G minor, Opus 22"; Ravel's "Pavane on the Death of a Royal Child" and "Ondine"; Scriabine's "Prelude in C Sharp minor, Opus 9, No. 1" and "Etude in D Sharp minor, Opus 8, No. 12"; and Liszt's "The Valley of Obermann."

Bull is head of the piano division in the College of Music. He made his concert debut at the age of 15 with the Philharmonic Society Orchestra of Oslo, Norway.

In 1945 he gave up the world concert circuit for teaching and joined the faculty of Baylor University. He came to CU in 1947.

Academy Bands Prepare Anthem Special Recording

Selected students from the Air Academy High School Band and the U. S. Air Force Academy Band recently combined talents to prepare a recording of our National Anthem which will be used in all School District 20 schools as part of their regularly scheduled patriotic observances.

Carter made a formal presentation to Howard Dunning, superintendent of Air Academy schools, at a School District 20 faculty meeting Tuesday.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

The churches are losing many good theological graduates to sociology and psychology. Seminary graduates do as much work as medical and dental students, yet they are given only a bachelor's degree (B. D.) after seven years of college and graduate school. Let's stop the political finagling with the D. D.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "why is it that the clergymen who are poor orators often want to go in for 'depth' counseling and a Ph. D. degree?

"For example, two of my classmates have decided to take graduate work in sociology and psychology, mainly to win their Ph. D.

"Then they want to conduct clinics for the rest of the clergymen on how to handle pastoral counseling.

"But these two men were very unsuccessful in the pulpit. And they neither got along very well

* * *

"I suppose they crave a doctoral degree for ego inflation, eh?"

EGO INFLATION

Clergymen are the most abused of all the professions.

For they spend four years in college and three years in graduate school, but then receive only a B. D. (Bachelor of Divinity) degree from their seminary.

Yet they deserve a doctor's degree, especially if they have successfully handled the pastoral duties of a parish for at least a year or so.

But still they don't get this doctoral recognition!

Many time I have suggested this unfairness and have urged that it be remedied by automatically awarded the D. D. to all seminary graduates after one to three years' success in a parish.

But do you know the worst critics of my logical plan?

"Dr. Crane," you may guess, "the strongest objectors to your idea were probably physicians or dentists, eh?"

No, not at all! Those doctors admit the merit in awarding that D. D. to clerics.

The real objectors are the clergymen who have already wangled a D. D. from some seminary or small college! You can easily guess why!

Hoffa Files Notice Of Appeal in Court

CINCINNATI (AP) — Teamsters' Union President James R. Hoffa filed notice with the 6th U.S. Court of Appeals, today on an appeal from his conviction on a charge of jury tampering.

Hoffa and three others were convicted in Chattanooga, Tenn., March 4 of attempting to bribe members of a jury that heard Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville, Tenn.

The appeal notice also covered the other three Larry Campbell of Detroit, Thomas E. Parks of Nashville and Ewing King, former Teamster president at Nashville.

Hoffa was sentenced to eight years in prison and the other three to three years each. All are free on bond.

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

Autopsies sometimes present a sensitive problem, both for families and their physicians, because the necessity for them arises at a time of grief and bereavement.

Actually, there are solid positive values to be derived from postmortem examinations.

Not the least of these is the banishment of doubts and uncertainties from the minds of the family of the deceased person.

A lingering question about the cause of death may needlessly haunt a family for many years, and conscientious physicians often feel their responsibility to the family can be discharged only when there is a final diagnosis. This final and certain diagnosis may be obtainable only by autopsy.

More immediately and concretely, the findings of an autopsy can be a direct protection to the relatives and descendants of the dead person. If the findings disclose, for example, that a contagious or infectious condition was the cause of death, immediate steps can be taken to prevent the same disease in family members who were exposed.

The findings also may reveal congenital or familial conditions against which countermeasures should be taken for the protection of sons, daughters and near relatives.

Disclosure that a certain unsuspected condition "runs in the family" — a disclosure which may result from an autopsy — can be major service to everyone else in the family, perhaps for several generations to come.

To families in which earlier children have died of unknown causes, an autopsy can be of first importance to other sick children right now. For instance, the autopsy might disclose an inherited tendency in the family to a condition called galactosemia, an inborn malfunction of metabolism which can lead to death or mental retardation.

There are many other congenital and familial conditions against which a physician can protect a family once existence of the condition within the family has been confirmed by autopsy findings.

Autopsies also are valuable to humanity in the largest sense.

Much of modern medicine is based upon a foundation of knowledge won from multiple autopsies over the years. It was not until the 1890s that autopsies proved children could suffer, and die of, acute appendicitis. Until that time, appendicitis had been regarded as strictly an adult disease.

Autopsy proof that this was not so has saved thousands of young lives over the several generations since.

Similarly, it was not until the 1940s that medicine began to understand, on the basis of the accumulation of autopsy evidence, the true extent of atherosclerosis.

The accumulating evidence proved that the conditions, one of the major causes of heart attacks, is widespread and very often affects only segments of arteries rather than the entire arterial system, as once was believed.

This knowledge has led to better understanding of heart disease, better protection against heart attacks, and, specifically, to major development of blood vessel surgery during the past 15 years.

A condition known as "status thymicus lymphaticus" once was an acceptable diagnosis as cause of death in infants. Theoretically, an enlarged thymus gland in the neck choked the babies to death.

A Colorado doctor wondered whether this was so, and a series of autopsies proved it wasn't. The thymus gland, it was found, is normally large in infants and grows smaller with age. This put an end to the use of X-ray on babies to shrink the gland.

The modern history of medicine offers many such examples of progress based on autopsy findings. A long step toward measurement of the problem of trichinosis, and thus toward its control, came in the 1930s when a long series of autopsies at the University of Colorado Medical Center showed that about 17 per cent of the population was infected by the trichinosis organism from under-cooked pork.

As a result of these and other advances, recognition of the scientific value of autopsies has grown to the point where one of the criteria for evaluation of a hospital or medical school is the percentage of autopsies (The CU Center, for example, build up one of the highest rates in the country, and currently has a record of 86.5 per cent, placing it among the top 20 hospitals in the nation.)

The history of medical advances and the steady increase in hospital autopsy rates give promise of further progress based on knowledge gained by postmortem examinations.

One of the horizons of contemporary medicine lies in viruses and their relationship to cancer. A single autopsy might well provide a key which would lead to the unlocking of knowledge that could save thousands of lives.

Some countries — Austria is one — have laws which require autopsies after all deaths, and the United States military services have so high a regard for postmortems that all deaths are autopsied.

More is to be gained from an autopsy than just confirmation of the cause of death. The physician who makes the examination looks for more than the immediate cause. His study of all tissues and organs may lead to discovery of long-term conditions which affected the patient's life, and thus the autopsy is a contribution to total medical knowledge, the physician's own and that of science as a whole.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. An autopsy is a service to humanity, in the largest sense, and its immediate value may lie in protection of the family and the children of the family.
2. The findings may substitute peace of mind and certainty for a question mark.
3. Autopsies are particularly needed when there has been anything obscure or baffling in the case.
4. A postmortem examination is a respectful, humane and scientific procedure. Precise surgical techniques are employed, and there is no random destruction of the body.
5. In the case of a death within 24 hours after an admission to the hospital, Colorado law requires that the case be reported to the coroner and an autopsy may be done at his discretion.
6. Persons who thoughtfully plan ahead with life insurance programs and wills do well to give similar thought to a final service to their families and humanity at large by indicating their desire to be autopsied after death.

The Senior Class Play, "Come To Dinner," was presented Friday night.

An early breakfast was held for the cast the morning of the play at the "Pancake House," located at Southgate.

A party was held after the play at the Women's Activity Hut at Fort Carson. Members of the cast and stage crew were invited.

The Future Teachers of America elected part of their officers for the 1964-65 school term. Gil Taylor was elected president and Terry Kent, vice-president.

Four seniors, Jan Malone, Ginny Leonard, Laura Nugent, and Diane Kraus, and the new president, Gil Taylor, will represent the FTA at the state convention to be held in Grand Junction, April 4.

The Future Homemakers of America are sponsoring an all-school skating party to be held April 13 at Skateland. The rink will be reserved for FHS students. The cost is 50 cents per ticket and 25 cents for skates.

FHA girls are to attend the 1964 State Convention in Fort Collins, April 2, 3, and 4. The theme of the convention will be "Future Homemakers Grow toward Maturity — The Endless Challenge."

Only the girls rating highest on their score cards will be allowed to attend the convention. FHS representatives will be Cathy Torbit, Phyllis Bystrom, Norma Jean Gollehon, Coretta Gollehon, and Judy McGuire.

The FHA Convention will meet at Fountain in 1965.

Mayor Does Not Favor Air Terminal Design

"If that is the ultimate in Kansas City's entrance into the air age, then I don't want to be mayor," Davis said.

The terminal is being enlarged, but city council is discussing a proposal to move air operations to the new Mid-Continent International Airport.

Insurance Group Discussed Child Hospitalization

One of every 13 children under 20 years of age is hospitalized in the course of a year and the average stay is a little more than five days, the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company report.

At the same time, an additional tenth of the children under age 20 either are treated as outpatients of a hospital or undergo minor surgery in a physician's office.

Each type of hospital and surgical care was utilized more frequently by boys than girls. The hospital admission rate among males was about 25 per cent greater than that among females. For surgery in a physician's office the rate for boys was about 50 per cent higher, and for outpatient cases their rate was about 75 per cent greater, the statisticians noted.

The average stay for hospitalized children, however, showed contrary results. Duration of hospitalization was longer for girls than boys in practically every age category under 20 years.

According to the statisticians, the average stay was greatest in the year of birth — 13.6 days for females and 10 for males — reflecting in part the experiences of prematurely born children who require longer periods of hospitalization.

After infancy, however, the average hospital stay among children dropped sharply and continued to diminish to age 5, when it was about three days.

Thereafter, the average increased with age until it reached a little more than 7 days per case at ages 15 to 19, the longest average duration recorded, except during infancy, the statisticians concluded.

U. S. Offers Pact In Exchange for Grain Trading

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States disclosed today it has offered to make its farm policies the subject of a world treaty in exchange for an end to trade barriers against American grain.

A treaty proposal to regulate and stabilize all grain trade was unveiled at a news conference by U.S. trade negotiator W. Michael Blumenthal.

Blumenthal said he was "gratified with the initial response" from the members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The proposal was submitted Tuesday to a closed meeting preparing the "Kennedy round" GATT tariff negotiations due to open here May 4, Blumenthal said.

The committee preparing the Kennedy round's grain negotiations discussed the proposal privately throughout the week. The discussions will resume after Easter.

The U.S. delegation announcement said the treaty should cover four main subjects: domestic farm policies, guaranteed access to foreign markets, fixed price ranges and assurance of supplies.

American sources said the chief grain importers involved were Britain, Japan and the European common market.

The treaty would supersede the international wheat agreement, which expires in 1965, and would include all other grains such as corn, barley and oats. France wants the Common Market to lower agricultural tariffs to help French farmers, while the West German government is under pressure from its high-cost producers to keep protective barriers.

ROUNDUPPERS CELEBRATE — Norm Coleman, President of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce has a twinkle in his eyes when members of the Round Up Club recently presented him with a birthday cake and sang "Happy Birthday." Coleman was congratulated on reaching 39 again.

Easter Service At AFA to Focus On Friendship

Easter Sunrise Services at the Air Force Academy's Falcon Stadium will underline the international friendship drawing England, Canada, and the United States together.

The service is open to the public.

Members of Canadian armed forces stationed in the Colorado Springs area will have major roles in the service and cadets from the British Royal Air Force colleges at Carnwell and Henlow visiting the Academy will have the opportunity to attend with their cadet hosts.

Principal speaker for the 6 a.m. service is Chaplain General of the Canadian Armed Forces (Rev.) E. G. B. Foote. He will be introduced by the superintendent, Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren.

Air Vice Marshal Murray D. Lister, deputy chief of staff-operations at NORAD, will head the Canadian delegation.

Air Marshal C. Roy Slemmon, RCAF, deputy commander-in-chief of NORAD, will read one of the scripture lessons as will the Academy Commandant of Cadets Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong Jr.

Starting at 5:30 a.m., the Academy Band and Chancel and Cadet Choirs will present a special program of sacred music.

According to Command Chaplain (Col.) George J. Cameron, hot coffeee will be served to those attending the service and paper sunglasses distributed.

The congregation will be seated in the center of the west side of the stadium. Ample parking is available in stadium lots.

In case of inclement weather, the service will be held at the scheduled time in the theater of Arnold Hall, cadet social center.

Immediately following the service, special Easter breakfasts, available to the public, will be served in both the Officers and NCO Clubs.

NORAD Chief Honored By Air Squadron

North American Air Defense Commander in Chief General John K. Gerhart was honored by the Philadelphia Metropolitan Squadron of the Air Force Association Saturday night.

The ceremony was held during the organization's first annual honors night to be held in the history of the organization at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia.

Gen. Gerhart received his award before a group of some 550 industrial officials from the Philadelphia area. The award will be an annual one hereafter and presented to a national figure who has made contributions to aviation and national security.

Honored guests at the meeting held Saturday were some 100 outstanding Reserve Officers Training Corps candidates from colleges and universities in the Philadelphia area.

In addition to Gen. Gerhart, Leo G. Marshall, Chief Controller of the Federal Aviation Agency at the Philadelphia International Airport, and Thomas H. Macnew, editor of the Aerospace Management Magazine received awards for their respective activities.

Gen. Gerhart and his party were scheduled to return to NORAD headquarters today.

CU Student Claims He Was Overcharged

BOULDER (AP) — Lawrence J. Landwehr, 26 a University of Colorado student, claims he was charged out-of-state tuition rates although he is a Colorado resident.

He has filed suit in District Court against the university, asking $7,831, including punitive damages of $5,500.

Landwehr said he was a resident of the state when he entered the university in September, 1960. He was told by a university official he said, that a person had to live in the state a year before registering, to qualify as a resident.

Landwehr's argument is that this law did not take effect until a year after he entered the university.

Costlier Stamps Seen by Postmaster

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Postmaster General John A. Grounouski, speaking in Wichita, Kan., told 1,600 postmasters from three states that if they ignore new management techniques to cut postal costs, "by the year 2,000 we will be using 15-cent stamps rather than five-cent stamps."

Some countries — Austria is one — have laws which require autopsies after all deaths, and the United States military services have so high a regard for postmortems that all deaths are autopsied.

More is to be gained from an autopsy than just confirmation of the cause of death. The physician who makes the examination looks for more than the immediate cause. His study of all tissues and organs may lead to discovery of long-term conditions which affected the patient's life, and thus the autopsy is a contribution to total medical knowledge, the physician's own and that of science as a whole.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. An autopsy is a service to humanity, in the largest sense, and its immediate value may lie in protection of the family and the children of the family.
2. The findings may substitute peace of mind and certainty for a question mark.
3. Autopsies are particularly needed when there has been anything obscure or baffling in the case.
4. A postmortem examination is a respectful, humane and scientific procedure. Precise surgical techniques are employed, and there is no random destruction of the body.
5. In the case of a death within 24 hours after an admission to the hospital, Colorado law requires that the case be reported to the coroner and an autopsy may be done at his discretion.
6. Persons who thoughtfully plan ahead with life insurance programs and wills do well to give similar thought to a final service to their families and humanity at large by indicating their desire to be autopsied after death.

Fountain-Carson High News

The Senior Class Play, "Come To Dinner," was presented Friday night.

An early breakfast was held for the cast the morning of the play at the "Pancake House," located at Southgate.

The Future Teachers of America elected part of their officers for the 1964-65 school term. Gil Taylor was elected president and Terry Kent, vice-president.

Four seniors, Jan Malone, Ginny Leonard, Laura Nugent, and Diane Kraus, and the new president, Gil Taylor, will represent the FTA at the state convention to be held in Grand Junction, April 4.

The Future Homemakers of America are sponsoring an all-school skating party to be held April 13 at Skateland. The rink will be reserved for FHS students. The cost is 50 cents per ticket and 25 cents for skates.

FHA girls are to attend the 1964 State Convention in Fort Collins, April 2, 3, and 4. The theme of the convention will be "Future Homemakers Grow toward Maturity — The Endless Challenge."

Only the girls rating highest on their score cards will be allowed to attend the convention. FHS representatives will be Cathy Torbit, Phyllis Bystrom, Norma Jean Gollehon, Coretta Gollehon, and Judy McGuire.

The FHA Convention will meet at Fountain in 1965.

Mayor Does Not Favor Air Terminal Design

"If that is the ultimate in Kansas City's entrance into the air age, then I don't want to be mayor," Davis said.

The terminal is being enlarged, but city council is discussing a proposal to move air operations to the new Mid-Continent International Airport.

U. S. Offers Pact In Exchange for Grain Trading

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States disclosed today it has offered to make its farm policies the subject of a world treaty in exchange for an end to trade barriers against American grain.

A treaty proposal to regulate and stabilize all grain trade was unveiled at a news conference by U.S. trade negotiator W. Michael Blumenthal.

Blumenthal said he was "gratified with the initial response" from the members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The proposal was submitted Tuesday to a closed meeting preparing the "Kennedy round" GATT tariff negotiations due to open here May 4, Blumenthal said.

The committee preparing the Kennedy round's grain negotiations discussed the proposal privately throughout the week. The discussions will resume after Easter.

The U.S. delegation announcement said the treaty should cover four main subjects: domestic farm policies, guaranteed access to foreign markets, fixed price ranges and assurance of supplies.

American sources said the chief grain importers involved were Britain, Japan and the European common market.

The treaty would supersede the international wheat agreement, which expires in 1965, and would include all other grains such as corn, barley and oats. France wants the Common Market to lower agricultural tariffs to help French farmers, while the West German government is under pressure from its high-cost producers to keep protective barriers.

NORAD Chief Honored By Air Squadron

North American Air Defense Commander in Chief General John K. Gerhart was honored by the Philadelphia Metropolitan Squadron of the Air Force Association Saturday night.

The ceremony was held during the organization's first annual honors night to be held in the history of the organization at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia.

Gen. Gerhart received his award before a group of some 550 industrial officials from the Philadelphia area. The award will be an annual one hereafter and presented to a national figure who has made contributions to aviation and national security.

Honored guests at the meeting held Saturday were some 100 outstanding Reserve Officers Training Corps candidates from colleges and universities in the Philadelphia area.

In addition to Gen. Gerhart, Leo G. Marshall, Chief Controller of the Federal Aviation Agency at the Philadelphia International Airport, and Thomas H. Macnew, editor of the Aerospace Management Magazine received awards for their respective activities.

Gen. Gerhart and his party were scheduled to return to NORAD headquarters today.

CU Student Claims He Was Overcharged

BOULDER (AP) — Lawrence J. Landwehr, 26 a University of Colorado student, claims he was charged out-of-state tuition rates although he is a Colorado resident.

He has filed suit in District Court against the university, asking $7,831, including punitive damages of $5,500.

Landwehr said he was a resident of the state when he entered the university in September, 1960. He was told by a university official he said, that a person had to live in the state a year before registering, to qualify as a resident.

Landwehr's argument is that this law did not take effect until a year after he entered the university.

Costlier Stamps Seen by Postmaster

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Postmaster General John A. Grounouski, speaking in Wichita, Kan., told 1,600 postmasters from three states that if they ignore new management techniques to cut postal costs, "by the year 2,000 we will be using 15-cent stamps rather than five-cent stamps."

Theft of Money Bag Is Denied in Court

DENVER (AP) — Joe and Willie Latson of Denver pleaded innocent Friday to two theft charges resulting from the disappearance last Dec. 23 of $20,000 from a parked car in Boulder.

The pair, who entered their pleas in U.S. District Court, were allowed to remain free on $5,000 bond.

Joe, 35, and his cousin Willie, 21, were arrested by Weld County officials four hours after the money bag was stolen from under the front seat of Boulder bank cashier Elmore G. Agena.

Agena said he was taking the money from the Central Bank & Trust Co. in Denver to the Boulder bank. He parked his car in front of the Boulder Postoffice and left it unlocked when he went inside. Whne he returned the money was gone, he said.

Palmer High Observes Bard's Birth

Shakespeare '64, the spring festival at Palmer High School celebrating the 400th birthyear of William Shakespeare, began last week. Both the drama and music departments have planned a series of events which will take place this spring.

The first was a short parody by Charles George, "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet," and a cutting from "A Midsummer Night's Dream." These two short plays were given for English classes by students in the first and second year drama classes. Mr. J. D. Barnes, head of the drama department, and Miss Dorothy Maloney, his student teacher, directed the plays. Students supervised costumes, make-up, and lighting as part of their class assignment.

A group has organized to learn the Elizabethan folk dances popular in Shakespeare's time. The popular music of the time is being reproduced by the vocal music department madrigal singers. Directed by Mr. Teske, the singers have already given several concerts in the region. They will perform in a special concert for the school on April 21. A recorder concert will be presented on April 9.

Dr. J. H. Crouch, the director of the Colorado Shakespeare Festival at the University of Colorado, will give a special lecture on April 14 entitled "Shakespeare and the Palmer Audience." One of the school's extracurricular symposium lectures, conducted by Miss Barbara Reynolds on April 13, will discuss Shakespeare's birthplace.

On April 23, the 400th birthday of Shakespeare, Palmer will hold a special assembly in his honor. Prominent citizens of the community will take part in an eulogy of his genius. The assembly will also include a recorder concert and a performance by the madrigal group. Scenes from Twelfth Night will be presented as a finale.

No birthday celebration is complete without candles and a party, and Shakespeare will be honored with both. The Masque and Sandal Club are joining the Thespians in planning a wassail party in celebration. To gather 400 candles, the revelers will go on a scavenger hunt after the party. Donations of any size candles are now being gladly received. The 400 candles will burn on the balcony of Palmer on April 23, the playwright's birthday.

The major Shakespeare production, Twelfth Night, will climax the festival when it is given April 23, 24, and 25. Additional performances are planned for the junior high schools. The whimsical tale of the gentle Viola separated from her twin, Sebastion, and her adventures in the land of Illyria is considered Shakespeare's best comedy.

As well as humor, the play will have the color and pageantry of the grand Elizabethan era. Many aspects of the Shakespearean theater, such as the platform and the flag, are being reproduced for Twelfth Night. A record number of students from all classes tried out for the play, and many more signed up for one of the eleven crews. Mr. J. D. Barnes is sponsoring the Shakespeare '64 Festival at Palmer.

Bowles-Schroll Vows Read In Church of the Wildwood

Miss Julia Ann Schroll and Robert Louis Bowles were united in marriage at 5 p.m. Saturday, March 14, at the Church in the Wildwood, Green Mountain Falls. The Rev R D Hoy of Denver performed the ceremony, and Mrs T Bellinger at the organ played traditional selections.

Tapers in brass candelabra lighted the nuptial scene and white pom poms and spider mums were arranged in brass baskets.

The bride is the daughter of Mr Ted V Schroll of 2803 Marilyn Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Paul Bowles Sr. of Hutchinson, Kan.

Mr Schroll gave his daughter in marriage. Her floor length dress of white satin was styled with laced insets and the satin tarin was attached at the waistline with a satin bow. Her shoulder length veil was held by a petal cap trimmed with seed pearls and one tear drop pearl in the center. Her flowers were gardenias arranged in a cascade with ivy.

Carol Landrith of Hutchinson was maid of honor, wearing a dress of pink silk crepe, styled with train. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and pink and white carnations, with heather in deeper pink and lavender tones.

Paul Bowles Jr. of Grand Junction, was best man for his brother, and ushers were John Ruth of Great Bend, Kan., and Mark Schroll of Colorado Springs.

After a wedding trip thru Colorado, the newlyweds will live in Hutchinson, Kan. The bride's going-away ensemble was a suit of sheer light blue wool, with matching accessories.

Guests from other cities were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bowles of Great Bend, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blodgett of Arlington, Kan.

Both young people attended Kansas State University, and the bride also attended Wichita University at Wichita, Kan.

Woman Spins A Pioneer Way

HOUSTON (UPI) — The popularity of Early American furniture and unusual fabrics have combined to give Mrs. W. P. Svec a hobby with strong ties to the pioneer days. She operates a spinning wheel.

For two years she has been turning out fibers on the sturdy shiny wheel. The process is a tedious one but it has pleasing rewards, particularly when fashion makes some exotic fabrics popular.

For example, Mrs. Svec says the wheel does a good job at producing half-spun mohair, a fiber in demand currently for stoles and other garments.

The versatile wheel can make smooth thin yarn as fine as a sewing thread, or thick, nubby fiber that looks like a small rope and is good for rugs.

Mrs. Svec found the spinning wheel in an antique shop and estimates it is around 100 years old. She and her husband restored it, carefully making the wheel and spindle smoothly workable.

Soon she had taught herself to work the raw cotton or wool into the finished fiber, drawing on memories of her childhood days in Cleburne, Tex., when a neighbor operated a spinning wheel.

Her fame has spread, so to speak, and an elementary school class once used her home as a "field trip" site.

One of the grade school pupils asked her, "Do you earn a living at this?"

Mrs. Svec sighed, "No, thank goodness, I dont."

Mary E. Suvanto Named Secretary-of-the-Year

Miss Mary E. Suvanto, 1016 N Farragut Ave., has been selected as Secretary of the Year by the Pikes Peak Chapter, National Secretaries Association (International), it is announced by Mrs. Eugene A. Reinhart, president of the local chapter.

Miss Suvanto has been senior secretary to Lewis M. Poe, corporate secretary and general attorney for Colorado Interstate Gas Company, since January of 1952. As local Secretary of the Year, she will compete in the division contest to be held during the annual division meeting of the Colorado-Wyoming-Montana Division, this year scheduled for The Broadmor Hotel in Colorado Springs May 15, 16 and 17th. Winner of this contest will enter the district competition.

Miss Suvanto, daughter of the late Aletha M. Suvanto, is a graduate of Colorado Springs High School, has attended Stenotype Studio and has taken several extension courses thru the University of Colorado. She was awarded her Certified Professional Secretary certificate in 1953 and is the only CPS member of the Pikes Peak Chapter. In 1954 she was one of ten finalists to compete for National Secretary of the Year honors in New York City.

At the Broadmoor in May, Miss Suvanto will compete against entries from the other chapters within the division. Judging will be on the basis of appearance, poise and an ability to answer three problem type questions in an efficient and logical manner. Five secretaries ultimately will compete for international honors when the International Convention is held in July in Washington, D. C.

Winner of this contest will enter the district competition.

Miss Suvanto, daughter of the late Aletha M. Suvanto, is a graduate of Colorado Springs High School, has attended Stenotype Studio and has taken several extension courses thru the University of Colorado. She was awarded her Certified Professional Secretary certificate in 1953 and is the only CPS member of the Pikes Peak Chapter. In 1954 she was one of ten finalists to compete for National Secretary of the Year honors in New York City.

At the Broadmoor in May, Miss Suvanto will compete against entries from the other chapters within the division. Judging will be on the basis of appearance, poise and an ability to answer three problem type questions in an efficient and logical manner. Five secretaries ultimately will compete for international honors when the International Convention is held in July in Washington, D. C.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A seldom-used basement area can be changed into a recreation area the whole family will enjoy.

Use a light color ceiling paint so the room will seem more spacious and bright, advises the Micarta Division of Westinghouse Electric Corp.

To hide overhead pipes and ductwork, go whimsical with length of inexpensive fish netting tinted the same shade as the ceiling, draped across it and attached at each end of the room.

Use a dark tone of heavy duty paint for the floor and wood grain plastic laminate panels for the walls.

When choosing colors in furnishings anywhere in the house, think of areas that often are neglected as part of a color scheme. In the bedroom, try adding bright colors to drawer fronts or doors. If you have decorative woodwork, highlight it with color that harmonizes attractively with the walls.

A year-round work and play area for children can be as simple as a drop-leaf shelf under a playroom window. For rainy day projects indoors, the window will give natural light, and an adjustable pole lamp beside the shelf serves for homework and study periods in the evening.

In the kitchen, here's a quick trick to consider for more storage space. Install a metal sliding door track across the top thewall cabinets and parallel it with another track across the ceiling.

Insert panels covered with bright-colored laminate alternately in the top and bottom of the track. What was formerly waste space above cabinets becomes a handy catch-all for seldom used items that are often difficult to store.

JUNE WEDDING PLANNED—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Friday of Kansas City announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Rose, to Pfc. Daryl E. Wulff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Wulff of 1124 E. Madison St. Miss Friday was graduated from Midland College, Fremont, Neb., where her sorority was Phi Omega. She is now teaching in Jefferson County, Colo. Mr. Wulff was also graduated from Midland College where his fraternity was Sigma Rho. He is currently serving with the U.S. Army at the White Sands Missile Range, N.M. The wedding will take place June 20 in Kansas City.

Easter Dinner

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

A large version of one of our favorite light desserts.

Roast Lamb with Mint Sauce
Potatoes Asparagus
Molded Soft Coconut Meringue with Strawberries

Soft Coconut Meringue

1½ cups milk
¼ cup cornstarch
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup flaked coconut
1 cup (8 or 9) egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 quart basket strawberries

Scald 1 cup of the milk. Gradd milk into the cornstarch, keeping smooth; add to scalded milk. Cook and stir constantly over moderate heat until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat and stir in sugar, salt and coconut; cool slightly. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff, fold in cooled cornstarch mixture and vanilla. Turn into an ungreased 9-inch pan with a 2-inch collar of foil tied around it. Bake in a pan of hot water that comes half way up cake pan in a slow (325 degrees) oven for 35 minutes. Cool in pan. After meringue has sunk, remove collar. Loosen sides and turn out. Garnish with some of the whole uncapped strawberries, slice the rest of the berries, sweeten to taste and serve with the meringue. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Colorado City Rebekahs To Have Drill Practice

Colorado City Rebekah Lodge 89 will meet for a regular session at 7:45 in the IOOF Temple.

Mrs. Mae Hastings, Noble Grand, will preside.

Schuyler Colfax will be honored.

Drill practice will be held and refreshments served.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT—Mrs. Ruth Burrow of 5 S. 13th St. announces the engagement of her daughter, Sandra Ruth, to Clayton W. Briggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Briggs of Sonora, Tex. Miss Burrow is the daughter of the late Mr. Fred Burrow. She is a junior at Colorado State College where she is majoring in speech therapy and her sorority is Alpha Delta Pi. Mr. Briggs is also a junior at CSC, majoring in biological science. No date has been set for the wedding. He is a graduate of Alva, Okla. High School and Miss Burrow was graduated from Palmer High, class of '61.

DEAD STICK LANDING

BELOIT, Wis. (AP) — A ing bronze plaque at the sideo f a bronze plaque at the side of a highway on the eastern edge of Beliot now marks the site of a development in the history of aviation.

The marker is in the field where the late A. P. Warner, inventor and industrialist, took off and landed his Curtiss pusher biplane several times in November 1909. He experienced engine trouble on one flight and became one of the first aviators to manage a "dead stick" landing.

Warner sent a telegram to Glenn Curtiss telling him the plan was manageable with a dead engine.

Great Books Group Will Discuss Emerson Essays

The Wednesday evening Great Books group will meet from 8 to 10 p.m. in Mrs. Reid's office at the public library, 21 W. Kiowa St., for a discussion of three of the essays of Ralph Waldo Emerson. The selections are "Compensation," "Self-Reliance," and "Friendship." The questions will be planned to bring out some of the most famous quotations, some of the participants' favorite quotations, and the discussion will seek to apply them for present-day circumstances.

This is another in the list of readings which have been chosen for this project in adult education, now in its eleventh year under the sponsorship of the public library. The meetings are held on the second and fourth Wednesday evenings of each month and are open to visitors or regular participants. The only requirement is that the discussion must be limited to the text as assigned, in order that anyone attending may participate without dependence upon background reading.

A single session can be useful, if the assignment is read and its text adhered to. Study is made of it on three levels, what the author says, what the meaning is, how it may be applied for more intelligent living.

Further information about the Great Books group will be given to anyone who wishes to call Myrtle Allen at 635-8540 or Margaret Gibson at 633-3397.

Gwin Langman Will Entertain Quota Club

The Quota Club will meet for dinner at the home of Gwin Langman, 2406 Wood Ave., Thursday.

The governor of the North District, Mrs. Blanche Waidron from Ft. Collins, will be present for her annual official visit to the club.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock with a meeting of the board of directors before dinner, and a model business meeting afterwards.

Hostesses with Mrs. Langman will be Georgianna Gillespie and Mildred Vicary.

Two Meetings Scheduled by Glen Eyrie, OES

Glen Eyrie Chapter 8, Order of The Eastern Star, will meet at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at the Masonic Temple, 9 N. Nevada Ave.

There will be an initiation and a tribute to the members of the Chapter. The Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron invite all members and visitors.

The Chapter will sew for the Sands House from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Mildred Simmerman, 149 W. Colorado Ave. Long sleeved white shirts used to make night shirts are needed. Members and friends are welcome to attend.

Hill of Fullerton, Calif., and Mrs. Roy Bretzius of Monterey Park, Calif., at the First Presbyterian Church at 3 p.m., Sunday, March 8. Dr. Howard Hansen officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white satin with long sleeves, fitted bodice, and sabrina neckline embroidered in small pearls. The full skirt was designed with a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was caught to white roses, and she carried a shower bouquet of white rose buds and stephanotis.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Jocelyn MacPherson, who flew in from Lake Erie College in Painesville, Ohio, where she is a freshman, to act as maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of rose velveteen with matching headdress and slippers and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridegroom's sister, Kathryn Hill, was flower girl, in a floor length dress of rose peau de soie. With it she wore a matching head bow with a miniature rose veil and carried a basket of sweetheart roses and pink chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's best man was David Irwin of Boulder. Ushers were Richard Fay of Denver and the bride's brother Lieutenant J. G. David MacPherson, who was on leave from the San Diego Naval Base to attend the wedding.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Her aunt, Mrs. Bert Ligon, poured coffee and her cousin, Mrs. J. E. Cook, presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Wayne Prudy assisted with the guest book.

The bride groom's mother chose a deep rose silk suit and wore a corsage of deep pink roses. The bride's mother wore a suit of mauve lace over pink satin with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mrs. Charles B. Hill Sr. chose a gown of slate blue lace with matching accessories and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

After a skiing honeymoon at Aspen the couple will make their home at 6911 W. 26th St. in Lakewood.

Mr. Hill is employed by the Dow Chemical Company as senior special services engineer. He took both his undergraduate and graduate study at Denver University, where he is a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

The bride is a graduate of Colorado University School of Nursing and has been employed recently at Children's Hospital in Denver following an assignment as airline hostess for Pan American in the far Pacific.

In addition to members of the family, out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Quinn of Green Mountain Falls, William Bond Jr., of Casper, Wyo., Paul Fox of Altadena, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Purdy of Greeley. From Boulder were Mr. and Mrs. George Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Kovency and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Irwin, and Mr. and Mrs. John Whitbeck, from Denver, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Urich, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olson and Miss Karen Olson, the Misses Marti Richards, Eleanor Hess, Nina King, and Alice Selch, Mr. and Mrs. R. Gauthier, and Mr. Charles Stephenson, from Lowry Air Force Base, Ronald Yoshida, from Arvada, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Harris, and Mr. Jeff Howard and Beth Ann Howard from Lakewood.

BETROTHED — Mr. and Mrs. Murrill Fassinger of Elliott announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon, to Fred Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Day Sr. of Hanover. Miss Fassinger was graduated from Elbert High School and is now a student at Blair Business College here. NEW YORK (UPI) — Canned foods are losing their stepchild status.

They emerged from a new 15-minute canning process with the flavor and texture of home-cooked food and top quality, commercially frozen products, regardless of can size and type of food. The first products introduced at a food editors' lunch here included such family favorites as creamed chicken, macaroni in cheese sauce, corned beef hash and ground beef in barbecue sauce, but the canner says that's only the beginning.

In an interview, Harold S. Melcher, president of Trenton Foods, Inc., said that successful tests have included seafood in delicate sauces, and even gelatin salads, which must be chilled to set before serving. Melcher's Kansas City, Mo., firm holds an exclusive license to use and sub-license the patented Flash 18 process for Swift & Co., which developed it.

The shortened processing time is achieved by canning foods under 18 pounds of pressure, as much as a skin diver experiences at a depth of 41 feet. Rapid heating to save canning temperatures and continuous filling of cans with a pipeline-type stuffer also contribute to the shorter processing period.

Foods canned conventionally are processed from 30 minutes to six hours, then cooled from 15 minutes to two hours, the times depending on the type of food and the size of the containers.

Melcher said that conventional canning is unsuitable for large cans containing macaroni products or rice, both of which become too soft during extended processing. But with the new process, he added, "We could pack cans the size of oil drums —55 gallons each—if the containers were available."

He added that the early products will be in conventional cans but the foreshortened canning time is expected to lead eventually to new types of containers of glass, aluminum, laminated foil pouches, which now are used mainly for dry mixes, casserole cans that can be heated, once opened, in the oven, and even plastic containers.

Melcher said that the first products probably would be stand-bys such as the ones the editors sampled, but he speculated that later ones would include delicate gravies, cream sauces, salads with dressings that will withstand heat without separating, and fancy foods —veal scallopini, beef stroganoff and shrimp creole.

He said that thickly-sauced foods are preferred because viscous liquids moves chunky ingredients through the pipelines better than thin liquid does.

Puckett-Macartney Vows Exchanged in Shove Chapel

-Nee Martha Esler Macartney-

The marriage of Miss Martha Esler Macartney and Lt. Charles Edwin Puckett was solemnized at 4 p.m. Feb. 29 in Shove Chapel on the Colorado College Campus. The Rev. Kenneth M. Burton officiated, against an altar flanked by large arrangements of white mums. Traditional nuptial selections were played.

The bride is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Brice Esler Macartney of the U. S. Air Force Academy, Qtrs. 4310 B. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. H. Herbert Puckett of Wilson, Okla., and the late Mr. Puckett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a two piece suit of off-white cashmere, trimmed with blond mink. Her pillbox hat was of miniature flowers with yellow centers, and brief veil, and she carried a nosegay of yellow rose buds.

Jame Barber Tallman was best man.

The bride's mother, receiving the guests at the reception held in the Macartney home, wore a turquoise silk afternoon dress with white flower hat. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of silver-grey brocade, with lavender flower hat.

Large arrangements of white mums decorated the table and the home, and assisting in serving were Miss Joan Komor of New York City, Dr. and Mrs. Donald M. Green of Colorado Springs, Reeves Thompson of New York City, Fred Whitlock from Oregon and Richard Buckley of New York.

After a wedding trip to Boston, the couple will leave for Ankara, Turkey, where they will make their home.

The bride's traveling costume was a hot-pink wool suit with dark mink collar, black straw hat and black accessories.

Both young people attended Colorado College.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

The informatory double, as a means of showing strength when an opponent has opened the bidding, has come to be reasonably well understood by the public. But that this same bid also is available as a weapon to the person who has opened the bidding himself but has not yet heard from partner does not seem to register with many players.

In today's hand, South opens the bidding with one diamond, which is properly overcalled by West with one spade. North and East pass in due course, especially North. South, of course, is in no mood to give up and naturally must take some action, despite his partner's far away look.

It would be highly improper for South merely to rebid two diamonds, and it would be equally unsound to contest with a simple bid of two hearts. The proper procedure to show a powerful opening bid and a flexible hand is to double. This, of course, it still a take-out double because partner has not yet bid. The double, however, gives partner a number of choices. He may bid hearts; he may bid clubs, he may return to diamonds, he may bid no-trump, or in some cases might leave the double in for penalties if such action should appear to be profitable.

When I saw this hand played, the South player doubled the bid of one spade and North responded with two hearts. This is the proper call rather than a return to partner's bid suit. When partner has made a take-out double we should go to great lengths to show any major suit holding. South then raised to three hearts, and North decided to pass. An easy game was missed.

Upon whose shoulders should rest the blame for missing the boat? Concededly this is a close case. South argued that, if his partner had nothing, the losses added up to a spade, a club, and two hearts; that if he were sure his partner had the king of hearts he would have contracted for game himself. I had to allow certain merit to his argument but, all things considered, I think he might have gambled it out himself. North might have only the queen of hearts and with a little luck the trump losers could be held to one trick, or North might have five little hearts, in which case the game will be easy if the suit happens to break. This is the type of hand on which South might take the strain off his partner. If all you need from partner is a king or a queen to produce game, you ought to take a chance that he has that much.

Rapid heating to save canning temperatures and continuous filling of cans with a pipeline-type stuffer also contribute to the shorter processing period.

Foods canned conventionally are processed from 30 minutes to six hours, then cooled from 15 minutes to two hours, the times depending on the type of food and the size of the containers.

Melcher said that conventional canning is unsuitable for large cans containing macaroni products or rice, both of which become too soft during extended processing. But with the new process, he added, "We could pack cans the size of oil drums —55 gallons each—if the containers were available."

He added that the early products will be in conventional cans but the foreshortened canning time is expected to lead eventually to new types of containers of glass, aluminum, laminated foil pouches, which now are used mainly for dry mixes, casserole cans that can be heated, once opened, in the oven, and even plastic containers.

Melcher said that the first products probably would be stand-bys such as the ones the editors sampled, but he speculated that later ones would include delicate gravies, cream sauces, salads with dressings that will withstand heat without separating, and fancy foods —veal scallopini, beef stroganoff and shrimp creole.

He said that thickly - sauced foods are preferred because viscous liquids moves chunky ingredients through the pipelines better than thin liquid does.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

For the Skeptics!

DEAR READERS: I am continually receiving letters from readers who ask, "How can you give advice to parents on child rearing when you are an old maid yourself?" Or, "The lady next door told me that the picture you use with your column was taken before World War I." Others have asked, "Are you married? Have you any children?"

I have on numerous occasions, answered these questions in my column, but for those who apparently still do not know, I offer a few vital statistics.

Abigail Van Buren is a pen name of my own choosing. I was born on the fourth of July in 1918. In 1939 I married the same fine man to whom I am still married. We have two offspring — a daughter 21, and a son 19. The picture over my column was taken about a year ago. I stand five feet nothing, and weight 100 pounds. I was raised on Iowa corn. (No remarks please; and now reside in Southern California. Any more questions?

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists on making a liar out of me every time I open my mouth. I can be talking to friends, relatives, our children, or to strangers. He is a good man in many other ways, but his habit of contradicting me is getting me down. I don't even feel like talking in front of him any more. When I started to tell my doctor how I felt, my husband interrupted me, saying, "She doesn't really feel weak and dizzy, she feels tired and nervous." I am never right. Is there a cure for a man like that? —NEVER RIGHT

DEAR NEVER: Your husband may not be aware that he is constantly contradicting you. Tell him! And if he's as good a man in the many other ways as you say he is, he'll make an effort to be a better man in this way, too. If he's just looking for a fight, use reverse English and give him the old "You're right, Dear." He'll catch on.

DEAR ABBY: You once gave me your recipe for Southern pecan pie. I baked one for my family, and they just raved about how delicious it was. Then I baked two more and served it to my "Club." All the women wanted the recipe. I didn't think it would be right, Abby, if I gave it out without asking your permission. If you say no, I'll guard it with my life. — Florence O., in Hannibal, Mo.

DEAR FLORENCE: I hope your life is worth more than one cup of white corn syrup, one cup of dark brown sugar, one-third cup of melted butter, one heaping cup of shelled pecans, three whole eggs, a dash of vanilla and a pinch of salt. I can't understand a person who refuses to give out a recipe (save a professional chef). Share!

Allen-Phelps Wedding Held in Lehmberg Chapel

Miss Kathleen Lucy Phelps became the bride of Jearold Dean Allen at 2 p.m. March 1, in Lehmberg Chapel of the First Methodist Church. Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lucy J. Phelps of Colorado Springs and Charles S. Phelps of Newcastle, Colo. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Marie Fulkerson and Mr. Earl H. Allen, both of Colorado Springs.

Baskets of white gladioli, yellow and white mums and snapdragons were placed on the altar, which was lighted by candelabra. Nuptial selections included the traditional processional and recessional.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, J. B. Bertrand. Her gown of ivory slipper satin was fashioned with chapel train, with bodice of white net and Chantilly lace. The sleeves were long and tapered and the overskirt of illusion was trimmed with chantilly lace, as was the sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip length veil of illusion was held by a pearl tiara, and her flowers were white carnations arranged in a cascade and tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Nina Harper as matron of honor wore a street length dress of yellow organza and Alencon lace, styled with fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves and bouffant skirt. She wore a headdress of yellow net flowers, covered with illusion and her flowers were yellow carnations arranged in a crescent and tied with yellow streamers.

Charles H. Phelps was best man and ushers were Gayle B. Phelps and Lawrence D. Allen.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the bride's mother, wearing a dress of copper and brown, received the guests. She wore beige accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of blue taffeta with blue overlace, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations with blue ribbon.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Twill Dye, who was in charge of the guest book; Miss Agnes Phelps and Mrs. Agnes Bertrand, aunts of the bride, and Miss Barbara Bailey, sister of the bridegroom.

The couple will make their home in Manitou Springs.

The bride was graduated from Palmer High School, class of [illegible] and is employed at St. Francis Hospital.

The bridegroom attended Palmer High School and is employed by Davis Brothers Wholesale Druggists Inc.

Lt. Whitlock Will Address Pilot Club

The "Lady Be Good," a World War II bomber which was lost and then recovered sixteen years later, will be the topic of the Pilot Club program Monday night at the Moors Restaurant. The talk, to be illustrated with slides, will be presented by Lt. David C. Whitlock of NORAD. The dinner meeting will be preceded by a social hour at 7 o'clock.

A native of Fresno, Calif., Lt. Whitlock has been assigned to the Directorate of Audio-visual Services as the Chief of Services Division since Feb., 1963. After having received a bachelor's degree in business and speech at the University of Omaha as a part of the Air Force education program, he attended and became a Distinguished Graduate of the Officers' Training School. Lt. Whitlock has been awarded three Air Force commendation medals during his career. He, his wife Michele, and two sons reside in Colorado Springs.

The arrangements for this program were made by the members of the community service committee, including Mrs. Stan Cech, chairman, Mrs. Mary Heller, Mrs. Jerry Crosby, and Mrs. Buck Elliott.

Looking for a different sandwich spread? Mix canned shrimp with diced apple and celery and mayonnaise. Use a red-skinned eating apple and leave the skin on.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Gals:

I had been testing hamburger buns, wiener buns and rolls from my deep freeze for two weeks.

So many complaints have come in from women who say that when they freeze their rolls, remove them from the freezer and then heat 'em, that they are hard and taste dry.

Here's what I think you all are doing:

I think you are taking them from the freezer in their wrapping, opening the plastic, separating the rolls and setting them aside, so that they will thaw quickly.

DON'T do this!

I have found (and if you test it yourself, you can see this is so) that when you take a plastic bag full of any kind of rolls out of your deep freeze there is "frost" inside.

If you would just set the bag "unopened" on your drainboard until the rolls completely thaw out . . . the moisture or "frost" (or whatever you call it) that you see inside the bag will be "absorbed BACK" into the rolls, thus making them fresh again. After this moisture is absorbed, or after the rolls are completely defrosted, finish cooking or heating them.

I know it doesn't say this on the package but I feel this is your trouble. The rolls we remove directly from the package and then let thaw, were dryer and harder than those we thawed inside the unopened package. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

The answer to a waitress's prayer:

Scrub the soles of your shoes until clean, then spray with silicone starch. There will be no more accumulation of dirt! —Mrs. Joseph DiOrio

Dear Heloise:

My children have collected lots of seashells.

I discovered that the larger of the clam shells make wonderful soap dishes. The little curve at the bottom collects the water thus keeping the bar of soap from getting soft.

These shells are especially pretty in the bathroom if they are painted with the new pearlized nail polish that can be bought at any dime store. I used a light pink pearlized polish.

Dear Heloise:

I had a real good black sweater but it had little white balls of lint all over it.

I bought a package of black dye and re-dyed it. So help me, it looks just like a brand new sweater. It cost nothing but the price of the package of dye; otherwise, I would have had to throw away a perfectly good sweater. Now, you can't see the little white fuzzy balls at all. —Tessie

Great idea, Tessie. —Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

To those women who have cast iron pots that turn food black:

After cleaning it with a soap-filled pad and some scouring powder, wash with soap and rinse with hot water and let dry thoroughly.

Then grease the pot all over. Put a tablespoon or more of plain table salt in the pot and take a piece of waxed paper and wad it into a ball and start scouring. Turn the ball of paper over as it turns black. This may take two or three wads of paper but keep it up until the waxed paper seems clean. Then wash and rinse the pot as usual.

I do this to keep my iron skillets clean and the salt keeps them from sticking. —Mrs. A.H.

Dear Heloise:

To those women who have cast iron pots that turn food black:

After cleaning it with a soap-filled pad and some scouring powder, wash with soap and rinse with hot water and let dry thoroughly.

Then grease the pot all over. Put a tablespoon or more of plain table salt in the pot and take a piece of waxed paper and wad it into a ball and start scouring. Turn the ball of paper over as it turns black. This may take two or three wads of paper but keep it up until the waxed paper seems clean. Then wash and rinse the pot as usual.

I do this to keep my iron skillets clean and the salt keeps them from sticking. —Mrs. A.H.

Beef Stew, Ringed With Rice

Stews are well-known for hearty, thrifty meals, but how do you serve them? Always in a large dish or with biscuits?

Stew tastes good that way, but give it a different personality some time. Reba Staggs, meat cookery expert, recommends placing a rice ring on each serving.

Beef Stew With Fluffy Rice

- 2½ pounds boneless beef for stew
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- Water to cover
- 4 medium carrots, cut in half
- 4 stalks celery, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 1 package (9 ounces) frozen green beans
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 cups cooked white rice

Brown meat in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Add water, cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours. Add carrots and continue cooking 30 minutes. Add celery and green beans. Cook 30 minutes longer, or until meat is tender and vegetables in heated individual casserole dishes, leaving a little space around the edges for cooked rice. Add enough water to cooking liquid to make 2 cups. Thicken liquid with flour for gravy. Pour gravy over meat and vegetables. Pile ring of hot cooked rice around rims of casseroles. 4 to 5 servings.

Dr. Van Shaw Will Address Kiwanis Ladies

The Pikes Peak Kiwanis Ladies will meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Dr. Van Shaw, head of the Sociology Department at Colorado College will be the guest speaker. He will talk on, "The Changing Status of the American Family."

Reservations may be made by calling Grace Smith, 634-2766.

Dress Up a Stew

A steaming kettle of stew can be mighty tempting on a winter's day. Make the servings even more attractive by topping the stew with biscuits, pastry, dumplings or a ring of rice. Remember also when preparing a stew that the liquid should gently simmer . . . never boil.

Use dental floss when sewing on buttons that take a lot of hard wear. The added strength of the floss makes the stitchery last longer than regular thread.

Rainbow Girls Meet Saturday

The Order of Rainbow for Girls, Pikes Peak Assembly 4, will hold its next meeting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Canadian Style Bacon Graced With Oranges

You'll turn a colorless winter day into a bright occasion when mealtime reveals a brilliant orange sauce on Canadian style bacon, states home economist Reba Staggs.

The sauce is prepared with sweetened orange juice thickened with cornstarch. It's served warm with orange sections and flecks of lemon rind.

As to the meat, that's an innovation, too. For each serving an orange slice and a thin onion slice are tucked between two Canadian style bacon slices. The stacks are baked and the orange sauce poured over for serving.

This dish is delicious at dinner or lunch. It's also a wonderfull idea for a brunch. (Omit the onion at this meal, if desired.)

Canadian Style Bacon and Orange Sauce

- 12 slices Canadian style bacon, cut ¼ inch thick
- 6 thin onion slices
- 6 orange slices, rind removed
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 orange, peeled and cut in sections
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind

Arrange 6 slices Canadian style bacon in a greased shallow 1½-quart baking dish. Top each slice with an onion slice, an orange slice and another slice of Canadian style bacon. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Mix together sugar and cornstarch. Add orange juice and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Stir in orange sections and lemon rind. Serve sauce over meat. 6 servings.

Before re-whitewashing a surface, scrub it down with a strong, hot solution of sal soda concentrated.

Frankfurts, Frozen Pies Are Easy Dish

Helping you breeze through meal preparation on hectic days is an ever-increasing spectrum of convenience foods available at your grocery store. Many kinds of meats, vegetables, potatoes, sauces and so on are being designed for minute meals.

No need to lose that creative outlet cooking offers, either. Many ingenious tricks can be applied to convenience foods to give them serving sparkle.

Since February is Frozen Potato Month, let's take a look at one of the many useful roles for this quick food. The recipe is for Frank 'n' Fries Casserole, and it utilizes 3 handy foods . . . frankfurters, cheese soup and frozen French fries. All will enjoy this pleasing potato and meat combination.

Frankfurters rate high as an easy-to-fix food, states meat expert Reba Staggs, and their popularity continues to grow.

Fran k'n' Fries Casserole

- 1 pound frankfurters, cut in 1-inch slices
- 2 packages (9 ounces each) frozen French fries
- 1 can (11 ounces) condensed cheese soup
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped pimiento
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper

Place French fries on baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Combine frankfurters, cheese soup, milk, onion, pimiento and green pepper. Arrange half of the precooked French fries in bottom of a 1½-quart casserole. Pour half of the frankfurter mixture over French fries. Repeat layers. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. 4 to 6 servings.

Longer Skirts Are Ideal for Evening

Many do not have occasion to wear long dresses, but they are decidedly in the fashion picture. We will see them in sheer wools, weighty silks, linens, piques and, of course, brocades. The pattern shown is ideal.

Because of the narrow lines and close fit, a fabric with body is desirable. If fabric is medium weight, line it thruout to give enough body so dress will not hug figure too closely.

Bodice can be fitted in at waistline and belt omitted. It helps to slenderize. Less than 5 per cent of us it is said are slender enough not to want to look more so.

Long lines of this dress, whether long or short version is used, are slenderizing. Of course, sleeves may be omitted or made of a length to your purpose.

If you do not desire a side slash, you can use a godet or kick pleat in the center back seam to give more ease for walking or dancing.

Belt can be as shown or made as a long string from fabric, ribbon or leather, or omitted entirely as just described.

Remember what I have said about deep hems being smart. A deep hem is a must in a long or short dress like this.

If you make the long version, say of black crepe, then cut neck 1 inch lower all the way around. Cut a true bias fold of organdie 9 inches wide, measure neck edge of dress, make fold to fit this, join on straight grain. Fold bias in center and bind the raw edges together. Baste bound edge of bias to faced neck edge of dress. Turn half width of fold plus 1 inch over, and you have a highly fashionable collar to accent the black and to give the desirable new fashion look.

To make a godet for the back seam, cut a paper pattern piece 18 inches long, 8 inches wide at the bottom. Fold this paper in half lengthwise. With a ruler draw a line from one corner to the fold. Cut on this line. Place fold on lengthwise piece of dress fabric, cut, allowing a seam's width both sides and at the bottom. Best to make a fitted facing for the bottom, finishing it depth of the hem in the dress.

Stitch the godet to place (A) tapering to a point on the dress seam. When in place, right side should look like (B). A protection is to place a piece of fabric at the point (C), whip it to place on each seam so godet cannot tear out where seam is narrow.

Kick pleat. If this is desired, cut a lengthwise piece of fabric, 8 inches wide, 18 inches long. Cut 2 pieces each 4¾ inches wide and 18 inches long. Place these on right side of dress. Using ⅝-inch seam, stitch to the skirt opening (D). Press seams open. Turn pieces to wrong side. Baste on the seam lines from the right side. Apply the 8-inch pieces over these (E). Stitch to place. Catch the top of pleat to the dress, using hand stitches as shown. When pleat is finished, it should appear on the right side as in (F).

Turn hem or apply a facing all the way around the skirt. On the right side, bring the pleat edges together with basting, then press to insure an even line.

This stunning sheath can be made in a regular dress length, or long for those exciting evening dates. Either way, it's a standout!

No. 8282 with Patt-O-Rama is in sizes 10 thru 20. Bust 31 to 40. Size 12, short version with sleeves, 3 yards of 35-inch; evening length, sleeveless, 3½ yards 8.

Add 10 cents for first-class mailing.

Capistrano Swallows Return on Schedule

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — The swallows, not a bit confused by Leap Year, came back this St. Joseph's Day to Capistrano.

Just as billed in legend and song, scores of the birds dropped from cloudy skies not long after dawn and began fluttering about the old mission at this beach community Thursday.

Each winter the birds migrate to the south and return at winter's end to their breeding grounds in Southern California.

Playrooms in Plastic Vinyl

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

No method of toy storage and playroom upkeep will ever be mutually satisfactory to mother and children. Children prefer to scatter their playthings around on the floor. Mothers, stuffily, prefer toys neatly stored to permit the floor to be swept.

Play tables suffer from the same conflict of opinion. Children like to paint and model clay on a big table or sprawl on the floor. Mother would like to buy a pretty little table and cunning little chairs.

What wakes everybody up is that there is precious little room for any activity. In our home, young Tyler's indoor play is invariably followed by a long chiding lecture from her older sister and roomate on "picking up the room."

Lacking space and the room, the effort is to make the available space more adaptable at low cost. An ingenious friend points the way with such wonderful, cheap, easily obtained materials as boxes, plywood, clinging plastic cover and a new vinyl cloth. I am delighted with our progress.

The new vinyl cloth which is only now being nationally distributed is an improvement on oilcloth altho it costs about the same. It is thinner and much easier to handle and just as washable.

Using this, we covered plywood shelving to make a narrow but serviceable table top. This is supported, when room play is planned, on two ex-crates which have been covered in wood-grain self-adhesive plastic to guard against splinters).

To make a couple of seats, inexpensive metal wastebaskets up-ended are used. If you like an orderly effect, the baskets can be covered in matching plastic. When school is in session or bedtime comes, the play table can be taken down and stored in the closet.

Unless you are well-equipped with toy-chests you may want to make your own boxes as we did. The base for one is a sturdy cardboard carton which is used to transport breakable bottles. In truth, the local liquor store dealer is apt to have them in quantity.

Grocery stores get this size, too, (about 18 by 14 inches.) The trick is to ask that the tops be left intact to provide a lid when needed.

To hide the message on the box and to give it greater strength, cover it. Cling plastic adhesive-backed and in bright colors and patterns, is easy to apply and wipes clean.

It may be the economy that beguiles me, but I think it is easier for Tyler to pick up the afternoon's jumble when certain things go in certain boxes and the boxes themselves can be stacked in a corner or on shelves.

Freeway Thru Golden Outlined at Meeting

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—Plans for a $2.5 million freeway through Golden were outlined at a meeting here Wednesday night.

George Miles, district engineer, said the freeway would run from Clear Creek Canyon on the west to Interstate 70 on the east, a distance of about five miles. It would be a part of Colorado Highway 58.

Miles said it was hoped that construction could be started next year and the work finished within three years.

Beef Jardiniere Zestily Spices A Family Meal

About this time of year homemakers are looking for new ideas to add spice to family main entrees. The ideas you find may be completely new meat and vegetable combinations or old favorites served in slightly different ways.

Or the suggestion might come from a foreign land, like this zesty manner of featuring beef short ribs.

In French, "jardiniere" is a word meaning a dish of mixed vegetables. Thus when short ribs are cooked with vegetables, they might be called Beef Short Ribs Jardiniere. What a flavorful dish to present at a family meal!

Reba Staggs, meat authority, states that short ribs are usually economical and are full of appetizing beef flavor, which they lend generously to the vegetables braised with them.

Beef Short Ribs Jardiniere

- 3 pounds beef short ribs
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup grated onion
- 2 large carrots, diced
- 1 green pepper, cut in ½-inch squares
- 4 celery stalks, cut in ½-inch slices
- 2 cups water
- 3 tablespoons flour

Brown short ribs in own fat. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Add ½ cup water and onion. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours. Add carrots, green pepper and celery and continue cooking 30 minutes, or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Remove short ribs to heated platter. Add 2 cups water and thicken cooking liquid with flour for gravy. Serve gravy over short ribs. 6 servings.

German 'Birds' Provide Hearty Inviting Fare

German Beef Birds are typical of central Europe, for people there come to meals seeking filling foods. Note the amazement when the men discover they're actually getting two meats at one meal!

A full cut beef round steak is pounded and divided into 6 serving pieces. Then a smoked sausage link is placed on each piece of beef, and the "birds" are formed by rolling the meat like a jelly roll and fastening with wooden picks.

Since the Germans are also sauerkraut lovers, this tart vegetable cooks with the meat, as do tomatoes, onion and caraway seeds. Reba Staggs, meat cookery expert, points out that the liquid from the sauerkraut and the tomatoes becomes the braising liquid as the round steak slowly cooks until tender.

GERMAN BEEF BIRDS

- 1 beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick
- 6 smoked sausage links
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 can (16 ounces) sauerkraut
- 1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 2 teaspoons caraway seeds

Pound steak to ¼ inch thickness. Cut into six serving pieces. Place a sausage link on each piece of steak and roll as a jelly roll. Fasten with wooden picks or skewers. Brown meat slowly in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with salt. Drain sauerkraut, reserving liquid. Add tomatoes, onion, caraway seeds and liquid from sauerkraut. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 hour. Add sauerkraut and continue cooking 30 minutes longer or until meat is tender. 6 servings.

SUV and Auxiliary To Hold Business Session

The Sons of Union Veterans and Auxiliary will meet at 1:30 p. m. Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Kent, 1120 E. Las Animas St.

1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water
¼ cup grated onion
2 large carrots, diced
1 green pepper, cut in ½-inch squares
4 celery stalks, cut in ½-inch slices
2 cups water
3 tablespoons flour

Brown short ribs in own fat. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Add ½ cup water and onion. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours. Add carrots, green pepper and celery and continue cooking 30 minutes, or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Remove short ribs to heated platter. Add 2 cups water and thicken cooking liquid with flour for gravy. Serve gravy over short ribs. 6 servings.

Longer Skirts Are Ideal for Evening

Many do not have occasion to wear long dresses, but they are decidedly in the fashion picture. We will see them in sheer wools, weighty silks, linens, piques and, of course, brocades. The pattern shown is ideal.

Because of the narrow lines and close fit, a fabric with body is desirable. If fabric is medium weight, line it thruout to give enough body so dress will not hug figure too closely.

Bodice can be fitted in at waistline and belt omitted. It helps to slenderize. Less than 5 per cent of us it is said are slender enough not to want to look more so.

Long lines of this dress, whether long or short version is used, are slenderizing. Of course, sleeves may be omitted or made of a length to your purpose.

If you do not desire a side slash, you can use a godet or kick pleat in the center back seam to give more ease for walking or dancing.

Belt can be as shown or made as a long string from fabric, ribbon or leather, or omitted entirely as just described.

Remember what I have said about deep hems being smart. A deep hem is a must in a long or short dress like this.

If you make the long version, say of black crepe, then cut neck 1 inch lower all the way around. Cut a true bias fold of organdie 9 inches wide, measure neck edge of dress, make fold to fit this, join on straight grain. Fold bias in center and bind the raw edges together. Baste bound edge of bias to faced neck edge of dress. Turn half width of fold (plus 1 inch) over, and you have a highly fashionable collar to accent the black and to give the desirable new fashion look.

To make a godet for the back seam, cut a paper pattern piece 18 inches long, 8 inches wide at the bottom. Fold this paper in half lengthwise. With a ruler draw a line from one corner to the fold. Cut on this line. Place fold on lengthwise piece of dress fabric, cut, allowing a seam's width both sides and at the bottom. Best to make a fitted facing for the bottom, finishing it depth of the hem in the dress.

Stitch the godet to place (A) tapering to a point on the dress seam. When in place, right side should look like (B). A protection is to place a piece of fabric at the point (C), whip it to place on each seam so godet cannot tear out where seam is narrow.

Kick pleat. If this is desired, cut a lengthwise piece of fabric, 8 inches wide, 18 inches long. Cut 2 pieces each 4¾ inches wide and 18 inches long. Place these on right side of dress. Using ⅜-inch seam, stitch to the skirt opening (D). Press seams open. Turn pieces to wrong side. Baste on the seam lines from the right side. Apply the 8-inch pieces over these (E). Stitch to place. Catch the top of pleat to the dress, using hand stitches as shown. When pleat is finished, it should appear on the right side as in (F).

Turn hem or apply a facing all the way around the skirt. On the right side, bring the pleat edges together with basting, then press to insure an even line.

This stunning sheath can be made in a regular dress length, or long for those exciting evening dates. Either way, it's a standout!

No. 8282 with Patt-O-Rama is in sizes 10 thru 20. Bust 31 to 40. Size 12, short version with sleeves, 3 yards of 35-inch; evening length, sleeveless, 3½ yards.8

Carson Has New Judge Advocate Officer

A former horse cavalryman, an ex-tanker, a master parachutist and a big game hunter" No, this is not a description of the new commander of a line outfit, but that of Lt Col C V. Beimfohr, Ft. Carson's new staff judge advocate.

It is not hard to imagine Col Beimfohr riding a camel every day, and this is exactly what he did during his last station, Asmara in Ethiopia There camels are the common means of transportation.

In the corner of his office stands a 70-pound elephant tusk, trophy of one of his five major African safaris. He got the elephant in Nairobi

Because Ethiopia is closed to big game hunting, Col. Beimfohr made his safaris elsewhere — three in the Republic of Sudan and two in Kenya. He also hunted the rest of Africa's "dangerous five" with equal success — rhinoceros, cape buffalo, lion and leopard, plus lesser species.

Col Beimfohr graduated from the eighth officers advanced course of the old Cavalry School. He served with the 66th Tank Battalion, VII Corps and 82d Airborne Division. He has a record of about 80 military parachute jumps

He was in Korea when war broke out and remained there through four campaigns. He did significant work in the field of legal treatment of repatriated American war prisoners charged with collaboration with the enemy while in Prisoner of War status.

Col. Beimfohr, who is a New Mexico lawyer from Tesuque, is married and has three children attending Fort Carson schools.

Carson Has New Judge Advocate Officer

A former horse cavalryman, an ex-tanker, a master parachutist and a big game hunter? No, this is not a description of the new commander of a line outfit, but that of Lt. Col. C. V. Beimfohr, Ft. Carson's new staff judge advocate.

It is not hard to imagine Col. Beimfohr riding a camel every day, and this is exactly what he did during his last station, Asmara in Ethiopia. There camels are the common means of transportation.

Because Ethiopia is closed to big game hunting, Col. Beimfohr made his safaris elsewhere — three in the Republic of Sudan and two in Kenya. He also hunted the rest of Africa's "dangerous five" with equal success — rhinoceros, cape buffalo, lion and leopard, plus lesser species.

Col. Beimfohr graduated from the eighth officers advanced course of the old Cavalry School. He served with the 66th Tank Battalion, VII Corps and 82d Airborne Division. He has a record of about 80 military parachute jumps.

He was in Korea when war broke out and remained there through four campaigns. He did significant work in the field of legal treatment of repatriated American war prisoners charged with collaboration with the enemy while in Prisoner of War status.

Col. Beimfohr, who is a New Mexico lawyer from Tesuque, is married and has three children attending Fort Carson schools.

Local Residents Become Medical Fact Finders

. Ten Colorado Springs residents are among 600 "medical fact finders" participating in the Fifth Biennial Postgraduate Course in Medical Technology at the University of Colorado Medical Center in Denver this week. They are:

The medical technologists, drawn from the clinics, hospitals and laboratories of 49 states, are undergoing an intensive, six-day program of more than 70 workshops and classes and 20 panel discussions aimed at keeping them up-to-date on latest developments, techniques and advances in laboratory medicine.

District RE-2 Teachers to Have New Pay Schedule

A new salary schedule for teachers working in school district Re-2(J) has been approved by the board of education and has been released by the office of Barto Babitz, superintendent of schools.

Under the new schedule, first year non-degree teachers will be paid $3,500 with increments of $100 per year to a maximum of $4,000.

Teachers with AB or BS degrees (first year) will start at $4,400 with increments of $170 per year to a maximum of $7,000.

MA degree teachers will be hired at $4,600 with increments of $195 per year until a maximum of $7,525 is reached.

It was noted that "anyone acquiring a MA degree will receive the increase at the beginning of his or her next contract. Extra hours beyond a Master's degree will be treated the same as the Bachelor's to a maximum of $200 (Based on $50 increase for every nine semester additional hours)."

Increments will be automatic but a minimum of 12 quarter hours must be earned during the first five years to be eligible to continue getting increments after the fifth year, and the same will apply during the next five years until a masters degree or its equivalent is acquired.

The board pointed out, however, that increments can be stopped at any time when the financial condition of the district is such that the board cannot continue the schedule. It was further noted that should a merit system be adopted in the future, this too, would of necessity, stop increments for some.

The board declared that teachers acquiring 12 quarter hours increase to their base pay until a total of $200 is earned or a masters degree is completed. The quarter hours required for increments or increase in base pay must be toward an advanced degree or approved by the principal, supervisor, or superintendent.

It was explained that approved experience in other school systems up to five years at $100 per year, shall be recognized in the local district, and that rural experience is also recognized. Teachers in the system paid at the old rate of $50 per year will receive $50 a year more until the full amount is credited.

Under the provisions for sick leave, the board ruled that a minimum of 10 days sick leave in the first year of service will be granted, and 10 days for each year thereafter, cumulative to a total of 30 days. Sick leave has been defined as personal sickness confining a teacher at home, or in a hospital; death in the immediate family or next of kin.

A teacher is not to be compensated at the termination of contract for sick leave not used, but the board may grant additional leave to a teacher if in its opinion the same is necessary.

The school board established a salary schedule for teachers and coaches with extra duties as follows:

Carson Clerk Wins Most Courteous Award

Winner of the first "Most Courteous Ft. Carson Exchange Employee" for the month of February is Mrs. Ilse Cable a clerk in Branch 6. She received the most votes from PX patrons in the first of 10 monthly contests.

Wife of SP5 Donald V. Cable of B Battery, 21st Artillery, Mrs. Cable was awarded a check for $30. She has worked at Branch 6 since last September.

PX Personnel Officer Tom Rhodes reported that 1500 persons voted during February.

Rhodes said the first month of the program went very well. The program was initiated to obtain maximum customer participation by voting each month and also to assist the PX in improving customer service.

Man and Wife Conversation Discussed

The reason husbands and wives don't talk to each other may be because nature never intended the sexes to converse.

"In the beginning it was sufficient for the male to bring home the kill, his mate to cook it, with no exchanges between them beyond an occasional 'Ugh,' " according to an article in the current "Today's Health" magazine, published by the American Medical Association.

"Deep in the male animal are bred thousands of centuries of regarding women as slaves. And for hundreds of years even after civilization began, in most societies men ruled the oral roost.

"Small wonder then that having finally burst their bonds, women are anxious to make up for lost time. Or that after such long conditioning, men regard this comparatively recent manifestation, the articulate woman, with a mixture of amazement and distress."

Rather than get into serious discussions with his wife, a man prefers to let well enough alone, according to the article. This is especially true of a man whose parents may have practiced reserve expression as a child.

"So he listens guardedly, if at all, to his wife's hopeful outpourings. He does not make the mistake of encouraging her by his own comments, which might lead to a genuine discussion. By his demeanor he registers polite discomfort, if not outright resistance. And at the first graceful moment he escapes."

If women are sensible, they make the best of it, the article continued. The wife shouldn't blame her husband for something he can't help. She shouldn't expect too much, but she shouldn't stop trying altogether. She can always pick up the phone and call a friend.

The same sexes converse most honestly and comfortably together anyhow, the article concludes.

The article was written by Marjorie Holmes. The April "Today's Health" is a special issue devoted to love and marriage.

Western Slope Set for Division Course

Colorado's Western Slope will be the site of 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) training April 1 thru 9 when the 7th Engineer Battalion conducts Exercise Crossover along the Colorado River near Fruita.

The battalion exercise will be in preparation for STRIKE COMMAND Exercise Desert Strike to which the 5th Division will send 10,000 men in May west of the Colorado River in California, Nevada and Arizona.

Terrain selected in Mesa County resembles part of the Desert Strike country, according to Lt. Col. Cecil C. Baldwin, 7th Engineer commander, who arranged for use of the Exercise Crossover area.

Four landowners in the Fruita area made this exercise possible by granting the Army permission to use their property which is mainly grazing land. They are Joseph Roth, Jean B. Arcuby, Mrs. Lorena Young and Mrs. Patsy Young.

Company E, 7th Engineer Battalion, will spend the entire 10 days in Mesa County. Companies A, B and D will be there for five days each. The engineer troops will construct an M-4T6 bridge across the Colorado and build light tactical rafts and take power boat and assault boat training.

They will travel to and from the exercise site in motor convoys using Colo. 115 and U. S. 50 with overnight bivouacs at Gunnison.

Viet Nam Bomb Fails To Explode on Plane

The U.S. armed forces bus had pulled up in front of the Five Oceans Hotel, a billet for American officers.

Investigating agents said the terrorist put the milk can, weighing about two pounds, inside the bus and fled.

Man and Wife Conversation Discussed

The reason husbands and wives don't talk to each other may be because nature never intended the sexes to converse.

"In the beginning it was sufficient for the male to bring home the kill, his mate to cook it, with no exchanges between them beyond an occasional 'Ugh,' " according to an article in the current "Today's Health" magazine, published by the American Medical Association.

"Deep in the male animal are bred thousands of centuries of regarding women as slaves. And for hundreds of years even after civilization began, in most societies men ruled the oral roost.

"Small wonder then that having finally burst their bonds, women are anxious to make up for lost time. Or that after such long conditioning, men regard this comparatively recent manifestation, the articulate woman, with a mixture of amazement and distress."

Rather than get into serious discussions with his wife, a man prefers to let well enough alone, according to the article. This is especially true of a man whose parents may have practiced reserve expression as a child.

"So he listens guardedly, if at all, to his wife's hopeful outpourings. He does not make the mistake of encouraging her by his own comments, which might lead to a genuine discussion. By his demeanor he registers polite discomfort, if not outright resistance. And at the first graceful moment he escapes."

If women are sensible, they make the best of it, the article continued. The wife shouldn't blame her husband for something he can't help. She shouldn't expect too much, but she shouldn't stop trying altogether. She can always pick up the phone and call a friend.

The same sexes converse most honestly and comfortably together anyhow, the article concludes.

The article was written by Marjorie Holmes. The April "Today's Health" is a special issue devoted to love and marriage.

Western Slope Set for Division Course

Colorado's Western Slope will be the site of 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) training April 1 thru 9 when the 7th Engineer Battalion conducts Exercise Crossover along the Colorado River near Fruita.

The battalion exercise will be in preparation for STRIKE COMMAND Exercise Desert Strike to which the 5th Division will send 10,000 men in May west of the Colorado River in California, Nevada and Arizona.

Terrain selected in Mesa County resembles part of the Desert Strike country, according to Lt. Col. Cecil C. Baldwin, 7th Engineer commander, who arranged for use of the Exercise Crossover area.

Four landowners in the Fruita area made this exercise possible by granting the Army permission to use their property which is mainly grazing land. They are Joseph Roth, Jean B. Arcuby, Mrs. Lorena Young and Mrs. Patsy Young.

Company E, 7th Engineer Battalion, will spend the entire 10 days in Mesa County. Companies A, B and D will be there for five days each. The engineer troops will construct an M-4T6 bridge across the Colorado and build light tactical rafts and take power boat and assault boat training.

They will travel to and from the exercise site in motor convoys using Colo. 115 and U. S. 50 with overnight bivouacs at Gunnison.

Viet Nam Bomb Fails To Explode on Plane

The U.S. armed forces bus had pulled up in front of the Five Oceans Hotel, a billet for American officers.

Investigating agents said the terrorist put the milk can, weighing about two pounds, inside the bus and fled.

Air College Of Britain, Talk Subject

Cranwell, Britain's Air Force College, will be the subject of a talk by a Royal Air Force wing commander who will address members of the English-Speaking Union at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Rastall Center, Colorado College.

Wing Commander W. J. Herrington, an instructor at the U.S. Air Force Academy, will show slides of Cranwell and will discuss the exchange program between the Academy cadets and Cranwell's cadets.

Herrington began his R. A. F. career as a cadet at Cranwell, where he was awarded the Sword of Honour at the end of his training.

Following his graduation in 1949 he spent nearly four years in the R. A. F. Transport Command flying long-range transport aircraft to many parts of the world including the Middle East, Far East and North America.

He served next as aide to the commander-in-chief of the Bomber Command and later was posted to a Bomber Command Reconnaissance Squadron. Herrington flew the twin-jet Canberra and the four-jet Victor.

This operational tour was followed by a year at the R. A. F. Staff College after which he was assigned, in 1962, as an exchange officer to the Air Force Academy here.

For the past two years, Herrington has worked as a course director and instructor in the Military Training Department, teaching cadets. He and his family leave here in May to return to England where Herrington will resume operational flying in command of a squadron in Bomber Command.

The meeting Wednesday is open to the public.

Beth-El School To Hold Capping Ceremony

Seventeen students of Beth-El School of Nursing of Memorial Hospital will participate in the traditional Capping Ceremony at 4 p.m. Wednesday, at Our Savior's Lutheran Church, corner of Boulder and Hancock.

Two of the seventeen students are men. This is in keeping with the trend of an increasing number of men entering the nursing profession.

Members of the class include the following:

Presiding will be Mr. C. Franklin Fielden, executive director of Memorial Hospital, who also will give the main address.

Mrs. Joan Russ, class sponsor, will present the class and Miss Mary Flowers, director of the School of Nursing will award the caps.

Special music will be provided by members of the class. Other participants in the ceremony include Rev. Halvard H. Running, pastor of Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Mrs. Stringfield, instructor, and Miss Linda Morris and Miss Judith Lince, junior student nurses.

Division Vets On Duty At Ft. Carson

The 5th Medical Battalion at Ft. Carson claims it may have three of the oldest members of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) within its ranks. Capt. James E. Byrd, Capt. Henry Y. Koga and SP5 Patrick M. Hughes all reported to the battalion February 27, 1962 and have been in the battalion since.

Byrd was assigned as company commander of Headquarters and Company A. Koga, then as commander of C Company. Since that time Byrd has served as commander of B Company and is now serving as the battalion executive officer.

Koga spent the major part of his tour as commander of C Company, but has recently been assigned to Headquarters and A Company as commander.

Hughes was assigned to Headquarters and A Company two days after completing basic training at Fort Carson and has been with the company ever since. In basic training he marched in the division reactivation parade on Pershing Field.

All three men have participated in all the major exercises including Swift Strike II and III, We Will and Coulee Crest.

Egyptian Mummy Is 'Work of Art'

BRUSELS (AP)—The prosecutor's office Friday overruled two policemen who had stopped an art gallery from selling a 3,000-year-old Egyptian mummy because "you can't sell a corpse."

An office spokesman told the protesting gallery director that mummies could legally be sold as works of art and the policemen had shown "too much zeal."

Carson Receives Thanks for Special Donation

More kudos for Ft. Carson's helping hand to a tiny Christian church in Tagajo, Japan, have come from the commanding general of the U.S. Army in Japan.

Maj. General C. W. Clark, in a letter to Ft. Carson and 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander Major General John A. Heintges, wrote:

"Please convey U.S. Army Japan's thanks to the Ft. Carson personnel who donated to this worthy cause. They can feel assured their contributions were accepted in humble gratitude by the many youngsters attending the Tagajo East Church and Sunday School.

"May I express my personal appreciation for your assistance in helping our People-to-People program to establish closer relations between the United States and Japanese governments."

Included with Gen. Clark's letter was a newspaper clipping from Japan's influential Asahi Evening News, telling the story of Fort Carson's gift of $1,400 from chapel donations to pay off a crushing debt for purchase of required kindergarten land.

The closing paragraph of the story noted that the church was founded by U.S. troops in Japan and commented:

"The Americans are continuing their support of the church and school activities even after their return to the U.S."

CHARLES EMERY

* * *

Idea Unit Study To Open at CU Extension

Another unit of "A Study of Ideas" offered by the University of Colorado Extension Center will begin April 2.

This unit entitled "Emotion, Thought, and Action" will be conducted by Charles Emery as a lecture-discussion course. The class will meet weekly for 10 sessions from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Selected readings from Hegel's "Reason in History" will be the first class assignment. The class will begin to explore ideas concerning rational or irrational actions based on feelings and on thinking. Dostoyevsky's "Crime and Punishment" will be used as an examination of how a man "feels" before and after a crime.

Subsequent readings will include Sophocles' "The Oedipus Cycle", "The Comedies of Aristophanes", O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Elecrta" and selected readings from "Resistance, Rebellion and Death" by Camus.

Emery obtained his undergraduate degree at Yale University and his graduate degree in philosophy at Colorado University.

Before coming to Colorado Springs, he taught and did post-graudate work at Columbia University.

He has had business and newspaper experience, has taught philosophy courses at C.U. Extension Center, and is presently an instructor at Fountain Valley School.

"Emotion, Thought and Action" is available for all adults regardless of previous background. There is a special fee for husband-wife participants at a reduced rate. Enrollment is now open and registration must be completed by April 1 at the C.U. Extension offices, 1105 N. Nevada Ave.

Training Set For Exercise Desert Strike

Three training exercises have been announced at Ft. Carson in preparation for the 5th Infantry Division's Mechanized participation in Exercise Desert Strike.

Col. H. V. Middleworth, chief of staff, announced training targets and movement dates for the Division's part in its fourth STRICOM exercise.

A Command Post Exercise for Headquarters Command has been called for April 1 to 3 and the entire division will move to the reservation for approximately four days beginning April 13 on a Field Training Exercise to prepare for desert operations. Practice river crossing operations will be made by the 7th Engineer Battalion over the Colorado River near Fruita from March 31 to April 10.

Regular training schedules will all be geared toward the desert maneuvers.

This fourth STRICOM exercise for the young 5th Division will be its first as a mechanized infantry division and its first in maneuvering with and against armor units, said Col. Middleworth.

"This time we will be operating on a broad front, with more room to maneuver than we've had before," he pointed out. "The limited vegetation. The desert heat, sand and rocks, the entire topography, are all completely different from that which we've encountered before."

Ten-thousand Red Devils will take part in Desert Strike as part of the 100,000 soldiers and airmen involved in the exercise staged May 17 to 31 in Arizona, California and Nevada.

The advance party of the 5th Division will leave Ft. Carson April 29 with the last divisional elements returning June 9.

Division Vets On Duty At Ft. Carson

The 5th Medical Battalion at Ft. Carson claims it may have three of the oldest members of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) within its ranks. Capt. James E. Byrd, Capt. Henry Y. Koga and SP5 Patrick M. Hughes all reported to the battalion February 27, 1962 and have been in the battalion since.

Byrd was assigned as company commander of Headquarters and Company A. Koga, then as commander of C Company. Since that time Byrd has served as commander of B Company and is now serving as the battalion executive officer.

Koga spent the major part of his tour as commander of C Company, but has recently been assigned to Headquarters and A Company as commander.

Hughes was assigned to Headquarters and A Company two days after completing basic training at Fort Carson and has been with the company ever since. In basic training he marched in the division reactivation parade on Pershing Field.

All three men have participated in all the major exercises including Swift Strike II and III, We Will and Coulee Crest.

Egyptian Mummy Is 'Work of Art'

BRUSELS (AP)—The prosecutor's office Friday overruled two policemen who had stopped an art gallery from selling a 3,000-year-old Egyptian mummy because "you can't sell a corpse."

An office spokesman told the protesting gallery director that mummies could legally be sold as works of art and the policemen had shown "too much zeal."

Carson Receives Thanks for Special Donation

More kudos for Ft. Carson's helping hand to a tiny Christian church in Tagajo, Japan, have come from the commanding general of the U.S. Army in Japan.

Maj. General C. W. Clark, in a letter to Ft. Carson and 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander Major General John A. Heintges, wrote:

"Please convey U.S. Army Japan's thanks to the Ft. Carson personnel who donated to this worthy cause. They can feel assured their contributions were accepted in humble gratitude by the many youngsters attending the Tagajo East Church and Sunday School.

"May I express my personal appreciation for your assistance in helping our People-to-People program to establish closer relations between the United States and Japanese governments."

Included with Gen. Clark's letter was a newspaper clipping from Japan's influential Asahi Evening News, telling the story of Fort Carson's gift of $1,400 from chapel donations to pay off a crushing debt for purchase of required kindergarten land.

The closing paragraph of the story noted that the church was founded by U.S. troops in Japan and commented:

"The Americans are continuing their support of the church and school activities even after their return to the U.S."

Idea Unit Study To Open at CU Extension

Another unit of "A Study of Ideas" offered by the University of Colorado Extension Center will begin April 1.

This unit entitled, "Emotion, Thought, and Action", will be conducted by Charles Emery as a lecture-discussion course. The class will meet weekly for 10 sessions from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Selected readings from Hegel's "Reason in History" will be the first class assignment. The class will begin to explore ideas concerning rational or irrational actions based on feelings and on thinking. Dostoyevsky's "Crime and Punishment" will be used as an examination of how a man "feels" before and after a crime.

Subsequent readings will include Sophocles' "The Oedipus Cycle", "The Comedies of Aristophanes", O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Elecrta" and selected readings from "Resistance, Rebellion and Death" by Camus.

Emery obtained his undergraduate degree at Yale University and his graduate degree in philosophy at Colorado University.

iversity. Before coming to Colorado Springs, he taught and did post-graudate work at Columbia University.

He has had business and newspaper experience, has taught philosophy courses at C.U. Extension Center, and is presently an instructor at Fountain Valley School.

"Emotion, Thought and Action" is available for all adults regardless of previous background. There is a special fee for husband-wife participants at a reduced rate. Enrollment is now open and registration must be completed by April 1 at the C.U. Extension offices, 1105 N. Nevada Ave.

Training Set For Exercise Desert Strike

Three training exercises have been announced at Ft. Carson in preparation for the 5th Infantry Division's (Mechanized) participation in Exercise Desert Strike.

Col. H. V. Middleworth, chief of staff, announced training targets and movement dates for the Division's part in its fourth STRICOM exercise.

A Command Post Exercise for Headquarters Command has been called for April 1 to 3 and the entire division will move to the reservation for approximately four days beginning April 13 on a Field Training Exercise to prepare for desert operations. Practice river crossing operations will be made by the 7th Engineer Battalion over the Colorado River near Fruita from March 31 to April 10.

Regular training schedules will all be geared toward the desert maneuvers.

This fourth STRICOM exercise for the young 5th Division will be its first as a mechanized infantry division and its first in maneuvering with and against armor units, said Col. Middleworth.

"This time we will be operating on a broad front, with more room to maneuver than we've had before," he pointed out. "The limited vegetation. The desert heat, sand and rocks, the entire topography, are all completely different from that which we've encountered before."

Ten-thousand Red Devils will take part in Desert Strike as part of the 100,000 soldiers and airmen involved in the exercise staged May 17 to 31 in Arizona, California and Nevada.

The advance party of the 5th Division will leave Ft. Carson April 29 with the last divisional elements returning June 9.

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

To Keep Governments Small

Every now and again we are treated to a polemic from someone on the great joys to be derived from simple submission to the government.

Virtually without exception, the paens of praise uttered in support of the state do not rightfully belong to the state.

"Haven't we a wonderful country?" we are told.

Of course we have. But the government didn't make it, nor did it provide the wonders.

"Look how prosperous we are," we are enjoined.

True enough. But the prosperity came out of the market place in spite of all the state could do to restrict and limit productive power.

"See how well the children get along," we are advised.

But this is exemplary child behavior and has nothing to do with the state.

Again and again the unthinking line up to shout eulogies to the power of the government when it is something else entirely that is deserving of credit.

It is true, of course, that those receiving special privileges at the hands of the government have a reason to be grateful that an agency of force exists which distorts reality in their favor.

We are thinking of labor unions. No more vigorous, anarchistic and anti-government force ever existed in this country, until the government succumbed to labor boss influence and began to pass laws which inhibited the market place and made a little island of special privilege for union racketeers. Then, with hypocrisy unbounded, the union switched its tune and today chants the virtues of monolithic power, which it can and does influence so greatly, within the confines of government.

The trouble with most folks is that they don't stop to reason out the meaning of words. They simply accept symbols and slogans and go on reciting the ancient propaganda without bothering to examine the real nature of the benefits they have and the problems confronting them.

There have been many kinds of governments in human history.

But all of them have one thing, and only one thing in common. Every government contains the legal sanction to use aggressive force against everyone and anyone. The manner in which this power is acquired and the methods employed in applying it vary in intensity and degree.

But all governments have it. This is their single distinction separating them from all other organizations devised by man.

Outside of government, men do not organize coercively. It is not to their advantage to do so. But still a vast majority of men want to have at their beck and call an instrument of violence and coercion which they can summon when reason fails.

So, men go on their way, organizing peacefully into fraternities and businesses, and churches and schools and families. They join hands for social amenities, for purposes of worship, for education and for profit.

But when they imagine that their particular scheme is lacking in support, or possibly meeting with competition they don't want to face, they like to feel that they can summon unlimited force to compel others to line up as THEY want them to line up.

This is the reason we keep government around. It isn't that governments can provide us with goods or services better than the market place can. That has been disproved hundreds if not thousands of times. But a government, having a monopoly in the use of force, can ORDER conformity where it pleases.

And that is what men like when it is the OTHER FELLOW who is to be forced.

So, the great mass of people hold to two views concerning government. They like it and approve of it when it acts against the person or persons they wish to restrain. But they dislike it and disapprove mightily when they find themselves being restrained.

When a government is both new and small, it confines its actions largely to restraining the occasional private aggressor in society. There are few who can object to this. But the problem is, that even here, while government is engaged in deterring the criminal, the rogue, the slicker, to some degree it hampers the affairs of all others in order to obtain the funds and the power by means of which it does what it does.

But when government grows more mature, more sophisticated, and infinitely larger, then its aggressions against everyone mount on such a scale that the damage done by government, as opposed to the possible damage to derive from the occasional malefactor, eclipses the latter into insignificance.

It is clear that the problem is to limit government. We doubt if there are many who would champion the cause of UNLIMITED government. That is tyranny.

To The Point

Geography Comes Back

By RUSSELL KIRK

Time was when every American schoolchild was exposed to two or three courses in geography, if he went so far as junior high school. But for nearly a generation, the study of geography has been in eclipse, supplanted by vague "social studies" and "citizenship" courses, often.

The result has been appalling, in a country which boasts of its world responsibilities. Many high-school graduates haven't the foggiest notion of where the principal European states lie, for instance, let alone their climate, manufactures, and racial stock. A university professor of English tells me that when he asked his class on what body of water Huck Finn and Jim were floating, in "Huckleberry Finn," only one student ventured a guess. And he guessed, "The Indian Ocean."

But at last geography is beginning to resume its rightful place. In Philadelphia, for instance, geography was supplanted in the junior high schools fourteen years ago by a dreary survey course "tracing the development of education and family life from earliest times." Teachers and pupils hated this educationist boondoggle. Now geography is reinstated in Philadelphia, with a seventh-grade course called "Geography of the Eastern Hemisphere," which offers something for the mind.

Whether a good textbook will be used in this revised course, I don't know yet. Most textbooks in geography are insulting to the intelligence of even inferior students. At the high-school level, I have encountered only one which is respectable: Professor Bradley's "World Geography."

Some manuals in this field are atrocities, I think, for instance, of one called "Geography of the Old World," by Borchert and McGuigan. This might be a book tolerable in the fourth grade, but apparently the publishers mean it for junior high schools, or even high schools. It contains no definition of geographical terms at any length, and little attempt to deal scientifically with matters of climate, weather, and the like. Neither is there any satisfactory penetration into historical and political factors; all is glancing and superficial.

In style and content, this seems almost a book written BY children, not for them. Really, this shallow, baby-talk sort of textbook won't do, in a time when more Americans than ever before need to know something definite about the world into which they are pouring billions of dollars every year, and in which their nation has become the greatest power.

Young children enjoy real geography, commencing with the pointing out of cities and rivers and countries upon a big map or a globe. It is, indeed, one of the easiest subjects to teach most pupils, because of the high level of interest. With improved textbooks, such a course can do much to make young people something better than tiny social atoms lost in some American suburb. Knowing geography, we become conscious of the marvelous diversity of human existence.

The Absolutist Theory

To understand the nature of governments, in the hope that some method may be found to keep a government small, or to reduce it in size once it has expanded, a proper beginning appears in the philosophical writings of the German philosopher Hegel, the British writer, T. D. Green, and the Frenchman, Dr. Bosanquet.

These men, though emphasizing different aspects of the state, joined in what has been called the "idealist theory" regarding the state. This theory is the absolutist theory of government.

In modern times this theory has been very largely rejected, especially in Western nations and in those nations which have the most vigorous economies. Still, there are so many places where absolutist concepts endure, even in modern democracies and republics, that a review of the principles upon which absolutist theory rests, seems a primary requirement.

There are two major premises developed in absolutist doctrine.

1. The state is a self-sufficing entity, identical with the whole of society. This is to say that the state is the sum of all the parts which make up a society. Further, it is to suggest, as examination will reveal, that there are things deriving from this sum that do not exist in any of the parts, thus the sum is greater than the parts put together.

2. The individual comes into a relationship with the state by means of what Rousseau called the "social contract." This theory implies that before states were formed, men lived in a "state of nature" in which individualism was prevalent. But the "state of nature" was intolerable to them, and hence they organized states on a voluntary surrender of their individuality.

History and research combined discredit this latter point almost entirely.

But much of the modern antipathy to individualism is traceable to the "social contract" theory on the grounds that individualism can be equated with isolation and that isolation creates insecurity on the one hand and arbitrary non-cooperation on the other.

The absolutist theory derives originally in Greek thought as expressed by Aristotle and his teacher, Plato. It is carried forward today by modern advocates of Aristotle who, impressed by his employment of logic, are swept along to echo: "Man is a political animal."

If we consider these two major points of the absolutist theory, we will at once discover the nature of absolutist governments. The state comes to be considered as though it were the equivalent of all human affairs. Since the individual originally (in the dark past) voluntarily created and joined the state, his will is always secondary to that of the state. Viz: He made a contract and is bound by it.

This means that whatever claims the state may care to make upon the individual are always justified for the "public" good. There can be no limits here at all. If the state demands a portion of the man's property, then it rightfully belongs to the state. If the state demands all of a man's property, that, too, is correct. If the state demands that the man labor without pay for the state (as in collecting taxes for the state), this is only his "public" duty. If the state demands the man's life, either in forfeiture for anti-state actions or as a sacrifice on the altar of war, this is construed as the highest virtue to which a man can aspire. . . that he sacrifice his all for the state.

As can readily be seen, this view reduces men to mere units which are no longer self-controlling or even self-responsible. But logical extensions of the doctrine have even more direful consequences when considered vis a vis the real nature of man.

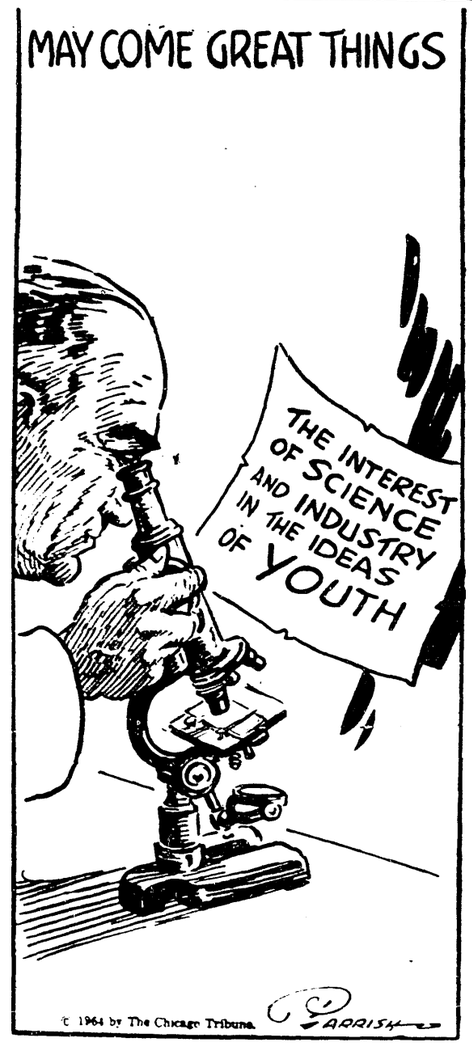
FROM SMALL FINDINGS—



Identity and Direction

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

For almost ten years before the "great depression" dissipated billions of bubbles, an acquaintance talked long and loud about his one great ambition, with the music of the Big Rock Candy Mountain only barely in the background. He told me he wanted to be a hobo and that he confidently expected to achieve his ambition while he was still young enough to enjoy it. Well, his mother died, his sisters married and my acquaintance avoided new responsibilities; he achieved his ambition and as far as I know he is still a hobo. Over a bottle of bootleg gin, one late Hollywood night, my acquaintance explained his point of view. "I'm sick of ambitious people who don't know who they are or what they want or where they want to go. They say they want to earn a lot of money but the money will not bring them happiness because they want money. They worry about what everybody thinks, what everybody owns, what everybody does and in the meantime, they worry because they are also afraid of everything. They are always out of breath because they're running mad, hopping up and down in one place. I am far ahead of them. I know what I want to do and I know which road I will take in what direction when I go on the road, and I know who I am and what I am."

Since that time, there has been a tremendous increase in the number of people who have no identity, while following the line of least resistance, a natural correlative of socialism and all forms of totalitarianism. There is the crowning insult to human beings, called the common man. There is the business community, the engineering community, the scientific community, civil service community and the community of educators and on and on. Massive regimentation is spread throughout the land and individual identity has been lost, and when a man doesn't know know who he is, he doesn't know where to go. It is a sad state of affairs and when I listen to young people who ask, "Who am I? What am I? How can I know what direction I must take? How can anybody buck the mob and hope to survive?" it is not always easy to fight away the depressive effect of their confusion and mental turmoil.

I knew another man who was plagued by nightmares. He found himself trying to go north through a subway when the mob was going south. He walked down Broadway when the rest of the population was walking up Broadway. For almost 10 years he insisted he was bucking the mob, trying to find himself, seeking his own direction, but he was only kidding himself and those who listened to him, because he received his wages from the social security administration and at no time did he ever intend to give up the imagined security of his job. He has become hopelessly institutionalized; when he leaves the social security administration community he is nothing. He would be less uncomfortable if he could remain within restricted confines, where he could sleep and eat and dream about the day when he would have the courage to live on the "outside." In the meantime, he has become an alcoholic, an uninspired, vegetable-type alcoholic, at that.

And yet tomorrow, he could look in a mirror, or search the mirror of the eye of his mind and proclaim, I AM! At that instant, he could recognize his identity and begin to seek a direction — become a responsible human being engaged in the rightful pursuit of his own happiness.

And the 19-year-old girl with the lovely voice can find her own identity the instant she realizes that no one else can make the music which rings forth from her throat, even if everybody else in the world is interested only in a fast buck and getting something for nothing and total irresponsibility. Her voice is hers and hers alone.

Some students of history seem too frequently amazed at the fact that individuals have emerged from every regimented collective, whereas I am shocked that so many succumb to regimentation when recognition of individual identity is natural; regimentation, false. I dare to suggest that you try to find your identity by trying yourself on for size. No one else, I assure you, will fit your identity.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Does defoliating by insects hurt a tree?

A—It reduces the food-making powers which weakens the tree for a season. It does not kill the tree unless defoliation occurs for several years running.

Q—To what country did Panama formerly belong?

A—Colombia. The people of Panama declared their independence on November 3, 1903.

Q—What kind of abalone is marketed in North America?

A—The red abalone.

Q—Is the horse chestnut related to the chestnut?

A—No, the horse chestnut is a member of the buckeye family, while the true chestnut belongs to the great beech family, along with oak.

ROBERT ALLEN

Allen-Scott Report

I. R. S. Probes 'Bobby' Baker Tax Returns

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — While the Senate is noisily embroiled in bitter partisan wrangling over the continuance of the sensational Bobby Baker investigation, the Internal Revenue Service is quietly expanding its probing of his multifarious financial operations.

At IRS request, the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee has turned over its files on campaign contributions and disbursements for the years 1956-63, when Baker was secretary of the majority.

During this seven-year period, he played an important backstage role in the committee's far-flung political operations. It was common knowledge in Democratic circles, especially among senatorial candidates, that Baker received and disbursed large sums of campaign contributions.

For example: At the height of the tense 1962 congressional elections, he visited a number of states as the campaign committee's representative to determine how much financial aid would be given the Democratic senatorial candidates.

Senator George Smathers, Fla., who the investigation has disclosed had business ties with Baker, was then committee chairman.

The decision to make the committee's records available to the Revenue Service was made by Senator Warren Magnuson, Wash., current chairman. He reached this determination in response to the IRS' explanation that it wanted these financial files to check them against Baker's income tax returns.

It was the IRS angle that brought to the Senate Rules Committee the dynamite-loaded affidavit from accountant Milton Hauft charging his name had been forged on some of Baker's returns.

The IRS probe is particularly significant, as the Democratic members of the investigating committee have hotly opposed Republican demands for a full airing of Baker's tax reports. The Democrats have contended this is outside the committee's scope — an interpretation strenuously challenged by the GOP.

Meanwhile, Senator John Williams, R-Del., veteran "one-man investigating committee" whose charges precipitated the Baker probe, is conducting his own inquiry into the latter's handling of campaign funds.

Williams has an affidavit that Baker conferred with a top Teamster official during the 1960 pre-convention contest. From other sources, Williams has information that Baker received sizable Teamster contributions during this period — when Baker was very active for then-Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson.

Also in Senator Williams' possession are documented reports that Baker conferred in New York City with the late President Kennedy at the height of his fall campaign for the White House, and allegedly turned over a large amount of money.

If the investigating committee refuses to go into these matters, it is Williams' intention to air them in detail in a Senate speech.

MAGIC STOCKHOLDERS

A key issue behind the stormy partisan clashing over continuance of the probe is the strong Republican suspicion that a number of high-placed officials made big profits by buying shares of the Mortgage & Guaranty Insurance Co., Milwaukee, at bargain basement prices. The probe has disclosed that Baker made a killing in "MAGIC" speculation.

Potently reinforcing the GOP belief is the vehemence of the Democrats' hostility to digging into the affairs of "MAGIC." They have violently fought that.

The Republicans have unavailingly sought the list of the company's stockholders. The Democrats contend this is not pertinent to an investigation of Baker's activities.

The GOP has information that at least four senators and certain high administration officials were let in on the lush "magic" melon.

Neither side has mentioned any names. But a significant discussion of this backstage bombshell occurred during one of the hot Senate clashes over the investigation. Highlights of this unnoticed exchange are as follows:

Senator Frank Lausche, D-O.: "As I understand it, some members of the committee want the records (of 'MAGIC') brought in, so as to be able to trace the orders issuing stock and the source of such stock."

Senator Hugh Scott, R-Pa.: "That is correct."

Lausche: "It it the belief of some members of the committee that stock was issued to others than those identified in testimony before the committee?"

Scott: "Yes. There is evidence in the testimony which indicates that this company was to issue some $700,000 worth of stock to persons who could be helpful in its development, and that this stock would be issued at less than the market value. The committee has been able to unearth the issuance of between $100,000 and $200,000 of the stock, but as to more than $500,000 worth of the stock we know nothing. We believe it was issued, but we have no proof. We have not had the opportunity to learn the facts."

Lausche: "What request was made to find out whether the stock was issued, the price and to whom it went?"

Scott: "We submitted a list of 14 witnesses, but the majority has shown no interest in subpoenaing them or the records of the company . . . It appears to be the firm intention of the majority to terminate the investigation, despite the fact that it is confronted by demands for witnesses and for records in accordance with the rules of the committee."

WASHINGTON FLASHES

Secret Service agents are in a tug-of-war with Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley over arrangements for President Johnson's visit there on April 23. Because of the recent Florida assassination threat, the men who guard the President oppose giving out his arrival time and route from the airport to the hotel. Daley would like to arrange a big parade in the "Windy City," which would require advance publicity on the President's travel route.

MOVING CHILD

Is the frequent change of home and school harmful to children in military families? Dr. Frank A. Pederson, a psychologist in the Child Research Branch, National Institute of Mental Health, flatly says no. His findings: "Frequent moving as such does not harm the child emotionally." The NIH survey covered children, averaging 13 years of age, of Regular Army officers. The average child has been subjected to 10 moves since birth. One family had moved 17 times.

The American Way

Turning Off The Red Star

By TOM ANDERSON

A brainy editor in Florida has observed that Castro wants to "normalize" relations between the United States and Cuba. According to the editor, "normalize" means that Castro could continue to insult us, but would start getting foreign aid at the same time.

This reminds me of the little old lady who handed her check to the Internal Revenue man, saying "I hope this money goes to some nice country."

Actually, both of these "anecdotes" contain more truth than fiction. Why should Castro be any different? If the leftwing governments of Brazil, Zanzibar, Panama, Indonesia and the rest of them all insult us — and get foreign aid to boot — why shouldn't Castro? This is discrimination of the first rank — and didn't the Supreme Court pass a law outlawing discrimination?

And the little old lady wasn't being funny, either. She was just facing the fact that she has absolutely no control whatsoever over the destination of her tax money. Her only job is to ante it up — not decide how it will be spent. And now with the President's new "tax cut" in effect, inflation will permit her to ante up some more without even realizing it.

WHO VOTED?

Who was it anyway that made the decision that it was the duty of the American taxpayer to support foreign governments? Surely there's nothing in the Constitution that authorizes our government to spend money around the world like a drunken sailor.

I don't remember any public referendum at which the American people demonstrated their abiding faith in the foreign aid concept.

Foreign aid is wrong — morally, legally, charitably and criminally wrong.

Our foreign aid does not help the people in other countries. It merely helps the rulers fasten the chains on the people. It encourages the building of socialism by subsidizing socialism's deficiencies. It prevents the people from turning away from the collectivist gobbledygook and taking a fling at free enterprise.

THE RED STAR

And foreign aid is what keeps the red star blazing over Cuba, Vietnam and other "blighted" areas. If it weren't for our subsidized wheat sales to Russia, our aid to Poland, our arming of the Yugoslavs, and other assorted tricks, there would be no Red threat anywhere around the world. In all of history, communism has never been able to threaten freedom — because communism is a bankrupt system. It is only when supposedly free people like you and me allow their government to subsidize the Reds that communism becomes a powerful threat.

If we really want to be charitable, we'll stand up on our tiptoes and shout bloody murder until our government stops the whole foreign aid mess once and for all. Then the other nations of the world will have the opportunity to try our great system for a change—without the communist threat hanging over their heads.

CONDEMNATION

To the Editor:

If it were not so usually pitifully sickening, your paper's editorial page would be laughably amusing.

In one column you protest that you believe in, and abide by, the moral ideals of Christian ethics. In another, on the same page, you pervert the Gospel of Jesus Christ completely.

Jesus Christ said: "It shall be easier for a camel to pass thru the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of Heaven."

The Gazette Telegraph says "He really didn't mean it . . . not in terms of our economic philosophy anyway."

Editor's note: Jesus Christ said many other things besides the statement quoted by the Reverend Guthrie. The Gazette Telegraph editorial page daily states that freedom "must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence." Our reference to the Golden Rule is, we suppose, the basis for Rev. Guthrie's attack.

What, then, did Christ say in the statement known as the Golden Rule? He said, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets."

Now He did NOT say, "Do ye even so to them except they be rich men." Yet Rev. Guthrie's attack on rich men per se makes us wonder how many rich men have attacked Rev. Guthrie in a like manner. And is such an attack as Rev. Guthrie makes in harmony with the Golden Rule?

It seems to us that Rev. Guthrie is placing undue emphasis on one statement attributed to Christ without considering others attributed to Him such as the parable of the vineyards, the parable of the talents, the statement about abundance in Matthew 13 12, etc.

If Rev. Guthrie prefers to get along without great accumulations of capital, may we suggest he cease using the typewriter on which he typed his letter. It took a lot of capital to provide the factory which produced his typewriter. Undoubtedly, rich men made it possible for the typewriter to be produced upon which Rev. Guthrie wrote his letter attacking rich men. And other rich men made it possible for the pen to be produced with which he signed his name; likewise, the paper and envelope he used. Accumulations of capital help us all, even those who attack such accumulations.

The evidence is overwhelming that rich men, who invest in tools and equipment, provide the means by which poor men have produced a better living for themselves. Without such investments by rich men, the poor would be much worse off than they are today. We believe the rich men, who have made these investments, have observed the Golden Rule and have been great benefactors of mankind.

Does Rev. Guthrie disagree with this conclusion? If he does, how does he propose that tools and factories be financed, or does he suggest we try to get along without them?

MARCH OF DIMES

To the Editor:

Now that the March of Dimes campaign is over I feel that the public should give serious thought to the distribution of the lump amount collected (have they released the figures?) and especially, now that the funds have been raised, what is being done in Colorado regarding arthritis.

As far as I can tell, there's been no publicity regarding their (National Foundation - March of Dimes) active work in the field of arthritis in Colorado and in calling the Colorado headquarters for the March of Dimes in Denver, I was informed that in Colorado there is yet to be established a program, be it research, patient care, education, etc., for arthritis.

I feel that the March of Dimes should publicize their intent as to what they plan to do, if anything, in this state.

I feel they should indicate how much was collected and what percentage will be allocated to their different projects, and again, how much will be set aside for work in arthritis.

At the present time there's no research being done in arthritis in the State of Colorado by the March of Dimes; there's not one clinic in the State of Colorado sponsored, endorsed, supported or managed by the March of Dimes to help arthritics. . . yet they advertise "help the arthritic!"

Don't you too think something should be done to make clear in the minds of the public exactly what the March of Dimes is going to do for the arthritic in Colorado instead of feeding us information, foggy and insufficient?

To Keep Governments Small

Every now and again we are treated to a polemic from someone on the great joys to be derived from simple submission to the government.

Virtually without exception, the paens of praise uttered in support of the state do not rightfully belong to the state.

"Haven't we a wonderful country?" we are told.

Of course we have. But the government didn't make it, nor did it provide the wonders.

"Look how prosperous we are," we are enjoined.

True enough. But the prosperity came out of the market place in spite of all the state could do to restrict and limit productive power.

"See how well the children get along," we are advised.

But this is exemplary child behavior and has nothing to do with the state.

Again and again the unthinking line up to shout eulogies to the power of the government, when it is something else entirely that is deserving of credit.

It is true, of course, that those receiving special privileges at the hands of the government have a reason to be grateful that an agency of force exists which distorts reality in their favor.

We are thinking of labor unions. No more vigorous, anarchistic and anti - government force ever existed in this country, until the government succumbed to labor boss influence and began to pass laws which inhibited the market place and made a little island of special privilege for union racketeers. Then, with hypocrisy unbounded, the union switched its tune and today chants the virtues of monolithic power, which it can and does influence so greatly, within the confines of government.

The trouble with most folks is that they don't stop to reason out the meaning of words. They simply accept symbols and slogans and go on reciting the ancient propaganda without bothering to examine the real nature of the benefits they have and the problems confronting them.

There have been many kinds of governments in human history.

But all of them have one thing, and only one thing in common. Every government contains the legal sanction to use aggressive force against everyone and anyone. The manner in which this power is acquired and the methods employed in applying it vary in intensity and degree.

But all governments have it. This is their single distinction separating them from all other organizations devised by man.

Outside of government, men do not organize coercively. It is not to their advantage to do so. But still a vast majority of men want to have at their beck and call an instrument of violence and coercion which they can summon when reason fails.

So, men go on their way, organizing peacefully into fraternities and businesses, and churches and schools and families. They join hands for social amenities, for purposes of worship, for education and for profit.

But when they imagine that their particular scheme is lacking in support, or possibly meeting with competition they don't want to face, they like to feel that they can summon unlimited force to compel others to line up as THEY want them to line up.

This is the reason we keep government around. It isn't that governments can provide us with goods or services better than the market place can. That has been disproved hundreds if not thousands of times. But a government, having a monopoly in the use of force, can ORDER conformity where it pleases.

And that is what men like when it is the OTHER FELLOW who is to be forced.

So, the great mass of people hold to two views concerning government. They like it and approve of it when it acts against the person or persons they wish to restrain. But they dislike it and disapprove mightily when they find themselves being restrained.

When a government is both new and small, it confines its actions largely to restraining the occasional private aggressor in society. There are few who can object to this. But the problem is, that even here, while government is engaged in deterring the criminal, the rogue, the sleiker, to some degree it hampers the affairs of all others in order to obtain the funds and the power by means of which it does what it does.

But when government grows more mature, more sophisticated, and infinitely larger, then its aggressions against everyone mount on such a scale that the damage done by government, as opposed to the possible damage to derive from the occasional malefactor, eclipses the latter into insignificance.

It is clear that the problem is to limit government. We doubt if there are many who would champion the cause of UNLIMITED government. That is tyranny.

To The Point

Geography Comes Back

By RUSSELL KIRK

Time was when every American schoolchild was exposed to two or three courses in geography, if he went so far as junior high school. But for nearly a generation, the study of geography has been in eclipse, supplanted by vague "social studies" and "citizenship" courses, often.

The result has been appalling, in a country which boasts of its world responsibilities. Many high-school graduates haven't the foggiest notion of where the principal European states lie, for instance, let alone their climate, manufactures, and racial stock. A university professor of English tells me that when he asked his class on what body of water Huck Finn and Jim were floating, in "Huckleberry Finn," only one student ventured a guess. And he guessed, "The Indian Ocean?"

But at last geography is beginning to resume its rightful place. In Philadelphia, for instance, geography was supplanted in the junior high schools fourteen years ago by a dreary survey course "tracing the development of education and family life from earliest times." Teachers and pupils hated this educationist boondoggle. Now geography is reinstated in Philadelphia, with a seventh-grade course called "Geography of the Eastern Hemisphere," which offers something for the mind.

Whether a good textbook will be used in this revised course, I don't know yet. Most textbooks in geography are insulting to the intelligence of even inferior students. At the high-school level, I have encountered only one which is respectable: Professor Bradley's "World Geography."

Some manuals in this field are atrocities. I think, for instance, of one called "Geography of the Old World," by Borchert and McGuigan. This might be a book tolerable in the fourth grade, but apparently the publishers mean it for junior high schools, or even high schools. It contains no definition of geographical terms at any length, and little attempt to deal scientifically with matters of climate, weather, and the like. Neither is there any satisfactory penetration into historical and political factors; all is glancing and superficial.

In style and content, this seems almost a book written BY children, not for them. Really, this shallow, baby-talk sort of textbook won't do, in a time when more Americans than ever before need to know something definite about the world into which they are pouring billions of dollars every year, and in which their nation has become the greatest power.

Young children enjoy real geography, commencing with the pointing out of cities and rivers and countries upon a big map or a globe. It is, indeed, one of the easiest subjects to teach most pupils, because of the high level of interest. With improved textbooks, such a course can do much to make young people something better than tiny social atoms lost in some American suburb. Knowing geography, we become conscious of the marvelous diversity of human existence.

The Absolutist Theory

To understand the nature of governments, in the hope that some method may be found to keep a government small, or to reduce it in size once it has expanded, a proper beginning appears in the philosophical writings of the German philosopher Hegel, the British writer, T. D. Green, and the Frenchman, Dr. Bosanquet.

These men, though emphasizing different aspects of the state, joined in what has been called the "idealist theory" regarding the state. This theory is the absolutist theory of government.

In modern times this theory has been very largely rejected, especially in Western nations and in those nations which have the most vigorous economies. Still, there are so many places where absolutist concepts endure, even in modern democracies and republics, that a review of the principles upon which absolutist theory rests, seems a primary requirement.

There are two major premises developed in absolutist doctrine.

1. The state is a self-sufficing entity, identical with the whole of society. This is to say that the state is the sum of all the parts which make up a society. Further, it is to suggest, as examination will reveal, that there are things deriving from this sum that do not exist in any of the parts, thus the sum is greater than the parts put together.

2. The individual comes into a relationship with the state by means of what Rousseau called the "social contract." This theory implies that before states were formed, men lived in a "state of nature" in which individualism was prevalent. But the "state of nature" was intolerable to them, and hence they organized states on a voluntary surrender of their individuality.

History and research combined discredit this latter point almost entirely.

But much of the modern antipathy to individualism is traceable to the "social contract" theory on the grounds that individualism can be equated with isolation and that isolation creates insecurity on the one hand and arbitrary non-cooperation on the other.

The absolutist theory derives originally in Greek thought as expressed by Aristotle and his teacher, Plato. It is carried forward today by modern advocates of Aristotle who, impressed by his employment of logic, are swept along to echo: "Man is a political animal."

If we consider these two major points of the absolutist theory, we will at once discover the nature of absolutist governments. The state comes to be considered as though it were the equivalent of all human affairs. Since the individual originally (in the dark past) voluntarily created and joined the state, his will is always secondary to that of the state. Viz: He made a contract and is bound by it.

This means that whatever claims the state may care to make upon the individual are always justified for the "public" good. There can be no limits here at all. If the state demands a portion of the man's property, then it rightfully belongs to the state. If the state demands all of a man's property, that, too, is correct. If the state demands that the man labor without pay for the state (as in collecting taxes for the state), this is only his "public" duty. If the state demands the man's life, either in forfeiture for anti-state actions or as a sacrifice on the altar of war, this is construed as the highest virtue to which a man can aspire. . . that he sacrifice his all for the state.

As can readily be seen, this view reduces men to mere units which are no longer self-controlling or even self-responsible. But logical extensions of the doctrine have even more direful consequences when considered vis a vis the real nature of man.

FROM SMALL FINDINGS—

Identity and Direction

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

For almost ten years before the "great depression" dissipated billions of bubbles, an acquaintance talked long and loud about his one great ambition, with the music of the Big Rock Candy Mountain only barely in the background. He told me he wanted to be a hobo and that he confidently expected to achieve his ambition while he was still young enough to enjoy it. Well, his mother died, his sisters married and my acquaintance avoided new responsibilities; he achieved his ambition and as far as I know he is still a hobo. Over a bottle of bootleg gin, one late Hollywood night, my acquaintance explained his point of view. "I'm sick of ambitious people who don't know who they are or what they want or where they want to go. They say they want to earn a lot of money but the money will not bring them happiness because they want money. They worry about what everybody thinks, what everybody owns, what everybody does and in the meantime, they worry because they are also afraid of everything. They are always out of breath because they're running mad, hopping up and down in one place. I am far ahead of them. I know what I want to do and I know which road I will take in what direction when I go on the road, and I know who I am and what I am."

Since that time, there has been a tremendous increase in the number of people who have no identity, while following the line of least resistance, a natural correlative of socialism and all forms of totalitarianism. There is the crowning insult to human beings, called the common man. There is the business community, the engineering community, the scientific community, civil service community and the community of educators and on and on. Massive regimentation is spread throughout the land and individual identity has been lost, and when a man doesn't know know who he is, he doesn't know where to go. It is a sad state of affairs and when I listen to young people who ask, "Who am I? What am I? How can I know what direction I must take? How can anybody buck the mob and hope to survive?" it is not always easy to fight away the depressive effect of their confusion and mental turmoil.

I knew another man who was plagued by nightmares. He found himself trying to go north through a subway when the mob was going south. He walked down Broadway when the rest of the population was walking up Broadway. For almost 10 years he insisted he was bucking the mob, trying to find himself, seeking his own direction, but he was only kidding himself and those who listened to him, because he received his wages from the social security administration and at no time did he ever intend to give up the imagined security of his job. He has become hopelessly institutionalized; when he leaves the social security administration community he is nothing. He would be less uncomfortable if he could remain within restricted confines, where he could sleep and eat and dream about the day when he would have the courage to live on the "outside." In the meantime, he has become an alcoholic, an uninspired, vegetable-type alcoholic, at that.

And yet tomorrow, he could look in a mirror, or search the mirror of the eye of his mind and proclaim, I AM! At that instant, he could recognize his identity and begin to seek a direction — become a responsible human being engaged in the rightful pursuit of his own happiness.

And the 19-year-old girl with the lovely voice can find her own identity the instant she realizes that no one else can make the music which rings forth from her throat, even if everybody else in the world is interested only in a fast buck and getting something for nothing and total irresponsibility. Her voice is hers and hers alone.

Some students of history seem too frequently amazed at the fact that individuals have emerged from every regimented collective, whereas I am shocked that so many succumb to regimentation when recognition of individual identity is natural; regimentation, false. I dare to suggest that you try to find your identity by trying yourself on for size. No one else, I assure you, will fit your identity.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Does defoliating by insects hurt a tree?

A—It reduces the food-making powers which weakens the tree for a season. It does not kill the tree unless defoliation occurs for several years running.

Q—To what country did Panama formerly belong?

A—Colombia. The people of Panama declared their independence on November 3, 1903.

Q—What kind of abalone is marketed in North America?

A—The red abalone.

Q—Is the horse chestnut related to the chestnut?

A—No, the horse chestnut is a member of the buckeye family, while the true chestnut belongs to the great beech family, along with oak.

Allen-Scott Report

I. R. S. Probes 'Bobby' Baker Tax Returns

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — While the Senate is noisily embroiled in bitter partisan wrangling over the continuance of the sensational Bobby Baker investigation, the Internal Revenue Service is quietly expanding its probing of his multifarious financial operations.

At IRS request, the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee has turned over its files on campaign contributions and disbursements for the years 1956-63, when Baker was secretary of the majority.

During this seven-year period, he played an important backstage role in the committee's far-flung political operations. It was common knowledge in Democratic circles, especially among senatorial candidates, that Baker received and disbursed large sums of campaign contributions.

For example: At the height of the tense 1962 congressional elections, he visited a number of states as the campaign committee's representative to determine how much financial aid would be given the Democratic senatorial candidates.

Senator George Smathers, Fla., who the investigation has disclosed had business ties with Baker, was then committee chairman.

The decision to make the committee's records available to the Revenue Service was made by Senator Warren Magnuson, Wash., current chairman. He reached this determination in response to the IRS' explanation that it wanted these financial files to check them against Baker's income tax returns.

It was the IRS angle that brought to the Senate Rules Committee the dynamite-loaded affidavit from accountant Milton Hauft charging his name had been forged on some of Baker's returns.

The IRS probe is particularly significant, as the Democratic members of the investigating committee have hotly opposed Republican demands for a full airing of Baker's tax reports. The Democrats have contended this is outside the committee's scope — an interpretation strenuously challenged by the GOP.

Meanwhile, Senator John Williams, R-Del., veteran "one-man investigating committee" whose charges precipitated the Baker probe, is conducting his own inquiry into the latter's handling of campaign funds.

Williams has an affidavit that Baker conferred with a top Teamster official during the 1960 pre - convention contest. From other sources, Williams has information that Baker received sizable Teamster contributions during this period — when Baker was very active for then-Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson.

Also in Senator Williams' possession are documented reports that Baker conferred in New York City with the late President Kennedy at the height of his fall campaign for the White House, and allegedly turned over a large amount of money.

If the investigating committee refuses to go into these matters, it is Williams' intention to air them in detail in a Senate speech.

MAGIC STOCKHOLDERS

A key issue behind the stormy partisan clashing over continuance of the probe is the strong Republican suspicion that a number of high-placed officials made big profits by buying shares of the Mortgage & Guaranty Insurance Co., Milwaukee, at bargain basement prices. The probe has disclosed that Baker made a killing in "MAGIC" speculation.

Potently reinforcing the GOP belief is the vehemence of the Democrats' hostility to digging into the affairs of "MAGIC." They have violently fought that.

The Republicans have unavailingly sought the list of the company's stockholders. The Democrats contend this is not pertinent to an investigation of Baker's activities.

The GOP has information that at least four senators and certain high administration officials were let in on the lush "magic" melon.

Neither side has mentioned any names. But a significant discussion of this backstage bombshell occurred during one of the hot Senate clashes over the investigation. Highlights of this unnoticed exchange are as follows:

Senator Frank Lausche, D-O.: "As I understand it, some members of the committee want the records (of 'MAGIC') brought in, so as to be able to trace the orders issuing stock and the source of such stock."

Lausche: "It it the belief of some members of the committee that stock was issued to others than those identified in testimony before the committee?"

Scott: "Yes. There is evidence in the testimony which indicates that this company was to issue some $700,000 worth of stock to persons who could be helpful in its development, and that this stock would be issued at less than the market value. The committee has been able to unearth the issuance of between $100,000 and $200,000 of the stock, but as to more than $500,000 worth of the stock we know nothing. We believe it was issued, but we have no proof. We have not had the opportunity to learn the facts."

Lausche: "What request was made to find out whether the stock was issued, the price and to whom it went?"

Scott: "We submitted a list of 14 witnesses, but the majority has shown no interest in subpoenaing them or the records of the company . . . It appears to be the firm intention of the majority to terminate the investigation, despite the fact that it is confronted by demands for witnesses and for records in accordance with the rules of the committee."

WASHINGTON FLASHES

Secret Service agents are in a tug-of-war with Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley over arrangements for President Johnson's visit there on April 23. Because of the recent Florida assassination threat, the men who guard the President oppose giving out his arrival time and route from the airport to the hotel. Daley would like to arrange a big parade in the "Windy City," which would require advance publicity on the President's travel route.

MOVING CHILD

Is the frequent change of home and school harmful to children in military families? Dr. Frank A. Pederson, a psychologist in the Child Research Branch, National Institute of Mental Health, flatly says no. His findings: "Frequent moving as such does not harm the child emotionally." The NIH survey covered children, averaging 13 years of age, of Regular Army officers. The average child has been subjected to 10 moves since birth. One family had moved 17 times.

The American Way

Turning Off The Red Star

By TOM ANDERSON

A brainy editor in Florida has observed that Castro wants to "normalize" relations between the United States and Cuba. According to the editor, "normalize" means that Castro could continue to insult us, but would start getting foreign aid at the same time.

This reminds me of the little old lady who handed her check to the Internal Revenue man, saying "I hope this money goes to some nice country."

Actually, both of these "anecdotes" contain more truth than fiction. Why should Castro be any different? If the leftwing governments of Brazil, Zanzibar, Panama, Indonesia and the rest of them all insult us — and get foreign aid to boot — why shouldn't Castro? This is discrimination of the first rank — and didn't the Supreme Court pass a law outlawing discrimination?

And the little old lady wasn't being funny, either. She was just facing the fact that she has absolutely no control whatsoever over the destination of her tax money. Her only job is to ante it up — not decide how it will be spent. And now with the President's new "tax cut" in effect, inflation will permit her to ante up some more without even realizing it.

WHO VOTED?

Who was it anyway that made the decision that it was the duty of the American taxpayer to support foreign governments? Surely there's nothing in the Constitution that authorizes our government to spend money around the world like a drunken sailor.

I don't remember any public referendum at which the American people demonstrated their abiding faith in the foreign aid concept.

Foreign aid is wrong — morally, legally, charitably and criminally wrong.

Our foreign aid does not help the people in other countries. It merely helps the rulers fasten the chains on the people. It encourages the building of socialism by subsidizing socialism's deficiencies. It prevents the people from turning away from the collectivist gobbledygook and taking a fling at free enterprise.

THE RED STAR

And foreign aid is what keeps the red star blazing over Cuba, Vietnam and other "blighted" areas. If it weren't for our subsidized wheat sales to Russia, our aid to Poland, our arming of the Yugoslavs, and other assorted tricks, there would be no Red threat anywhere around the world. In all of history, communism has never been able to threaten freedom — because communism is a bankrupt system. It is only when supposedly free people like you and me allow their government to subsidize the Reds that communism becomes a powerful threat.

If we really want to be charitable, we'll stand up on our tiptoes and shout bloody murder until our government stops the whole foreign aid mess once and for all. Then the other nations of the world will have the opportunity to try our great system for a change—without the communist threat hanging over their heads.

Editor's note: Jesus Christ said many other things besides the statement quoted by the Reverend Guthrie. The Gazette Telegraph editorial page daily states that freedom "must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence." Our reference to the Golden Rule is, we suppose, the basis for Rev. Guthrie's attack.

What, then, did Christ say in the statement known as the Golden Rule? He said, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets."

Now He did NOT say, "Do ye even so to them except they be rich men." Yet Rev. Guthrie's attack on rich men per se makes us wonder how many rich men have attacked Rev. Guthrie in a like manner. And is such an attack as Rev. Guthrie makes in harmony with the Golden Rule?

It seems to us that Rev. Guthrie is placing undue emphasis on one statement attributed to Christ without considering others attributed to Him such as the parable of the vineyards, the parable of the talents, the statement about abundance in Matthew 13:12, etc.

If Rev. Guthrie prefers to get along without great accumulations of capital, may we suggest he cease using the typewriter on which he typed his letter. It took a lot of capital to provide the factory which produced his typewriter. Undoubtedly, rich men made it possible for the typewriter to be produced upon which Rev. Guthrie wrote his letter attacking rich men. And other rich men made it possible for the pen to be produced with which he signed his name; likewise, the paper and envelope he used. Accumulations of capital help us all, even those who attack such accumulations.

The evidence is overwhelming that rich men, who invest in tools and equipment, provide the means by which poor men have produced a better living for themselves. Without such investments by rich men, the poor would be much worse off than they are today. We believe the rich men, who have made these investments, have observed the Golden Rule and have been great benefactors of mankind.

Does Rev. Guthrie disagree with this conclusion? If he does, how does he propose that tools and factories be financed, or does he suggest we try to get along without them?

MARCH OF DIMES

To the Editor:

Now that the March of Dimes campaign is over I feel that the public should give serious thought to the distribution of the lump amount collected (have they released the figures?) and especially, now that the funds have been raised, what is being done in Colorado regarding arthritis.

As far as I can tell, there's been no publicity regarding their (National Foundation - March of Dimes) active work in the field of arthritis in Colorado and in calling the Colorado headquarters for the March of Dimes in Denver, I was informed that in Colorado there is yet to be established a program, be it research, patient care, education, etc., for arthritis.

I feel that the March of Dimes should publicize their intent as to what they plan to do, if anything, in this state.

I feel they should indicate how much was collected and what percentage will be allocated to their different projects, and again, how much will be set aside for work in arthritis.

At the present time there's no research being done in arthritis in the State of Colorado by the March of Dimes; there's not one clinic in the State of Colorado sponsored, endorsed, supported or managed by the March of Dimes to help arthritics. . .yet they advertise "help the arthritic!"

Don't you too think something should be done to make clear in the minds of the public exactly what the March of Dimes is going to do for the arthritic in Colorado instead of feeding us information, foggy and insufficient?

The U.N. Threat to the U.S.

(The Freeman)

By WILLIAM HENRY CHAMBERLIN

A vociferous band of propagandists, official and unofficial, has been presenting the United Nations to the American people as a shield against war, an impartial tribunal for the just and peaceful settlement of disputes between nations, a large installment on the realization of Tennyson's vision of "a parliament of man." Unfortunately, a candid look at the UN record shows that it has been and is nothing of the sort. Far from being a help in the effort to insure peace with freedom and justice, the UN has become the home of a double standard of morals, of a crooked view of world relations. And, especially in recent years, this organization has been a distinctly bad influence on American foreign policy, inducing the American government again and again to let down allies and to quarrel unnecessarily with friendly countries.

It is perhaps not generally realized that during recent years the prevailing trend of opinion in the UN has changed, in line with its expansion in membership, from about 50 original members to the present figure of 111. Most of the new members are African and Asiatic states with little experience in self-government and still less in the conduct of international affairs.

During the first years after the end of the Second World War the United States could count on an almost automatic majority in the world organization, because the countries of Western Europe and Latin America regularly supported United States' positions. Practically, this was of no great visible benefit. The Soviet Union could, and did, use its veto in the Security Council to block any action to which it was opposed. There is not one recorded case when Soviet policy seems to have been swayed by an adverse vote in the UN Assembly, with its rule of one nation, one vote.

A New Balance Of Power

But the United States, in the first years of the existence of the UN, could at least register moral victories in the shape of numerous votes in the Assembly supporting its position and condemning that of the Soviet Union. Now, this situation has entirely changed. The UN has been swamped with new member states, many of them ridiculously minuscule in size, all poor and economically and educationally retarded. It strains the principle of one - nation-one-vote pretty far to have the votes of such African states as Niger, Chad, and Upper Volta count, in Assembly voting, as the equals of the United States, Great Britain, and France.

These new states have displayed complete moral and political indifference to the vital issue of human freedom that divides free countries from communist dictatorships. Their sole obsession is to destroy what they call the remnants of colonialism and in this obsession they try to draw the United States into vendettas and one-sided positions which conform neither with principles of elementary justice nor with America's own interests, as rationally conceived. This double standard of morals was clearly revealed when the representatives of the Afro-Asian bloc in the UN urged the strongest sanctions against the British and French vindication of the rights of their nationals when Egypt's dictator Nasser seized the Suez Canal and displayed monumental indifference to a far graver outrage against human rights: the Soviet armed crushing of the fight for freedom of the Hungarian people.

The United Nations and the United States have sometimes been pushed into positions of repulsive hypocrisy by the moral myopia of many of the Afro Asian governments, by their refusal to admit that one of their own number could be wrong in adopting policies of aggression. So the UN was eloquently silent when the sanctimonious Nehru of India overran the Portuguese enclave of Goa by force after failing to touch off subversion from within. There was no chance for the people of Goa – mostly Christians with centuries of association with Portugal—to express their will freely on absorption into India; Goa was simply taken over by force, in clear defiance of the following clauses in the UN Charter:

"All members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered.

"All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations."

Indian troops shooting their way into Goa did not harmonize with these injunctions of the UN Charter. But there was no official peep from the UN about the affair. The American chief delegate, Adlai Stevenson, made a strong verbal protest on his own account, but did not even try to get action from the international body because such an effort was foredoomed to failure in advance.

It was the same story when the fun-loving dictator of Indonesia, Sukarno, went on the warpath against West New Guinea, which had remained under Dutch administration. The Netherlands was far better able to provide for the educational and social needs of the primitive natives of this area than could chronically bankrupt Indonesia, and the Dutch made every effort to reach a conciliatory settlement. However, the Indonesians used both threat of force and force without any rebuke from the UN; and an American retired diplomat worked out a Munich formula under which West New Guinea, without any consultation of the will of its people, was handed over to Sukarno's burgeoning empire.

More recently, Indonesia again has played the role of a blatant international troublemaker without incurring any UN censure. A new state, Malaysia, came into existence in the form of a federation of Malaya, the big commercial port of Singapore, and some former British colonial territories on the island of Borneo. Without waiting for the report of a UN commission which was supposed to investigate the state of public opinion in the Borneo territories, Sukarno started guerrilla harassment operations in Borneo; a mob in the Indonesian capital, Jakarta, burned down the British Embassy without the slightest opposition from the police, and extremist labor organizations grabbed all British - owned enterprises in Indonesia – a repetition of a method formerly used against the Dutch. All this scarcely suggested a spirit of settling international disputes by peaceful means.

Selective Intervention

Something might be said, in the name of idealism, for a UN policy of protesting impartially against all offenses against human rights, regardless of where and by whom these offenses are committed. Something might also be said, in the name of realism, for having the UN keep its collective mouth shut about conditions which it is powerless to change. But nothing whatever can be said for a policy of selective UN intervention or, more specifically, for taking every opportunity to denounce Portugal and South Africa and maintaining eloquent silence when the Soviet Union, India, or Indonesia is the offender.

What is of special concern to the United States is that this kind of special pressure from an artificial UN majority that does not represent either power or responsibility in world affairs is constantly diverting the United States delegation away from the proper purpose of American foreign policy: the pursuit and defense of the interests of the United States. For example, Portugal is a NATO ally of the United States and its willingness to grant to the United States the use of air bases in the Azores Islands is a considerable strategic benefit to this country. Yet, the United States is constantly being pressed by the Afro-Asian bloc in the UN to associate itself with hostile public criticism of something that is really none of its business, Portugal's administrative methods in its African possessions, Angola and Mozambique. More than that, Portugal's NATO allies, including the United States, are urged to commit unfriendly acts against the little country, such as refusing to sell arms which might be used against subversive elements who have been waging a savage cutthroat war against Portuguese settlers on the northern fringes of Angola.

The same issue arises, perhaps even more sharply, in connection with South Africa. In a country where the population is about 20 per cent European (mainly Dutch and British) and about 80 per cent native African, mixed race, and Indian in composition, the government is committed to a policy of apartheid or complete separation between the white and black races. In terms of humanity and long-range feasibility, this policy is open to criticism. But it is easier to denounce apartheid than to suggest a practicable alternative. To establish a one - man - one - vote system would mean an ignorant and mostly illiterate native majority swamping the Europeans who have brought to South Africa all its cultural and material achievements, which have made it the leading industrial nation on the African continent, and have provided living conditions for the natives which – however unsatisfactory in Western terms – still attract a voluntary inflow of native Africans from adjacent areas.

One may hope that South Africa ultimately will find a middle way between the rigors of apartheid and the horrors and futilities of premature "liberation" in the Congo. But this result is not likely to be achieved by the continuous threats of other African states to stir up bloody racial strife or by giving a UN sanction to boycotts of trade and investment in the flourishing South African economy. Indeed, the effect of this campaign, according to reports from South Africa, has been to bridge the political and social gulf between Boers and Britons and to win more general support for the government's policy of maintaining South Africa as a bastion of white civilization.

Whatever individual Americans may think of apartheid, the United States as a nation has no quarrel with South Africa. Indeed, the use of a naval base at Simonstown, on the South African coast, might well be highly important in any international showdown with communism. Yet, the United States is allowing itself to be dragged along in the inadmissible attempt of the Afro-Asian bloc to misuse the United Nations for promoting a vendetta against a regime which they dislike.

Last summer the UN commission on South African apartheid – the very existence of which is contrary to the provisions of the UN Charter which forbade interference in the internal affairs of member states – brought in a militant resolution calling for an embargo on the sale of arms and oil and a virtual blockade of South Africa. All this on the farfetched and downright absurd pretext that South African apartheid is a threat to peace. South Africa does not propose to attack anyone. Its decisions on racial issues within its own frontiers are its own concern.

Time To Check Credentials

To call the roll of the commission that brought in the resolution in favor of hostile actions against South Africa is to get an impression of revolting hypocrisy. What are the credentials as a crusader for civil rights and liberties of Hungary, where the present administration is only in power because Soviet tanks in 1956 rolled roughshod over the freedom movement of the Hungarian people? Or Algeria, where a revolutionary government came into power by murder and terror, stamped out all semblance of legal opposition, and becomes more and more involved in internal and external strife? Or — heaven save the mark — Haiti, by all odds the worst governed and physically most miserable country in Latin America, despite the fact (or because of the fact?) that there has been no "imperialist" foreign rule there since the French settlers were massacred and driven out at the end of the eighteenth century?

The reek of hypocrisy from the council halls of the UN becomes even stronger if one considers the many challenges to elementary justice and humanity to which that organization has remained completely indifferent. For example, has there ever been a UN resolution on the infamous Berlin Wall, which divided thousands of families which has been a scene of death for scores of fugitives from communist tyranny? Did the UN ever take up the moral issues posed by communist slave labor camps in the Soviet Union and in China or by the forcible incorporation into the Soviet Union of Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, and other substantial areas of Eastern Europe? It did not.

Yet, quite recently, the United States associated itself with a nearly unanimous UN vote attacking apartheid and demanding the release of persons accused of subversions – a case before a South African court. The United States representatives in the UN may be piling up serious retribution by thus participating in resolutions which clearly violate the UN Charter and set a precedent for UN intervention in the internal concerns of member states.

Suppose, for example, that a majority in the UN should pass a resolution censuring the state of race relations in the United States and demanding that persons who had been arrested and placed on trial in connection with some outbreak of racial violence should be freed. Or, take another quite conceivable possibility. Suppose a leftwing Castroite government should take control of Panama and appeal to the UN for the transfer of the Panama Canal to Panamanian sovereignty. In either case, we should be more or less hoist by our own petard, by our unwillingness to take a firm principled stand against exploiting UN machinery for crusades desired by some of its less responsible members.

Obstacle To Peace

There should be more critical examination of the widespread complacent belief that, if the UN cannot do much good, it can also do little harm. On five counts the United Nations has been a handicap and an obstacle to the conduct of a foreign policy conceived in the interest of the American people.

First, the very nature of the UN setup has almost forced the United States to express judgments and take sides on issues where silence would have been the preferable course.

Second, the United States in the UN is in a minority of "haves" surrounded by an envious majority of "have nots." The Economic and Social Council has been a prolific hatching ground of schemes designed, in one way or another, to transfer American wealth to "underprivileged" nations. On one occasion the United States was in a minority of one in standing for the principle that private property should not be confiscated without adequate compensation.

Third, there is a basic difference between the UN view that basic human liberties, such as freedom of religion, speech, and press, are gifts from governments and the traditional American view that such liberties are natural rights of men under God which no government may lawfully withhold. The distinction is important.

Fourth, the UN arouses hopes that cannot be realized, creates an illusion of security, and provides an excuse for dodging or postponing hard but necessary independent decisions in foreign policy.

Fifth, the very expression, United Nations, is a misnomer, because of the deep divisions of ideology and national interest by which the world is divided. To expect the United Nations given these differences and given its archaic and unrealistic Charter, to point a clear united lead in time of crisis is to expect swift united action from a Tower of Babel.

It probably is not politically feasible to advocate United States dissociation from the United Nations. Too many myths have been successfully implanted in the public mind. But at the very least, the United States government could and should refuse to lend American prestige to votes against friendly governments taken at the urging of the members of the swarm of the new Lilliput states which possess neither political and economic power nor the responsibility such power calls for.

For All To See

The 'Peace Offensive'

(Chicago Tribune)

President Johnson has committed himself to waging "an unrelenting peace offense." He hopes not only to ease the tensions of the cold war but to get on an agreeable footing with Moscow.

Hardly had Mr. Johnson voiced his hopes than Premier Khrushchev unloaded a 20-page note on him formulating a plan to avoid the use of force in settling territorial disputes. As usual with these soviet schemes, the note constituted an invitation for the President to stick his hand into a barrel of fishhooks.

The Khrushchev formula would freeze all existing borders as now drawn. The first effect would be to guarantee the frontiers of the present soviet empire, which has engulfed East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia. Supposedly Castro's Cuba would be covered by the same insurance, as well as all other communist countries, such as Red China, North Viet Nam, Yugoslavia, and Albania.

The soviet partition of Berlin presumably would be maintained, though the argument might be expected from Moscow that, as all of Berlin lies within the boundaries of communist East Germany, free Berlin should be absorbed into the soviet satellite and the western protecting garrisons should take their departure.

Apparently, too, the Red Chinese mainland would be rendered immune from any attempted liberation by the Nationalist Chinese of Formosa, if, indeed, the argument were not advanced that Formosa, as a territory once possessed by Peking, should be handed over to the Communists.

Another hooker is that the proposed soviet agreement would leave the way open for communist revolutionary overthrow of noncommunist governments, such as has been undertaken in South Viet Nam and may be in prospect for various Latin American countries. Borders are not involved in internal uprisings which might be fomented by communist subversion. Khrushchev has already stated that the Soviet Union regards such operations as "just wars of liberation," entitled to soviet encouragement and support.

If the United States and its allies fall for these tricky dispositions, then, Khrushchev says, they might move on toward total disarmament.

As we have remarked from time to time, we are leery of the idea that you can reclaim the heart of a footpad by sitting down with him and exchanging toasts after he has repeatedly cracked you over the head and tried to extract your wallet. We are equally skeptical of the idea of a disarmed United States setting out like Little Red Ridinghood through a forest infested by wolves, but the state department for some time has been promoting the grand design of stripping the country of its defenses and turning the world police power over to the United Nations.

Like all politicians, Mr Johnson is aware of the attraction of the rhetoric of peace on the voters. The danger is that he will fall prey to the illusions he is contriving. Peace is not a one way street. It is not the obligation of the United States to prove to the Communists it can be trusted. The obligation runs the other way.

We suggested the other day the numerous positive things that would be required of the Soviet Union to provide evidence that it is not committed to continuing warfare against the human race. When it comes through with these indispensable conditions, then perhaps it will be possible to believe that Russia's present soft talk is something more than the usual Pavlovian tactic of conditioning the responses of the gullible.

On Waging Peace

(The Wall Street Journal)

As President Johnson see its, 'the American people and their Government have set the strengthening of peace as their highest purpose in the new year." This is interpreted as the start of a concerted "peace offensive" in which the U.S. will seek new accords with the Soviet Union.

And as far as words and feelings are concerned, rarely in recent times has a new year opened on so hopeful a note. There is a growing belief, right or wrong, that the major powers are determined to avoid a nuclear confrontation. For this reason it is thought that progress toward actual disarmament might at least be made.

Perhaps; both sides are already making some effort to restrain their military budgets. Yet it is difficult to see how any substantial disarmament could come so long as the cold war's political issues remain unsettled. Those issues, in turn, are inherently stubborn, no matter how agreeable the atmosphere may seem.

From the Soviets' standpoint, it is by no means clear that they can reverse the policies which have led to the division of Berlin, of Germany and of Europe. They are capable of stunning reversals to be sure, but it would seem that their stake in the status quo is too great to permit room for basic change.

From the American point of view, it is equally unclear what new formula might be proposed for Berlin. The U.S. has repeatedly stressed its determination not to abandon West Berlin; any new arrangements it might suggest run the risk of impairing that pledge and giving the Soviets a victory.

That is one kind of danger in a peace offensive. Another is that it might cause further deterioration of a NATO which as it is leaves much to be desired. The Germans in particular are not overly keen on seeking agreements with the Soviets, fearing their own interests might be sacrificed.

Still another danger lies in making the wrong kinds of agreements. More and more talk is heard, for example, of a possible nonaggression agreement between NATO and the Communist grouping known as the Warsaw Pact.

This idea might be harmless, since it would seem to be meaningless. All the same, it is a perversion of the record. NATO was set up not to commit aggression but to defend against it. Such a treaty might also have advantages for the Soviets, in that it could be construed as sealing a permanent division of Europe.

In any case, a nonaggression pact would be deceptive. It would not bring peace any closer because it would not represent the settlement of any fundamental issue.

We happen to believe it possible that the Kremlin does want closer relations with the U.S. Certainly it is under enough internal and external pressure to make that a reasonable theory. Conceivably the pressure is so intense that in due course the Soviets will be ready to make the kinds of agreements that would end the cold war and pave the way for substantial disarmament, though that still seems pretty fanciful.

It is understandable, also, that the President should want to exploit any such possibilities. But what ought to be remembered is that if the Soviets are interested in sound settlements, they will let it be known. It is they who have made the road to peace so difficult, and only they can make it easier.

There are, then, limitations in an American peace offensive. Most important of all, no such course should be undertaken with the idea that any old peace will do. It must be a just peace, as Mr. Johnson said, secured on agreements that are safe for the interests of free men.

If the world is entering a more relaxed period, that is a welcome prospect. It could be a constructive period as well, so long as enthusiasm for peace does not becloud awareness of the Soviet capacity for duplicity.

A Card-Carrying American

A tragic phenomenon of our times is that it takes great courage to be a true American today – and this in a land inspired by God, conceived in liberty and dedicated to justice.

Literally millions of words have been pouring out of Washington recently about the "hate" groups which infest America. In addition to the liberals, leftists, conservatives and rightists, the double domes have created another whipping boy label which anyone, no matter his leanings, can pummel at will. They call it the "grey area group," but fail to define it.

Quiet Americans

The proper definition for people in this group might well be heretofore quiet Americans who believe as Grover Cleveland did that "though the people support the government, the government should not support the people." If this is an accurate description of the grey area, then it is an equally accurate description of true Americans – men and women who prefer to lead their own lives, minding their own business, but who now find it necessary to speak out against big government, against doles and handouts, against communism, against even "a little bit of socialism."

One such American – a man who has the courage to speak out – is Frank Ketcham of Santa Barbara, Calif. who believes, with his dedicated wife, Eleanor, that "freedom is everybody's business." Moreover since the Ketchams retired to their West Coast ranch home from Chicago some 14 years ago, they have been doing something about it.

Frank Ketcham was reared in one of Chicago's poorer areas. But he soon discovered that this is truly a land of opportunity for those who seek it out. He did and he prospered.

He and Eleanor had not been in retirement long when they realized that the opportunity he had grasped was fast disappearing from American life. Now away from the day-to-day press of business affairs, the growing trend toward big government in America was much more easily recognizable. They had found a new avocation – educating Americans to the real meaning of Americanism before it was too late.

Freedom Work

Shunning personal glorification like a plague, Mr and Mrs. Ketcham founded Americans for Freedom, 124 Sheffield Dr. Santa Barbara, for their educational program. Starting with a mimeograph machine, the program caught on with a vigor far beyond the expectations of even the optimistic 70 - year-old Frank Ketcham. Soon he and Eleanor were working around the clock to furnish materials to study groups that began to mushroom over the country. All of this was done – and still is – at his own expense, with the assistance of a comparative handful of loyal friends and neighbors.

How are they accomplishing their goal? Last year alone they mailed more than 1.5 million pieces of printed material, provided tape recordings to literally hundreds of study groups over the nation, gave American flags for automobile antennas, "I Am A Card-Carrying American" stickers for windshields and many other materials – all free. Many radio and television stations use their material and programs regularly. The headquarters has filled as many as 200 requests in one day.

Debt Repaid

"This country has been good to Eleanor and me," he emphasizes. "Starting from nothing, we have prospered under the American system. Eleanor and I feel that the least we can do is to pour back into the free enterprise system some of the largess which it has given us and millions of other Americans."

Frank and Eleanor Ketcham are truly "card-carrying Americans." There can be millions more like them. To begin, you can be on their mailing list to receive material to help you work in the cause of freedom. All it takes to start is a letter to Americans For Freedom.

What are the credentials as a crusader for civil rights and liberties of Hungary, where the present administration is only in power because Soviet tanks in 1956 rolled roughshod over the freedom movement of the Hungarian people? Or Algeria, where a revolutionary government came into power by murder and terror, stamped out all semblance of legal opposition, and becomes more and more involved in internal and external strife? Or — heaven save the mark — Haiti, by all odds the worst governed and physically most miserable country in Latin America, despite the fact (or because of the fact?) that there has been no "imperialist" foreign rule there since the French settlers were massacred and driven out at the end of the eighteenth century?

The reek of hypocrisy from the council halls of the UN becomes even stronger if one considers the many challenges to elementary justice and humanity to which that organization has remained completely indifferent. For example, has there ever been a UN resolution on the infamous Berlin Wall, which divided thousands of families which has been a scene of death for scores of fugitives from communist tyranny? Did the UN ever take up the moral issues posed by communist slave labor camps in the Soviet Union and in China or by the forcible incorporation into the Soviet Union of Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, and other substantial areas of Eastern Europe? It did not.

Yet, quite recently, the United States associated itself with a nearly unanimous UN vote attacking apartheid and demanding the release of persons accused of subversions — a case before a South African court. The United States representatives in the UN may be piling up serious retribution by thus participating in resolutions which clearly violate the UN Charter and set a precedent for UN intervention in the internal concerns of member states.

Suppose, for example, that a majority in the UN should pass a resolution censuring the state of race relations in the United States and demanding that persons who had been arrested and placed on trial in connection with some outbreak of racial violence should be freed. Or, take another quite conceivable possibility. Suppose a leftwing Castroite government should take control of Panama and appeal to the UN for the transfer of the Panama Canal to Panamanian sovereignty. In either case, we should be more or less hoist by our own petard, by our unwillingness to take a firm principled stand against exploiting UN machinery for crusades desired by some of its less responsible members.

Obstacle To Peace

There should be more critical examination of the widespread complacent belief that, if the UN cannot do much good, it can also do little harm. On five counts the United Nations has been a handicap and an obstacle to the conduct of a foreign policy conceived in the interest of the American people.

First, the very nature of the UN setup has almost forced the United States to express judgments and take sides on issues where silence would have been the preferable course.

Second, the United States in the UN is in a minority of "haves" surrounded by an envious majority of "have nots." The Economic and Social Council has been a prolific hatching ground of schemes designed, in one way or another, to transfer American wealth to "underprivileged" nations. On one occasion the United States was in a minority of one in standing for the principle that private property should not be confiscated without adequate compensation.

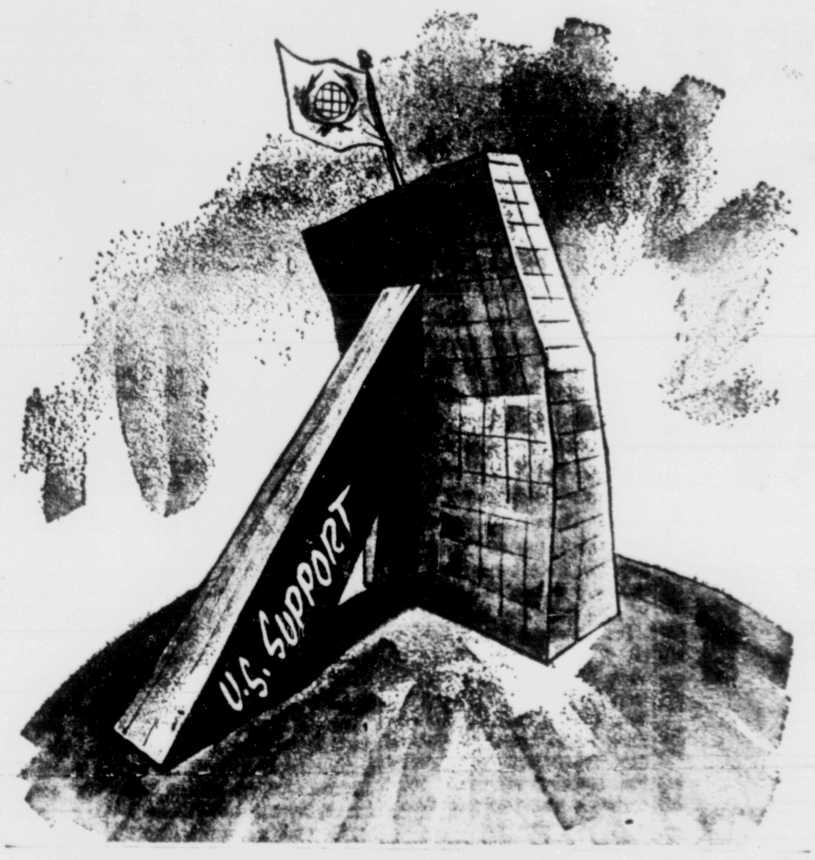
Third, there is a basic difference between the UN view that basic human liberties, such as freedom of religion, speech, and press, are gifts from governments and the traditional American view that such liberties are natural rights of men under God which no government may lawfully withhold. The distinction is important.

Fourth, the UN arouses hopes that cannot be realized, creates an illusion of security, and provides an excuse for dodging or postponing hard but necessary independent decisions in foreign policy.

Fifth, the very expression, United Nations, is a misnomer, because of the deep divisions of ideology and national interest by which the world is divided. To expect the United Nations given these differences and given its archaic and unrealistic Charter, to point a clear united lead in time of crisis is to expect swift united action from a Tower of Babel.

It probably is not politically feasible to advocate United States dissociation from the United Nations. Too many myths have been successfully implanted in the public mind. But at the very least, the United States government could and should refuse to lend American prestige to votes against friendly governments taken at the urging of the members of the swarm of the new Lilliput states which possess neither political and economic power nor the responsibility such power calls for.

For All To See



The 'Peace Offensive'

(Chicago Tribune)

President Johnson has committed himself to waging "an unrelenting peace offense." He hopes not only to ease the tensions of the cold war but to get on an agreeable footing with Moscow.

Hardly had Mr. Johnson voiced his hopes than Premier Khrushchev unloaded a 20-page note on him formulating a plan to avoid the use of force in settling territorial disputes. As usual with these soviet schemes, the note constituted an invitation for the President to stick his hand into a barrel of fishhooks.

The Khrushchev formula would freeze all existing borders as now drawn. The first effect would be to guarantee the frontiers of the present soviet empire, which has engulfed East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia. Supposedly Castro's Cuba would be covered by the same insurance, as well as all other communist countries, such as Red China, North Viet Nam, Yugoslavia, and Albania.

The soviet partition of Berlin presumably would be maintained, though the argument might be expected from Moscow that, as all of Berlin lies within the boundaries of communist East Germany, free Berlin should be absorbed into the soviet satellite and the western protecting garrisons should take their departure.

Apparently, too, the Red Chinese mainland would be rendered immune from any attempted liberation by the Nationalist Chinese of Formosa, if, indeed, the argument were not advanced that Formosa, as a territory once possessed by Peking, should be handed over to the Communists.

Another hooker is that the proposed soviet agreement would leave the way open for communist revolutionary overthrow of noncommunist governments, such as has been undertaken in South Viet Nam and may be in prospect for various Latin American countries. Borders are not involved in internal uprisings which might be fomented by communist subversion. Khrushchev has already stated that the Soviet Union regards such operations as "just wars of liberation," entitled to soviet encouragement and support.

If the United States and its allies fall for these tricky dispositions, then, Khrushchev says, they might move on toward total disarmament.

As we have remarked from time to time, we are leery of the idea that you can reclaim the heart of a footpad by sitting down with him and exchanging toasts after he has repeatedly cracked you over the head and tried to extract your wallet. We are equally skeptical of the idea of a disarmed United States setting out like Little Red Ridinghood through a forest infested by wolves, but the state department for some time has been promoting the grand design of stripping the country of its defenses and turning the world police power over to the United Nations.

Like all politicians, Mr. Johnson is aware of the attraction of the rhetoric of peace on the voters. The danger is that he will fall prey to the illusions he is contriving. Peace is not a one way street. It is not the obligation of the United States to prove to the Communists it can be trusted. The obligation runs the other way.

We suggested the other day the numerous positive things that would be required of the Soviet Union to provide evidence that it is not committed to continuing warfare against the human race. When it comes through with these indispensable conditions, then perhaps it will be possible to believe that Russia's present soft talk is something more than the usual Pavlovian tactic of conditioning the responses of the gullible.

On Waging Peace

(The Wall Street Journal)

As President Johnson see its, 'the American people and their Government have set the strengthening of peace as their highest purpose in the new year." This is interpreted as the start of a concerted "peace offensive" in which the U.S. will seek new accords with the Soviet Union.

And as far as words and feelings are concerned, rarely in recent times has a new year opened on so hopeful a note. There is a growing belief, right or wrong, that the major powers are determined to avoid a nuclear confrontation. For this reason it is thought that progress toward actual disarmament might at least be made.

Perhaps; both sides are already making some effort to restrain their military budgets. Yet it is difficult to see how any substantial disarmament could come so long as the cold war's political issues remain unsettled. Those issues, in turn, are inherently stubborn, no matter how agreeable the atmosphere may seem.

From the Soviets' standpoint, it is by no means clear that they can reverse the policies which have led to the division of Berlin, of Germany and of Europe. They are capable of stunning reversals to be sure; but it would seem that their stake in the status quo is too great to permit room for basic change.

From the American point of view, it is equally unclear what new formula might be proposed for Berlin. The U.S. has repeatedly stressed its determination not to abandon West Berlin; any new arrangements it might suggest run the risk of impairing that pledge and giving the Soviets a victory.

That is one kind of danger in a peace offensive. Another is that it might cause further deterioration of a NATO which as it is leaves much to be desired. The Germans in particular are not overly keen on seeking agreements with the Soviets, fearing their own interests might be sacrificed.

Still another danger lies in making the wrong kinds of agreements. More and more talk is heard, for example, of a possible nonaggression agreement between NATO and the Communist grouping known as the Warsaw Pact.

This idea might be harmless, since it would seem to be meaningless. All the same, it is a perversion of the record; NATO was set up not to commit aggression but to defend against it. Such a treaty might also have advantages for the Soviets, in that it could be construed as sealing a permanent division of Europe.

In any case, a nonaggression pact would be deceptive. It would not bring peace any closer because it would not represent the settlement of any fundamental issue.

We happen to believe it possible that the Kremlin does want closer relations with the U.S. Certainly it is under enough internal and external pressure to make that a reasonable theory. Conceivably the pressure is so intense that in due course the Soviets will be ready to make the kinds of agreements that would end the cold war and pave the way for substantial disarmament, though that still seems pretty fanciful.

It is understandable, also, that the President should want to exploit any such possibilities. But what ought to be remembered is that if the Soviets are interested in sound settlements, they will let it be known. It is they who have made the road to peace so difficult, and only they can make it easier.

There are, then, limitations in an American peace offensive. Most important of all, no such course should be undertaken with the idea that any old peace will do. It must be a just peace, as Mr. Johnson said, secured on agreements that are safe for the interests of free men.

If the world is entering a more relaxed period, that is a welcome prospect. It could be a constructive period as well, so long as enthusiasm for peace does not becloud awareness of the Soviet capacity for duplicity.

The American Way

A Card-Carrying American

A tragic phenomenon of our times is that it takes great courage to be a true American today — and this in a land inspired by God, conceived in liberty and dedicated to justice.

Literally millions of words have been pouring out of Washington recently about the "hate" groups which infest America. In addition to the liberals, leftits, conservatives and rightists, the double domes have created another whipping boy label which anyone, no matter his leanings, can pummel at will. They call it the "grey area group," but fail to define it.

Quiet Americans

The proper definition for people in this group might well be heretofore quiet Americans who believe as Grover Cleveland did that "though the people support the government, the government should not support the people." If this is an accurate description of the grey area, then it is an equally accurate description of true Americans — men and women who prefer to lead their own lives, minding their own business, but who now find it necessary to speak out against big government, against doles and handouts, against communism, against even "a little bit of socialism."

One such American — a man who has the courage to speak out — is Frank Ketcham of Santa Barbara, Calif. who believes, with his dedicated wife, Eleanor, that "freedom is everybody's business." Moreover since the Ketchams retired to their West Coast ranch home from Chicago some 14 years ago, they have been doing something about it.

Frank Ketcham was reared in one of Chicago's poorer areas. But he soon discovered that this is truly a land of opportunity for those who seek it out. He did and he prospered.

He and Eleanor had not been in retirement long when they realized that the opportunity he had grasped was fast disappearing from American life. Now away from the day-to-day press of business affairs, the growing trend toward big government in America was much more easily recognizable. They had found a new avocation — educating Americans to the real meaning of Americanism before it was too late.

Freedom Work

Shunning personal glorification like a plague, Mr. and Mrs. Ketcham founded Americans for Freedom, 124 Sheffield Dr. Santa Barbara, for their educational program. Starting with a mimeograph machine, the program caught on with a vigor far beyond the expectations of even the optimistic 70 - year-old Frank Ketcham. Soon he and Eleanor were working around the clock to furnish materials to study groups that began to mushroom over the country. All of this was done — and still is — at his own expense, with the assistance of a comparative handful of loyal friends and neighbors.

How are they accomplishing their goal? Last year alone they mailed more than 1.5 million pieces of printed material, provided tape recordings to literally hundreds of study groups over the nation, gave American flags for automobile antennas, "I Am A Card-Carrying American" stickers for windshields and many other materials — all free. Many radio and television stations use their material and programs regularly. The headquarters has filled as many as 200 requests in one day.

Debt Repaid

"This country has been good to Eleanor and me," he emphasizes. "Starting from nothing, we have prospered under the American system. Eleanor and I feel that the least we can do is to pour back into the free enterprise system some of the largess which it has given us and millions of other Americans."

Frank and Eleanor Ketcham are truly "card-carrying Americans." There can be millions more like them. To begin, you can be on their mailing list to receive material to help you work in the cause of freedom. All it takes to start is a letter to Americans For Freedom.

FALL OF ROMAN EMPIRE WORTH ITS 16 MILLION COST

HOLLYWOOD — Samuel Bronston may have gone broke making "The Fall of the Roman Empire" but every penny of the 16 million dollars he poured into the picture is right up there on the screen, which is more than you can say of "Cleopatra." There have never been better battle scenes. The beauty, pageantry, costumes and settings are superb, and the chariot race tops "Ben Hur's."

Performances are billiant — all of them: (Alec Guinness, Steve Boyd, Christopher Plummer, James Mason, Mel Ferrer, John Ireland, and it's the best thing Sophia Loren has done to date. She projects more emotion just standing still than most actresses with pages of dialog.

Bronston has engaged Louis Nizer to help straighten out his financial affairs. "Roman Empire" will not be the fall of Producer Bronston. This beautiful, honest, superbly done film will make millions. It sends you out of the theater with a shattering closing line: "This was the beginning of the fall of the Roman Empire. A great civilization is not conquered from without until it has destroyed itself within."

Walter Matthau is here doing Profiles of Courage segment for TV about a sensational murder trial and lynching in the state of Georgia and the courage exhibited by Gov. John M. Slaton. It's such a horrifying tale (get it and read it) that the TV producers chickened out and changed it. The subject may be courage but their object is to get the show on the air.

Crosby's annual golf tournment has passed the million and a half mark in donations to benefit youth. A $100,000 student tutition loan fund has been created for 15 colleges of all faiths. The event has improved dozens of playgrounds and youth centers from Hollywood to Vancouver, B.C. Also aided the fight against polio and helped spastic children. Now the gold pros are itching to take over and collect the TV money for the tourney.

Let's give three cheers for Rose Kennedy, the greatest of them all. She took time out to fly to Paris for the dedication of a street named for her son, John Fitzgerald.

Elke Sommer is the first of eight femme stars set for 'Chinese Finale" which John Ford directs for Metro this fall. It's about a group of women of different nationalities trapped on the Chinese-Mongolian border. Bernard Smith, who turned out "How the West Was Won," will produce. He was a former story editor for a publishing firm, so he knows his stuff.

My pal George Peppard is down in the dumps. He lost his mother, broke up with his girl, Elizabeth Ashley, is suing Metro for his release, and caught the flu. He wouldn't discuss his fight with Ashley except to say it's finished — end of paragraph and chapter. His quarrel with Metro is over their refusal to let him take some lucratibe outside offers. George was willing to turn over his salary and percentage to the studio, but they said no. He'll sweat out the leg battle doing a play on Broadway.

Don't make any plans for July 4. The Beatles' first picture will be rushed into release by then, and Walter Shenson has an option for another. But the big news is that the Beatles will joine the kings and queens in Mme. Tussaud's wax museum in London.

Peter Ustinov arrived yesterday from Switzerland. Couldn't resist an offer to play in "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home." He suits the part of King Fawz to a "T" — a very funny man. They've also signed Richard Crenna, who was with Eve Arden on TV so long, to play Goldfarb. A man who never does anything right? That's the part Shirley MacLaine should play.

Peter Glenville, here for the premiere of "Becket" which he directed on stage and screen, wants a six-week breather before deciding on his next. He would like to find something as interesting and absorbing as "Becket," and also work with Peter O'Toole again. He tells me Larry Oliver's National Theater has two hits — "Recruiting Officer" and "Hobson's Choice."

Auto Workers Seek Age-Plan For Retirement

By A. F. MAHAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A determined rank-and-file campaign to link retirement to years of service, regardless of age, was under way here as the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers Union opened its annual convention.

Advocates of a "25-30 & 60 now" plan claimed at a gathering of more than 300 delegates Thursday night they have support of locals with more than 600,000 of the UAW's 1,125,000 members.

The plan calls for the union to demand retirement after 25 years' service at one-half pay. After 30 years a worker would be eligible for two-thirds pay. At age 60, regardless of service, a worker would be entitled to a pension of $5.60 monthly for each year of service.

The retirement age in the auto industry is 65 years and the pension rate is $2.80 monthly for each year of service.

Three-year contracts with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire Aug. 31, and negotiations will open about July 1. The convention here will set the union's goals.

Delegates at Thursday night's meeting voted to seek signatures to petitions calling for the resolutions committee to propose "earlier retirement, based on service, wherever feasible."

Unless this is done Jack Wagner, president of a 15,000 member Buick local at Flint, Mich., said, "25-30 & 60 now" support- ers would force a floor vote on the issue.

Walter P. Reuther, union president, has listed earlier retirement as a goal which will be sought this year, but he stopped short of endorsing the "25-30 & 60 now" plan.

Lawyer Says He Is Innocent in Tax Case

DENVER (AP)— An innocent plea was entered in U.S. District Court Friday by John J. Gibbons, 50, criminal lawyer charged with six instances of income tax evasion and perjury.

Gibbons askde an immediate trial but a Justice Department lawyer said he would not be ready to open the case until sometime in June.

Gibbons asked an immediate several recent sensational criminal cases, faces a maximum of 30 years and $30,000 in fines if convicted on the three tax evasion charges and another nine years and $15,000 on the perjury charges.

A Federal Grand Jury accused Gibbons of evading approximately $9,000 in taxes on income earned jointly by himself and his wife between 1957 and 1960.

FALL OF ROMAN EMPIRE WORTH ITS 16 MILLION COST

HOLLYWOOD — Samuel Bronston may have gone broke making "The Fall of the Roman Empire," but every penny of the 16 million dollars he poured into the picture is right up there on the screen, which is more than you can say of "Cleopatra." There have never been better battle scenes. The beauty, pageantry, costumes and settings are superb, and the chariot race tops "Ben Hur's."

Performances are brilliant — all of them: (Alec Guinness, Steve Boyd, Christopher Plummer, James Mason, Mel Ferrer, John Ireland, and it's the best thing Sophia Loren has done to date. She projects more emotion just standing still than most actresses with pages of dialog.

Bronston has engaged Louis Nizer to help straighten out his financial affairs. "Roman Empire" will not be the fall of Producer Bronston. This beautiful, honest, superbly done film will make millions. It sends you out of the theater with a shattering closing line: "This was the beginning of the fall of the Roman Empire. A great civilization is not conquered from without until it has destroyed itself within."

Walter Matthau is here doing Profiles of Courage segment for TV about a sensational murder trial and lynching in the state of Georgia and the courage exhibited by Gov. John M. Slaton. It's such a horrifying tale (get it and read it) that the TV producers chickened out and changed it. The subject may be courage but their object is to get the show on the air.

Crosby's annual golf tournament has passed the million and a half mark in donations to benefit youth. A $100,000 student tutition loan fund has been created for 15 colleges of all faiths. The event has improved dozens of playgrounds and youth centers from Hollywood to Vancouver, B.C. Also aided the fight against polio and helped spastic children. Now the gold pros are itching to take over and collect the TV money for the tourney.

Let's give three cheers for Rose Kennedy, the greatest of them all. She took time out to fly to Paris for the dedication of a street named for her son, John Fitzgerald.

Elke Sommer is the first of eight femme stars set for 'Chinese Finale" which John Ford directs for Metro this fall. It's about a group of women of different nationalities trapped on the Chinese-Mongolian border. Bernard Smith, who turned out "How the West Was Won," will produce. He was a former story editor for a publishing firm, so he knows his stuff.

My pal George Peppard is down in the dumps. He lost his mother, broke up with his girl, Elizabeth Ashley, is suing Metro for his release, and caught the flu. He wouldn't discuss his fight with Ashley except to say it's finished — end of paragraph and chapter. His quarrel with Metro is over their refusal to let him take some lucratibe outside offers. George was willing to turn over his salary and percentage to the studio, but they said no. He'll sweat out the leg battle doing a play on Broadway.

Don't make any plans for July 4. The Beatles' first picture will be rushed into release by then, and Walter Shenson has an option for another. But the big news is that the Beatles will joine the kings and queens in Mme. Tussaud's wax museum in London.

Peter Ustinov arrived yesterday from Switzerland. Couldn't resist an offer to play in "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home." He suits the part of King Fawz to a "T" — a very funny man. They've also signed Richard Crenna, who was with Eve Arden on TV so long, to play Goldfarb. A man who never does anything right? That's the part Shirley MacLaine should play.

Peter Glenville, here for the premiere of "Becket" which he directed on stage and screen, wants a six-week breather before deciding on his next. He would like to find something as interesting and absorbing as "Becket," and also work with Peter O'Toole again. He tells me Larry Oliver's National Theater has two hits — "Recruiting Officer" and "Hobson's Choice."

Auto Workers Seek Age-Plan For Retirement

By A. F. MAHAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A determined rank-and-file campaign to link retirement to years of service, regardless of age, was under way here as the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers Union opened its annual convention.

Advocates of a "25-30 & 60 now" plan claimed at a gathering of more than 300 delegates Thursday night they have support of locals with more than 600,000 of the UAW's 1,125,000 members.

The plan calls for the union to demand retirement after 25 years' service at one-half pay. After 30 years a worker would be eligible for two-thirds pay. At age 60, regardless of service, a worker would be entitled to a pension of $5.60 monthly for each year of service.

The retirement age in the auto industry is 65 years and the pension rate is $2.80 monthly for each yea. of service.

Three-year contracts with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire Aug. 31, and negotiations will open about July 1. The convention here will set the union's goals.

Delegates at Thursday night's meeting voted to seek signatures to petitions calling for the resolutions committee to propose "earlier retirement, based on service, wherever feasible."

Unless this is done Jack Wagner, president of a 15,000 member Buick local at Flint, Mich., said, "25-30 & 60 now" supporters would force a floor vote on the issue.

Walter P. Reuther, union president, has listed earlier retirement as a goal which will be sought this year, but he stopped short of endorsing the "25-30 & 60 now" plan.

Lawyer Says He Is Innocent in Tax Case

DENVER (AP)— An innocent plea was entered in U.S. District Court Friday by John J. Gibbons, 50, criminal lawyer charged with six instances of income tax evasion and perjury.

Gibbons askde an immediate trial but a Justice Department lawyer said he would not be ready to open the case until sometime in June.

Gibbons asked an immediate several recent sensational criminal cases, faces a maximum of 30 years and $30,000 in fines if convicted on the three tax evasion charges and another nine years and $15,000 on the perjury charges.

A Federal Grand Jury accused Gibbons of evading approximately $9,000 in taxes on income earned jointly by himself and his wife between 1957 and 1960.

Not Much Change Reported in Smoking Habits

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How goes it with the American smoker 10 weeks after the Surgeon General's report?

If you judged from a cross-section of Hollywood smokers, not much change has been wrought. To a number of movie personalities I put the question: How are you coming along with your anti-smoking resolutions, if any?

Here are their replies:

David Janssen: "I quit smoking once and gained 25 pounds. I don't know what caused it, a change of metabolism or increase of appetite. Anyway, I don't want to risk that again."

Anne Bancroft: "I find I'm smoking more than ever. I understand the same thing happened to people in England after they were warned about smoking; it just made them more nervous and eager to smoke."

Tony Randall: "Smoking is not a problem with me. I gave it up after I got out of the Army. My problem is getting my wife to quit. I have told her she can smoke only in the bathroom at home. So now she goes to the bathroom much more frequently than a normal human would go. One day she got mad at me and said, 'I'm going to smoke in your bathroom!'"

Donald O'Connor: "I was going to quit, but then I had a television show to do. I was afraid if I gave up smoking it might throw me off my timing. I'll quit next Tuesday."

Anne Baxter: "I haven't quit, and I know I've got to. I realize I don't smoke a cigarette, it smokes me."

Sean Connery: "I gave up cigarettes some time ago. I've been smoking five or six cigars a day and inhaling. I decided to give them up, not because of the report but because I wasn't feeling up to par. You know somethings. I don't feel any better."

Rock Hudson: "I can't quit smoking when I'm working. Too nervous. But I have cut down to four or five a day when I'm not working." Quit entirely? "I tried it for a month one time and gained 20 pounds."

MANCHURIA

Manchuria, with an area of 300,000 square miles, represents the most important geographical region of China. Industrially, it is the most advanced and produces about one-half of the country's steel, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Television Writer Dies in Air Crash

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) —Nancy Spain, 46, writer and television personality, was among five persons killed today in an air crash half a mile from Aintree race course, scene of the Grand National Steeplechase this afternoon.

Miss Spain was on her way to the course to cover the horse race on an assignment for News of the World, a Sunday newspaper.

Tunnel Traffic Rolls

AOSTA, Italy (UPI)—Eight hundred and ten vehicles from the Italian side and 590 from the Swiss side went through the Grand St. Bernard Tunnel on the first day it was open to traffic last week.

A total of 25,784 books were published in the United States last year, according to Publishers' Weekly. Of this total, 19,057 were new books.

Salinger Brings Complications To California

By BILL BOYARSKY

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— Pierre Salinger's expected entrance into California's Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate threw a big new obstacle Thursday in the path of the two main contenders.

A possible state election law barrier still remained for Salinger though it was understood he had been advised he is eligible to run for the Senate.

Salinger's announcement that he was quitting as President Johnson's press secretary—amid reports he would run for the Senate—brought the prediction from a powerful Democrat, California Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, that "Pierre is going to get a good deal of support."

And it provoked little enthusiasm from camps of the two major candidates, incumbent Clair Engle, who is recovering from brain surgery, and State Controller Alan Cranston.

"I welcome him into the race," said Cranston. "It's an open primary. Anyone who wishes to enter it is entitled to."

Engle's statewide chairman, Assemblyman Tom Carrell, D-San Fernando, told The Associated Press, "I think it's sort of late for a fellow such as him to get into the race."

Carrell apparently referred to the difficulty of mounting a campaign in the big state of California.

But it was uncertain whether the state law dealing with candidates' qualification would prevent Salinger, now a Virginia resident, from seeking the Senate seat from his home state. Salinger is a former San Francisco newspaper reporter.

State officials could not provide an immediate answer.

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who had thrown his support to Cranston after he said Engle was too ill to run, had no immediate comment.

Engle who has held his Senate seat since 1958, faced no primary opposition until he became ill last August.

He and his supporters insist he's well enough to run, but Engle said he will not return to California before the June 2 primary.

Cranston won the endorsement of the California Democratic Council, the 70,000-member volunteer are of the party, over Engle and Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Los Angeles.

Engineering Center Fund Given Approval

BOULDER (UPI) — The National Foundation has approved a $1.3 million grant for the University of Colorado to help it build its new engineering center.

CU President Dr. Joseph R. Smiley said the grant was the largest ever made to the university by the foundation.

Tony Randall: "Smoking is not a problem with me. I gave it up after I got out of the Army. My problem is getting my wife to quit. I have told her she can smoke only in the bathroom at home. So now she goes to the bathroom much more frequently than a normal human would go. One day she got mad at me and said, 'I'm going to smoke in your bathroom!' "

Donald O'Connor: "I was going to quit, but then I had a television show to do. I was afraid if I gave up smoking it might throw me off my timing. I'll quit next Tuesday."

Anne Baxter: "I haven't quit, and I know I've got to. I realize I don't smoke a cigarette; it smokes me."

Sean Connery: "I gave up cigarettes some time ago. I've been smoking five or six cigars a day and inhaling. I decided to give them up, not because of the report but because I wasn't feeling up to par. You know something? I don't feel any better."

Rock Hudson: "I can't quit smoking when I'm working. Too nervous. But I have cut down to four or five a day when I'm not working." Quit entirely? "I tried it for a month one time and gained 20 pounds."

Salinger Brings Complications To California

By BILL BOYARSKY

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Pierre Salinger's expected entrance into California's Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate threw a big new obstacle Thursday in the path of the two main contenders.

A possible state election law barrier still remained for Salinger though it was understood he had been advised he is eligible to run for the Senate.

Salinger's announcement that he was quitting as President Johnson's press secretary—amid reports he would run for the Senate—brought the prediction from a powerful Democrat, California Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, that "Pierre is going to get a good deal of support."

And it provoked little enthusiasm from camps of the two major candidates, incumbent Clair Engle, who is recovering from brain surgery, and State Controller Alan Cranston.

"I welcome him into the race," said Cranston. "It's an open primary. Anyone who wishes to enter it is entitled to"

Engle's statewide chairman, Assemblyman Tom Carrell, D-San Fernando, told The Associated Press, "I think it's sort of late for a fellow such as him to get into the race."

But it was uncertain whether the state law dealing with candidates' qualification would prevent Salinger, now a Virginia resident, from seeking the Senate seat from his home state. Salinger is a former San Francisco newspaper reporter.

State officials could not provide an immediate answer.

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who had thrown his support to Cranston after he said Engle was too ill to run, had no immediate comment.

Engle who has held his Senate seat since 1958, faced no primary opposition until he became ill last August.

He and his supporters insist he's well enough to run, but Engle said he will not return to California before the June 2 primary.

Cranston won the endorsement of the California Democratic Council, the 70,000-member volunteer are of the party, over Engle and Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Los Angeles.

Engineering Center Fund Given Approval

BOULDER (UPI) — The National Foundation has approved a $1.3 million grant for the University of Colorado to help it build its new engineering center.

CU President Dr. Joseph R. Smiley said the grant was the largest ever made to the university by the foundation.

Manchuria, with an area of 300,000 square miles, represents the most important geographical region of China. Industrially, it is the most advanced and produces about one-half of the country's steel, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Television Writer Dies in Air Crash

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) —Nancy Spain, 46, writer and television personality, was among five persons killed today in an air crash half a mile from Aintree race course, scene of the Grand National Steeplechase this afternoon.

Miss Spain was on her way to the course to cover the horse race on an assignment for News of the World, a Sunday newspaper.

Tunnel Traffic Rolls

AOSTA, Italy (UPI)—Eight hundred and ten vehicles from the Italian side and 590 from the Swiss side went through the Grand St. Bernard Tunnel on the first day it was open to traffic last week.

A total of 25,784 books were published in the United States last year, according to Publishers' Weekly. Of this total, 19,057 were new books.

JD Classes At Carson Complete Study

The Ft. Carson Staff Judge Advocate's citizenship class has completed six weeks of classes in American history and government and basic English. The series began Feb. 7 and runs until May 14.

There are presently 34 students attending the course. They represent Germany, Korea, Japan, England, Austria, Switzerland, Italy and Panama.

The course is designed to help naturalization applicants prepare themselves for citizenship requirements and to meet the naturalization tests.

Cancer Society Awards $15,000 To CSC Research

For the second consecutive year, the American Cancer Society has awarded a $15,000 grant to Colorado State University to support basic cancer research. Funds for the grant represent a portion of contributions made by Coloradoans to the American Cancer Society.

A CSU committee headed by Dr. M. S. Hopwood will allocate the money to encourage further cancer research at the Fort Collins institution.

Serving with Dr. Hopwood on the committee are representatives of the departments of physiology, pathology and microbiology in the College of Veterinary Medicine; the departments of chemistry, zoology, botany and plant pathology, as well as the dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine and the research coordinator.

The committee allocated last year's grant to research in the areas of virology, endocrinology, veterinary medicine, botany and fishery science.

A virologist is investigating a virus suspected of causing papilloma, a type of cancer in cattle. An endocrinologist has placed mice on a high-fat diet to study its effect on the estrogen stimulation of the mouse uterus.

A type of tumor in horses, equine parcoid, is under study in veterinary medicine, to discover whether it is transmissible from one animal to another.

Flowers, too, are subject to tumors. A botanist is investigating the cause of variations in collus (tumor) production in the shoot tips of carnations.

In fishery science, an antibiotic is used to trace the regenerative process in the replacement of bones. The cancer implication lies in the abnormal growth of cells during the replacement process, which is particularly rapid in fish.

So far this year, two additional cancer studies have been granted funds by the CSU committee. A physiologist is irradiating rats in a study of bone growth as it is affected by X-ray, and a chemist is investigating the effects of steriods on the growth of cockerel combs.

The total CSU research program involves numerous studies with both human and animal health implications. Also in progress are many investigations in such subjects as genetic studies of small grains, disease resistance in plants, livestock feeding trials, insect control, hormones and farm animals, plant growth substances and use of herbicides.

Tusks of frozen mammoths found in Siberia are so well preserved that they still can be used industrially.

Constructors To Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Executive Board of the Colorado Springs Building and Construction Trades Housing Inc., was held on Monday March 16th.

The following Officers and Committees were elected to serve for the ensuing year. President, Ed R. Nelson; 1st Vice President, Anthony Zaefereo; 2nd Vice President, Alva Nichols; Secretary, Don M. Wise; Treasurer, M. D. Shuck, Sr.; Chairman of Executive Committee, Robert Finley; Other Executive committee members elected were Theodore Erickson and Donald LaMora.

The building manager reported 100 per cent occupancy during the second year of operation of the 120 unit building for the aged located at 417 E. Kiowa St.

COLDS MAY INVOLVE THE MIDDLE EAR

Infections of the middle ear (otitis media) usually follow an upper respiratory infection such as sore throat, cold, or the flu, or acontagious disease such as measles or scarlet fever. The connecting link is the eustachian tube, which leads from the back of the throat to the middle ear on each side.

The passage way may prove to be a hazard if a person with a cold blows the nose with vigor. In this way, infected secretions may be forced into the hearing apparatus. This complication may be avoided by using the handkerchief more gently and by keeping the mouth open while blowing. This equalizes pressure so the material is not driven into the ears and sinuses.

Otitis media also may follow swimming, especially when diving or submerging. Water enters the nose under pressure and finds its way into the ears via the eustachian tubes.

The middle ear is the small space just behind the drum. Pus forms when bacteria enter and pressure mounts when it cannot escape. The eustachian tube on the affected side is blocked by this time because of swelling of the tissues. The victim develops severe, deep, throbbing pain and the temperature rises as high as 104 degrees F. Babies often cry and hold or rub the involved ear. Older children and adults complain not only of pain but dizziness, nausea, and vomiting.

The eardrum perforates when pressure in the ear becomes great enough. A mixture of blood and pus escapes, which relieves tension and pain. The physician usually opens the drum when it is fiery red and bulging. This brings instant relief and the small incision he makes heals more rapidly than when the drum ruptures spontaneously.

An antibiotic is given as soon as drainage begins. Clean cotton is kept in the outer ear to prevent the discharge from irritating the skin of the ear lobe, face and neck. The medication is continued until drainage stops, the canal is dry, the eardrum looks normal, and hearing returns.

Puffy Tissues

H J writes: What causes swollen ankles in the evening and swollen eyelids in the morning in a 60-year-old woman?

Reply

If the leg swelling represents waterlogged tissues, heart or kidney disease may be responsible. But too much salt in the diet, overindulgence in alcohol, or poor venous circulation may do the same. Swollen eyelids on awakening may or may not be related to puffy ankles.

Oldster's Incontinence

J. K. writes: My brother has occasional bedwetting episodes. Is there any medicine to help him? He is 82.

Reply

Proably not, unless he has an infected bladder or a prostate disorder that could be improved or cured. Incontinence at this age may stem from weakness or paralysis of the valve entrance to the bladder.

She Gets Liquids

D. F. writes: A child of 3 refuses to drink water. Won't this affect her kidneys?

Reply

No. Disregard her rebellion for the time being. She gets all the fluid she needs from milk, soups, and carbonated beverages. Some foods also contain considerable water. Thirst dictates the need for liquids, including water.

Swallowed Gum

Mrs. G. S. writes: What harm is done to a child of 2 who swallows a stick of chewing gum?

Reply

None, provided we limit it to "a stick."

Health Service Course Slated For Broadmoor

Roy L. Cleere, M.D. M.P.H., Director, Colorado State Health Department today announced that the "Colorado Health Mobilization Training Course: Health Services in Emergencies" will be conducted at the Broadmoor Hotel April 1-3, 1964.

Dr. Cleere said, "Medical professionals and community leaders have asked us for some time for instructions advising them what they can do in disaster emergencies. This training course is the answer to these requests.

The course has been designed to acquaint key personnel of state and local governments, the medical and allied professions, and others interested in emergency health services with their responsibilities during an emergency.

Utilizing the information gained at this course," Cleere explained: "it is hoped these people will assume a position of responsible leadership in developing emergency health services in their communities."

Subjects covered in the three-day course will be: health services in emergencies, medical social responsibilities, human behavior in disasters, epidemics in the disaster environment, biological and chemical warfare agents, medical effects of nuclear weapons, casualty management and expanded function training, state emergency health and medical services responsibilities, local medical disaster planning, and civil defense emergency hospital demonstration and exercise.

The Colorado State Health Department, the Colorado Medical Society, and the Colorado Civil Defense Agency are sponsoring the training course with the Cooperation of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Dr. Cleere said over 5,000 invitations have been extended to Federal, state, county and city public officials, local civil defense directors, dentists, health officers, engineers, hospital administrators, nurses, pharmacists, physicians, podiatrists, sanitarians, veterinarians, and others.

Young Morocco Students Foiled In Moscow Plot

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet police hauled protesting Moroccan students out of Morocco's Embassy in Moscow last week after pleading failed to budge them.

The students, about 50 strong, were taken back to their dormitories in buses about eight hours short of their goal of a 24-hour sit-in.

The students occupied the embassy at 10 a.m. Thursday to protest against death sentences ordered in Rabat for 11 persons convicted of plotting to assassinate Morocco's King Hassan II.

There was no violence as the demonstrators streamed into the embassy offices, seated themselves on the floor with arms linked and announced they would resist any attempt to oust them.

Soviet authorities did not intervene at first, since by diplomatic tradition the embassy of a country is its own soil.

There the students sat as the hours passed, refusing to eat, singing Arabic songs occasionally and posing for news photographers.

They turned a deaf ear to harried junior embassy officers who urged them to leave. The ambassador was out of town.

Shortly after dark, three officials of the Soviet ministry of education arrived and appealed to the demonstrators to leave. The students refused. The Soviets threatened further measures.

A student leader said the Soviet officials told them the Moroccan government had asked the Soviet ambassador in Rabat to have something done.

Three buses loaded with police wheeled up outside the embassy about 1:30 a.m. and cordoned off nearby streets. When several ranking officers had no better luck with the students than the others, police moved in and carried the Moroccans away.

An embassy spokesman said they went voluntarily. One student said they put up some physical resistance.

The demonstrators, members of the Soviet section of the National Union of Moroccan Students, said three of the 11 persons condemned for the assassination plot last year were former leaders of the student's union. Eight of the 11 are at large.

Gen. Smith To Be Welcomed At Ft. Carson

Brig. Gen. Charles B. Smith, next assistant 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander, will be welcomed to Ft. Carson Thursday, March 26 at 4 p.m. honor guard ceremony at Division Headquarters will officially welcome General Smith.

Gen. Smith, now chief of staff for Second U. S. Army at Ft. Meade, Md., will succeed Brig. Gen. Joseph R. Russ. Gen. Russ, nominated for promotion to major general's rank, will take command of the 8th Infantry Division in Germany April 6.

An honor guard ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 28, in honor of General Russ.

Gens. Russ and Smith will be honored at a hail-and-farewell formal reception at the Officers Club starting at 5:30 p.m. on March 28.

Gen. Smith was born in Lambertville, N. J., and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1939.

He was a company commander in the 35th Infantry at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. He also commanded the 1st Battalion, 21st Infantry which was the first U. S. ground force to be committed in the Korean War on July 1, 1950.

He was promoted to brigadier general rank in August, 1962.

Gen. Smith is married to the former Bettie L. Evans of Lemon Grove, Calif. They have three children, Craig, 18; Brian, 15; and Kimberly, 6.

Colorado College Elects President Of Student Group

Also elected officers in the student governing body are William Mrachek of Aurora, vice president; Catherine Grant of Arlington, Va., secretary; and Paul Tatter of Denver, Colo., treasurer.

The democratically elected governing body has control of much of the student life and organization at the college. The four will hold office for one year.

Carson, a physics major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Carson of Englewood. He hopes to do graduate work in physics after he receives his bachelor's degree at Colorado College.

Mrachek, a sophomore with a strong interest in economics and business, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mrachek of Aurora.

A sophomore, Tatter is interested in philosophy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Tatter of Denver.

Five Noted Japanese Yachtsmen Are Missing

TOKYO (AP) — Five Japanese yachtsmen, including a grandson of former Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, were missing aboard their yacht, the Maritime Safety Board reported today.

The group started from Yokohama harbor Friday for Aburatsubo, 25 miles south, aboard the 28-foot yacht "Shokaku (Flying Crane)," the Coast Guard said.

Gen. Smith To Be Welcomed At Ft. Carson

Brig. Gen. Charles B. Smith, next assistant 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander, will be welcomed to Ft. Carson Thursday, March 26. A 4 p.m. honor guard ceremony at Division Headquarters will officially welcome General Smith.

Gen. Smith, now chief of staff for Second U. S. Army at Ft Meade, Md., will succeed Brig. Gen. Joseph R. Russ. Gen. Russ, nominated for promotion to major general's rank, will take command of the 8th Infantry Division in Germany April 6.

An honor guard ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 28, in honor of General Russ.

Gens. Russ and Smith will be honored at a hail-and-farewell formal reception at the Officers Club starting at 5:30 p.m. on March 28.

Gen. Smith was born in Lambertville, N. J., and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1939.

He was a company commander in the 35th Infantry at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. He also commanded the 1st Battalion, 21st Infantry which was the first U. S. ground force to be committed in the Korean War on July 1, 1950.

He was promoted to brigadier general rank in August, 1962.

Gen. Smith is married to the former Bettie L. Evans of Lemon Grove, Calif. They have three children, Craig, 18; Brian, 15; and Kimberly, 6.

Colorado College Elects President Of Student Group

Also elected officers in the student governing body are William Mrachek of Aurora, vice president; Catherine Grant of Arlington, Va., secretary; and Paul Tatter of Denver, Colo., treasurer.

The democratically elected governing body has control of much of the student life and organization at the college. The four will hold office for one year.

Carson, a physics major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Carson of Englewood. He hopes to do graduate work in physics after he receives his bachelor's degree at Colorado College.

Mrachek, a sophomore with a strong interest in economics and business, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mrachek of Aurora.

A sophomore, Tatter is interested in philosophy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Tatter of Denver.

Five Noted Japanese Yachtsmen Are Missing

TOKYO (AP) — Five Japanese yachtsmen, including a grandson of former Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, were missing aboard their yacht, the Maritime Safety Board reported today.

The group started from Yokohama harbor Friday for Aburatsubo, 25 miles south, aboard the 28-foot yacht "Shokaku (Flying Crane)," the Coast Guard said.

Renewal of 2.2 per cent beer licenses and existing coin game and music device operators licenses.

Three notices of injuries and reports.

Modern Taming of Shrew Clever CC Presentation

By JOHN FETLER

It was a clever idea, on several counts, for Woodson Tyree to arrange and direct a "modernized" version of old Bill Shakespeare's classic comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew," at Perkins Hall, Colorado College, this past weekend.

It was a more entertaining idea, anyhow, than to stage it in the serious manner with period costumes and lute music.

Therefore, as well as for the intrinsic comic idea, which is as ancient as the Western civilization, we thought the production was engaging, even tho some of the ideas which the actors and director tried to get across to the audience seem to have been a bit lost on CC's own critics.

Perhaps the 16th Century was capable of greater hilarity against shrews than the frantic young men and coeds of the 20th. The latter seemed often to be unable to accept it as humor.

In addition, the production drew purple ink in the college's own news publication, which otherwise seems to manage some provocative and interesting observations. In other words, the young critics's reaction at CC was sour.

The actors are students. But the cleverness consists of more, for it provides, in the production, irony on several levels, which may not have been perhaps as obvious as it might hav been in a professional performance directed, produced, and starred in, by Sir Laurence Olivier. To us, it seemed that the introduction of irony on several levels produced a number of good and interesting new possibilities.

For instance, the "Taming of the shrew was accompanied, in the breaks between the scenes, by modern, popular songs, with words that more or less fit the current situation, or that in the coming scene. This served not only as a bridge, but also as a contemporary commentary to a situation which had plagued even Socrates.

There was irony, also, in adding the "commercials," via the loudspeaker. What old Bill would have thought of it, if he were faced with the interruption of commercials, such as on television (although thank goodness, they have disappeared at least during the movie in the movie theatres, would be difficult to imagine. On the other hand, Bill's own audience was not as attentive as those who attend the sober and somber Shakespeare festivals these days in Stratford or Stratford (corrected). So that perhaps, everything else being equal, after all, and Bill would have magnificently risen to the challenge, even of TV.

Also, although not strictly on the level of the ironic mood, although it could be interpreted as such if given sufficient literary analysis, was the discussion of the subject of humor and comedy by a panel consisting of two professors and two students of the college, before the play.

Instead of being a pompous panel, this one was interesting, and even drew amused laughter from the audience, illustrating its own point rather well. Neil Reinitz, finally, perhaps a bit facetiously, suggested that comedy after all be merely a final formalization of the fertility festivals. Jane Cauvel thought comedy was perhaps an amusing way to learn about life's sometimes rather perplexing situations. Jim Fox saw comedy in a more psychoanalytical perspective, as a distancing and detachment of painful situations, and Linda Hamilton saw it as perhaps simply a game with which the audience may amuse itself. The humor if it may be that they may all be right, although Miss Hamilton's cheerful view seems to be the closest to that of the audience which generally goes to see a play simply to be amused. (Even if the artist himself works at deeper levels.)

As to the play itself, within the confines of the Perkins Hall stage, and with the rather cleverly arranged sets, it was entertaining on various levels. The only drawback, to our mind, may have been the archaism of the language, which can effectively be exhibited with sufficient vocal power on the stages of the Straitfords, but for audiences such as this, the solution of Orson Welles (in his younger days) still seems the most logical: Adaptation of at least a faintly more modern idiom (no easy matter) in order to make the language more intelligible to the contemporarily young audience. For without at least a bit of modernization the contemporary audience seems to be quite lost to the irony of comedy which sometimes bites the conscience so savagely as to expose the raw nerves of truth.

Verdict Given For Damages Under Mob Law

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A damage verdict of $108,541 under an old Kansas mob law was returned against this city of Kansas City, Kan., Friday by a county District Court jury.

It went to McPherson A. Horner, 59, who was hit on the head with a baseball bat during a riot at a baseball game in Rosedale Park June 29, 1961. He suffered multiple skull fractures.

A former postal employe, Horner tesified he has been unable to work since he was injured, and still has dizzy spells. He sued for $208,360.

A group of young Negroes attacked players and spectators at the ball game. The city's attorneys contended that the attack was so unexpected that no preventive measures could be taken, and that the attackers committed a crime for which they have been punished in court.

The mob law defines a group of five or more persons conducting themselves in a riotous manner as a mob.

C.W. Brenneisen Jr., city attorney, said the verdict would be appealed.

70,000 Students Expected At Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Thirty thousand vacationing college students, vanguard of an expected 70,000, poured out over the beach here today for an Easter spree away from home.

So far about 150 have been arrested for drinking under age 21. One was held on $1,500 bond for resisting arrest, and a motel owner was cited with "maintaining a nuisance" for housing lusty vacationers.

Said one policeman: "We're keeping our fingers crossed, patrolling the beach like hounds, and praying the good guys will lead the beer drinking."

Starting today, planned entertainment along the 20 miles of beach will be almost continuous through April 4. One 75-cent admission ticket is good for the entire vacation. With it students can hear folk singers and a jazz sextet.

Despite the early arrests, both students and police say trouble has been limited. There have been no incidents resembling the Fort Lauderdale riots of 1961 when hundreds were arrested in wild, drunken beach parties.

Birdman's Will Says Prisons Are Disgrace

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The will of the famed "Birdman of Alcatraz," Robert Stroud, says today's prisons are a disgrace and he would like his estate to be used to design a better one.

In the will, filed for probate Friday, Stroud said he would also like to write out ways to run a model penitentiary.

Stroud died last Nov. 21 in the Springfield, Mo., Federal Prison at the age of 73. He had spent most of his adult life in Alcatraz after conviction for two murders.

He became known as the Birdman of Alcatraz because of his expert knowledge of birds gained while in solitary confinement.

His nine-page handwritten will said, however, that his sister's needs are not great, and that if his estate could be used to design a prison, that's what he'd like done with it.

The will, written in prison on Oct. 2, 1958, said Stroud wanted to write to universities to find an outstanding graduate student in architecture to design the prison.

It was not revealed if he ever wrote down his ideas for running a prison or wrote to graduate students.

School District 3 Will Refinance Indebtedness

School District 3, Security-Widefield, will refinance its present indebtedness and then hold a vote on another bond issue, it was decided by the board Saturday at the March meeting.

The meeting was a near marathon affair, beginning about 8 a.m. and continuing until about 4 p.m., with no time out for a noon lunch.

The board also voted a new teacher salary schedule on the third try — turning down two other schedules before adopting the third proposal.

The new bond issue with about 2 mills, and new teacher pay schedule with about 5 mills will increase the mill levy in the district by about 6 or 7 millls. The refunding operation is not programmed to cost the district anything.

The special levy for the school district is 20.9 mills this year, and thus will be in the neighborhood of 27 mills next year if the new bond issue is approved.

The refunding will be done thru the offices of Stern Brothers and Company of Denver. Two representatives of the firm, Jack Ormsbee and Earnie Breeden, presented the refunding plan to the board.

The district currently has an outstanding bonded indebtedness of $1,685,000, and the plan adopted by the board is projected to save $140,768 in interest payments on the bonds between now and 1983 when the bonds will all be retired.

The board voted unanimously for the plan after Chairman Clarence Foster said, "A hundred and four thousand bucks is just that, and this is purely a business deal. I am in favor of it. There is no possibility of a slip up as the escrow bonds will be government bonds."

Ted Forde inserted a statement in the record saying:

"In principle, I do not believe in accepting proposals of this magnitude without bids, but as a matter of practicality considering the time and the chance that a proposal might change before bids could be asked for and accepted, I will vote for it. Next time, I think we should put such a plan up for bid."

It was reported that the district has an average interest rate on its bonds of 4.32 per cent. The refunding bonds, which will be handled by the Stern Company, will pay 3.95 per cent interest.

Refunding bonds for $1,885,000 will be issued and to that income the Stern Company will add $21,000. The total fund then will be invested in U.S. Government Bonds which will be put in escrow. Those bonds and their interest then will be used to pay off the bonded indebtedness the district now has according to the maturity schedule set up at the time the bonds were issued.

The board next decided to issue the balance of the bonds which were authorized in a bond issue vote in December 1962.

The total issue approved in that vote was $350,000, of which $179,000 previously were issued.

The district has a total assessed valuation of $14,450,000, and according to law can issue bonds against itself to the extent of 15 per cent of that valuation.

Thus not all of the $350,000 in bonds that were approved could be issued at once.

The board directed the Stern Company to issue the balance, $111,000 to draw 3.78 per cent interest and carry a handling charge of $8.90 a $1,000 bond.

The money will be used to begin work on additions to two grade schools.

Supt. Richard Taylor reported to the board that a planned addition to the Pinello School will cost about $135,000 and the planned addition to the Talbott School will be about $98,950, making a total of $293,950.

The balance between what the additions will cost and what the issuance of the remaining bonds will bring in will have to be financed by a new bond issue, it was pointed out.

The date of the bond issue vote and the size of the issue were not decided at the Saturday meeting.

Regardless of the size of the bond issue, only a certain number of bonds can be issued in the near future because of the 15 per cent restriction by law.

Districts put larger issues to a vote than they can issue at once so that when the time comes later they will have bonds available for issuance. While the bonds sit in the vault, they do not accrue interest that the district would have to pay.

Taylor pointed to the board that it takes a mill levy of about 9½ mills to pay for the bonds the district has out, and that this figure is continuing because when some bonds are paid up, the district has to issue new ones.

He also pointed out that the district probably will have some half-day schedules next fall until the additions to the schools have been completed.

Estimated costs on the new additions are based on a cost of $11.50 a square foot, Taylor told the board.

The new teacher pay schedule adopted by the board was by a 4 to 1 vote: Roger Fay, Foster, Carl Roberts and Dr. Thomas Slack voting in favor and Ted Forde voting against.

That plan was given to the board in a motion by Fay.

In discussion of two other plans, both presented in motions by Forde, the board split 3 to 2 against, with Forde and Roberts voting in favor and Foster, Fay and Slack voting against.

The new pay schedule begins at $4,800 for a beginning teacher with a B.A. degree and goes to $6,000 for a beginning teacher with a Ph.D. or Ed D. degree.

Top salary for a teacher with a B.A. degree and no further hours of education is hit in the third year at $5,100. Top salary for a teacher with a Ph.d. or Ed D. degree is reached on the 15th year at $11,400.

The schedule has six steps for increases in pay by academic achievement, and also pays yearly increment increases to any teacher with as much as 24 academic hours, approved by the board, beyond the B.A. degree to the 15th year. Such a teacher could top out at $8,200.

The paln is expected to cost the district an additional $77,200 in salaries next year. Under the past schedule, the increase next year would have been $47,950. The new increase then ups costs about $30,000 more than the old schedule would have.

All members of the board agreed that the district had to have a new pay schedule to compete with other districts in the Pikes Peak area if it is to get good teachers.

The first schedule the board rejected began at $5,000 and peaked out at $11,600. It was estimated that plan would cost about $110,600 over this year, and about $63,000 more than the old plan would have cost next year.

The second plan rejected began at $4,600 and took the teacher with a B.A. degree only to $6,950 in nine years, with the top salary of a teacher just short of a Ph.D. or Ed D. degree at $8,750 in the schedule, with no fixed maximum for specially qualified teachers.

It would have cost $68,000 next year, about $21,000 more than the old schedule.

In other action, the board:

1. Accepted the resignation of Miss Harriet J. Ten Boer effective March 20 from her position as a business education teacher. She reported she was being married and will live in Columbus, Ohio.

2. Adopted an addition to the board policy statement which allows for physical or mental evaluation of students when it is requested by the superintendent, with the district responsible for the fee.

3. Approved a leave of absence for one year for Frank Stancato, and also accepted his resignation as head football coach. Stancato plans to attend Notre Dame University to earn a Ph.D. degree. He has coached at Widefield for seven years.

4. Read into the record a letter by Mrs. Fredrica Morris stating that she had been accepted for additional study this summer at a National Science Foundation Institute for additional science studies to be credited to her record for pay raise purposes under an incentive program.

5. Noted that Roberts, Slack and Forde as well as Richard Aspinall, assistant superintendent, will attend the National School Board Convention in Houston, April 25 thru 28.

6. Gave approval to Taylor to attend a seminar at the University of Georgia by the American Association of School Administrators to discuss school problems. The seminar will be held May 18 thru 20. He is one of about 30 superintendents in the nation to be asked to attend.

7. Agreed that Roberts could be absent for three months this fall from school board meetings and the community without his position being considered vacated and in need of a replacement appointment.

British Cadets To Be Hosted At Air Academy

Clipped British accents will echo thru Air Force Academy classrooms, dorms, and labs beginning Thursday as 87 cadets from the Royal Air Force Colleges at Cranwell and Henlow open a six-day visit in the Colorado Springs-Denver area.

The British cadets will be hosted by members of the Academy Class of 1964 (seniors) and will stay with hosts in Vandenberg Hall, cadet dormitory.

In addition to a full round of activities at the Academy, the visitors will travel to Denver to inspect the 451st Strategic Missile Wing at Lowry AFB and to Colorado Springs for a briefing at NORAD Headquarters.

Friday morning, the cadets and officers accompanying them will be greeted by the Commandant of Cadets, Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong Jr., and Cadet Wing Commander Trusten A. McArtor.

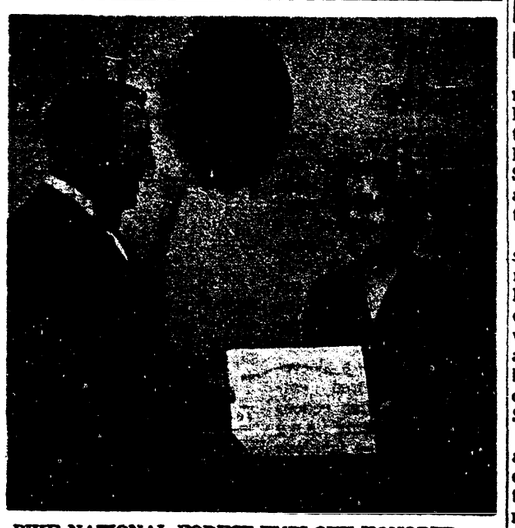
Briefings on the Academy's military, academic, and athletic programs and a tour of the academic area will follow.

Following luncheon, members of the Cranwell and Henlow contingents are scheduled to attend classes with their hosts and then gather to compare notes on cadet life. They'll also tour the Chapel, Vandenberg Hall, and the Cadet Gym.

Saturday the visitors will visit the Lowry missile wing and attend a formal dance in Arnold Hall, cadet social center. Sunday is a free day.

The visit winds up March 30 with the NORAD tour and briefing.

Exchange visits between the British and American academies are designed to continue the tradition of friendship and hospitality established in the past.



PIKE NATIONAL FOREST EMPLOYE HONORED — Florence C. Prentice, resource clerk for the Pike National Forest, receives a Certificate of Merit and congratulations from Forest Supervisor Gay Weldenhaft. Miss Prentice, who has compiled a total of 36 years with the Forest Service, received the award for "sustained high quality performance." Miss Prentice began her career on the San Isabel National Forest in 1928. In 1932 she was re-assigned to the Pike National Forest headquarters.

Manned Bombers May Be Eliminated, He Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Undersecretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric says if there is a continued easing of East-West tensions the United States possibly could eliminate all its manned bombers and interceptors.

Gilpatric, who until his resignation in January was Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's second in command, expressed this view in outlining what he believes would be an adequate U.S. military posture by 1970 "in the absence of major confrontations between the Soviet Union and the West."

He stressed, however, in an article in the April issue of Foreign Affairs, published today, that "I do not know how permanent the present relaxation may be, and would not attempt to predict."

The 1964 University of Wyoming football team figures to get some good talent from its 1963 freshman team. The Frosh at Laramie won all four games while allowing only two touchdowns.

Latin Will Be Kept As Church Language

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said Friday the Roman Catholic Church will keep Latin for its official acts while recognizing the value of modern languages in other church matters.

Referring to the Vatican Ecumenical Council's 1963 decree on public worship, which will eventually bring about substitution of modern languages for Latin in much of the Mass, the Pope said the council "recognized the equal dignity of the vernacular languages in proclaiming the word of God and in the liturgical cult."

Dog Training Classes Slated To Start

A series of eight training classes for untrained dogs and their owners will begin Wednesday, at the 29th Street Fire Station on West Colorado Avenue. There will be beginning classes at both 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., conducted by Ray Nordstrom and his assistant, John B. Vincentis. Dogs of any breed or mixed breeds, six months old or older, are accepted for training.

Dogs will be trained by their owners to obey the basic obedience commands of "sit-stay," "down-stay," "stand," "heel" and "come." The individual problems of each dog will be considered, also the training is conducted according to the American Kennel Club regulations, so the dogs are prepared for the obedience ring, as well as their home behavior.

Nordstrom is an American Kennel Club obedience judge and has conducted training classes in Colorado Springs for 16 years.

Registration for beginning or advanced work can be made by calling Nordstrom's home, 633-7418.

Death Of Behan Is Mourned in Pubs of Dublin

DUBLIN (AP) — They mourned for him in Dublin's pubs, in the theaters and in the world of letters. They wondered if they'd ever see the likes of their beloved Borstal Boy again.

Gone from their midst was Brendan Behan, the rollicking Irish playwright whose promising career was cut tragically short by monumental bouts with the bottle.

Behan died in Meath Hospital Friday night at the age of 41. He had been in a coma for five days, regaining consciousness only briefly. His doctors said he never had a chance.

"Behan died from jaundice and diabetes, but the diabetes was of small consequence," said a doctor. "The jaundice came from liver trouble."

The liver trouble came from a lifetime of drinking. He was arrested for drunkenness in Ireland, Britain, Canada and the United States. In the last few years, he was repeatedly hospitalized.

His capacity for drink was legendary. A bartender in New York's Chelsea district recalled Friday night he could consume 11 bottles of white wine at a sitting. There was even a story making the rounds in Dublin today that a visitor smuggled a bottle of brandy into his hospital room.

The Dublin Drama Festival observed a minute of silence after the audience was told of his death. At his home in Torquay, England, another famous Irish playwright, Sean O'Casey, described Behan as amiable and kind without any bitterness or venom in his soul.

Born in the slums of north Dublin, Behan was the son of a house - painter - patriot and received an early introduction into the anti-British activities of the Irish Republican Army. By the age of 16, Behan was jailed by the British for a bombing in Liverpool. His reminiscences of his three years in a British Borstal institution for young offenders were vividly set down in his 1958 autobiography, "Borstal Boy."

On his return to Ireland, the shooting of a policeman got him a 14-year jail sentence but an amnesty cut the term to 4½ years. His experiences inspired his first play, "The Quare Fellow," the story of a prisoner about to be hanged.

Modern Taming of Shrew Clever CC Presentation

By JOHN FETLER

It was a clever idea, on several counts, for Woodson Tyree to arrange and direct a "modernized" version of old Bill Shakespeare's classic comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew," at Perkins Hall, Colorado College, this past weekend.

It was a more entertaining idea, anyhow, than to stage it in the serious manner with period costumes and lute music.

Therefore, as well as for the intrinsic comic idea, which is as ancient as the Western civilization, we thought the production was engaging, even tho some of the ideas which the actors and director tried to get across to the audience seem to have been a bit lost on CC's own critics.

Perhaps the 16th Century was capable of greater hilarity against shrews than the frantic young men and coeds of the 20th. The latter seemed often to be unable to accept it as humor.

In addition, the production drew purple ink in the college's own news publication, which otherwise seems to manage some provocative and interesting observations. In other words, the young critics's reaction at CC was sour.

The actors are students. But the cleverness consists of more, for it provides, in the production, irony on several levels, which may not have been perhaps as obvious as it might hav been in a professional performance directed, produced, and starred in, by Sir Laurence Olivier. To us, it seemed that the introduction of irony on several levels produced a number of good and interesting new possibilities.

For instance, the "Taming of the shrew" was accompanied, in the breaks between the scenes, by modern, popular songs, with words that more or less fit the current situation, or that in the coming scene. This served not only as a bridge, but also as a contemporary commentary to a situation which had plagued even Socrates.

There was irony, also, in adding the "commercials," via the loudspeaker. What old Bill would have thought of it, if he were faced with the interruption of commercials, such as on television (although thank goodness, they have disappeared at least during the movie in the movie theatres, would be difficult to imagine. On the other hand, Bill's own audience was not as attentive as those who attend the sober and somber Shakespeare festivals these days in Stratford or Stratford (corrected). So that perhaps, everything else being equal, after all, and Bill would have magnificently risen to the challenge, even of TV.

Also, although not strictly on the level of the ironic mood, although it could be interpreted as such if given sufficient literary analysis, was the discussion of the subject of humor and comedy by a panel consisting of two professors and two students of the college, before the play.

Instead of being a pompous panel, this one was interesting, and even drew amused laughter from the audience, illustrating its own point rather well. Neil Reinitz, finally, perhaps a bit facetiously, suggested that comedy after all be merely a final formalization of the fertility festivals. Jane Cauvel thought comedy was perhaps an amusing way to learn about life's sometimes rather perplexing situations. Jim Fox saw comedy in a more psychoanalytical perspective, as a distancing and detachment of painful situations, and Linda Hamilton saw it as perhaps simply a game with which the audience may amuse itself. The humor if it may be that they may all be right, although Miss Hamilton's cheerful view seems to be the closest to that of the audience which generally goes to see a play simply to be amused. (Even if the artist himself works at deeper levels.)

As to the play itself, within the confines of the Perkins Hall stage, and with the rather cleverly arranged sets, it was entertaining on various levels. The only drawback, to our mind, may have been the archaism of the language, which can effectively be exhibited with sufficient vocal power on the stages of the Stratfords, but for audiences such as this, the solution of Orson Welles (in his younger days) still seems the most logical: Adaptation of at least a faintly more modern idiom (no easy matter) in order to make the language more intelligible to the contemporarily young audience. For without at least a bit of modernization the contemporary audience seems to be quite lost to the irony of comedy which sometimes bites the conscience so savagely as to expose the raw nerves of truth.

Verdict Given For Damages Under Mob Law

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A damage verdict of $108,541 under an old Kansas mob law was returned against this city of Kansas City, Kan., Friday by a county District Court jury.

It went to McPherson A. Horner, 59, who was hit on the head with a baseball bat during a riot at a baseball game in Rosedale Park June 29, 1961. He suffered multiple skull fractures.

A former postal employe, Horner testified he has been unable to work since he was injured, and still has dizzy spells. He sued for $208,360.

A group of young Negroes attacked players and spectators at the ball game. The city's attorneys contended that the attack was so unexpected that no preventive measures could be taken, and that the attackers committed a crime for which they have been punished in court.

The mob law defines a group of five or more persons conducting themselves in a riotous manner as a mob.

C.W. Brenneisen Jr., city attorney, said the verdict would be appealed.

70,000 Students Expected At Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Thirty thousand vacationing college students, vanguard of an expected 70,000, poured out over the beach here today for an Easter spree away from home.

So far about 150 have been arrested for drinking under age 21. One was held on $1,500 bond for resisting arrest, and a motel owner was cited with "maintaining a nuisance" for housing lusty vacationers.

Said one policeman: "We're keeping our fingers crossed, patrolling the beach like hounds, and praying the good guys will lead the beer drinking."

Starting today, planned entertainment along the 20 miles of beach will be almost continuous through April 4. One 75-cent admission ticket is good for the entire vacation. With it students can hear folk singers and a jazz sextet.

Despite the early arrests, both students and police say trouble has been limited. There have been no incidents resembling the Fort Lauderdale riots of 1961 when hundreds were arrested in wild, drunken beach parties.

Birdman's Will Says Prisons Are Disgrace

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The will of the famed "Birdman of Alcatraz," Robert Stroud, says today's prisons are a disgrace and he would like his estate to be used to design a better one.

In the will, filed for probate Friday, Stroud said he would also like to write out ways to run a model penitentiary.

Stroud died last Nov. 21 in the Springfield, Mo., Federal Prison at the age of 73. He had spent most of his adult life in Alcatraz after conviction for two murders.

He became known as the Birdman of Alcatraz because of his expert knowledge of birds gained while in solitary confinement.

His nine-page handwritten will said, however, that his sister's needs are not great, and that if his estate could be used to design a prison, that's what he'd like done with it.

The will, written in prison on Oct. 2, 1958, said Stroud wanted to write to universities to find an outstanding graduate student in architecture to design the prison.

It was not revealed if he ever wrote down his ideas for running a prison or wrote to graduate students.

School District 3 Will Refinance Indebtedness

School District 3, Security-Widefield, will refinance its present indebtedness and then hold a vote on another bond issue, it was decided by the board Saturday at the March meeting.

The meeting was a near marathon affair, beginning about 8 a.m. and continuing until about 4 p.m., with no time out for a noon lunch.

The board also voted a new teacher salary schedule on the third try — turning down two other schedules before adopting the third proposal.

The new bond issue with about 2 mills, and new teacher pay schedule with about 5 mills will increase the mill levy in the district by about 6 or 7 millls. The refunding operation is not programmed to cost the district anything.

The special levy for the school district is 20.9 mills this year, and thus will be in the neighborhood of 27 mills next year if the new bond issue is approved.

The refunding will be done thru the offices of Stern Brothers and Company of Denver. Two representatives of the firm, Jack Ormsbee and Earnie Breeden, presented the refunding plan to the board.

The district currently has an outstanding bonded indebtedness of $1,885,000, and the plan adopted by the board is projected to save $140,768 in interest payments on the bonds between now and 1983 when the bonds will all be retired.

The board voted unanimously for the plan after Chairman Clarence Foster said, "A hundred and four thousand bucks is just that, and this is purely a business deal. I am in favor of it. There is no possibility of a slip up as the escrow bonds will be government bonds."

Ted Forde inserted a statement in the record saying:

"In principle, I do not believe in accepting proposals of this magnitude without bids, but as a matter of practicality considering the time and the chance that a proposal might change before bids could be asked for and accepted, I will vote for it. Next time, I think we should put such a plan up for bid."

It was reported that the district has an average interest rate on its bonds of 4.32 per cent. The refunding bonds, which will be handled by the Stern Company, will pay 3.95 per cent interest.

Refunding bonds for $1,885,000 will be issued and to that income the Stern Company will add $21,000. The total fund then will be invested in U.S. Government Bonds which will be put in escrow. Those bonds and their interest then will be used to pay off the bonded indebtedness the district now has according to the maturity schedule set up at the time the bonds were issued.

The board next decided to issue the balance of the bonds which were authorized in a bond issue vote in December 1962.

The total issue approved in that vote was $350,000, of which $179,000 previously were issued.

The district has a total assessed valuation of $14,450,000, and according to law can issue bonds against itself to the extent of 15 per cent of that valuation.

Thus not all of the $350,000 in bonds that were approved could be issued at once.

The board directed the Stern Company to issue the balance, $111,000 to draw 3.78 per cent interest and carry a handling charge of $8.90 a $1,000 bond.

The money will be used to begin work on additions to two grade schools.

Supt. Richard Taylor reported to the board that a planned addition to the Pinello School will cost about $195,000 and the planned addition to the Talbott School will be about $98,950, making a total of $293,950.

The balance between what the additions will cost and what the issuance of the remaining bonds will bring in will have to be financed by a new bond issue, it was pointed out.

The date of the bond issue vote and the size of the issue were not decided at the Saturday meeting.

Regardless of the size of the bond issue, only a certain number of bonds can be issued in the near future because of the 15 per cent restriction by law.

Districts put larger issues to a vote than they can issue at once so that when the time comes later they will have bonds available for issuance. While the bonds sit in the vault, they do not accrue interest that the district would have to pay.

Taylor pointed to the board that it takes a mill levy of about 9½ mills to pay for the bonds the district has out, and that this figure is continuing because when some bonds are paid up, the district has to issue new ones.

He also pointed out that the district probably will have some half-day schedules next fall until the additions to the schools have been completed.

Estimated costs on the new additions are based on a cost of $11.50 a square foot, Taylor told the board.

The new teacher pay schedule adopted by the board was by a 4 to 1 vote: Roger Fay, Foster, Carl Roberts and Dr. Thomas Slack voting in favor and Ted Forde voting against.

That plan was given to the board in a motion by Fay.

In discussion of two other plans, both presented in motions by Forde, the board split 3 to 2 against, with Forde and Roberts voting in favor and Foster, Fay and Slack voting against.

The new pay schedule begins at $4,800 for a beginning teacher with a B.A. degree and goes to $6,000 for a beginning teacher with a Ph.D. or Ed D. degree.

Top salary for a teacher with a B.A. degree and no further hours of education is hit in the third year at $5,100. Top salary for a teacher with a Ph.d. or Ed D. degree is reached on the 15th year at $11,400.

The schedule has six steps for increases in pay by academic achievement, and also pays yearly increment increases to any teacher with as much as 24 academic hours, approved by the board, beyond the B.A. degree to the 15th year. Such a teacher could top out at $8,200.

The paln is expected to cost the district an additional $77,200 in salaries next year. Under the past schedule, the increase next year would have been $47,950. The new increase then ups costs about $30,000 more than the old schedule would have.

All members of the board agreed that the district had to have a new pay schedule to compete with other districts in the Pikes Peak area if it is to get good teachers.

The first schedule the board rejected began at $5,090 and peaked out at $11,600. It was estimated that plan would cost about $110,600 over this year, and about $63,000 more than the old plan would have cost next year.

The second plan rejected began at $4,600 and took the teacher with a B.A. degree only to $6,950 in nine years, with the top salary of a teacher just short of a Ph.D. or Ed D. degree at $8,750 in the schedule, with no fixed maximum for specially qualified teachers.

It would have cost $68,000 next year, about $21,000 more than the old schedule.

In other action, the board:

1. Accepted the resignation of Miss Harriet J. Ten Boer effective March 20 from her position as a business education teacher. She reported she was being married and will live in Columbus, Ohio.

2. Adopted an addition to the board policy statement which allows for physical or mental evaluation of students when it is requested by the superintendent, with the district responsible for the fee.

3. Approved a leave of absence for one year for Frank Stancato, and also accepted his resignation as head football coach. Stancato plans to attend Notre Dame University to earn a Ph.D. degree. He has coached at Widefield for seven years.

4. Read into the record a letter by Mrs. Fredrica Morris stating that she had been accepted for additional study this summer at a National Science Foundation Institute for additional science studies to be credited to her record for pay raise purposes under an incentive program.

5. Noted that Roberts, Slack and Forde as well as Richard Aspinall, assistant superintendent, will attend the National School Board Convention in Houston, April 25 thru 28.

6. Gave approval to Taylor to attend a seminar at the University of Georgia by the American Association of School Administrators to discuss school problems. The seminar will be held May 18 thru 20. He is one of about 30 superintendents in the nation to be asked to attend.

7. Agreed that Roberts could be absent for three months this fall from school board meetings and the community without his position being considered vacated and in need of a replacement appointment.

British Cadets To Be Hosted At Air Academy

Clipped British accents will echo thru Air Force Academy classrooms, dorms, and labs beginning Thursday as 87 cadets from the Royal Air Force Colleges at Cranwell and Henlow open a six-day visit in the Colorado Springs-Denver area.

The British cadets will be hosted by members of the Academy Class of 1964 (seniors) and will stay with hosts in Vandenberg Hall, cadet dormitory.

In addition to a full round of activities at the Academy, the visitors will travel to Denver to inspect the 451st Strategic Missile Wing at Lowry AFB and to Colorado Springs for a briefing at NORAD Headquarters.

Friday morning, the cadets and officers accompanying them will be greeted by the Commandant of Cadets, Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong Jr., and Cadet Wing Commander Trusten A. McArtor.

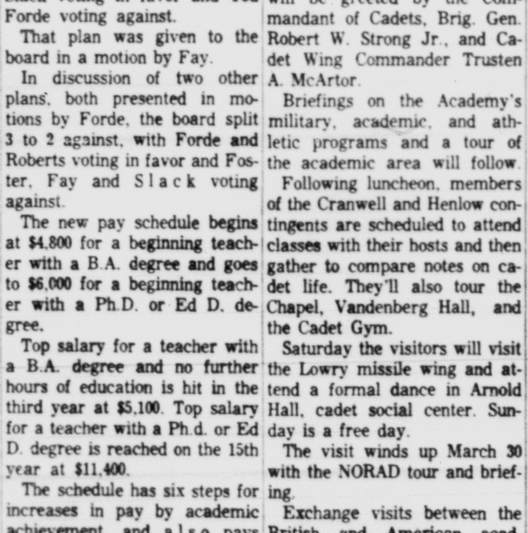
Briefings on the Academy's military, academic, and athletic programs and a tour of the academic area will follow.

Following luncheon, members of the Cranwell and Henlow contingents are scheduled to attend classes with their hosts and then gather to compare notes on cadet life. They'll also tour the Chapel, Vandenberg Hall, and the Cadet Gym.

Saturday the visitors will visit the Lowry missile wing and attend a formal dance in Arnold Hall, cadet social center. Sunday is a free day.

The visit winds up March 30 with the NORAD tour and briefing.

Exchange visits between the British and American academies are designed to continue the tradition of friendship and hospitality established in the past.



PIKE NATIONAL FOREST EMPLOYE HONORED — Florence C. Prentice, resource clerk for the Pike National Forest, receives a Certificate of Merit and congratulations from Forest Supervisor Gay Weidenhaft. Miss Prentice, who has compiled a total of 36 years with the Forest Service, received the award for "sustained high quality performance." Miss Prentice began her career on the San Isabel National Forest in 1928. In 1932 she was re-assigned to the Pike National Forest headquarters.

Manned Bombers May Be Eliminated, He Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Undersecretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric says if there is a continued easing of East-West tensions the United States possibly could eliminate all its manned bombers and interceptors.

Gilpatric, who until his resignation in January was Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's second in command, expressed this view in outlining what he believes would be an adequate U.S. military posture by 1970 "in the absence of major confrontations between the Soviet Union and the West."

He stressed, however, in an article in the April issue of Foreign Affairs, published today, that "I do not know how permanent the present relaxation may be, and would not attempt to predict."

The 1964 University of Wyoming football team figures to get some good talent from its 1963 freshman team. The Frosh at Laramie won all four games while allowing only two touchdowns.

Dog Training Classes Slated To Start

A series of eight training classes for untrained dogs and their owners will begin Wednesday, at the 29th Street Fire Station on West Colorado Avenue. There will be beginning classes at both 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., conducted by Ray Nordstrom and his assistant, John B. Vincentis. Dogs of any breed or mixed breeds, six months old or older, are accepted for training.

Dogs will be trained by their owners to obey the basic obedience commands of "sit-stay," "down-stay," "stand," "heel" and "come." The individual problems of each dog will be considered, also the training is conducted according to the American Kennel Club regulations, so the dogs are prepared for the obedience ring, as well as their home behavior.

Nordstrom is an American Kennel Club obedience judge and has conducted training classes in Colorado Springs for 16 years.

Registration for beginning or advanced work can be made by calling Nordstrom's home, 633-7418.

Death Of Behan Is Mourned in Pubs of Dublin

DUBLIN (AP) — They mourned for him in Dublin's pubs, in the theaters and in the world of letters. They wondered if they'd ever see the likes of their beloved Borstal Boy again.

Gone from their midst was Brendan Behan, the rollicking Irish playwright whose promising career was cut tragically short by monumental bouts with the bottle.

Behan died in Meath Hospital Friday night at the age of 41. He had been in a coma for five days, regaining consciousness only briefly. His doctors said he never had a chance.

"Behan died from jaundice and diabetes, but the diabetes was of small consequence," said a doctor. "The jaundice came from liver trouble."

The liver trouble came from a lifetime of drinking. He was arrested for drunkenness in Ireland, Britain, Canada and the United States. In the last few years, he was repeatedly hospitalized.

His capacity for drink was legendary. A bartender in New York's Chelsea district recalled Friday night he could consume 11 bottles of white wine at a sitting. There was even a story making the rounds in Dublin today that a visitor smuggled a bottle of brandy into his hospital room.

The Dublin Drama Festival observed a minute of silence after the audience was told of his death. At his home in Torquay, England, another famous Irish playwright, Sean O'Casey, described Behan as amiable and kind without any bitterness or venom in his soul.

Born in the slums of north Dublin, Behan was the son of a house - painter - patriot and received an early introduction into the anti-British activities of the Irish Republican Army. By the age of 16, Behan was jailed by the British for a bombing in Liverpool. His reminiscences of his three years in a British Borstal institution for young offenders were vividly set down in his 1958 autobiography, "Borstal Boy."

On his return to Ireland, the shooting of a policeman got him a 14-year jail sentence but an amnesty cut the term to 4½ years. His experiences inspired his first play, "The Quare Fellow," the story of a prisoner about to be hanged.

Latin Will Be Kept As Church Language

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said Friday the Roman Catholic Church will keep Latin for its official acts while recognizing the value of modern languages in other church matters.

Referring to the Vatican Ecumenical Council's 1963 decree on public worship, which will eventually bring about substitution of modern languages for Latin in much of the Mass, the Pope said the council "recognized the equal dignity of the vernacular languages in proclaiming the word of God and in the liturgical cult."

Pack 13 Holds Annual Derby Races

All the boys who took part had worked hard on their miniature racers and all received ribbons for their entries.

The four fastest racers were owned by Doug Truitt, first; Eric Griffes, second; Don Brown, third, and Thomas Husband, fourth. Weblos were given to the top three winners, and a ribbon was given for fourth place. Ribbons were also given to the boys who placed first in their dens.

Den 4 gave the opening ceremony.

John Hutchinson was awarded a Bear Badge.

Richard Royer was given five Silver Arrows.

Several boys were promoted to a Webelos den that will be conducted by David Birmingham and Coy Austin.

They are David Hutchinson, Jon Welsh, Steve Pompeu, Bill Montgomery, Steve Austin, Gary Hesse, Barry Reder and Rod Wright.

Mary E. Williams Dies In McAllen, Texas

CONFUSION IN METAL

Focus Club Picks Assignments by Throwing Darts

The Focus Club photographers selected a spot for themselves to photograph by throwing darts at a map of the city and suburbs. Following are the results in monochrome. Subject first, "Confusion in Metal," by Bill Bowers; Second, "South 8th St." by Cal Lamb; Third, "This Old House" by Olive Davis; and honorable mention, "Rio Grande Crossing" by Grace Dickson.

In the open the winners were First, "Portrait" by Cal Lamb; second, "Cat" by Deroy Stevens; third, "Chapel" by Charlotte Stevens and honorable mention "Icicles" by Cal Lamb.

In the color division the subject winners in "Dart Spots" were: First, "Snow Blossoms" by Mrs. Daniels; Second, "Lamp Light" by Rosemary Landon; Third, "This is the Picture She Wanted" by Grace Dickson; and honorable mentions were "Inside the Chapel" by Anna Leah Hathaway, "Country Fence" by Harold Wilcox, "Window Magic" by Rosemary Landon and "Pre-Toltec Pyramid" by Ethel Mae Ford. The Focus Club meets the third Monday of each month in the Library of the First Congregational Church, and visitors are welcome.

Judge Refuses To Free Man Ruled Sane

DENVER (UPI)—Dist. Judge Sherman G. Finsilver Friday denied release from jail to a prisoner found legally sane but dangerous.

The judge ruled the courts have discretion to impose probationary conditions upon the release of defendants found innocent by reason of insanity.

Sammie Jefferson Franklin Jr., 27, a three-time escapee from the State Hospital at Pueblo, was found no longer insane last month. He was committed to the Pueblo institution in 1960 after being found legally insane. A psychiatrist recently testified he was "dangerous."

Finesilver turned down defense contentions Franklin was entitled to immediate release—before a probationary hearing set before Dist. Judeg Edward J. Keating March 30.

"The community has some rights and justice is due the community as well as to this defendant," Finesilver said.

Boulder Lawyer Will Seek Post As CU Regent

DENVER (AP) — Daniel F. Lynch, resident of Boulder who practices law in Denver, announced Friday he will seek a Democratic nomination for University of Colorado regent this year.

Each political party will nominate two candidates for regent and two will be chosen for six-year terms at the November election.

Lynch, who grew up in Pueblo, is a former legislative aide to U.S. Sen. John A. Carroll.

In announcing his candidacy to Democratic State Chairman Robert Maytag, Lynch rapped the Republican administration for increasing tuition rates. He called it "a blow against economic development as well as against those least able to pay for Gov. Love's fiscal follies."

Lynch also said he would make every effort to establish the University's Denver extension center as a degree-granting branch of the university.

Lynch graduated from Central High School at Pueblo in 1948 and won his bachelor's degree from the University of Colorado in 1952. He was in the Marine Corps from 1952 to 1955, worked as a political science intern in Democratic state headquarters the next year and was legislative aide to Carroll from 1957-60.

Lynch is married and is the father of four children.

Regents whose terms expire this year are Albert Smith of Julesburg, a Democrat, and Frank Kemp Sr. of Denver, a Republican.

De Gaulle Says France Will Go Her Own Way

By LOUIS UCHITELLE

BASSE TERRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle says France's allies must reconcile themselves to French foreign policy initiatives.

In two speeches Friday, De Gaulle made clear his intention to hold to positions he has taken on world affairs, despite frequent annoyance voiced particularly by the United States.

De Gaulle did not specifically mention the United States, but his words seemed to be directly aimed at Washington.

"We are a great nation and everyone recognizes it," De Gaulle said. "This does not mean that we put ourselves in opposition to those who do not threaten us, and in particular those who are our friends and allies.

"It is up to them to adapt themselves to this new and very satisfying situation for us — French independence. As soon as they adapt to it and admit that France too can take initiatives, take its own actions, have its own policies, there will no longer be a shadow between us and them."

De Gaulle spoke in Guadeloupe's two cities, Pointe-A-Pitre and Basse Terre. His remarks drew warm applause.

Scattered signs painted on buildings and brief chanting during his Pointe-A-Pitre speech recalled, however, that some of Guadeloupe's 270,000 residents favor autonomy or home rule.

Student Kills Self Thru Electrocution

Police said Yuji Sakakibara attached one copper plate over his heart and another to his back with a wire. The wire was connected to the time switch.

Yuji's family said he recently suffered a slight nervous breakdown.

Russian Pianist Loses His Balance

MOSCOW (AP) — Svyateslav Richter, one of the Soviet Union's foremost pianists, has temporarily lost his sense of balance due to recurring high blood pressure, and that is the reason he has canceled his concerts in America for the coming two months, an informed source in Moscow reports. Richter is 49.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

Someone asked me the other day if I had ever been to one of the early Chamber of Commerce Chuck Wagon dinners. I never did go to one of them. But I remember them well.

C. S. DUDLEY

The Chamber of Commerce had an arrangement with a man and his wife (I cannot recall their names) to serve chuck wagon dinners at the Garden of the Gods. This was before the improvements were made at what is now called Junior Chamber Ranch, near the great Garden of the Gods Gateway rocks.

As the time for the dinner approached in those old days this couple who prepared the meals parked their chuck wagon, a car containing the food to be served and the utensils for cooking it, on Pikes Peak Avenue between Cascade Avenue and Tejon Street and those who were to be the guests lined their cars up behind it.

When all were assembled the motorcade set out for the place of the dinner. There the dinner was cooked in the way meals were prepared at a chuck wagon in the days of the classic cattle roundups on the plains.

Chuck wagon dinners were no entertainment event in the old range days, but the necessary thing. They have been described to me by some of the pioneers who were cowboys during the annual roundups. Huge shipments of cattle were made from Peyton over the Rock Island railroad. I have been told. The calves had been branded and when the cattle were rounded up on the open range the brand each animal bore told to whom it belonged.

This rounding up process, the great roundup of song and story, was performed by hard riding, far from any city. The cowboys would assemble at the chuck wagon for their meals. The cook in charge of the chuck wagon opened his cupboard on the rear of the wagon (no automobile then, but a real wagon), and taking out what was needed prepared the meal over an open fire.

How much singing there was around the fire after the evening meal, and whether guitars were played, I have not been told, but doubtless those who had gifts for entertaining were asked to show their skill and did.

Special Session Seen for Civil Rights Measure

By SY RAMSEY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The possibility grew here that the Kentucky Legislature would be called into special session to consider a civil rights bill if Congress passes one.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt said that he would summon state lawmakers into conference to discuss Kentucky's needs after a measure is approved at Washington.

"I will try again to persuade them of the necessity of such a law and I will at this time evaluate the possible success of a special session," he said in a statement Friday night.

"If in my judgment a special session would likely result in the passage of a bill that would effectively outlaw discrimination in places serving the public, I will call the assembly into session immediately," he added.

The pledge was regarded by civil rights forces as at least a partial victory for a state civil rights measure.

More than 30 integrationists ended their 104-hour hunger strike in the House gallery Friday night after learning the governor planned to make the statement.

The integrationist group, led by Frank Stanley Jr., Louisville Negro newspaper executive, had vowed to starve unless a civil rights bill was passed or a special session called immediately after the regular one ended.

The General Assembly had rejected a public accommodations measure. It ended its 60-day session before midnight.

Rusk Charged With Using Smear Tactics

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk has been accused by two Democratic senators of using "McCarthy smear tactics" against opponents of his policies.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., told the Senate Friday — and Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, agreed with him in a second speech — that the country "can well afford to get along" without Rusk.

They took issue with Rusk for saying in a Salt Lake City speech Thursday night that if the country's "quitters" had their way the United States would be playing into the hands of its adversaries.

Both Morse and Gruening are critics of the $3.4 billion foreign aid program President Johnson sent to Congress Thursday and both advocate the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam.

Morse called Rusk's speech to the Western Political Science Association "one of the most unfortunate by a responsible government official in many years."

Gruening said he hoped that Rusk, on reflection, would realize he "went off half-cocked" and suggested the secretary should apologize for "slurs" on Morse and him for their differences on foreign policy.

There was no comment from the State Department.

Vote on Civil Rights Seen After Easter

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen said here he is beginning to doubt there will be any vote in the civil rights battle until after Easter.

Dirksen told a reporter he sees no sign of a lessening of the Southern oratory which has stalled for two weeks a motion to take up the House-passed bill.

When the debate began on March 9, civil rights supporters were confident of a vote on the motion by March 18. Earlier this week they fixed their hopes on March 25. But in advance of another Saturday session today, Dirksen questioned whether even the second date would be met.

The Illinoisan noted that the 19 Southerners fighting the motion still have plenty of speaking time left and commented that he understood some of them feared the reaction at home "if they cave in too soon on the motion to take up."

As it stands now, 16 of the 19 Dixie senators have made initial speeches and two of the remaining three—James O. Eastland of Mississippi and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia—were on tap today.

Under the rules each senator is entitled to two speeches on the motion and only a few have spoken twice.

Byrd in his prepared remarks said that as a businessman and farmer he is certain the bill would place an impossible burden on many small firms.

Byrd said that 188,000 employers with 25 to 50 workers would be covered by the equal employment opportunity section of the law.

"What is to constitute evidence of discrimination?" he demanded.

"If such an employer does business in a community having 15 per cent Negro population, is a prima facie assumption to be established that he is discriminating if fewer than 15 per cent of his employes are Negro?"

The city of St. Louis is observing the 200th anniversary of its founding this year. It was settled as a fur trading post Feb. 14, 1764.

Pack 13 Holds Annual Derby Races

All the boys who took part had worked hard on their miniature racers and all received ribbons for their entries.

The four fastest racers were owned by Doug Truitt, first; Eric Griffes, second; Don Brown, third, and Thomas Husband, fourth. Weblos were given to the top three winners, and a ribbon was given for fourth place. Ribbons were also given to the boys who placed first in their dens.

Den 4 gave the opening ceremony.

John Hutchinson was awarded a Bear Badge.

Richard Royer was given five Silver Arrows.

Several boys were promoted to a Webelos den that will be conducted by David Birmingham and Coy Austin.

They are David Hutchinson, Jon Welsh, Steve Pompeu, Bill Montgomery, Steve Austin, Gary Hesse, Barry Reder and Rod Wright.

Judge Refuses To Free Man Ruled Sane

DENVER (UPI)—Dist. Judge Sherman G. Finsilver Friday denied release from jail to a prisoner found legally sane but dangerous.

The judge ruled the courts have discretion to impose probationary conditions upon the release of defendants found innocent by reason of insanity.

Sammie Jefferson Franklin Jr., 27, a three-time escapee from the State Hospital at Pueblo, was found no longer insane last month. He was committed to the Pueblo institution in 1960 after being found legally insane. A psychiatrist recently testified he was "dangerous."

Finesilver turned down defense contentions Franklin was entitled to immediate release—before a probationary hearing set before Dist. Judeg Edward J. Keating March 30.

"The community has some rights and justice is due the community as well as to this defendant," Finesilver said.

De Gaulle Says France Will Go Her Own Way

By LOUIS UCHITELLE

BASSE TERRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle says France's allies must reconcile themselves to French foreign policy initiatives.

In two speeches Friday, De Gaulle made clear his intention to hold to positions he has taken on world affairs, despite frequent annoyance voiced particularly by the United States.

De Gaulle did not specifically mention the United States, but his words seemed to be directly aimed at Washington.

"We are a great nation and everyone recognizes it," De Gaulle said. "This does not mean that we put ourselves in opposition to those who do not threaten us, and in particular those who are our friends and allies.

"It is up to them to adapt themselves to this new and very satisfying situation for us — French independence. As soon as they adapt to it and admit that France too can take initiatives, take its own actions, have its own policies, there will no longer be a shadow between us and them."

De Gaulle spoke in Guadeloupe's two cities, Pointe-A-Pitre and Basse Terre. His remarks drew warm applause.

Scattered signs painted on buildings and brief chanting during his Pointe-A-Pitre speech recalled, however, that some of Guadeloupe's 270,000 residents favor autonomy or home rule.

Boulder Lawyer Will Seek Post As CU Regent

DENVER (AP) — Daniel F. Lynch, resident of Boulder who practices law in Denver, announced Friday he will seek a Democratic nomination for University of Colorado regent this year.

Each political party will nominate two candidates for regent and two will be chosen for six-year terms at the November election.

Lynch, who grew up in Pueblo, is a former legislative aide to U.S. Sen. John A. Carroll.

In announcing his candidacy to Democratic State Chairman Robert Maytag, Lynch rapped the Republican administration for increasing tuition rates. He called it "a blow against economic development as well as against those least able to pay for Gov. Love's fiscal follies."

Lynch also said he would make every effort to establish the University's Denver extension center as a degree-granting branch of the university.

Lynch graduated from Central High School at Pueblo in 1948 and won his bachelor's degree from the University of Colorado in 1952. He was in the Marine Corps from 1952 to 1955, worked as a political science intern in Democratic state headquarters the next year and was legislative aide to Carroll from 1957-60.

Lynch is married and is the father of four children.

Regents whose terms expire this year are Albert Smith of Julesburg, a Democrat, and Frank Kemp Sr. of Denver, a Republican.

Student Kills Self Thru Electrocution

Police said Yuji Sakakibara attached one copper plate over his heart and another to his back with a wire. The wire was connected to the time switch.

Yuji's family said he recently suffered a slight nervous breakdown.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

Someone asked me the other day if I had ever been to one of the early Chamber of Commerce Chuck Wagon dinners. I never did go to one of them. But I remember them well.

C. S. DUDLEY

The Chamber of Commerce had an arrangement with a man and his wife (I cannot recall their names) to serve chuck wagon dinners at the Garden of the Gods. This was before the improvements were made at what is now called Junior Chamber Ranch, near the great Garden of the Gods Gateway rocks.

As the time for the dinner approached in those old days this couple who prepared the meals parked their chuck wagon, a car containing the food to be served and the utensils for cooking it, on Pikes Peak Avenue between Cascade Avenue and Tejon Street and those who were to be the guests lined their cars up behind it.

When all were assembled the motorcade set out for the place of the dinner. There the dinner was cooked in the way meals were prepared at a chuck wagon in the days of the classic cattle roundups on the plains.

Chuck wagon dinners were no entertainment event in the old range days, but the necessary thing. They have been described to me by some of the pioneers who were cowboys during the annual roundups. Huge shipments of cattle were made from Peyton over the Rock Island railroad, I have been told. The calves had been branded and when the cattle were rounded up on the open range the brand each animal bore told to whom it belonged.

This rounding up process, the great roundup of song and story, was performed by hard riding, far from any city. The cowboys would assemble at the chuck wagon for their meals. The cook in charge of the chuck wagon opened his cupboard on the rear of the wagon (no automobile then, but a real wagon), and taking out what was needed prepared the meal over an open fire.

How much singing there was around the fire after the evening meal, and whether guitars were played, I have not been told, but doubtless those who had gifts for entertaining were asked to show their skill and did

Special Session Seen for Civil Rights Measure

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

Percentage Baseball

A guy with a somewhat faded memory of what it's like to play and who has traded his bat and spikes for one of those fancy adding machines that manipulates digits with the dexterity of Sandy Koufax flinging strikes, has come up with something many have been howling for years.

The game of baseball is played all wrong.

* * *

BOBBY BRAGAN
Lineup Experiment

* * *

The difference between this guy and the rest of us who have bemoaned the failures of the game is that he advocates not a change in the format to put new zip into the archaic, erstwhile national pastime, but rather he seems to have constructive criticism of the way it's handled.

Earnshaw Cook had his ideas published in the most recent issue of Sports Illustrated, the widely-red slick sheet which oft delves more into the offbeat subjects of under-water fashions and the tribulations of coaching tiddly-winks rather than what most of us have become accustomed to regarding as the major sports of the world.

It was actually a condensation of his book, Percentage Baseball, which could be a flop or sensation, depending on the reliability of his figures.

What this Einstein of the basepaths has done is review just about every incident that happened in the major leagues, over the past 100 years or so, and then he has fed them into his handy dandy calculator to come up with a set of figures he believes controls the game.

For instance, he has devised what he calls the K 2 factor which rates the decisions made by management, especially in the close game that could be won by either team. This is a combination of one-run games, clutch hitting, men left on base and the calls by the managers. And, as suspected, the Yankees have a low factor (that's good) and such teams as the White Sox and Minnesota Twins are high (that's not so good).

In somewhat of a surprise to many, Cook calculates that there isn't as much difference between the National and American Leagues as some would lead you to believe. The difference, he says, is that the AL has inbalance among its teams while the NL is even down the line.

Another shocker in his numbers game is that the World Champion Dodgers would have finished fourth in the American League behind the Yanks, White Sox and Twins. His excuse for the World Series is that seven games (or four in last year's case) are not enough to prove a better team.

Besides this K.2 factor, the other corner stones of Cook's theory are what he calls a Scoring Index and his table of scoring chances under different situations. The Index takes into account all the aspects of a batter's play (hits, stolen bases, total bases, walks, etc.) instead of mere batting averages, and the scoring chances table has been devised by probability from the past.

Here's the way he rates the all time players according to the Index: 1. Ty Cobb 2. Babe Ruth 3. Ted Williams 4. Lou Gehrig 5 Mickey Mantle 6. Jimmy Foxx, etc. Not much argument there.

Chances of Scoring

Outs	0	1	2
At Bat	.1580	.1140	.0684
From 1st	.4276	.2871	.1391
From 2nd	.5976	.4565	.2561
From 3rd	.6972	.5355	.3153

From this, Cook has authored four general rules for managers which he says will bring in 250 more runs over a major league season's schedule. Or in other words, he thinks this plan could produce a pennant winner from a .500 club.

The rules . . . .

1. Never sacrifice. The reasoning here is that, according to his figures on the chance of scoring in relation to number of outs, is that the odds of coming home from second with one out are only two per cent better than from first with none away. Then, noting that even the worst hitters get on base once out of four times it would be necessary to complete the sacrifice nearly every time just to come out even. The sacrifice from second to third even lowers the odds.

Instead, Cook would have teams stealing at every opportunity as this maneuver (even is successful only 60 per cent of the time) would up the chances of scoring considerably. He also goes for the hit-and-run play to advance the runner.

2. Use the "Bobby Bragan" lineup. That is, try the system used by Bragan as an experiment when he was with Pittsburgh, a last place team that year. The idea is to simply place batters in order of their ability, or the best hitter first instead of traditionally in third or clean-up. The second best hitter is next, and so on.

The idea is that only in the first inning can the manager control the order his batters will appear as the final out of the previous inning can come anywhere in the lineup. Thus, you could easily have the clean-up hitter batting first or anyplace after the first inning. The first few batters in the lineup will have more chances in any game, so the best should come first.

3. Don't platoon hitters. Cook says stay with the top eight batters, determined according to his Index, and stay with them. That is, unless the manager has made another Index to see how certain players react against right or left handers. He objects to whimsical shifting by managers.

4. Platoon pitchers. This point has brought forth the most protest from managers as they feel it simply won't work — without a staff of a couple dozen.

But Cook's plan is to start a relief pitcher and let him go the first two or three innings, or until his turn at bat comes up. Then insert a regular "starter" and allow him about five frames but only once "at-bat." And pitchers should never hit for themselves in the late innings, especially if the game is close.

Naturally, there are those who will think Cook's as nutty as a squirrel's pantry, but he may also have some solid thinking in several of his points.

Baseball's best have agreed with him on the sacrifice, and the switch from tradition in the lineup seems to make sense. As for the pitchers plan, there may be too many problems to be practical. But one thing's for sure, if it would speed up the game by changing between innings instead of going thru the long warmups in the middle it would certainly help the game.

Cook's numbers are strictly for the major leaguers and he does not calculate the odds for college or high school games in which there is much more chance of mental mistakes and physical error. However, to some extent the same principles hold true on any level and who knows, it might be worth a try.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Burly Bill Buntin, a 6-foot-7 frontliner, led Michigan's injured Wolverines to a 100-90 conquest over Kansas State and third place in the NCAA basketball championships Saturday night.

Buntin got 33 points and with sophomore Oliver Darden dominated the backboards for Michigan in the opener. Buntin clinched it with a three-point play, putting the Wolverines ahead 93-86 with 2:59 to go.

The Wolverines, apparently troubled by the loss of sophomore sensation Cazzie Russell, nursing an injured ankle, struggled through 13 ties and 15 occasions on which the lead changed hands. Then little Bobby Centrell hit on a long jump shot to put them ahead to stay at 67-65 midway through the last half.

Miller Sets Record At CU Indoor Meet

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) —Colorado's Jim Miller grabbed individual honors Saturday by winning the high and low hurdles and tying the low hurdle record in the CU Invitational Indoor Track Meet.

Miller also anchored the winning mile relay team with a leg of 49.1 seconds.

Don Meyers, a CU graduate student, set a fieldhouse record in the afternoon preliminary and cleared 16 feet in a pole vault exhibition at night.

John Kelly, also unattached, set new meet and fieldhouse records in the triple jump with a performance of 49 feet, 1¼ inches.

Colorado University's mile relay team set new records with a time of 3:20.3.

St. Mary's Whacks Falcons

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)— Frank Koehler slugged a home run in the fourth inning Saturday to lead St. Mary's University to a 6-1 victory over Air Force.

Three Falcon pitchers gave up 10 hits and the Air Force committed two errors after Koehler's homer and a two-bagger by Walter Stein, the winning pitcher.

Two wild pitches by Allen McClure of the Air Force with the bases loaded in the sixth inning further padded the Rattlers' lead.

Bruins Blitz Rally Tops Duke, 98-83

By JACK BRANNAN
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo (UPI)— UCLA's ball-hawking Bruins broke from behind with 16 points in less than three minutes Saturday night and went on to blitz Duke 98-83 for the NCAA basketball championship.

In winning its 30th consecutive game this season, UCLA became only the third team in 26 years to go undefeated all the way to the national title and also broke the 10-year-old championship game scoring record of 92 points set in 1954 by La Salle.

Michigan, the nation's second-ranked team behind top-ranked UCLA in the final United Press International rating, whipped Kansas State 100-90 for third place prior to the championship game played before a record municipal auditorium crowd of 10,864.

Gail Goodrich, a 6-foot-1 starting guard, and a substitute guard, Kenny Washington, scored 53 points between them to pace UCLA to its first NCAA championship. Goodrich got eight of his 27 points during a 2:30 period late in the first half when UCLA came from three points behind and into a 13-point lead with 16 consecutive points.

That scoring burst broke open a game that had been tied eight times with the lead changing hands six times during the first 12 minutes.

Washington, a 6-foot-3 forward, fueled UCLA's pace in the second half with 21 points and finished with a total of 26. He scored seven points in a row during a 1:10 period in the final half as UCLA forged its biggest margin of the contest at 18 points.

Despite a big height disadvantage, UCLA outfought Duke off the backboards, beating the Atlantic Coast Conference champions 31-16 in rebounding during the first half alone. The final rebounding was UCLA's 51-44.

Although seven inches shorter than Duke's center-forward combination of Jay Buckley and Hack Tison, Washington led the rebounders with 12 and teammate Doug McIntosh had 11. Jack Marin, a 6-foot-6 Duke forward, paced his team off the boards with 10 and Buckley had nine.

Jeff Mullins, Duke's leading scorer, maintained his usual pace with 22 points Saturday night but fouled out with 6(05) remaining. Buckley had 18 points.

UCLA's all-America guard, Walt Hazzard, directed the Bruins record-breaking attack, making eight assists and 11 points before going to the bench with 6:14 left in the game.

Western Open in Deadlock

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—The temperature dropped and scores soared Saturday as Betsy Rawls and Kathy Whitworth came out of the second round of the Women's Western Golf Tournament with a first-place tie at 154.

Winds gusted to 25 and 30 miles per hour as a cold front moved into North Florida and sweaters and slacks replaced shorts and blouses on the rolling, Scenic Hills Country Club course.

First-round leader Ruth Jessen, who was two under women's par with her opening day 73, ran into a demoralizing pine tree and shot an 83, which put her into a tie for fourth place.

The thermometer was expected to read about 40 when the players take the field at 7 a.m. CST for a scheduled 36 holes of golf Sunday. The double round was forced when rain canceled Thursday's opening.

Miss Rawls, of Spartanburg, S.C., said she was pleased with the one-over par 76 she added to her earlier 78. "I feel I've got something going now," she said, then went to the practice tee to continue working on her game.

"This is a rough course," said Miss Whitworth, who has fired a 77 each of the two days. "Just one hole out there can change the entire picture."

Ferraris Make Clean Sweep at Sebring

By STANLEY M. BROWN
United Press International

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — The bellowing red cars of Ferrari, pushed to record-shattering speeds by America's gallant Cobras, swept the first three places Saturday night in the gruelling 12-hour Sebring auto race.

Lodovico Scarfiotti and Nino Vacarella of Italy brought home the second car, with defending champion John Surtees and Lorenzo Bandini in the third Ferrari.

But the Ford-powered Cobras of Carroll Shelby, making their greatest effort, captured fourth, fifth and sixth and took the big grand touring class championship away from Ferrari for the first time since the class was run here seven years ago.

So great was the Cobra threat that the Ferraris, their exhaust pipes belching flames in the darkness as they geared down at the curves, broke both the race speed record and the lap record.

Parkes winning time was about 92 miles an hour, more than a mile an hour better than the old record. And John Surtees, who held the lead in most of the daylight hours, lifted the lap record to 100.537 mph, breaking the 100 mark for the first time in the 14 years of this race, one of the world's four most important for sports cars.

The Daytona Cobra coupe, driven by U. S. road racing champ Bob Holbert and Dave McDonald, took fourth place, five laps behind the lead Ferrari, and an A C Cobra driven by Lew Spencer of Thousand Oaks, Calif., and another Californian, Bob Bondurant, was in fifth.

In sixth was an A C Cobra entered by Ford of France and driven by French champion Jo Schlesser and former world champion Phil Hill.

The best production Ferraris could do was seventh place behind the Cobras. That was the North American racing team's Berlinetta, driven by David Piper of London and Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico City. Rodriguez led in the early laps of the race in a prototype Ferrari, but its engine packed up and he switched to the Berlinetta.

The Cobras' only hope of stopping the Ferraris, the A C Cobra of Dan Gurney and Bob Johnson, fell victim to a wobbling Alfa Romeo in the last hour and ended in flames under the Mercedes Bridge.

The lead Cobra, driven at the time by Johnson, struck a crippled Alfa Romeo on the pit straight, overturning the Alfa and exploding it. Its driver, Carlo Sanesi of Italy, escaped with minor burns.

Johnson's streaking blue car hurtled on, but got only a few thousand yards before the damage took its toll and he had to abandon it, scorched, under the bridge.

Michigan Tops DU in Hockey Finals

By LOUDON KELLY
Associated Press Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Michigan won the NCAA Hockey Championship Saturday by beating Denver 6-3 in as blistering a game as ever was played in the DU Arena.

The big Wolverines from the Big Ten grabbed a 3-0 lead early and then threw up an inspired defense against the rallying home team.

It was the seventh national championship for Michigan in the 17 years of the tournament and its first since 1956.

Denver, trailing throughout the game, closed the gap at 4-3 at the midway point of the last period. Michigan then took command again and added two goals in the last four minutes of action.

The victory was sweet revenge for the Wolverines who a week ago were beaten by Denver 6-2 in the finals of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

Rensselaer earlier Saturday won the consolation championship 2-1 over Providence.

Nearly 18 minutes passed before there was any score. Michigan center Wilfred Martin flicked in the puck from the right side after goalie Buddy Blom stopped an earlier shot but could not clear it.

Wakabayashi hammered home the second goal from dead center 10 feet out at 2:19 of the second period. A minute later, the Wolverines ran the score to 3-0 on Cole's shot off a lightning pass that faked the Denver goalie and defense completely.

But for the rest of the second period the offensive shifted to Denver. Billy Staub scored the Pioneers' first tally and Ron Livingstone whipped one in through a tangle of players at 17:24 to leave Michigan holding a slender one-point edge at the rest period.

BATTLE OF THE BEST — University of Michigan and University of Denver hooked up in the championship game for NCAA honor in Denver, Saturday night. On this play Michigan goalie Bob Gray who turned back 15 shots in the first period, has just stopped another Denver shot by Myles Gillard (10). In position for possible rebound is Denver's Marv Henning (10), while Tom Polonic of Michigan has Henning covered on the play. (AP Wirephoto)

Rensselaer Nips Providence

DENVER (AP)—Pete Russel scored both goals Saturday as Rensselaer nipped Providence 2-1 for consolation honors in the National Collegiate Hockey Tournament.

It was the rubber meeting of the Eastern teams, as each had beaten the other once this season, both times by a one-goal margin.

Providence opened the scoring with Grant Heffernan's goal at 7:55 of the first period.

The game remained deadlocked until four minutes from the end when Rensselaer launched a three-man attack. Goalie Bob Bellmore came out to block the first shot, then Russel grabbed the loose puck for the rebound that won the game.

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

Percentage Baseball

A guy with a somewhat faded memory of what it's like to play and who has traded his bat and spikes for one of those fancy adding machines that manipulates digits with the dexterity of Sandy Koufax flinging strikes, has come up with something many have been howling for years.

The game of baseball is played all wrong.

* * *

The difference between this guy and the rest of us who have bemoaned the failures of the game is that he advocates not a change in the format to put new zip into the archaic, erstwhile national pastime, but rather he seems to have constructive criticism of the way it's handled.

BOBBY BRAGAN

* * *

Earnshaw Cook had his ideas published in the most recent issue of Sports Illustrated, the widely-red slick sheet which oft delves more into the offbeat subjects of under-water fashions and the tribulations of coaching tiddly-winks rather than what most of us have become accustomed to regarding as the major sports of the world.

It was actually a condensation of his book, Percentage Baseball, which could be a flop or sensation, depending on the reliability of his figures.

What this Einstein of the basepaths has done is review just about every incident that happened in the major leagues, over the past 100 years or so, and then he has fed them into his handy dandy calculator to come up with a set of figures he believes controls the game.

For instance, he has devised what he calls the K-2 factor which rates the decisions made by management, especially in the close game that could be won by either team. This is a combination of one-run games, clutch hitting, men left on base and the calls by the managers. And, as suspected, the Yankees have a low factor (that's good) and such teams as the White Sox and Minnesota Twins are high (that's not so good).

In somewhat of a surprise to many, Cook calculates that there isn't as much difference between the National and American Leagues as some would lead you to believe. The difference, he says, is that the AL has inbalance among its teams while the NL is even down the line.

Another shocker in his numbers game is that the World Champion Dodgers would have finished fourth in the American League behind the Yanks, White Sox and Twins. His excuse for the World Series is that seven games (or four in last year's case) are not enough to prove a better team .

Besides this K-2 factor, the other corner stones of Cook's theory are what he calls a Scoring Index and his table of scoring chances under different situations. The Index takes into account all the aspects of a batter's play (hits, stolen bases, total bases, walks, etc.) instead of mere batting averages, and the scoring chances table has been devised by probability from the past.

Here's the way he rates the all time players according to the Index: 1. Ty Cobb 2. Babe Ruth 3. Ted Williams 4. Lou Gehrig 5 Mickey Mantle 6. Jimmy Foxx, etc. Not much argument there.

Chances of Scoring

Outs	0	1	2
At Bat	.1589	.1140	.0684
From 1st	.4276	.2871	.1391
From 2nd	.5976	.4505	.2561
From 3rd	.6972	.5355	.3153

From this, Cook has authored four general rules for managers which he says will bring in 250 more runs over a major league season's schedule. Or in other words, he thinks this plan could produce a pennant winner from a .500 club.

The rules . . . .

1. Never sacrifice. The reasoning here is that, according to his figures on the chance of scoring in relation to number of outs, is that the odds of coming home from second with one out are only two per cent better than from first with none away. Then, noting that even the worst hitters get on base once out of four times it would be necessary to complete the sacrifice nearly every time just to come out even. The sacrifice from second to third even lowers the odds.

Instead, Cook would have teams stealing at every opportunity as this maneuver (even is successful only 60 per cent of the time) would up the chances of scoring considerably. He also goes for the hit-and-run play to advance the runner.

2. Use the "Bobby Bragan" lineup. That is, try the system used by Bragan as an experiment when he was with Pittsburgh, a last place team that year. The idea is to simply place batters in order of their ability, or the best hitter first instead of traditionally in third or clean-up. The second best hitter is next, and so on.

The idea is that only in the first inning can the manager control the order his batters will appear as the final out of the previous inning can come anywhere in the lineup. Thus, you could easily have the clean-up hitter batting first or anyplace after the first inning. The first few batters in the lineup will have more chances in any game, so the best should come first.

3. Don't platoon hitters. Cook says stay with the top eight batters, determined according to his Index, and stay with them. That is, unless the manager has made another Index to see how certain players react against right or left handers. He objects to whimsical shifting by managers.

4. Platoon pitchers. This point has brought forth the most protest from managers as they feel it simply won't work — without a staff of a couple dozen.

But Cook's plan is to start a relief pitcher and let him go the first two or three innings, or until his turn at bat comes up. Then insert a regular "starter" and allow him about five frames but only once "at-bat." And pitchers should never hit for themselves in the late innings, especially if the game is close.

Naturally, there are those who will think Cook's as nutty as a squirrel's pantry, but he may also have some solid thinking in several of his points.

Baseball's best have agreed with him on the sacrifice, and the switch from tradition in the lineup seems to make sense. As for the pitchers plan, there may be too many problems to be practical. But one thing's for sure, if it would speed up the game by changing between innings instead of going thru the long warmups in the middle it would certainly help the game.

Cook's numbers are strictly for the major leaguers and he does not calculate the odds for college or high school games in which there is much more chance of mental mistakes and physical error. However, to some extent the same principles hold true on any level and who knows, it might be worth a try.

Michigan Downs K-State For Third Place, 100-90

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Burly Bill Buntin, a 6-foot-7 frontliner, led Michigan's injured Wolverines to a 100-90 conquest over Kansas State and third place in the NCAA basketball championships Saturday night.

Buntin got 33 points and with sophomore Oliver Darden dominated the backboards for Michigan in the opener. Buntin clinched it with a three-point play, putting the Wolverines ahead 93-86 with 2:59 to go.

The Wolverines, apparently troubled by the loss of sophomore sensation Cazzie Russell, nursing an injured ankle, struggled through 13 ties and 15 occasions on which the lead changed hands. Then little Bobby Centrell hit on a long jump shot to put them ahead to stay at 67-65 midway through the last half.

St. Mary's Whacks Falcons

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)— Frank Koehler slugged a home run in the fourth inning Saturday to lead St. Mary's University to a 6-1 victory over Air Force.

Three Falcon pitchers gave up 10 hits and the Air Force committed two errors after Koehler's homer and a two-bagger by Walter Stein, the winning pitcher.

Two wild pitches by Allen McClure of the Air Force with the bases loaded in the sixth inning further padded the Rattlers' lead.

Bruins Blitz Rally Tops Duke, 98-83

By JACK BRANNAN
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— UCLA's ball-hawking Bruins broke from behind with 16 points in less than three minutes Saturday night and went on to blitz Duke 98-83 for the NCAA basketball championship.

In winning its 30th consecutive game this season, UCLA became only the third team in 26 years to go undefeated all the way to the national title and also broke the 10-year-old championship game scoring record of 92 points, set in 1954 by La Salle.

Michigan, the nation's second-ranked team behind top-ranked UCLA in the final United Press International rating, whipped Kansas State 100-90 for third place prior to the championship game played before a record municipal auditorium crowd of 10,864.

Gail Goodrich, a 6-foot-1 starting guard, and a substitute guard, Kenny Washington, scored 53 points between them to pace UCLA to its first NCAA championship. Goodrich got eight of his 27 points during a 2:30 period late in the first half when UCLA came from three points behind and into a 13-point lead with 16 consecutive points.

That scoring burst broke open a game that had been tied eight times with the lead changing hands six times during the first 12 minutes.

Washington, a 6-foot-3 forward, fueled UCLA's pace in the second half with 21 points and finished with a total of 26. He scored seven points in a row during a 1:10 period in the final half as UCLA forged its biggest margin of the contest at 18 points.

Despite a big height disadvantage, UCLA outfought Duke off the backboards, beating the Atlantic Coast Conference champions 31-16 in rebounding during the first half alone. The final rebounding was UCLA's 51-44.

Although seven inches shorter than Duke's center-forward combination of Jay Buckley and Hack Tison, Washington led the rebounders with 12 and teammate Doug McIntosh had 11. Jack Marin, a 6-foot-6 Duke forward, paced his team off the boards with 10 and Buckley had nine.

Jeff Mullins, Duke's leading scorer, maintained his usual pace with 22 points Saturday night but fouled out with 6:05 remaining. Buckley had 18 points.

UCLA's all-America guard, Walt Hazzard, directed the Bruins record-breaking attack, making eight assists and 11 points before going to the bench with 6:14 left in the game.

Western Open in Deadlock

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—The temperature dropped and scores soared Saturday as Betsy Rawls and Kathy Whitworth came out of the second round of the Women's Western Golf Tournament with a first-place tie at 154.

Winds gusted to 25 and 30 miles per hour as a cold front moved into North Florida and sweaters and slacks replaced shorts and blouses on the rolling, Scenic Hills Country Club course.

First-round leader Ruth Jessen, who was two under women's par with her opening day 73, ran into a demoralizing pine tree and shot an 83, which put her into a tie for fourth place.

The thermometer was expected to read about 40 when the players take the field at 7 a.m. CST for a scheduled 36 holes of golf Sunday. The double round was forced when rain canceled Thursday's opening.

Miss Rawls, of Spartanburg, S.C., said she was pleased with the one-over-par 76 she added to her earlier 78. "I feel I've got something going now," she said, then went to the practice tee to continue working on her game.

"This is a rough course," said Miss Whitworth, who has fired a 77 each of the two days. "Just one hole out there can change the entire picture."

Ferraris Make Clean Sweep at Sebring

By STANLEY M. BROWN
United Press International

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — The bellowing red cars of Ferrari, pushed to record-shattering speeds by America's gallant Cobras, swept the first three places Saturday night in the gruelling 12-hour Sebring auto race.

Lodovico Scarfiotti and Nino Vacarella of Italy brought home the second car, with defending champion John Surtees and Lorenzo Bandini in the third Ferrari.

But the Ford-powered Cobras of Carroll Shelby, making their greatest effort, captured fourth, fifth and sixth and took the big grand touring class championship away from Ferrari for the first time since the class was run here seven years ago.

So great was the Cobra threat that the Ferraris, their exhaust pipes belching flames in the darkness as they geared down at the curves, broke both the race speed record and the lap record.

Parkes' winning time was about 92 miles an hour, more than a mile an hour better than the old record. And John Surtees, who held the lead in most of the daylight hours, lifted the lap record to 100.537 m.p.h., breaking the 100 mark for the first time in the 14 years of this race, one of the world's four most important for sports cars.

The Daytona Cobra coupe, driven by U. S. road racing champ Bob Holbert and Dave McDonald, took fourth place, five laps behind the lead Ferrari, and an A. C. Cobra driven by Lew Spencer of Thousand Oaks, Calif., and another Californian, Bob Bondurant, was in fifth.

In sixth was an A. C. Cobra entered by Ford of France and driven by French champion Jo Schlesser and former world champion Phil Hill.

The best production Ferraris could do was seventh place behind the Cobras. That was the North American racing team's Berlinetta, driven by David Piper of London and Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico City. Rodriguez led in the early laps of the race in a prototype Ferrari, but its engine packed up and he switched to the Berlinetta.

The Cobras' only hope of stopping the Ferraris, the A.C. Cobra of Dan Gurney and Bob Johnson, fell victim to a wobbling Alfa Romeo in the last hour and ended in flames under the Mercedes Bridge.

The lead Cobra, driven at the time by Johnson, struck a crippled Alfa Romeo on the pit straight, overturning the Alfa and exploding it. Its driver, Carlo Sanesi of Italy, escaped with minor burns.

Johnson's streaking blue car hurtled on, but got only a few thousand yards before the damage took its toll and he had to abandon it, scorched, under the bridge.

Michigan Tops DU in Hockey Finals

By LOUDON KELLY
Associated Press Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Michigan won the NCAA Hockey Championship Saturday by beating Denver 6-3 in as blistering a game as ever was played in the DU Arena.

The big Wolverines from the Big Ten grabbed a 3-0 lead early and then threw up an inspired defense against the rallying home team.

It was the seventh national championship for Michigan in the 17 years of the tournament and its first since 1956.

Denver, trailing throughout the game, closed the gap at 4-3 at the midway point of the last period. Michigan then took command again and added two goals in the last four minutes of action.

* * *

Michigan's Japanese center, Mel Wakabayashi, and Jack Cole scored two goals each for the new champions.

* * *

The victory was sweet revenge for the Wolverines who a week ago were beaten by Denver 6-2 in the finals of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

* * *

Rensselaer earlier Saturday won the consolation championship 2-1 over Providence.

Nearly 18 minutes passed before there was any score. Michigan center Wilfred Martin flicked in the puck from the right side after goalie Buddy Blom stopped an earlier shot but could not clear it.

Wakabayashi hammered home the second goal from dead center 10 feet out at 2:19 of the second period. A minute later, the Wolverines ran the score to 3-0 on Cole's shot off a lightning pass that faked the Denver goalie and defense completely.

But for the rest of the second period the offensive shifted to Denver. Billy Staub scored the Pioneers' first tally and Ron Livingstone whipped one in through a tangle of players at 17:24 to leave Michigan holding a slender one-point edge at the rest period.

BATTLE OF THE BEST — University of Michigan and University of Denver hooked up in the championship game for NCAA honor in Denver, Saturday night. On this play Michigan goalie Bob Gray who turned back 15 shots in the first period, has just stopped another Denver shot by Myles Gillard (10). In position for possible rebound is Denver's Marv Henning (10), while Tom Polonic of Michigan has Henning covered on the play. (AP Wirephoto)

Rensselaer Nips Providence

DENVER (AP)—Pete Russel scored both goals Saturday as Rensselaer nipped Providence 2-1 for consolation honors in the National Collegiate Hockey Tournament.

It was the rubber meeting of the Eastern teams, as each had beaten the other once this season, both times by a one-goal margin.

Providence opened the scoring with Grant Heffernan's goal at 7:55 of the first period. At 12:06 of the second period Russel scored on a 50-foot goal.

The game remained deadlocked until four minutes from the end when Rensselaer launched a three-man attack. Goalie Bob Bellmore came out to block the first shot, then Russel grabbed the loose puck for the rebound that won the game.

Billy Kidd Cops Men's Slalom; Miss Saubert Tops Among Gals

WINTER PARK, Colo. (AP) —Jean Saubert of Lakeview, Ore., successfully defended a skiing title for the second time in two days Saturday posting the best time of any U.S. entrant in the giant slalom event at the National Alpine Championships.

Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., won first place in the men's competition.

Miss Saubert actually was beaten by Pia Riva of Italy who is not eligible for the national title because she is not a United States citizen.

U.S. Olympians again took most of the top places, but did not quite repeat Friday's bearishment.

James Barner Russell, Mont., skiing for the Army, edged into fourth place in the men's race and Virginia Bemiss of Mt. Shasta, Calif., was fourth in women's competition. Neither was in the Olympic squad.

Kidd won the two-mile men's giant slalom over a route he described as so fast it was almost like the downhill. He beat Jim Heuga by two-tenths of a second with his winning time of 1:53.7.

Kidd and Miss Saubert were the United States two silver medal winners in skiing events at the Winter Olympics.

But Werner last year's national giant slalom champion, lost his title to Kidd, but his third place run in 1:54.9 along with a third in the downhill put him in a good position for a spot at the combined championship if his time is fast in Sunday's slalom. Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., won the combined last year.

Miss Saubert switched positions Saturday with Miss Riva who had been second to the American girl in the downhill.

The 21-year-old Oregon skier lost to Miss Riva by six-tenths of a second in the giant slalom. Miss Saubert's time was 1:42.3 for the mile - long women's course.

Another U.S. Olympian Jean Hanna of Franconia, N.H., was officially second with a time of 1:44.1. Third place was won by Miss Bernadette [illegible]

Broncos-Jets Make Big Player Trade in AFL

NEW YOR K (AP)—The New York Jets sent five players to the Denver Broncos in exchange for four Saturday in a trade believed to be the biggest ever made in the American Football League.

Weeb Ewbank, the Jets coach said Wahoo McDaniel, a middle linebacker from Oklahoma University, was the key man in the trade and that the rest of the deal grew out of the Jets efforts to get him.

The Jets also received Gerry Holz, defensive tackle; Bob Zeman, all-AFL safety man in 1962, and Gene Prebola, a tight end. All four players have been in the AFL four seasons and were Denver regulars last year.

Denver got two Jet regulars, guard Ad Fournet and defensive tackle Charley Janerette. Jim Price, an outside linebacker who played regularly part of the 1963 season; Dick Guesman, defensive tackle and placekicker who was New York's leading scorer last season, and Ed Cooke, a linebacker and defensive end.

McDaniel, 26 years old and weighing 240 pounds, is expected to fill a weak spot in the Mets defense.

"As far as we are concerned, he was the key player. We needed help on defense and were willing to give up some older players to get it," Ewbank said. "I also think Holz will do a better job for us than Janerette."

Holz, who played college football at Minnesota, is five years older than Janerette, a Penn State product. Each weighs 260. Zeman and Prebola both are 26. Prebola, who played at Boston University and lives in West New York, N.J., wanted to play in the East. He is considered a good blocker and pass receiver.

In addition to Janerette and Guesman, who kicked nine field goals and 30 conversions for New York last season, the Broncos received two players who may strengthen their outside defense. They are Price, a second-year pro from Auburn, and Cooke, who has had six pro seasons after leaving the University of Maryland.

Fournet, a 31-year-old, 240-pound guard from Louisiana State, will be playing his eighth pro season.

Bradley Dumps Lobos for NIT Crown

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Bradley's Braves, combining Joe Strawder's all-around play with an aggressive, ball - hawking defense, rambled to a surprisingly easy 86-54 basketball victory over bewildered New Mexico Saturday afternoon for their third National Invitation Tournament championship.

* * *

The Braves previously won the NIT in 1957 and 1960. St. John's is the only other team with three titles.

Army finished third despite Barry Kramer's sparkling performance, nipping NYU 60 - 59 on Mike Silliman's jump shot with eight seconds left.

* * *

Strawder, a 6-foot - 9 senior, completely dominated his expected battle with New Mexico's Ira Harge. Harge a 6-foot-8 senior, got into foul trouble early in the first half and fouled out with 12:37 left after scoring just eight points.

* * *

The Lobos went into the game with one of the best defenses in the nation, having allowed only 56.2 points per game. Bradley, playing in its 11th NIT, quickly took care of that.

* * *

The Braves, who finished third in the Missouri Valley Conference behind Wichita and Drake, turned the game into a rout early in the second half, scoring almost at will, after holding a 33-22 halftime advantage.

Bradley's hustling defense completely frustrated New Mexico's attack. The Lobos were unable to get loose for good shots and at times couldn't even take bad ones.

They sank only six of 24 field goal attempts in the first half and didn't score a field goal for 10 minutes, from 10:18 to go to 19 seconds left. They also went without a point for four minutes in that stretch.

The second - seeded Braves and New Mexico, seeded fourth and co-champion of the Western Athletic Conference, battled evenly for the first 10 minutes.

Then Eddie Jackson and Bobby West got hot, scoring 14 points between them. That helped take the Braves from a 14-12 deficit to a 30-17 lead, their biggest margin in the first half.

Levern Tart, 6-foot - 2 senior, was named the tournament's most valuable player. He scored 54 points in three games.

Bradley finished the season with a 23-6 record. The loss was the worst of the season for the Lobos, who wound up winning 23 and losing six. Four of their regular season losses were by a total of seven points. The other was by eight points.

In the Army-NYU game, Barry Kramer's 28-point performance was offset by Silliman's crucial jump shot.

Silliman scored 16 seconds after he had fouled Kramer, whose two free throws put the Violet ahead 59-58. Silliman scored 20 points altogether for the Cadets.

Army Topples NYU For Consolation Title

By TIM MORIARTY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Army's dogged basketball team overcame a scintillating second half performance by New York University's Barry Kramer to edge the Violets, 60-59, on a one-hander by Mike Silliman with five seconds remaining in their consolation game in the National Invitation Tournament.

Kramer, the greatest scorer in NYU history who was playing his final college game, tossed in 13 of the Violets' last 14 points in the final 10 minutes but it was not enough. His final two free throws with 24 seconds remaining gave NYU a 59-58 lead.

Army then called a timeout and when play resumed the Cadets set up Silliman, who unleashed his one-hander from the right of the foul circle to give the Cadets their most satisfying victory of the season.

BYU, which beat Army by 20 points during the regular season, got into foul trouble in the first half of their rematch. Stan McKenzie and Happy Hairston picked up four fouls while Kramer and Bob Patton drew three each in the first 20 minutes.

The Cadets took full advantage at the charity line — converting 22 of 27 free throws to forge a 43-40 edge at halftime. Silliman, who finished the game with 24 points, dropped in nine of 11 free throws during the first half.

Davis, Koper Tie for Spot On NCAA Team

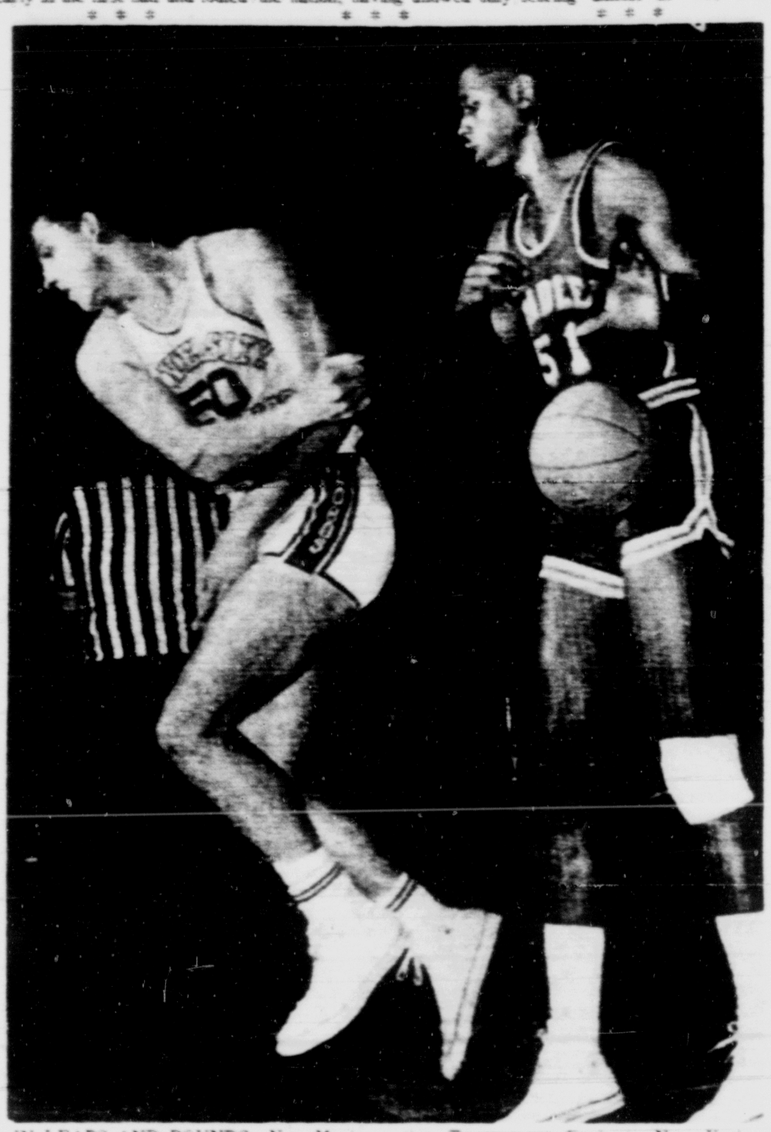
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Jim Davis of Colorado and Bud Koper of Oklahoma City tied Saturday for a spot on the District 5 National Collegiate Athletic Association all - star basketball team.

The team was selected by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. Others on the District 5 first team were Ron Bonham of Cincinnati, Dave Stallworth of Wichita, Willie Murrell of Kansas State and Paul Silas of Creighton.

Mets Lose Anderson For One Month

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—New York Mets right-hander Craig Anderson will be lost to the team for approximately one month with a fractured right hand it was learned Friday.

Anderson, who recorded an 8-2 record with the Mets last season, was struck on the hand by an Ed Rakow pitch Thursday while attempting to bunt in an exhibition game against Detroit.



IN LEAPS AND BOUNDS—New Mexico's Bob Zarr (50) taps the ball backward as he heads out of bounds during Saturday's action in the National Invitation Tournament finals in New York. Near ball is Joe Strawder (51) of Bradley. Bradley won the NIT crown with an 86-54 victory over New Mexico. (AP Wirephoto)

Clay Voted Pro Athlete Of the Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—World Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay was a runaway winner in the February voting for the 15th annual S. Rae Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year award announced Saturday.

Clay, who has adopted the name of Muhammed Ali, scored a startling knockout victory over Sonny Liston last month to win the world crown. As a result, he was awarded 55 first-place ballots and a total of 185 points in the Hickok voting conducted among the nation's sports writers and sportscasters.

The winners of the 12 monthly polls are eligible at the end of the year for another balloting to determine the recipient of the $10,000 diamond-studded gold-buckled belt that goes outright to the winner. Football player Keith Lincoln of the San Diego Chargers won the monthly award for January.

Hearings for Liston-Clay Pre-Fight Negotiations Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Saturday announced three days of hearings next week on pre-fight contract negotiations between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston which he denounced as "hardly calculated to promote public confidence in the boxing business."

Hart, chairman of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, referred to reports that before the recent Miami Beach fight in which Clay won Liston's world heavyweight title, "a corporation owned by Liston and his associates made an agreement to control Clay's next bout in case Clay became champ."

Hart said the subcommittee also "might want to see whether underworld figures have actually been run out of the boxing business."

The hearings are scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Neither Clay nor Liston will testify, Hart said, because "a preliminary inquiry indicates their testimony would add little to an understanding of the circumstances."

Liston's manager, Jack Nilon of Chester, Pa., and Liston's associates in Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc., were included in the list of witnesses announced by Hart as was Gordon B. Davidson, attorney for the Louisville, Ky., group backing Clay.

Hart announced the inquiry shortly after Clay's upset title win over Liston. The subcommittee is considering legislation to set up a national boxing commissioner. The bill originally was proposed by late Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., whom Hart succeeded as subcommittee chairman. It followed 1960 hearings in which Liston was warned to get rid of underworld connections if he wanted a title shot.

Gun Bow Wins Gulfstream Park Race

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Gedney Farm's Gun Bow, holding some of his front running speed in reserve, withstood the furious stretch charge of Admiral Vic Saturday to win the $116,600 Gulfstream Park Handicap.

The California champion, rated just right by jockey Bill Shoemaker, finished the mile and one-quarter in sloppy mud by a decreasing one and one-quarter length over Admiral Vic from Sunny Blue Farm. The 50-1 chance, Louis Wolfson's Garwol, finished third another four and one - quarter lengths back.

However, Gulfstream stewards disqualified Admiral Vic and moved the little black horse to third behind Garwol for interference in the stretch.

Shoemaker, often accused of having a clock in his head because of his ability to judge pace, sent Gun Bow to the front and put him on the rail right after the barrier opened. "The fastest gun from the West" took over and never lost command.

Gun Bow ran the mile and one-quarter in 2:01.4 minutes, two seconds over the track record, to pick up his fourth stakes victory of the year.

The victory was worth $76,000 and ran Gun Bow's total earnings to $288,097.

Chieftain Cops Governor's Gold Cup Race

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Chieftain, the Kentucky Derby-Preakness hope of Raymond Guest, Long Island sportsman, moved a muddy seven furlongs in 1:26 to win the $75,000-added Governor's Gold Cup on Bowie race course's snow-marred closing-day program Saturday.

Working in ankle-deep goo under 124 pounds, Chieftain under Bill Hartack won by 1¼ lengths over Reginald N. Webster's Nation, the early leader.

The favorite in the seven-horse field of leading 3-year-old colts, Chieftain earned $53,950 for his New York owner and returned $4.60, $2.80 and $2.20.

A heavy snow fell during the running of the race before 16,428 fans.

Yanks Get Revenge From World Series Flop; Down Dodgers, 5-3

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The New York Yankees got a measure of revenge Saturday for their four straight defeats in the 1963 World Series by downing the Los Angeles Dodgers and their ace pitcher Sandy Koufax, 5-3

Roger Maris, third man up in the first inning, clouted a home run with Bobby Richardson on first for the two runs that put the Yanks ahead to stay

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla (AP)—Ron Hunt, Bob Taylor and Frank Thomas lashed out three hits each in the 17-hit attack that gave the New York Mets an 8-1 exhibition baseball victory Saturday over the Chicago White Sox

It was the third spring victory for the Mets, who have lost four games and tied one. It was the fourth setback in six games for the White Sox, whose lone run in the eighth inning was their first in 25 innings

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves battled uphill for 12 innings in an exhibition baseball game Saturday before downing the Minnesota Twins "A" team 9-8 on a one-out sacrifice fly by rookie infielder Lee Bales

The Braves spotted the Twins a 6-0 lead in the first two innings as Harmon Killebrew belted his first homer of the exhibition season with two on and Earl Battey added a solo homer.

Ft. Myers, Fla. (AP) — Julio Gotay doubled in the winning run in the 14th inning Saturday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 exhibition baseball victory over the Cincinnati Reds

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — The Houston Colts rapped out 19 hits off three Minnesota pitchers and received unexpected aid from rookie outfielder Jeff Talbott Saturday in beating the Twins "B" team 17-1

Talbott's four errors in right field let in six Houston runs. He dropped two fly balls and let two base hits get through him.

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Jim Bunning and Ryne Duren combined on a two-hitter Saturday in pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 exhibition baseball victory over the Washington Senators.

Bunning worked the first six innings and was touched for a line single by Don Blasingame and an infield hit by Dick Phillips in the first inning. He then retired 16 batters in a row before turning over a 4-0 lead to Duren. Duren allowed two walks in the last three innings.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) —A three-run third inning carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-2 exhibition victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday

Bill White singled home two runs against Bob Anderson in the third and the final run crossed on a wild pitch. Anderson worked the first four innings and gave up six of the Cardinals' seven hits.

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Despite two homers and a single by Phil Gagliano, the St. Louis Cardinals lost a 12 inning exhibition baseball game Saturday to the Baltimore Orioles 4-3

Because the Redbirds split their varsity into squads of equal strength to play two games at the same time — the other group beat Kansas City at Bradenton 3-1—the odd doubleheader left St. Louis with a record of seven victories in nine spring games

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) —The rampaging San Francisco Giants made it eight exhibition wins in a row Saturday, bombing the Los Angeles Angels 10-1 before an overflow crowd of 4,105, including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Juan Marichal, allowing only one hit in five innings, was the winning pitcher. The loss went to Dean Chance, who was touched for 10 hits and seven runs in five frames.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Catcher Bob Tillman drove in four runs with a home run and a double and Bill Monbouquette pitched five-hit ball for seven innings to spark the Boston Red Sox to a 10-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday

The Indians got their run in the fifth inning when Joe Azcue doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Jerry Walker's bunt

T-Birds Win First Two Contests

Defeat Pirates, Rebels With Late-Inning Scores

EVERYBODY DANCE — Wasson's Hal Meller and Leroy Kennedy of Englewood appear to be trying a new dance step in action from the Saturday morning game at Memorial Field. Actually Meller is launching a slide into third to complete a successful theft of the base while third-sacker Kennedy is just spearing the throw from a teammate. Wasson won 5-4 on a seventh inning run and later defeated South Denver by an identical score. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Wasson's thrifty Thunderbirds made the most of late inning opportunities Saturday to snatch a pair of come-from-behind victories from highly-regarded Northern opponents in a busy opening day of baseball

The T-Birds picked up a 5-4 win over Englewood in a late morning contest at Memorial Park and then were forced nine innings before defeating South Denver by an identical score at Wasson Field in the afternoon

Junior Frank Baird wrote the climax in the opener by slapping a two-out single between short and third that sent Clay Chambers zipping across home plate with the winning run. In the afternoon edition, catcher Hal Meller cracked his fourth single of the contest to drive in Jim Smith with the tie-breaking tally before South Denver could retire a batter in the bottom of the ninth

Coach Gib Funk who watched the majority of his star-packed lineup from the past two seasons vanish at graduation last spring, used 18 different players in the two contests in a search for what will eventually become his set lineup

Altho the 'Birds obviously lack the overpowering pitching and long ball hitting of the past two years, Saturday's pair of games indicated that Funk has another unit that will be difficult to defeat. The pitching staff appears to have depth and altho the team experienced erratic moments in the field typical of early-season play, the Wasson defense supported the hurlers with five twin killings over the two contests

Senior Clay Chambers who saw limited action in relief roles a year ago profited heavily from his knack for late-inning stints Saturday. The side-arming righthander was credited with both victories after hurling the final two frames of the Englewood contest and then coming on in relief to strike out the side in the ninth inning of the South Denver battle

Both Wasson starters, veteran Bob Kochis and transfer-student Bob Torrio, had their problems. Kochis had a strong first three innings against Englewood but tired quickly and the Pirates eventually rapped him for nine hits in his five frames. Only in the fourth could they score however, and then only twice

Torrio was also hit freely in his five innings as the Reds raked him for seven safeties and all four of their runs. After retiring the first five batters, South hopped him for four straight singles and three tallies in the second inning but did little serious damage thereafter

Most impressive of the first day hurlers, aside from the keenly - competitive Chambers, was a southpaw transfer from Germany, Al Maynard. The skinny portsider took over from Torrio and blanked third three innings, allowing only one hit. Even tho he had only limited work to date, his ball appeared to be moving more than the one thrown by either of the starters. Funk eventually lifted him in favor of Chambers after his control began wandering at the start of the ninth

Meller, the first-string receiver at a year ago, had the best day offensively. He collected a pair of doubles to the outfield fence in the Memorial Park contest and then followed with four singles in the afternoon game. Lanky John Scales had three hits in the opener and added one in the nightcap

The T-Birds also displayed their usual dauntless game on the baselaths, stealing 11 bases during the two games. The first one by Chambers had a band of two unearned runs with the T-Birds picked up on Englewood in the first frame of that game. Wasson took a 3-0 lead in the third on a double by Meller, two free passes to Chambers and a passed ball by Englewood catcher Kochis. Two hits and a pair of runs in the fourth

The Pirates then took the lead on two unearned tallies off Chambers in the sixth to set the stage for Baird's game-winning heroics in the seventh. His hit came after Chambers had reached second on a two-base throwing error and advanced to third on a balk.

Wasson trailed 3-0 in the afternoon game before using two stolen bases, a pair of errors, Smith's single, and a two-run double by Baird to deadlock the count in the bottom of the third. South then picked up an unearned tally off Torrio in the fifth, forcing Wasson to tie the score again with a single run in the seventh.

Meller drove that one in and then followed with his clinching belt to center field on his next trip. Smith had opened the bottom of the ninth with a walk and swiped second before Meller came on with his winning blow.

The compact first day action was the last for Wasson for a week. The T-Birds vacation next week before opening defense of their South Central League title against East in Pueblo next Saturday.

Casper Grabs Doral Tourney Lead

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Billy Casper burning up the course with the putter which made him famous, shot a five-under-par 32-35—67 Saturday to grab the third-round lead in the $50,000 Doral Invitational golf tournament with a total of 207

Casper, despite a bogey on the 18th hole where he was bothered by a photographer and three-putted, jumped one shot in front of young Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex., who had 36-36—72, while Jack Nicklaus shot a 73 to fall two shots off the pace

Tied with Nicklaus at 209, seven under par, were Bob Shave Jr. of Willoughby, Ohio, with a 38-35—73 and Jack Rule Jr. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, with a four-under-par 33-35—68

Arnold Palmer, struggling to recapture the touch which made him the king of the fairways, had little luck as he fired 36-37—73 for a 217 which left him 10 shots behind Casper

Survives Cut

However, Palmer survived the cut to the low 60 and ties for Sunday's final round. Losing out by shooting over the 220 cut mark were such as Art Wall, Tony Lema, Bob Goalby, Doug Ford, Don Fairfield, and Jerry Barber

Nicklaus, Baxter and Shave were tied for the lead starting Saturday's third round, which was interrupted at one point for 50 minutes by heavy rain. But they finished in bright sunshine but could not withstand Casper's onrush

Slammin' Sammy Snead, one stroke back as the third round started, shot a 36-37—73 for a 210 which tied him with 50-year-old Joe Lopez Sr. of Key West, Fla. Lopez shot a 35-37—72. The disgusted Snead moaned, "I just can't make a putt over 15 feet. If I ever do, I'll jump into the hole with the ball."

LUCKY STICK?

DENVER (AP) — When the Denver Invaders of the Western Hockey League held a "shoot a goal" contest between periods, a fan, Bob Nelson, asked to borrow forward Lou Jankowski's stick.

Nelson hammered the puck into the net and collected the $25 prize. He returned the stick to Jankowski, who went scoreless for the night

Colts Sign Young Slugger

HOUSTON (UPI)—Roy Bethle, a 17-year-old power hitter from the Bahama Islands, has been signed by the Houston Colts.

Bethle, a 6-2 180-pound outfielder, will be sent to the Class A Statesville club of the Western Carolina League

CSU Line Coach Takes Delaware Job

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)— Bill Craver, line coach at Colorado State University for two years, is quitting to become head football coach at Delaware Valley College, Doylestown, Pa.

Bob Davis, CSU director of athletics, said Craver will take the new post April 1. No successor has been named here.

Craver said he would take with him Doug York, a lineman at CSU in 1961 and 1962 and coach of the red shirt squad last season

Craver is a 1952 graduate of University of Delaware and was assistant at Dartmouth four years before coming to Colorado

Wasson Athletes Get Letters

Coach Dick Westbay awarded 10 letters in basketball, including three to juniors. John Wickham, captain of this year's team, was the only squad member to receive a second letter. Other seniors in addition to Wickham who received monograms are Ron Nighswonger, Bob Jones, John Eastlack, Mike Teague, Clay Chambers, and Tom Stanley. Junior lettermen are Charlie Steel, Jim Smith, and Mike Martin. In addition manager's letters went to Bob Hutton, his second, and Bob Blackett and Darell Dougherty.

Coach Harry Whitworth awarded 10 hockey letters. Seniors Jim Berthrong, Keith Crouch, Jack Leeman, Bill Mitchell, and Glen Richter all received third awards. A second year letter went to senior Dave Miller and first letters to senior Bill McClelland, junior Bruce Mahanke, and sophomores Tom Braun and Mike Johnston.

A total of 17 letters were awarded to members of the swimming team, which wound up second in the state meet.

Coach Ed McVehil presented third letters to seniors Scott Brown, Charles Burton, and Bruce Wacker. Second letters went to seniors Royce Foster, Walter Hooker, Ron Page, and juniors Warren Flaherty and Charles Hammett. First year letters were awarded to seniors Rod Stoneburner and Bruce Teschner, juniors Jerry Gray and Mike Gwin, and sophomores Robert Gibson, Marshall Griffith, Malcolm Jewell, and Mike Vinson. Gary Williams received a manager's letter.

Breeding, Johnson Shine for Tribe

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The brilliant relief pitching of sophomore Phil Johnson and the timely pinch-hitting of senior Don Breeding paved the way to a 4-1 victory for the Palmer High baseball team over visiting Englewood in Saturday afternoon's season opener for both squads.

One game certainly doesn't make a season, and the road ahead is seldom like an asphalt highway in the always tough South Central League, but the Terrors had bright spots in their debut that justified their ranking as a definite contender in this year's race.

The one point that stuck out on Saturday was the combined job of three Palmer hurlers in limiting the usually sweet-swinging Pirates to only one hit. That was a relatively harmless single in the third inning off starter Tom Medlicott and the Tribe escaped unmarked in the frame.

Englewood scored its only run in the fourth on a wild pitch with the bases loaded, thrown by reliefer Ted Jones, who lasted less than a full inning because of control problems. The same fate, a couple walks, led to Medlicott's departure.

The best of the lot, including Englewood's touted Mike Wegener, was crafty free-wheeling Johnson who finished up the last three innings for the winners. Only one pitch was hit out of the infield against the Palmer newcomer and he registered two strikeouts in picking up the victory.

Should Jones come around to the form he had last season as a regular starter, Coach Jerry Hughes could definitely have one of the better clubs in the South Central this spring. The Terrors will get right to work on the pennant chase with an SCL opener next Saturday with Pueblo Centennial, and they'll have a non-league warm up in between against Air Academy High this Wednesday afternoon.

The real hero of this weekend, tho, was Breeding, one of the co-captains of last fall's Palmer football team as a guard, but a relative newcomer to the baseball lineup. With the bases jammed via a single, error and a walk, Breeding was inserted in place of catcher Larry Williams and he slashed a double into left-center that rolled past the fielders and all the way to the wall at Memorial Park

That sent in Chuck Reinking, who started the big inning with a single. Don Shoffner, who had reached first on an error by the Pirates, and first sacker Jerry Golden who had taken four balls. Breeding later was caught in the only double play of the game as he was caught off third after a snatched liner to short but he had done his damage by then

Until Breeding's game-winning double, the game had been a 1-1 affair with Englewood knotting the count with the wild-pitch score in the fourth

Palmer had opened with a single run in the first inning, coming after the season's first rhubarb — which officially kicked the lid for baseball in the area. Between two strikeouts, Reinking had singled to left and was going for second on a pitch to Golden. It turned out to be the fourth ball and a free trip for Golden, but the Englewood players thought it to be a strike-out and when catcher Floyd Winslow pegged to second in time to beat Reinking the Pirates figured the inning was over.

However, the umpire had to motion the visitors back onto the field as they trotted toward their dugout, and in the meantime the alert Reinking flew around third and in for an apparent score. Since the entire Englewood team had vacated the diamond after Reinking was tagged at second, Reinking was brought back to second. But on the next play he came in anyway with Williams tagging an RBI single to left.

In both the third and fourth Englewood threatened to bust it open, but in the case of the former a couple of nifty fielding plays cut off the lead runners and a strikeout by Medlicott ended the frame. In the fourth, Jones' wild pitch took care of one of the runners with the bases loaded and Reinking handled two ground balls easily to stop the threat.

Johnson, a side-winding right hander, took over in the fifth after two had walked off Jones, but he caught one runner in a run-down and forced the other two to ground out. In the last two innings he put down the Pirates in order.

Team Spirit Wins Steeplechase

AINTREE, England (AP) — American-owned Team Spirit got up in almost the last stride Saturday and won the Grand National Steeplechase by one-half length from Purple Silk in a breath-taking finish to the first victory for the United States since 1938.

Team Spirit, owned jointly by Leo K. Goodman of Tucson, Ariz., Ron Woodard of Indianapolis and Gamble North of Chicago, was in fourth place over the last of the 30 jumps.

Then, well-ridden by Irishman Willie Robinson, Team Spirit came with a tremendous burst on the 494-yard run-in, caught Purple Silk almost on the post and went on to win.

It was Team Spirit's sixth try in the National. Last year the 12-year-old bay gelding by Vulgan out of Lady Walewska finished fourth over the turf course of four miles, 856 yards.

Team Spirit was an 18-1 betting shot in the field of 33 starters. Purple Silk was 100-6 and Peacetown, who finished six lengths behind Purple Silk in third place, was a 40-1 shot.

Eternal was fourth as only 15 of the 33 starters finished.

The 123rd running of the race carried the first Irish Sweepstakes of the season—a betting lottery that totaled $14 million in receipts this year. The 22 winners collected $140,000 each.

Team Spirit's victory was worth $56,784 to the American syndicate.

The last American horse to win the National was another little one—about the same size as Team Spirit. His name was Battleship, owned by Marion Scott du Pont Battleship, the son of the world famous Man o' War, won in 1938.

Team Spirit won in 9 minutes, 47 seconds over the turf course made soft by rains—well outside Golden Miller's record of 9:20.4 set by in 1938.

Yanks Get Revenge From World Series Flop; Down Dodgers, 5-3

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The New York Yankees got a measure of revenge Saturday for their four straight defeats in the 1963 World Series by downing the Los Angeles Dodgers and their ace pitcher, Sandy Koufax, 5-3.

Roger Maris, third man up in the first inning, clouted a home run with Bobby Richardson on first for the two runs that put the Yanks ahead to stay.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Ron Hunt, Bob Taylor and Frank Thomas lashed out three hits each in the 17-hit attack that gave the New York Mets an 8-1 exhibition baseball victory Saturday over the Chicago White Sox.

It was the third spring victory for the Mets, who have lost four games and tied one. It was the fourth setback in six games for the White Sox, whose lone run in the eighth inning was their first in 25 innings.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves battled uphill for 12 innings in an exhibition baseball game Saturday before downing the Minnesota Twins "A" team 9-8 on a one-out sacrifice fly by rookie infielder Lee Bales.

The Braves spotted the Twins a 6-0 lead in the first two innings as Harmon Killebrew belted his first homer of the exhibition season with two on and Earl Battey added a solo homer.

Ft. Myers, Fla. (AP) — Julio Gotay doubled in the winning run in the 14th inning Saturday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 exhibition baseball victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — The Houston Colts rapped out 19 hits off three Minnesota pitchers and received unexpected aid from rookie outfielder Jeff Talbott Saturday in beating the Twins "B" team 17-1.

Talbott's four errors in right field let in six Houston runs. He dropped two fly balls and let two base hits get through him.

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Jim Bunning and Ryne Duren combined on a two-hitter Saturday in pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 exhibition baseball victory over the Washington Senators.

Bunning worked the first six innings and was touched for a line single by Don Blasingame and an infield hit by Dick Phillips in the first inning. He then retired 16 batters in a row before turning over a 4-0 lead to Duren. Duren allowed two walks in the last three innings.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) —A three-run third inning carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-2 exhibition victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday.

Bill White singled home two runs against Bob Anderson in the third and the final run crossed on a wild pitch. Anderson worked the first four innings and gave up six of the Cardinals' seven hits.

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Despite two homers and a single by Phil Gagliano, the St. Louis Cardinals lost a 12 inning exhibition baseball game Saturday to the Baltimore Orioles 4-3.

Because the Redbirds split their varsity into squads of equal strength to play two games at the same time — the other group beat Kansas City at Bradenton 3-1—the odd doubleheader left St. Louis with a record of seven victories in nine spring games.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) —The rampaging San Francisco Giants made it eight exhibition wins in a row Saturday, bombing the Los Angeles Angels 10-1 before an overflow crowd of 4,105, including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Juan Marichal, allowing only one hit in five innings, was the winning pitcher. The loss went to Dean Chance, who was touched for 10 hits and seven runs in five frames.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Catcher Bob Tillman drove in four runs with a home run and a double and Bill Monbouquette pitched five-hit ball for seven innings to spark the Boston Red Sox to a 10-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

The Indians got their run in the fifth inning when Joe Azcue doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Jerry Walker's bunt.

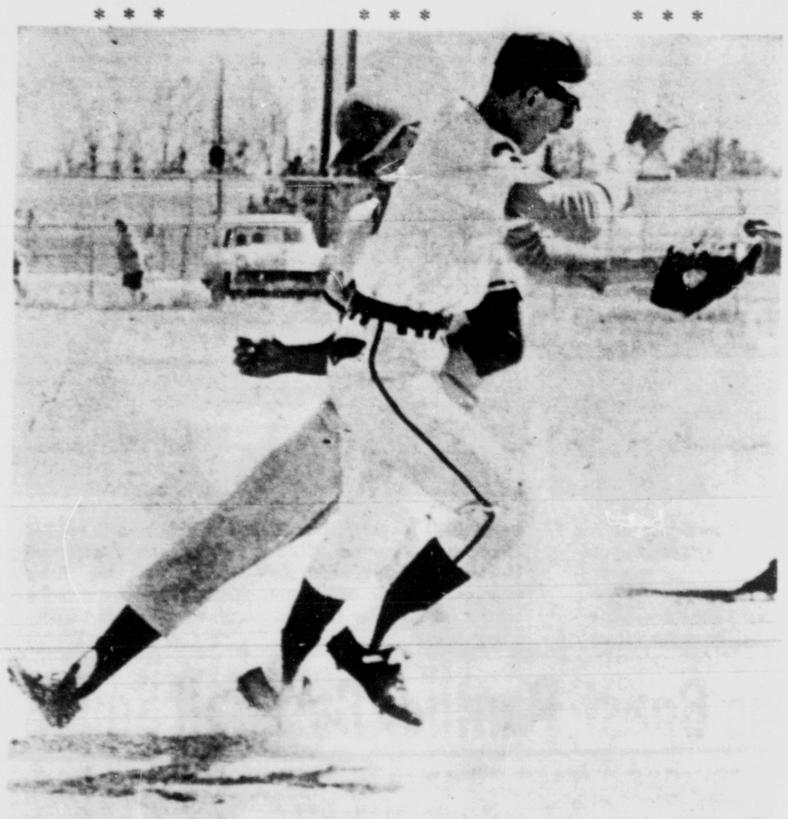
T-Birds Win First Two Contests

Defeat Pirates, Rebels With Late-Inning Scores



EVERYBODY DANCE — Wasson's Hal Meller and Leroy Kennedy of Englewood appear to be trying a new dance step in action from the Saturday morning game at Memorial Field. Actually Meller is launching a slide into third to complete a successful theft of the base while third-sacker Kennedy is just spearing the throw from a teammate. Wasson won 5-4 on a seventh inning run and later defeated South Denver by an identical score. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Wasson's thrifty Thunderbirds made the most of late inning opportunities Saturday to snatch a pair of come-from-behind victories from highly-regarded Northern opponents in a busy opening day of baseball.

The T-Birds picked up a 5-4 win over Englewood in a late morning contest at Memorial Park and then were forced nine innings before defeating South Denver by an identical score at Wasson Field in the afternoon.

Junior Frank Baird wrote the climax in the opener by slapping a two-out single between short and third that sent Clay Chamebrs zipping across home plate with the winning run. In the afternoon edition, catcher Hal Meller cracked his fourth single of the contest to drive in Jim Smith with the tie-breaking tally before South Denver could retire a batter in the bottom of the ninth.

Coach Gib Funk, who watched the majority of his star-packed lineup from the past two seasons vanish at graduation last spring, used 18 different players in the two contests in a search for what will eventually become his set lineup.

Altho the 'Birds obviously lack the overpowering pitching and long-ball hitting of the past two years, Saturday's pair of games indicated that Funk has another unit that will be difficult to defeat. The pitching staff appears to have depth and altho the team experienced erratic moments in the field, typical of early-season play, the Wasson defense supported the hurlers with five twin killings over the two contests.

Senior Clay Chambers, who saw limited action in relief roles a year ago, profited heavily from his knack for late-inning stints Saturday. The side-arming righthander was credited with both victories after hurling the final two frames of the Englewood contest and then coming on in relief to strike out the side in the ninth inning of the South Denver battle.

Both Wasson starters, veteran Bob Kochis and transfer-student Bob Torrio, had their problems. Kochis had a strong first three innings against Englewood but tired quickly and the Pirates eventually rapped him for nine hits in his five frames. Only in the fourth could they score, however, and then only twice.

Torrio was also hit freely in his five innings as the Rebels raked him for seven safeties and all four of their runs. After retiring the first five batters, South hopped him for four straight singles and three tallies in the second inning but did little serious damage thereafter.

Most impressive of the first day hurlers, aside from the keenly - competitive Chambers, was a southpaw transfer from Germany, Al Maynard. The stocky portsider took over from Torrio and breezed thru three innings, allowing only one hit. Even tho he has had only limited work to date, his ball appeared to be moving more than the one thrown by either of the starters. Funk eventually lifted him in favor of Chambers after his control began wandering at the start of the ninth.

Meller, the first-string receiver a year ago, had the best day offensively. He cracked a vicious double to the left-field fence in the Memorial Park contest and then followed with four singles in the afternoon game. Lanky John Scales had three hits in the opener and added one in the nightcap.

The T-Birds also displayed their usual dauntless game on the basepaths, stealing 11 bases during the two games. The first one, by Chambers, had a hand in two unearned runs which the T-Birds picked up off Englewood in the first frame of that game. Wasson took a 3-0 lead in the third on a double by Meller, his theft of third, and a passed ball but Englewood rapped Kochis for five hits and a pair of runs in the fourth.

The Pirates then took the lead on two unearned tallies off Chambers in the sixth to set the stage for Baird's game-winning heroics in the seventh. His hit came after Chambers had reached second on a two-base throwing error and advanced to third on a balk.

Wasson trailed 3-0 in the afternoon game before using two stolen bases, a pair of errors, Smith's single, and a two-run double by Baird to deadlock the count in the bottom of the third. South then picked up an unearned tally off Torrio in the fifth, forcing Wasson to tie the score again with a single run in the seventh.

Meller drove that one in and then followed with his clinching belt to center field on his next trip. Smith had opened the bottom of the ninth with a walk and swiped second before Meller came on with his winning blow.

The compact first day action was the last for Wasson for a week. The T-Birds vacation next week before opening defense of their South Central League title against East in Pueblo next Saturday.

Casper Grabs Doral Tourney Lead

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Billy Casper, burning up the course with the putter which made him famous, shot a five-under-par 32-35—67 Saturday to grab the third-round lead in the $50,000 Doral Invitational golf tournament with a total of 207.

Casper, despite a bogey on the 18th hole where he was bothered by a photographer and three-putted, jumped one shot in front of young Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex., who had 36-36—72, while Jack Nicklaus shot a 73 to fall two shots off the pace.

Tied with Nicklaus at 209, seven under par, were Bob Shave Jr. of Willoughby, Ohio, with a 38-35—73 and Jack Rule Jr. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, with a four-under-par 33-35—68.

Arnold Palmer, struggling to recapture the touch which made him the king of the fairways, had little luck as he fired 36-37—73 for a 217 which left him 10 shots behind Casper.

Survives Cut

However, Palmer survived the cut to the low 60 and ties for Sunday's final round. Losing out by shooting over the 220 cut mark were such as Art Wall, Tony Lema, Bob Goalby, Doug Ford, Don Fairfield, and Jerry Barber.

Nicklaus, Baxter, and Shave were tied for the lead starting Saturday's third round, which was interrupted at one point for 50 minutes by heavy rain. But they finished in bright sunshine but could not withstand Casper's onrush.

Slammin' Sammy Snead, one stroke back as the third round started, shot a 36-37—73 for a 210 which tied him with 50-year-old Joe Lopez Sr. of Key West, Fla. Lopez shot a 35-37—72. The disgusted Snead moaned, "I just can't make a putt over 15 feet. If I ever do, I'll jump into the hole with the ball."

Colts Sign Young Slugger

HOUSTON (UPI)—Roy Bethle, a 17-year-old power hitter from the Bahama Islands, has been signed by the Houston Colts.

Bethle, a 6-2, 180-pound outfielder, will be sent to the Class A Statesville club of the Western Carolina League.

LUCKY STICK?

DENVER (AP) — When the Denver Invaders of the Western Hockey League held a "shoot a goal" contest between periods, a fan, Bob Nelson, asked to borrow forward Lou Jankowski's stick.

Nelson hammered the puck into the net and collected the $25 prize. He returned the stick to Jankowski, who went scoreless for the night.

CSU Line Coach Takes Delaware Job

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)—Bill Craver, line coach at Colorado State University for two years, is quitting to become head football coach at Delaware Valley College, Doyletown, Pa.

Bob Davis, CSU director of athletics, said Craver will take the new post April 1. No successor has been named here.

Craver said he would take with him Doug York, a lineman at CSU in 1961 and 1962 and coach of the red shirt squad last season.

Craver is a 1952 graduate of University of Delaware and was assistant at Dartmouth four years before coming to Colorado.

Wasson Athletes Get Letters

Coach Dick Westbay awarded 10 letters in basketball, including three to juniors. John Wickham, captain of this year's team, was the only squad member to receive a second letter. Other seniors in addition to Wickham who received monograms are Ron Nighswonger, Bob Jones, John Eastlack, Mike Teague, Clay Chambers, and Tom Stanley. Junior lettermen are Charlie Steel, Jim Smith, and Mike Martin. In addition manager's letters went to Bob Hutton, his second, and Bob Blackett and Darell Dougherty.

Coach Harry Whitworth awarded 10 hockey letters. Seniors Jim Berthrong, Keith Crouch, Jack Leeman, Bill Mitchell, and Glen Richter all received third awards. A second year letter went to senior Dave Miller and first letters to senior Bill McClelland, junior Bruce Mahanke, and sophomores Tom Braun and Mike Johnston.

A total of 17 letters were awarded to members of the swimming team, which wound up second in the state meet.

Coach Ed McVehil presented third letters to seniors Scott Brown, Charles Burton, and Bruce Wacker. Second letters went to seniors Royce Foster, Walter Hooker, Ron Page, and juniors Warren Flaherty and Charles Hammett. First year letters were awarded to seniors Rod Stoneburner and Bruce Teschner, juniors Jerry Gray and Mike Gwin, and sophomores Robert Gibson, Marshall Griffith, Malcolm Jewell, and Mike Vinson. Gary Williams received a manager's letter.

Breeding, Johnson Shine for Tribe

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The brilliant relief pitching of sophomore Phil Johnson and the timely pinch-hitting of senior Don Breeding paved the way to a 4-1 victory for the Palmer High baseball team over visiting Englewood in Saturday afternoon's season opener for both squads.

One game certainly doesn't make a season, and the road ahead is seldom like an asphalt highway in the always tough South Central League, but the Terrors had bright spots in their debut that justified their ranking as a definite contender in this year's race.

The one point that stuck out on Saturday was the combined job of three Palmer hurlers in limiting the usually sweet-swinging Pirates to only one hit. That was a relatively harmless single in the third inning off starter Tom Medlicott and the Tribe escaped unmarked in the frame.

Englewood scored its only run in the fourth on a wild pitch with the bases loaded, thrown by reliefer Ted Jones, who lasted less than a full inning because of control problems. The same fate, a couple walks, led to Medlicott's departure.

The best of the lot, including Englewood's touted Mike Wegener, was crafty free-wheeling Johnson who finished up the last three innings for the winners. Only one pitch was hit out of the infield against the Palmer newcomer and he registered two strikeouts in picking up the victory.

Should Jones come around to the form he had last season as a regular starter, Coach Jerry Hughes could definitely have one of the better clubs in the South Central this spring. The Terrors will get right to work on the pennant chase with an SCL opener next Saturday with Pueblo Centennial, and they'll have a non-league warm up in between against Air Academy High this Wednesday afternoon.

The real hero of this weekend, tho, was Breeding, one of the co-captains of last fall's Palmer football team as a guard, but a relative newcomer to the baseball lineup. With the bases jammed via a single, error and a walk, Breeding was inserted in place of catcher Larry Williams and he slashed a double into left-center that rolled past the fielders and all the way to the wall at Memorial Park.

That sent in Chuck Reinking, who started the big inning with a single, Don Shoffner, who had reached first on an error by the Pirates, and first sacker Jerry Golden who had taken four balls. Breeding later was caught in the only double play of the game as he was caught off third after a snatched liner to short, but he had done his damage by then.

Until Breeding's game-winning double, the game had been a 1-1 affair with Englewood knotting the count with the wild-pitch score in the fourth.

Palmer had opened with a single run in the first inning, coming after the season's first rhubarb — which officially kicked the lid for baseball in the area. Between two strikeouts, Reinking had singled to left and was going for second on a pitch to Golden. It turned out to be the fourth ball and a free trip for Golden, but the Englewood players thought it to be a strike-out and when catcher Floyd Winslow pegged to second in time to beat Reinking, the Pirates figured the inning was over.

However, the umpire had to motion the visitors back onto the field as they trotted toward their dugout, and in the meantime the alert Reinking flew around third and in for an apparent score. Since the entire Englewood team had vacated the diamond after Reinking was tagged at second, Reinking was brought back to second. But on the next play he came in anyway with Williams tagging an RBI single to left.

In both the third and fourth Englewood threatened to bust it open, but in the case of the former a couple of nifty fielding plays cut off the lead runners and a strikeout by Medlicott ended the frame. In the fourth, Jones' wild pitch took care of one of the runners with the bases loaded and Reinking handled two ground balls easily to stop the threat.

Johnson, a side-winding right hander, took over in the fifth after two had walked off Jones, but he caught one runner in a run-down and forced the other two to ground out. In the last two innings he put down the Pirates in order.

Team Spirit Wins Steeplechase

AINTREE, England (AP) — American-owned Team Spirit got up in almost the last stride Saturday and won the Grand National Steeplechase by one-half length from Purple Silk in a breath-taking finish — the first victory for the United States since 1938.

Team Spirit, owned jointly by John K. Goodman, of Tucson, Ariz., Ron Woodard of Indianapolis, and Gamble North of Chicago, was in fourth place over the last of the 30 jumps.

Then, well-ridden by Irishman Willie Robinson, Team Spirit came with a tremendous burst on the 494-yard run-in, caught Purple Silk almost on the post and went on to win.

It was Team Spirit's sixth try in the National. Last year the 12-year-old bay gelding by Vulgan out of Lady Walewska finished fourth over the turf course of four miles, 856 yards.

Team Spirit was an 18-1 betting shot in the field of 33 starters. Purple Silk was 100-6 and Peacetown, who finished six lengths behind Purple Silk in third place, was a 40-1 shot.

Eternal was fourth as only 15 of the 33 starters finished.

The 123rd running of the race carried the first Irish Sweepstakes of the season—a betting lottery that totaled $14 million in receipts this year. The 22 winners collected $140,000 each.

Team Spirit's victory was worth $56,784 to the American syndicate.

The last American horse to win the National was another little one—about the same size as Team Spirit. His name was Battleship, owned by Marion Scott du Pont. Battleship, the son of the world famous Man o' War, won in 1938.

Team Spirit won in 9 minutes, 47 seconds over the turf course made soft by rains—well outside Golden Miller's record of 9:20.4 set by in 1938.

The Pirates open their seven-meet scheduled on April 4 when they compete in the Pikes Peak Relays in the "A" division. Last year the Buccaneer tracksters finished in second place in the PP Relays behind Salida.

A bridesmaid in all the key meets last year finishing in the runner-up slot in the State Parochial and St. Mary's Relays. In both meets, the local squad was second to the Denver Parochial League perennial power in both football and basketball, Regis.

Although the Pirates will probably be weak in the sprints and hurdles, the St. Mary's team should field strong entries in the other events.

Sal Peralta has displayed early form which should give the Pirates strength in the 880. Kintz reports that the half-miler has already clocked under two minutes during practice runs.

Other returning lettermen include Jerry Knauf, Jimmy Palmer, Raymond Floyd, Mike Fisher, Cliff Clark, Albert Labar, Bruce Mangerich, and Mike Conway.

In the field events, Mangerich heads the broad jump contestants as the former footballer has recorded over 21 feet during practice jumps. Pole vaulter Labar has cleared 12 feet while Clark heads the weights. Clark has heaved the 12-pound shot 47 feet and should hit 50 feet this season. Conway is the lone veteran in the quarter-mile event.

Included in their agenda this season, the Pirates second outing is in the Centennial Relays in Pueblo, April 11; Colorado State University Relays, April 18; Colorado University Relays, April 25; St. Mary's Relays, May 9; and the State Parochial Meet, May 15.

In addition to assisting in football and head track coach, Kintz was also instrumental in starting St. Mary's first wrestling program last winter. The Pirate grapplers wrestled on an independent schedule with three matches.

Kintz said that this fall the Pirates would improve their wrestling program and should be able to compete on a higher level.

The track coach, Kintz, will also serve as boxing coach as St. Mary's boxers are planning for a match with Machebeuf, April 4. St. Mary's will also compete in the State Parochial Tourney at St. Joseph's gymnasium and will send a team of 10 fighters.

Iba, McLendon Offered AAU Coaching Jobs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry Hank Iba of Oklahoma State University and John McLendon of Kentucky State College have been offered the coaching positions on the U.S. National Basketball team that will play eight games in the Soviet Union this year, the National A.A.U. announced Saturday.

Iba, who will be head coach of the U.S. Olympic basketball team in October, also would be head coach of the team for the Soviet tour, the A.A.U. said.

The eight games, to be held between April 15 and May 5 were arranged by the A.A.U. on behalf of the U.S. State Department under the U.S.-Soviet Union amateur athletic exchange program. In addition, games are being arranged against national teams in Poland, Romania, France, and Italy for players who are able to remain in Europe after the Soviet tour.

Nine Veterans Boast Panther Baseball Squad

Ranson Weber, in his first term at Harrison, takes over the reigns of head baseball coach with a corps of nine returning lettermen including the Pikes Peak League's foremost hurler, Danny Gieck.

The Panthers launch their 1964 campaign when the Harrison aggregation journeys to Canon City for a twin-bill engagement in that latter's school annual baseball tournament, March 28.

Weber, who played college baseball at Bismarck Junior College and North Dakota State University, indicated that the Panthers will have a strong bull pen but will lack stick power. Gieck will head the pitching staff including transfer student Ervin Siedentroph, Gilbert McSheehy, Paul Colhet and Bill Johnson. Last season Gieck was the most consistent winner in PPL competition and the right-hander recorded 15 strikeouts against Widefield. During that game he fanned 11 Widefield batsmen in order.

In addition to his pitching, Gieck should be one of the leading hitters this season for the Harrison club.

The Panthers open their PPL slate when they host Florence, April 4. The league race, as usual, will be a single round competition among the six-team loop.

From early indications, the Panthers will have a rugged schedule ahead of them in the league chase trying to contain six-time PPL champion from Cheyenne Mountain and top challengers Air Academy High and Manitou Springs.

Okla. State, Iowa State Top Mat Teams

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Powerful Oklahoma State and Iowa State of the Big Eight are expected to dominate the 34th national collegiate wrestling tournament, which opens next Thursday in Cornell's Barton Hall.

About 240 grappers from 60 schools are expected to compete in 10 weight categories during the three-day NCAA championship meet.

Individual champions and runners-up automatically will qualify for the Olympic final tryouts at the New York World's Fair in August.

Oklahoma State, which is seeking its 24th team title, outscored Iowa State by 24 points in their conference tournament last week. But the two schools had fought to a 12-12 deadlock in a dual meeting.

Jack Flasche of Colorado State College will attempt to regain the 157-pound title he lost two years ago. He did not compete last year.

Ice Hockey All-America Teams Selected

DENVER (UPI) — Tom Eccleston of Providence was named coach of the year Saturday, and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and Michigan University each placed two men on the All-America teams selected by the American Hockey Coaches Association.

Eccleston, a school superintendent at Burrillville, R. I., in addition to his coaching duties, won the Spencer Penrose Memorial Trophy. His Providence team was knocked out of the finals of this weekend's NCAA hockey tournament earlier by Michigan.

RPI placed two men on the East All America team and Michigan had two men on the West squad selected by the coaches association.

The All-America squads:

East

Goaltender — Bob Perani, St. Lawrence.

Defense — Larry Kish, Providence; Dick Gree, Boston.

Center — Bob Brinkworth, RPI.

Wings — Gerald Knightley, Corby Adams, Clarkson.

West

Goaltender —Garry Bauman, Michigan Tech.

Defense — Tom Polonic, Michigan; Carl Lackey, Michigan State.

Center — Gordon Wilkie, Michigan.

Dressen Labels Tigers His Kind of Team

(EDITORS NOTE: This is another in a series of dispatches on the 1964 prospects patches on the 1964 prospects of the major league clubs.)

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Do-it-yourself Charlie Dressen went out and personally handpicked what he calls "my kind of team" with the result that he not only likes the new Detroit Tigers, but a lot of others do, too.

The last time Dressen managed his kind of team was 11 years ago with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Charlie won in a breeze that year, and although he does not try to make anyone believe the Tigers will this year, neither is he conceding a thing to the Yankees.

The Tigers made two major deals since finishing in a tie for fifth place last season, and Dressen was the fellow who called the shots both times.

He wanted a second baseman and got one when Detroit obtained Jerry Lumpe from Kansas City plus pitchers Ed Rakow and Dave Wickersham for Rocky Colavito.

He also wanted a long-ball hitting center fielder and got him, too, when the Tigers acquired Don Demeter from Philadelphia for pitcher Jum Bunning.

"Lumpe plugs our biggest hole," Dressen says. "He makes our entire infield better."

Charlie is equally delighted over Demeter.

"I know what he can do from seeing him with the Dodgers," says the popular little Detroit skipper. "He gives us another big bat in the line-up and makes us real strong down the middle."

Dressen, always a stickler for detail, points out that left-handed pitchers often handcuffed the Tigers last year. They should not so much this year with the addition of two good right-handed hitters like Demeter and Lumep.

Demeter batted only .259 for the Phillies but his real value to them was in his 22 homers and 83 runs batted in. Lumpe hit .271 for the Athletics while driving in 59 runs and contributing five homers.

Lumpe was the key man in the Tigers' deal with the A's but the two men who came over with him, Rakow and Wickersham, could figure to be almost as important. Rakow, who had a 9-10 record last year, will be a regular starter, and Wickersham, who had a 12-15 mark, will be used as both a starter and reliever.

If the season opened tomorrow, Dressen's starting infield would be Norm Cash at first base, Lumpe at second, Dick McAuliffe at shortstop and Don Wert at third base.

That is the way it probably also will be on April 14 when the Tigers actually open their season at home against the A's. The one change might be Bubba Phillips, who came to camp 15 pounds lighter this spring and has not conceded third base to Wert yet.

No matter what, Phillips will stick around as an extra man in the infield. So will unpredictable Jake Wood, who strikes out one time up, then turns around and jolts the ball over the left field fence. In Wood's favor, besides his propensity for the long ball, is the fact he can play first base, third base and left field as well as second base.

What is there to say about a man who hit .312 last year, drove in 101 runs, had 27 homers and played right field as if he had the mortgage all paid off on it?

Like Dressen says: "Name anyone better?"

Demeter, who took a turn at third base for the Phillies, will be in center field period. And Bill Bruton, who played the position for Detroit in 1963, has been shifted to left. Because he is 33, Bruton undoubtedly will need some rest, and fellows like 21-year-old Willie Horton, a real corner, and Wood will provide it.

Keep an eye on Horton. He is an eager-eyed, right-handed hitting swiftie who batted .333 at Knoxville last year, then hit .326 in 15 games when the Tigers brought him up near the end of the campaign. They like him so much they hesitate to let him sit on the bench. He could even take the left field job away from Bruton.

George Thomas and Gates Brown are the other outfielders, and Dressen may have a problem about cutting either. Thomas' value lies in that he can catch and play third as well as the outfield; Brown's in that he is the only left-handed hitting outfielder outside of Bruton.

Young Bill Freehan, who showed signs of becoming a real standout despite his modest .243 batting average last year, will be the first string catcher, and dependable Mike Roarke, who batted .318 in 23 games, will back him up.

Dressen says he is not the least bit worried about two of his players: Cash, who batted only .270 but had 26 homers and 79 RBI's, and veteran right-hander Frank Lary, who was forced to go back to the minors last year and had a 4-9 record during his time with the Tigers.

"Lary's arm trouble looks like it's over," Charlie says. "We're counting on him as a starter."

Dressen, however, is not counting on 34-year-old left-hander Don Mossi, who was 7-7 last year.

"That doesn't mean we have given up on him, though," Dressen adds. "He might come on and have a tremendous year."

Fraley's Fact, Figures

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI (UPI)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures from the Doral Invitational golf tournament.

The newest fairway gimmick tested by engineers at the Doral tournament was a closed circuit audio receiver in which Bill Fugazy, promoter of the second Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight, has an interest.

The device, known as "golfcaster," is a shoulder-strapped receiving set with an ear plug. Plans call for rental to golf spectators who can sit happily watching action on the 18th green while receiving reports from other sections of the course . . . and no noise to bother the putt-happy pros . . . .

What's in a name? Like in this tournament there's what you might call a real barbershop quartet composed of Barber (Jerry), Beard (Frank), Shave (Bog) and Balding (Al) . . . and how corny can a guy get . . . .

George Zaharias, who once wrestled under the title of "the weeping Greek from Cripple Creek," is an avid spectator. The former husband of Babe Didrickson snorts wrathfully at the memory of Sonny Liston losing the heavyweight championship of the world while sitting on the stool in his corner.

"If I was 10 years younger," growled the mountainous Zaharias, who is 55, "I'd whip both of them in the same night" . . . probably, too . . . .

George Mira, the University of Miami quarterback who was signed by the San Francisco Forty-Niners, says he "can't wait" until he reports to the pro grid ranks.

"Nobody makes it the first year and I don't think I'm any exception," he evaluates. "But it is a real challenge and after a couple of years I hope I can really make the grade . . . ."

George Low, the putting genius who bills himself as "America's guest," turned down a suggestion that he give one of the touring pros a putting lesson for 10 per cent of what the feller might win in the Doral.

"He," said Low with lordly disdain, "wouldn't give a duck a drink if he owned Lake Erie."

Eccleston Voted Hockey Coach of Year

Providence, winner of the ECAC championship this year, has a 19-5 record. The team is in Denver for the NCAA hockey championships at the University of Denver.

Conway is the lone veteran in the quarter-mile event.

Included in their agenda this season, the Pirates second outing is in the Centennial Relays in Pueblo, April 11; Colorado State University Relays, April 18; Colorado University Relays, April 25; St. Mary's Relays, May 9; and the State Parochial Meet, May 15.

In addition to assisting in football and head track coach, Kintz was also instrumental in starting St. Mary's first wrestling program last winter. The Pirate grapplers wrestled on an independent schedule with three matches.

Kintz said that this fall the Pirates would improve their wrestling program and should be able to compete on a higher level.

The track coach, Kintz, will also serve as boxing coach as St. Mary's boxers are planning for a match with Machebeuf, April 4. St. Mary's will also compete in the State Parochial Tourney at St. Joseph's gymnasium and will send a team of 10 fighters.

Iba, McLendon Offered AAU Coaching Jobs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry (Hank) Iba of Oklahoma State University and John McLendon of Kentucky State College have been offered the coaching positions on the U.S. National Basketball team that will play eight games in the Soviet Union this year, the National A.A.U. announced Saturday.

Iba, who will be head coach of the U.S. Olympic basketball team in October, also would be head coach of the team for the Soviet tour, the A.A.U. said.

The eight games, to be held between April 15 and May 5 were arranged by the A.A.U. on behalf of the U.S. State Department under the U.S.-Soviet Union amateur athletic exchange program. In addition, games are being arranged against national teams in Poland, Romania, France, and Italy for players who are able to remain in Europe after the Soviet tour.

Nine Veterans Boast Panther Baseball Squad

Ranson Weber, in his first term at Harrison, takes over the reigns of head baseball coach with a corps of nine returning lettermen including the Pikes Peak League's foremost hurler, Danny Gieck.

The Panthers launch their 1964 campaign when the Harrison aggregation journeys to Canon City for a twin-bill engagement in that latter's school annual baseball tournament, March 28.

Weber, who played college baseball at Bismarck Junior College and North Dakota State University, indicated that the Panthers will have a strong bull pen but will lack stick power. Gieck will head the pitching staff including transfer student Ervin Siedentroph, Gilbert McSheehy, Paul Collet and Bill Johnson. Last season Gieck was the most consistent winner in PPL competition and the right-hander recorded 15 strikeouts against Widefield. During that game he fanned 11 Widefield batsmen in order.

In addition to his pitching, Gieck should be one of the leading hitters this season for the Harrison club.

The Panthers open their PPL slate when they host Florence, April 4. The league race, as usual, will be a single round competition among the six-team loop.

From early indications, the Panthers will have a rugged schedule ahead of them in the league chase trying to contain six-time PPL champion from Cheyenne Mountain and top challengers Air Academy High and Manitou Springs.

Other lettermen back this year are John Therrell and Mike Gillilard, outfielders; Dick Crabtree and Lonnie Mayo, catchers; John Kohl, third base, Larry Mast, shortstop; Bill Doug, second base; and Tommy Slade, first base. Other non-lettermen battling for a starting berth include Harold Oldham, outfield; and Phis Casdos, first base.

Weber graduated from North Dakota last year and came to Harrison last fall to assist in football. A native of Fargo, N.D., Weber played first base during his college varsity days.

Okla. State, Iowa State Top Mat Teams

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Powerful Oklahoma State and Iowa State of the Big Eight are expected to dominate the 34th national collegiate wrestling tournament, which opens next Thursday in Cornell's Barton Hall.

About 240 grappers from 60 schools are expected to compete in 10 weight categories during the three-day NCAA championship meet.

Individual champions and runners-up automatically will qualify for the Olympic final tryouts at the New York World's Fair in August.

Oklahoma State, which is seeking its 24th team title, outscored Iowa State by 24 points in their conference tournament last week. But the two schools had fought to a 12-12 deadlock in a dual meeting.

Ice Hockey All-America Teams Selected

DENVER (UPI) — Tom Eccleston of Providence was named coach of the year Saturday, and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and Michigan University each placed two men on the All - America teams selected by the American Hockey Coaches Association.

Eccleston, a school superintendent at Burrillville, R. I., in addition to his coaching duties, won the Spencer Penrose Memorial Trophy. His Providence team was knocked out of the finals of this weekend's NCAA hockey tournament earlier by Michigan.

RPI placed two men on the East All America team and Michigan had two men on the West squad selected by the coaches association.

The All - America squads:

East

Goaltender — Bob Perani, St. Lawrence.

Defense — Larry Kish, Providence; Dick Gree, Boston.

Center — Bob Brinkworth, RPI.

Wings — Gerald Knightley, Corby Adams, Clarkson.

West

Goaltender —Garry Bauman, Michigan Tech.

Defense — Tom Polonic, Michigan; Carl Lackey, Michigan State.

Center — Gordon Wilkie, Michigan.

Dressen Labels Tigers His Kind of Team

(EDITORS NOTE: This is another in a series of dispatches on the 1964 prospects patches on the 1964 prospects of the major league clubs.)

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Do-it-yourself Charlie Dressen went out and personally handpicked what he calls "my kind of team" with the result that he not only likes the new Detroit Tigers, but a lot of others do, too.

The last time Dressen managed his kind of team was 11 years ago with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Charlie won in a breeze that year, and although he does not try to make anyone believe the Tigers will this year, neither is he conceding a thing to the Yankees.

The Tigers made two major deals since finishing in a tie for fifth place last season, and Dressen was the fellow who called the shots both times.

He wanted a second baseman and got one when Detroit obtained Jerry Lumpe from Kansas City plus pitchers Ed Rakow and Dave Wickersham for Rocky Colavito.

He also wanted a long-ball hitting center fielder and got him, too, when the Tigers acquired Don Demeter from Philadelphia for pitcher Jum Bunning.

"Lumpe plugs our biggest hole," Dressen says. "He makes our entire infield better."

Charlie is equally delighted over Demeter.

"I know what he can do from seeing him with the Dodgers," says the popular little Detroit skipper. "He gives us another big bat in the line-up and makes us real strong down the middle."

Dressen, always a stickler for detail, points out that left-handed pitchers often handcuffed the Tigers last year. They should not so much this year with the addition of two good right-handed hitters like Demeter and Lumep.

Demeter batted only .259 for the Phillies but his real value to them was in his 22 homers and 83 runs batted in. Lumpe hit .271 for the Athletics while driving in 59 runs and contributing five homers.

Lumpe was the key man in the Tigers' deal with the A's but the two men who came over with him, Rakow and Wickersham, could figure to be almost as important. Rakow, who had a 9-10 record last year, will be a regular starter, and Wickersham, who had a 12-15 mark, will be used as both a starter and reliever.

If the season opened tomorrow, Dressen's starting infield would be Norm Cash at first base, Lumpe at second, Dick McAuliffe at shortstop and Don Wert at third base.

That is the way it probably also will be on April 14 when the Tigers actually open their season at home aginst the A's. The one change might be Bubba Phillips, who came to camp 15 pounds lighter this spring and has not conceded third base to Wert yet.

No matter what, Phillips will stick around as an extra man in the infield. So will unpredictable Jake Wood, who strikes out one time up, then turns around and jolts the ball over the left field fence. In Wood's favor, besides his propensity for the long ball, is the fact he can play first base, third base and left field as well as second base.

What is there to say about a man who hit .312 last year, drove in 101 runs, had 27 homers and played right field as if he had the mortgage all paid off on it?

Like Dressen says: "Name anyone better?"

Demeter, who took a turn at third base for the Phillies, will be in center field period. And Bill Bruton, who played the position for Detroit in 1963, has been shifted to left. Because he is 33, Bruton undoubtedly will need some rest, and fellows like 21-year-old Willie Horton, a real comer, and Wood will provide it.

Keep an eye on Horton. He is an eager-eyed, right-handed hitting swiftie who batted .333 at Knoxville last year, then hit .326 in 15 games when the Tigers brought him up near the end of the campaign. They like him so much they hesitate to let him sit on the bench. He could even take the left field job away from Bruton.

George Thomas and Gates Brown are the other outfielders, and Dressen may have a problem about cutting either. Thomas' value lies in that he can catch and play third as well as the outfield; Brown's in that he is the only left-handed hitting outfielder outside of Bruton.

Young Bill Freehan, who showed signs of becoming a real standout despite his modest .243 batting average last year, will be the first string catcher, and dependable Mike Roarke, who batted .318 in 23 games, will back him up.

Dressen says he is not the least bit worried about two of his players: Cash, who batted only .270 but had 26 homers and 79 RBI's, and veteran right-hander Frank Lary, who was forced to go back to the minors last year and had a 4-9 record during his time with the Tigers.

"Lary's arm trouble looks like it's over," Charlie says. "We're counting on him as a starter."

Dressen, however, is not counting on 34 - year - old left-hander Don Mossi, who was 7-7 last year.

"That doesn't mean we have given up on him, though," Dressen adds. "He might come on and have a tremendous year."

Eccleston Voted Hockey Coach of Year

Providence, winner of the ECAC championship this year, has a 19-5 record. The team is in Denver for the NCAA hockey championships at the University of Denver.

Fraley's Fact, Figures

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI (UPI)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures from the Doral Invitational golf tournament:

The newest fairway gimmick tested by engineers at the Doral tournament was a closed circuit audio receiver in which Bill Fugazy, promoter of the second Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight, has an interest.

The device, known as "golfcaster," is a shoulder-strapped receiving set with an ear plug. Plans call for rental to golf spectators who can sit happily watching action on the 18th green while receiving reports from other sections of the course . . . and no noise to bother the putt-happy pros . . . .

What's in a name? Like in this tournament there's what you might call a real barbershop quartet composed of Barber (Jerry), Beard (Frank), Shave (Bog) and Balding (Al) . . . and how corny can a guy get . . . .

George Zaharias, who once wrestled under the title of "the weeping Greek from Cripple Creek," is an avid spectator. The former husband of Babe Didrickson snorts wrathfully at the memory of Sonny Liston losing the heavyweight championship of the world while sitting on the stool in his corner.

"If I was 10 years younger," growled the mountainous Zaharias, who is 55, "I'd whip both of them in the same night." . . . probably, too . . . .

George Mira, the University of Miami quarterback who was signed by the San Francisco Forty-Niners, says he "can't wait" until he reports to the pro grid ranks.

"Nobody makes it the first year and I don't think I'm any exception," he evaluates. "But it is a real challenge and after a couple of years I hope I can really make the grade . . . ."

George Low, the putting genius who bills himself as "America's guest," turned down a suggestion that he give one of the touring pros a putting lesson for 10 per cent of what the feller might win in the Doral.

"He," said Low with lordly disdain, "wouldn't give a duck a drink if he owned Lake Erie."

Custom Woodcraft Shop Moves Into New Building

Van Laningham Custom Woodcraft, which specializes in matching existing pieces of furniture, has moved into its new building at 1831 Mt. Washington The move was made necessary by the increasing demands for the firm's type of work

The new building is of block construction and contains approximately 4,000 square feet of floor space Mt Washington runs north and south from Somerlyn Road to Cheyenne Road, and angles from Cheyenne Road east to South Nevada Avenue at its intersection with Cheyenne Boulevard

Van Laningham specializes in all types of custom wood work including kitchen cabinets and furniture

One of the unique skills of the firm, which is owned and operated by D W Van Laningham, is that of matching or copying furniture styles and finishes to suit the needs of individual customers

An expensive bedroom suite, for example, which has been damaged by fire can be finished exactly like the original If one piece of the suite has been damaged Van Laningham has the experience and know-how to construct a new piece which exactly matches the style, construction and finish of the other pieces.

Customers wishing to add a piece of furniture or cabinet work to match other pieces will find that Van Laningham Custom Woodcraft can take care of this work for them

Van Laningham Custom Furniture has been in business in Colorado Springs for more than seven years He and his employes have a combined total of 5 years of experience in cabinetry and finishing

"Our policy," Van Laningham said, "is to give our customers what they want, built the way it should be built, and at an honest and fair price."

Residents of the area have been issued a special invitation to visit Van Laningham Custom Woodcraft and look over the materials and the type of work done by the firm

Where previously much of the custom work had to be done in the home, the firm now has sufficient space to do the actual construction and finish work in its own shop according to the specifications of the individual customer.

Before coming to Colorado Springs, Van Laningham was engaged in the store fixtures business in Nebraska.

Radioactivity Not Dangerous in State

DENVER (AP)— Radioactive fallout in Colorado never has approached any level of danger to human beings, Director Roy L. Cleere of the State Health Department assured the governor here

Cleere made the statement in answering a question by Gov. John A Love during presentation of a Certificate of Appreciation from the U.S. Public Health Service.

The presentation was made to Dr Cleere for Colorado's "outstanding contribution. . . to the successful operation of the nationwide radiation surveillance network."

Colorado has monitored fallout since 1954, taking daily readings on radioactivity in the air over Denver. The Colorado station is one of 72 located throughout the United States.

Business Diagnosis Fine, Likely to Get Better

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The economy got some supercharged shots in the arm during the week.

The diagnosis was that business is fine and likely to get better

General Motors Corp. injected new strength into the business bloodstream with the announcement that it will invest $2 billion in new plant and equipment in 1964 and 1965 In addition, it will spend $600 million on tooling for new models in each year

The February increase in nonfarm jobs was the largest rise in nearly two years.

The steel industry reported production and shipments at a booming rate.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co of New York had these observations "The economy, which during much of its convalescence from a mild 1960 chill fretted and fussed like the most nervous hypochondriac, now is acting like a patient finally convinced that he is solidly on the mend Confidence in the business outlook is stronger than at any time in the past four years

"The medicine that has made the difference appears to be a compound of several ingredients —among them tax reduction; good news from the retail counters, factory order desks and corporate board rooms, and the elixir of persistently rising stock prices."

Estimated its new facilities will provide 50,000 new jobs in the next two years.

The No. 1 automaker is aiming at an industry sales mark of 10 million passenger cars by 1970.

Lynn Townsend, president of Chrysler Corp., has predicted that sales this year will total a record 8 million, compared with 7.7 million in 1963.

The industry turned out its two-millionth car of the calendar year during the week. Passenger car production for the week totaled an estimated 165,500 units, compared with 164,448 the previous week and 155,688 a year ago.

The increase in jobs last month made a heartening dent in the persistent unemployment problem.

The nonfarm payroll rose 80,000 from January to 56 9 million, compared with the usual seasonal drop of 200,000. The increase was concentrated most heavily in construction and factory employment.

The steel industry boom, still picking up steam, is rivaling the pace of the peak years of the mid-1950s.

Production was running at an annual rate of 120 million tons, which would be 10 per cent ahead of the 1963 total of 109-million in 1962 and would top the 117-million record of 1955.

Steel production during the week racked up its 10th gain in 11 weeks, totaling 2,315,000 tons, up 3,000 from the previous week.

National Steel Corp. announced it will build "the steel mill of the future," combining three new processes controlled by automation, at Weirton, W Va

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production in February showed its biggest advance since last October and posted a record for the fifth straight month Its index rose to 127 6 per cent of the 1957-59 average

Woolworth Buys Record Amount Of Food in '63

Potatoes purchased from Colorado and other producing areas by the F. W. Woolworth Co. reached a record high in 1963 for the fourth straight year.

Purchases exceeded 16,000,000 pounds during the past year, said H. W. Bode, vice president of restaurant operations for the 85-year-old retail merchandise chain in a year-end report.

"It is Woolworth's policy to make purchases locally whenever possible," Bode said. "Local wholesalers and retailers benefit from this, as well as thousands of people in the state employed in production and distribution," he pointed out.

Woolworth now serves more than one million people each day through its 1,706 luncheonettes and 23 cafeterias, located in all 50 states, according to the report. Its facilities can seat 70,587 persons at one time. Woolworth is the largest purveyor of prepared food in the world.

Bode noted that Woolworth's food facilities served up more than 19 million hamburgers, 5,882,750 turkey dinners, 6,750,000 pieces of apple pie and 113 million cups of coffee last year

"Purchases during 1964 are expected to increase because of Woolworth's continuing expansion program," Bode said. "The company contemplates opening 64 new food facilities during the year, as well as enlarge and remodel others," he added.

Europe's Economy Due To Keep on Improving

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Europe's economy is due to keep on rising and so are the opportunities for American sales there. That is the happy prediction of American international bankers scanning the latest trade figures.

They also note that the United States sells much more to Europeans than it buys from them. With European production costs now on the way up, the markets look even better for the Yankee trader — unless European nations restore some of the old barriers against American goods.

Europe's Gross National Product should go up between four and five per cent a year through the rest of this decade in the view of economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York. And since the population growth will be less than one per cent a year, the rise in this value of total production of goods and services should mean an even faster increase in the standard of living in Europe than in the United States — in other words, larger markets overseas.

Rising costs of production and increased prices are already plaguing the European Common Market, economists at Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., New York, point out. The trend seems still higher.

For American producers this means less competition in many markets — those in Europe, in the rest of the world, and also here at home where foreign imports have been a problem for some industries

The six Common Market nations are France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. Their trade deficit with the United States was $2.5 billion in 1963. U.S. businessmen sold 13 per cent more goods there last year than they did in 1962, but in turn imported only five per cent more.

Production costs, and prices, have been rising fast in Europe. Since 1960 wage increases outran productivity gains by three to one in the manufacturing industries of some of the bigger industrial nations. Britain has had the same experience

Labor cost per unit of output has stayed about level in the United States between 1960 and 1963 while it was rising in France, Germany, Italy and in Great Britain.

But the continuing rise in their general economies leads the economists at the Chase Manhattan to predict that by 1970 the after-tax personal incomes of these industrial countries will rise enough to make ownership ratios of refrigerators, washing machines, and television sets comparable to those already in effect in the United States.

The bank also tells American businessmen to watch for another development: upgrading both in quality and size of the appliances Europeans can buy. This would bring the American models into better competitive range.

Cleere made the statement in answering a question by Gov. John A. Love during presentation of a Certificate of Appreciation from the U.S. Public Health Service.

The presentation was made to Dr. Cleere for Colorado's "outstanding contribution. . . to the successful operation of the nationwide radiation surveillance network."

Colorado has monitored fallout since 1954, taking daily readings on radioactivity in the air over Denver. The Colorado station is one of 72 located throughout the United States.

Local Man Wins Trip to Nassau For Self, Wife

John D. Sanford, local manager of Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. of Toronto, Canada, has been awarded an all-expense paid trip to Nassau in the Bahamas on the basis of high production standards and quality business.

He has also been made a member of the company's Senior Production Club.

Highlight of the Bahama cruise will be an educational conference at the Emerald Beach Hotel in Nassau, where delegates from several countries will be in attendance.

Sanford is a member of the local Association of Life Underwriters. He and Mrs. Sanford plan to join the cruise at Miami, Fla., on April 3, attend the conference and visit various points on the islands until their return April 13.

The Sanfords have a son and three daughters and reside at 810 N. 31st St.

Business Diagnosis Fine, Likely to Get Better

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The economy got some supercharged shots in the arm during the week.

The diagnosis was that business is fine and likely to get better.

General Motors Corp. injected new strength into the business bloodstream with the announcement that it will invest $2 billion in new plant and equipment in 1964 and 1965. In addition, it will spend $600 million on tooling for new models in each year.

The February increase in nonfarm jobs was the largest rise in nearly two years.

The steel industry reported production and shipments at a booming rate.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York had these observations: "The economy, which during much of its convalescence from a mild 1960 chill fretted and fussed like the most nervous hypochondriac, now is acting like a patient finally convinced that he is solidly on the mend. Confidence in the business outlook is stronger than at any time in the past four years.

"The medicine that has made the difference appears to be a compound of several ingredients —among them tax reduction; good news from the retail counters, factory order desks and corporate board rooms, and the elixir of persistently rising stock prices."

Estimated its new facilities will provide 50,000 new jobs in the next two years.

The No. 1 automaker is aiming at an industry sales mark of 10 million passenger cars by 1970.

Lynn Townsend, president of Chrysler Corp., has predicted that sales this year will total a record 8 million, compared with 7.7 million in 1963.

The industry turned out its two-millionth car of the calendar year during the week. Passenger car production for the week totaled an estimated 165,500 units, compared with 164,448 the previous week and 155,688 a year ago.

The increase in jobs last month made a heartening dent in the persistent unemployment problem.

The nonfarm payroll rose 80,000 from January to 56.9 million, compared with the usual seasonal drop of 200,000. The increase was concentrated most heavily in construction and factory employment.

The steel industry boom, still picking up steam, is rivaling the pace of the peak years of the mid-1950s.

Production was running at an annual rate of 120 million tons, which would be 10 per cent ahead of the 1963 total of 109 million in 1962 and would top the 117-million record of 1955.

Steel production during the week racked up its 10th gain in 11 weeks, totaling 2,315,000 tons, up 3,000 from the previous week.

National Steel Corp. announced it will build "the steel mill of the future," combining three new processes controlled by automation, at Weirton, W.Va.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production in February showed its biggest advance since last October and posted a record for the fifth straight month. Its index rose to 127.6 per cent of the 1957-59 average.

Woolworth Buys Record Amount Of Food in '63

Potatoes purchased from Colorado and other producing areas by the F. W. Woolworth Co. reached a record high in 1963 for the fourth straight year.

Purchases exceeded 16,000,000 pounds during the past year, said H. W. Bode, vice president of restaurant operations for the 85-year-old retail merchandise chain in a year-end report.

"It is Woolworth's policy to make purchases locally whenever possible," Bode said. "Local wholesalers and retailers benefit from this, as well as thousands of people in the state employed in production and distribution," he pointed out.

Woolworth now serves more than one million people each day through its 1,706 luncheonettes and 23 cafeterias, located in all 50 states, according to the report. Its facilities can seat 70,587 persons at one time. Woolworth is the largest purveyor of prepared food in the world.

Bode noted that Woolworth's food facilities served up more than 19 million hamburgers, 5,882,750 turkey dinners, 6,750,000 pieces of apple pie and 113 million cups of coffee last year.

"Purchases during 1964 are expected to increase because of Woolworth's continuing expansion program," Bode said. "The company contemplates opening 64 new food facilities during the year, as well as enlarge and remodel others," he added.

Europe's Economy Due To Keep on Improving

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Europe's economy is due to keep on rising and so are the opportunities for American sales there. That is the happy prediction of American international bankers scanning the latest trade figures.

They also note that the United States sells much more to Europeans than it buys from them. With European production costs now on the way up, the markets look even better for the Yankee trader — unless European nations restore some of the old barriers against American goods.

Europe's Gross National Product should go up between four and five per cent a year through the rest of this decade in the view of economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York. And since the population growth will be less than one per cent a year, the rise in this value of total production of goods and services should mean an even faster increase in the standard of living in Europe than in the United States — in other words, larger markets overseas.

Rising costs of production and increased prices are already plaguing the European Common Market, economists at Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., New York, point out. The trend seems still higher.

For American producers this means less competition in many markets — those in Europe, in the rest of the world, and also here at home where foreign imports have been a problem for some industries.

The six Common Market nations are France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. Their trade deficit with the United States was $2.5 billion in 1963. U.S. businessmen sold 13 per cent more goods there last year than they did in 1962, but in turn imported only five per cent more.

Production costs, and prices, have been rising fast in Europe. Since 1960 wage increases outran productivity gains by three to one in the manufacturing industries of some of the bigger industrial nations. Britain has had the same experience.

Labor cost per unit of output has stayed about level in the United States between 1960 and 1963 while it was rising in France, Germany, Italy and in Great Britain.

But the continuing rise in their general economies leads the economists at the Chase Manhattan to predict that by 1970 the after-tax personal incomes of these industrial countries will rise enough to make ownership ratios of refrigerators, washing machines, and television sets comparable to those already in effect in the United States.

The bank also tells American businessmen to watch for another development: upgrading both in quality and size of the appliances Europeans can buy. This would bring the American models into better competitive range.

Gem Linen Supply to Move To New Location Next Fall

Gem Linen Supply and Industrial Service, 332 W. Bijou St., has announced that it will move in late September or early October to a new building which will be erected at 3410 N. Prospect St. in Pikes Peak Industrial Park.

The firm will move into an Armco pre-engineered steel and masonry building to be erected by the Earl Frazier Construction Co., 1539 Dustry Dr. The building will contain approximately 15,600 square feet of floor space.

David W. (Bill) Stark is president of the firm. John J. Mickle is vice president and Earl C. Stark is secretary-treasurer. Gem has been in business in Colorado Springs since 1904 and is the oldest linen and towel supply firm in the state of Colorado.

In announcing the company's future move, Bill Stark said that his firm feels that "Colorado Springs is going to keep growing and we feel that we have to keep up with it."

He said the new building will be more modern and will enable Gem to give better service to its customers, both old and new. He emphasized the fact that the new structure will provide considerably better working conditions for the company's 38 employes.

Gem Linen Supply furnishes uniforms for a variety of industrial uses, including service stations and garages, hotels and restuarants, factories, and individuals who have occasional needs for work clothing.

The firm also supplies table cloths, napkins and other items for home and commercial uses.

Industrial towels used by print shops, garages, newspapers, service stations and others are supplied by this company. Also handled are the Scott lines of paper goods, including towels, and Lilly paper cups and plates.

The firm recently added a new truck to its delivery service and expects to add another soon.

All machinery and equipment from the present plant will be moved to the new place. Some new equipment will be added, the company president said.

Plans call for the entire plant to be cooled by a ventulation system which will change the air every six minutes. Sufficient land is available on the North Prospect Street lot to allow for considerable enlargement of the building, Stark said.

Across the front of the building will be an attached but separate area for office space. The exterior of the building at the front will feature brick wainscoating. Some interior walls will be of masonry.

Proposed Dam Urged on South Platte River

DENVER (AP) — A site east of Kersey in Weld County may be the best on the South Platte River for a proposed dam, a Denver engineering firm reported.

The appraisal was made by Woodward-Clyde-Sherard and Associates at the request of the Colorado Water Conservation Board.

R. M. Gildersleeve, deputy director of the Colorado Water Conservation Board, said latest estimates by the Bureau of Reclamation place the cost of the dam near Kersey at $45.4 million and for the one at the Narrows at $38.3 million.

The engineering report suggested that the Bureau of Reclamation recompute the prospective costs of the dams at the two sites on the basis of its finding.

Woodward-Clyde-Sherard said the Kersey location, known as the Hardin site, is geologically suitable for construction of an earth dam.

Minuteman Test Program Is Closed

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Air Force closed its three-year Minuteman-1 test program Friday by firing the solid-fueled missile on its 10th consecutive successful ocean-spanning flight.

The shot, 50th since the test flights of the second-generation war rocket got under way Feb. 1, 1961, raised the success score for Minuteman missiles launched here to 70 per cent.

In addition, 34 of the three-stage "instant ICBM's" have been fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California as operational shots and only three were known failures. The last failure here was Nov. 7, 1963, when a Minuteman was destroyed 15 seconds after launch.

The Air Force now will turn its attention to testing the more powerful Minuteman-2 that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara is betting on in his future plans for the nation's strategic forces.

Population Explosion Worries Gov. Romney

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—"I'm really worried about the population explosion," Michigan Gov. George W. Romney joked in Lansing after he became a grandfather for the seventh time.

He's due to become an eight-time grandfather in the not-too-distant future.

The older of his two daughters, Mrs. Loren G. Keenan of Birmingham, Mich., has given birth to her fifth child, a girl. His other daughter, Mrs. Bruce Robinson of Ann Arbor, Mich., mother of two, is expecting.

Imports of fish last year comprised about 55 per cent of this nation's consumption.

Accountant Finds He Is Too Young

By WARD CANNEL

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (NEA)— Gloyd Richards, age 42, married three children is one of the minor inconveniences of double-entry bookkeeping. Corporate accounting has not yet found a way to vanish without leaving a few untidy remainders.

Richards and some 5,000 men like him are still unemployed. They were the variable labor costs of the Studebaker auto company until last December when it went out of business in the United States.

The Studebaker Corp. is very much alive with an auto plant in Canada and other diversified interests ranging from home appliances to national sales of foreign cars. But in South Bend the atmosphere at the United Auto Workers hall is best summed up in a boldly lettered placard: "Sign Up Here For Surplus Food."

Of the 8,400 Studebaker employes, who no longer exist by the definition of a corporation, about 1,200 have skills that can get them jobs elsewhere. Another small percentage fulfill the requirements for pensions by being 60 years old before next October 30.

But the Studebaker company, one of the World's oldest vehicle makers, has prided itself on the stability of "father and son craftsmanship." And so the union hall is filled daily with many of those fathers and sons, now gray and discarded, who come to learn the law and its redress from union leader Less Fox who moves patiently from group to group all day long.

What do you get if you're not 60 until Nov. 5? Or if you've got 33 years seniority and guys with 32 years are still at Studebaker sweeping up? Or if you've figured it out and you can make it okay except for $3 a month you'll need for your wife's insulin?

Gloyd Richards has no need for the union hall seminars. At 42, he has no retirement benefits. Only $36 per week in unemployment insurance and the savings he has put away after 20 years as a Studebaker company driver.

"But $36 doesn't go a big way," his wife says. "There's the payments on the house and the car and the table to set. I don't mind cutting corners and scrimping. My pa was a coal miner. He made 50 cents a day when he worked and there was lots times when we went without.

"But you can't do it like that nowadays."

Richards would move out of South Bend. But he can't find anybody to buy his house. And besides, he explains:

"You put down that you're 42 on an application and nobody wants you. You're not young but you're not old either. You're just nowhere.

South Bend's unemployment figure stands at a moderately high 11 per cent.

"It could have been a lot worse," says Mayor Lloyd Allen. "But we had the advantage of an unemployment rate well below the national average when this thing hit.

"And since our taxes are collected a year ahead taxpayers won't feel the pinch of the Studebaker closing for at least another year. By then we hope to have this problem settled."

The test-driving grounds for example, have already been purchased by an amusement park impressario. Kaiser Jeep has bought one of the closed plants for use in truck manufacture. These two newcomers bring about 750 jobs.

South Bend is also beginning classes in skill retraining, paid largely with federal money. Following testing and classification, courses will be set up to teach such subjects as data processing, auto mechanics and refrigeration.

"But," says UAW local leader Les Fox, "it's a tough job to teach a new skill to a fellow who has been doing the same little job on an assembly line for the past 20 or 25 years."

In addition, says Franklin Schurz, chairman of South Bend's manpower retraining committee, pilot projects in skill retraining reveal that a vast number of potentially retrainable men need a basic, intensive course in reading, writing and arithmetic before they are prepared for any other schooling.

For Gloyd Richards, skill retraining is a less attractive alternative than finding another job quickly as a driver or a chauffeur before his savings — and his children's — are wiped out and his mortgage is foreclosed. South Bend's retraining program is still a distance from full operation. And even at best it will be able to re-educate only about 1,500 men.

"You know," Richards says, "it didn't have to be like this.

"All we had to do was buy Studebaker's cars and we'd all still be working. Hell, you can't work for a company and turn around and buy somebody else's product. You're just cutting your own throat."

PLANS PETITIONS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Attorney Clifton Hildebrand of Oakland, Calif., plans to file petitions on behalf of five railroad unions in Federal Court Monday in an effort to set aside a Superior Court order against a strike.

The San Mateo County Superior Court order was granted in Redwood City, Calif., March 18 at the request of Southern Pacific Railroad. The unions had denied they planned a strike.

Stock Market Backs Away, Taking First Recent Loss

By Ed Morse
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market backed away slightly this week, taking its first loss in seven weeks.

By Wednesday the Dow Jones Industrial Average had run up a string of nine straight daily advances to historic highs, reaching a closing peak of 82.25.

On Thursday the market drifted off hesitantly and irregularly. The profit-taking mood heightened on Friday when stocks sank to their worst loss since Jan. 29.

On balance, the list took only a small loss for the week.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was off 1.29 at 814.93.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .3 to 301.7, its first decline since the week ended Feb. 1.

The market was over-due for a correction, analysts agreed, and the reluctant nature of the decline—with volume lower on days when stocks fell — impressed them as bullish for the future.

The week's total volume was 27,275,000 shares compared with 28,204,421 the previous week on the New York Stock Exchange.

Most of the business and economic news was good.

General Motors, the country's biggest manufacturing enterprise, said it would spend nearly $2 billion in the next two years on new plant and equipment.

Motor stocks did poorly on the week, however. GM sank 2¾ to 81⅝.

The airline industry, however, had the good news that it would probably post a profit for the first quarter instead of the usual loss. The most actively-traded of the airline issues, Continental Airlines, rose 3¼ to 24⅝.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, off 2¼ at 45⅝ on 49,200 shares; Lehigh Valley Industries, up 1⅛ at 2¼; Radio Corp., off 1 at 36⅝; Westinghouse Electric, up 1⅛ at 36⅞; and Sperry Rand, up ⅜ at 18⅝.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Syntex, up 1⅝ at 85¼ on 351,800 shares; TWA warrants, up 1⅝ at 20⅜; General Plywood, up 1⅞ at 7⅛; Seaboard World Airlines, up ⅛ at 8⅛; and Hazel Bishop, up 1⅛ at 8⅛.

STATUE PLANNED

ARMENTIERES, France (UPI) — The "Madamoiselle from Armentiers"—the doughboy's sweetheart of World War I—will be immortalized by a statue here next year, town officials said Saturday.

The heroine will be portrayed sitting on a platform supported by four soldiers.

Proposed Dam Urged on South Platte River

DENVER (AP) — A site east of Kersey in Weld County may be the best on the South Platte River for a proposed dam, a Denver engineering firm reported.

The appraisal was made by Woodward-Clyde-Sherard and Associates at the request of the Colorado Water Conservation Board.

R. M. Gildersleeve, deputy director of the Colorado Water Conservation Board, said latest estimates by the Bureau of Reclamation place the cost of the dam near Kersey at $45.4 million and for the one at the Narrows at $38.3 million.

The engineering report suggested that the Bureau of Reclamation recompute the prospective costs of the dams at the two sites on the basis of its finding.

Woodward-Clyde-Sherard said the Kersey location, known as the Hardin site, is geologically suitable for construction of an earth dam.

Minuteman Test Program Is Closed

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Air Force closed its three-year Minuteman-1 test program Friday by firing the solid-fueled missile on its 10th consecutive successful ocean-spanning flight.

The shot, 50th since the test flights of the second-generation war rocket got under way Feb. 1, 1961, raised the success score for Minuteman missiles launched here to 70 per cent.

In addition, 34 of the three-stage "instant ICBM's" have been fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California as operational shots and only three were known failures. The last failure here was Nov. 7, 1963, when a Minuteman was destroyed 15 seconds after launch.

The Air Force now will turn its attention to testing the more powerful Minuteman-2 that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara is betting on in his future plans for the nation's strategic forces.

Imports of fish last year comprised about 55 per cent of this nation's consumption.

Population Explosion Worries Gov. Romney

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—"I'm really worried about the population explosion," Michigan Gov. George W. Romney joked in Lansing after he became a grandfather for the seventh time.

He's due to become an eight-time grandfather in the not-too-distant future.

The older of his two daughters, Mrs. Loren G. Keenan of Birmingham, Mich., has given birth to her fifth child, a girl. His other daughter, Mrs. Bruce Robinson of Ann Arbor, Mich., mother of two, is expecting.

Accountant Finds He Is Too Young

By WARD CANNEL

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (NEA)—Lloyd Richards, age 42, married three children is one of the minor inconveniences of double-entry bookkeeping. Corporate accounting has not yet found a way to vanish without leaving a few untidy remainders.

Richards and some 5,000 men like him are still unemployed. They were the variable labor costs of the Studebaker auto company until last December when it went out of business in the United States.

The Studebaker Corp. is very much alive with an auto plant in Canada and other diversified interests ranging from home appliances to national sales of foreign cars. But in South Bend the atmosphere at the United Auto Workers hall is best summed up in a boldly lettered placard: "Sign Up Here For Surplus Food."

Of the 8,400 Studebaker employes, who no longer exist by the definition of a corporation, about 1,200 have skills that can get them jobs elsewhere. Another small percentage fulfill the requirements for pensions by being 60 years old before next October 30.

But the Studebaker company, one of the World's oldest vehicle makers, has prided itself on the stability of "father and son craftsmanship." And so the union hall is filled daily with many of those fathers and sons, now gray and discarded, who come to learn the law and its redress from union leader Less Fox who moves patiently from group to group all day long.

What do you get if you're not 60 until Nov. 5? Or if you've got 23 years seniority and guys with 32 years are still at Studebaker sweeping up? Or if you've figured it out and you can make it okay except for $3 a month you'll need for your wife's insulin?

Gloyd Richards has no need for the union hall seminars. At 42, he has no retirement benefits. Only $36 per week in unemployment insurance and the savings he has put away after 20 years as a Studebaker company driver.

"But $36 doesn't go a big way," his wife says. "There's the payments on the house and the car and the table to set. I don't mind cutting corners and scrimping. My pa was a coal miner. He made 50 cents a day when he worked and there was lots times when we went without.

"But you can't do it like that nowadays."

Richards would move out of South Bend. But he can't find anybody to buy his house. And besides, he explains:

"You put down that you're 42 on an application and nobody wants you. You're not young but you're not old either. You're just nowhere."

South Bend's unemployment figure stands at a moderately high 11 per cent.

"It could have been a lot worse," says Mayor Lloyd Allen. "But we had the advantage of an unemployment rate well below the national average when this thing hit.

"And since our taxes are collected a year ahead, taxpayers won't feel the pinch of the Studebaker closing for at least another year. By then we hope to have this problem settled."

The test-driving grounds, for example, have already been purchased by an amusement park impressario. Kaiser Jeep has bought one of the closed plants for use in truck manufacture. These two newcomers bring about 750 jobs.

South Bend is also beginning classes in skill retraining, paid largely with federal money. Following testing and classification, courses will be set up to teach such subjects as data processing, auto mechanics and refrigeration.

"But," says UAW local leader Les Fox, "it's a tough job to teach a new skill to a fellow who has been doing the same little job on an assembly line for the past 20 or 25 years."

In addition, says Franklin Schurz, chairman of South Bend's manpower retraining committee, pilot projects in skill retraining reveal that a vast number of potentially retrainable men need a basic, intensive course in reading, writing and arithmetic before they are prepared for any other schooling.

For Gloyd Richards, skill retraining is a less attractive alternative than finding another job quickly as a driver or a chauffeur before his savings — and his children's — are wiped out and his mortgage is foreclosed. South Bend's retraining program is still a distance from full operation. And even at best it will be able to re-educate only about 1,500 men.

"You know," Richards says, "it didn't have to be like this.

"All we had to do was buy Studebaker's cars and we'd all still be working. Hell, you can't work for a company and turn around and buy somebody else's product. You're just cutting your own throat."

PLANS PETITIONS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Attorney Clifton Hildebrand of Oakland, Calif., plans to file petitions on behalf of five railroad unions in Federal Court Monday in an effort to set aside a Superior Court order against a strike.

The San Mateo County Superior Court order was granted in Redwood City, Calif., March 18 at the request of Southern Pacific Railroad. The unions had denied they planned a strike.

Stock Market Backs Away, Taking First Recent Loss

By Ed Morse
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market backed away slightly this week, taking its first loss in seven weeks.

By Wednesday the Dow Jones Industrial Average had run up a string of nine straight daily advances to historic highs, reaching a closing peak of 82.25.

On Thursday the market drifted off hesitantly and irregularly. The profit-taking mood heightened on Friday when stocks sank to their worst loss since Jan. 29.

On balance, the list took only a small loss for the week.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was off 1.29 at 814.93.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .3 to 301.7, its first decline since the week ended Feb. 1.

The market was over-due for a correction, analysts agreed, and the reluctant nature of the decline—with volume lower on days when stocks fell — impressed them as bullish for the future.

The week's total volume was 27,275,000 shares compared with 28,204,421 the previous week on the New York Stock Exchange.

Most of the business and economic news was good.

General Motors, the country's biggest manufacturing enterprise, said it would spend nearly $2 billion in the next two years on new plant and equipment.

Motor stocks did poorly on the week, however. GM sank 2¾ to 81⅝.

The airline industry, however, had the good news that it would probably post a profit for the first quarter instead of the usual loss. The most actively-traded of the airline issues, Continental Airlines, rose 3¼ to 24⅝.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, off 2¼ at 45⅜ on 49,200 shares; Lehigh Valley Industries, up 1⅛ at 2¾; Radio Corp., of 1 at 36⅜; Westinghouse Electric, up 1¼ at 36¾; and Sperry Rand, up ⅜ at 18⅛.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Syntex, up 1⅝ at 85¼ on 351,800 shares; TWA warrants, up 1⅝ at 20⅛; General Plywood, up 1⅞ at 7⅛; Seaboard World Airlines, up ⅜ at 8⅛; and Hazel Bishop, up 1⅛ at 8⅛.

STATUE PLANNED

ARMENTIERES, France (UPI) — The "Madamoiselle from Armentiers"—the doughboy's sweetheart of World War I—will be immortalized by a statue here next year, town officials said Saturday.

The heroine will be portrayed sitting on a platform supported by four soldiers.

Korean Staff Chief to Receive Academy Briefing

Lt. Gen. Kyung Won Park, director of the Joint Staff, Joint Chiefs of Staff, of the Korean Army, will receive a briefing on Air Force Academy operations March 30.

Gen. Park, on a cross-country tour of U. S. Air Force, Army, and Navy installations, will receive the Academy briefing from Col. W. T. Woodyard, professor and head of the Department of Chemistry.

Following the briefing, Gen. Park will tour the academic area, watch the cadet noon meal formation, and dine on the staff tower in Mitchell Hall.

Gen. Park entered the Korean Army in 1946. He served first as a finance officer, then transferred to the field artillery. From 1959 to 1960 the director was quartermaster general.

Prior to being named to his present post, Gen. Park was Korean Minister of Home Affairs.

General Reeves To Arrive At NORAD

U. S. Air Force Lt. Gen. Raymond J. Reeves, Alaskan NORAD Region Commander, will arrive at NORAD headquarters here today.

Traveling with a party of 29 key officers and unit commanders from his area he will remain at NORAD headquarters until Wednesday.

The NORAD visit brings the Alaskan military officials to North American Air Defense Command headquarters for a conference and a headquarters briefing on the over-all North American Air Defense picture.

Members of the staf off General John K. Gerhart, NORAD commander in chief, will meet with the Alaskan officers during their three days in Colorado Springs.

CC Professor To Speak to Art Society

James Trissel, assistant professor of art at Colorado College and acting director of the Fine Arts Center-Colorado College art school, will talk to members of the Fine Arts Center Contemporary Art Society Monday.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norton Bain, 27 Broadmoor Ave.

Trissel who joined the CC faculty at the beginning of the January semester, will have as his topic, "Art and Nature Revisited."

He is serving as art school director in the absence of Bernard Arnest who is on sabbatical leave for the semester.

Trissel was previously an art professor at the University of California in Los Angeles for three and one-half years. He also served as coordinator for adult education in art at the UCLA extension.

He also taught in the art department at Beliot College, Beloit, Wisc., and was acting director of the Art Center at Beloit College.

In addition to his education work, Trissel is an accomplished painter and has exhibited his work in the Midwest.

Water, Sewage Operators to Gather March 30

About 150 Rocky Mountain area water and sewage plant operators will gather March 30 to April 4 at the University of Colorado Denver Extension Center and Medical Center to learn new developments in the perennial war against water pollution.

The operator's school will be conducted by the CU Department of Civil Engineering and the Bureau of Continuation Education. Assoc. Prof. Walter A. Weers is director.

Also cooperating in the presentations will be the Colorado Water and Sewage Association, the Colorado Municipal League, the Wyoming Association of Municipalities, the Colorado and Wyoming State Departments of Health, the Rocky Mountain Section of the American Water Works Association and the Rocky Mountain Sewage and Industrial Wastes Association.

The program will be divided into five sections.

A fundamentals course reviewing the basics of water and sewage treatment will be directed by Frank Rozich of Denver, public health engineer with the State Department of Public Health.

A water course on water supply standards and purification methods will be directed by James H. Eagen of the U.S. Public Health Service in Denver.

A sewage course on methods and standards of operating plants and systems will be directed by George A. Prince of Denver, chief of the Public Health Engineering Section of the State Department of Public Health.

Two laboratory seminars, one on water treatment tests and the other on sewage sedimentation, will be held at the CU Medical Center by C. D. McGuire of the state health department and G. E. Riepe of the U.S. Public Health Service, respectively.

WAC Enlistment Getting More Difficult

Educational requirements have become most rigid for entrance into almost any type of work young men and women might choose in today's society. The Army and Womens Army Corps exemplify this in that they have moved theirs from some of the lowest up to some of the highest during the past 15 years.

At its inception some 21 years ago women did not have to have a high school diploma to enter the corps. Today they do and the reason is twofold.

First of all the jobs that they do in the service are far too complicated to be done by the uneducated and secondly the WAC needs only 8,000 women in its ranks.

There are far more women desiring enlistment in the WAC than there are vacancies existing. Naturally, the WAC is taking advantage of this situation and selecting only the best qualified for its ranks.

Some of the present enlistment requirements in the WAC are 1. Must be a high school graduate or equivalent, 2. Must produce five references to include one from a minister or priest, 3. Must pass 10 mental tests and be found physically fit; 4. Must pass an interview before a board of officers.

When these requirements are met the applicant may enlist for two to six years. Two year enlistees are not promised any choice of training before enlistment while those enlisting for three years or more are given their choice of training, with a written guarantee, before enlistment. The WAC is the only service giving choice of school training before enlistment.

Those qualified young ladies interested in training and travel with the Womens Army Corps should contact the Colorado Springs Army Recruiting Office. Telephone 633-0632. If outside of town, call collect.

Special Sessions Will Discuss Redistricting

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love says here next month's special session of the Colorado Legislature would be devoted to consideration of congressional redistricting—nothing else.

Love's action apparently stymied, at least temporarily, two Denver district judges who had asked that legislators also consider amending the state's insanity laws during the proposed special session.

Dist. Judges Edward J. Keating and Mitchel B. Johns have asked for state changes in present insanity laws to correct weaknesses in the system.

COMMENDATION — For outstanding performance of duty as assistant cashier at the Ft. Carson Exchange, Mrs. Margaret E. Brown, center, receives a Letter of Commendation signed by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Ft. Carson and 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander. Maj. Geraldine Paul, at left, of post personnel office, makes the presentation while the Exchange officer, I. J. Hinman, observes. Mrs. Brown's keen observation and the speed with which she notified the Military Police lead to the apprehension of a fugitive sought by authorities in several states for cashing worthless checks.

8,000 Residents Of County Work For Government

How many El Paso County residents are holding down government jobs — Federal, state and local? How many of them are connected with the public administration part of government?

A special report, just released by the Department of Commerce, presents a social and economic portrait of workers in the United States and of the hundreds of types of work they perform. It is called "Occupational Characteristics."

From this and from other data on the subject, compiled by the Census Bureau, it appears that there are 8,335 local residents employed in civilian capacities by various governmental bodies.

Of these, 3,984 work for agencies of government whose activities come under the head of public administration. Included in this category are those with legislative, judicial and executive functions and, in addition, those in the postal service.

In terms of the total number of working people in El Paso County, the proportion in public administration is equivalent to 93 per 1,000 workers.

There are many local people, besides these, who are in government employ in other capacities, outside the field of public administration.

In these other groups are school teachers, public health workers and those connected with municipally-operated services, to mention a few.

The number of El Paso County residents holding down government jobs that are not related to public administration is 4,351.

The overall total of those in public employment locally is given as 8,335.

As a proportion of the entire working force it amounts to one person locally on a government payroll out of every 5 who are employed.

Thruout the rest of the United States, by way of comparison, the ratio is one government worker out of every 8 and, in the Mountain States, one out of 6.

Special importance is attached to the survey because of the finding that government, at nearly every level, has been growing larger and larger in terms of number of people employed.

Single Fund Agency Sponsors Arthritis Forum

The Rocky Mountain Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, in cooperation with the Fremont County United Single Fund, will sponsor a free forum on arthritis at the Court House Auditorium in Canon City, Wednesday, March 25, 1964 at 7:30 p.m.

This is a part of the lay education program of the Rocky Mountain Chapter, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, a member agency of the United Single Fund.

A panel of physicians will discuss various aspects of Arthritis and the audience will be invited to participate by writing questions to be discussed by the doctors. Dr. James Johnson, an orthopedic surgeon of Colorado Springs, will moderate the panel and will be assisted by Dr. George C. Christie and Dr. Jack F. Vincent, both of Canon City. Free literature on arthritis will be available.

More than 12,000,000 Americans are afflicted by some form of arthritis, according to the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. Nearly half of them are partially or totally disabled. Each year about 250,000 more are added to the toll. One family in five is affected. Altho many think of arthritis as an ailment of old age, the disease can strike anyone at any time—from infants to old folks. Rheumatoid arthritis, while it hits all ages, concentrates its crippling in the 20 to 45 "prime of life" years. For some reason yet unknown, it attacks three women for every man. On the other hand, gout and rheumatoid spondylitis number 90 per cent of their victims among men.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation is the only national voluntary health agency exclusively devoted to the problems of arthritis and allied rheumatic diseases. There will be no charge for the meeting next Wednesday evening and the public is urged to take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about our nation's number one crippler — arthritis.

Eating Dirt Prevalent in Many Areas

The ingestion of dirt is prevalent in many areas of the country, particularly the South, Drs. Charles E. Mengel and William A. Carter, Durham, N.C., report in the current (March) Journal of the American Medical Association.

The practice, medically termed geophagia, may result in anemia, severe illness, and even death, according to the authors.

"Geophagia is most common in the South, remains prevalent in the Negro population, occurs almost exclusively in females, and is usually exaggerated during pregnancy," they said.

The physicians described two cases, women, aged 17 and 34, who ate several handfuls of clay daily.

Clay (red, white, or yellow) is the type of dirt most frequently ingested, according to the report. "Good" clay has a slightly bitter-sour taste and is not gritty. Clay ingestion often accompanies regular meals. Once established, the habit is hard to break.

The reasons for ingestion of unusual materials remains obscure, the authors said, but some need to satisfy an unusual hunger is the most common reason at the present time.

One of the easiest things to postpone is the making of your will. You have spent your lifetime accumulating property for the benefit of yourself and your family. If you postpone the few hours necessary to plan and work out your will with your attorney, you can undo these years of work, because you have failed to complete the job.

Your Will in Colorado. In almost every case, persons moving into a new state should revise the estate plans which they have previously made. If you have moved to Colorado, there are reasons why you should review your will and other estate arrangements:

(1) The laws of the state where you previously lived may differ from those of Colorado both as to the validity of your will and as to the interpretation which will be placed upon its provisions.

(2) If the witnesses to your will are not residents of this state, they would have to come to Colorado to prove your will, or their depositions would have to be taken, or they may be difficult to locate. This would add to the cost of settling your estate. It may also delay the administration of your estate at a time when your family might be in serious need of the benefits which your will bestows upon them.

(3) You may also have named as the executor of your will someone who is not a resident of Colorado — leading to probable further delay and expense.

(4) Each state has its own tax laws dealing with property passing by will. It may be advisable to examine the effect of Colorado inheritance tax laws on your will made in another state.

We strongly recommend that you have your will rewritten by a Colorado attorney as soon as possible to make sure that your family will be protected and that your estate will be spared unnecessary expense and delay in probate proceedings.

The Trust Department of The FIRST NATIONAL BANK will be pleased to make an appointment to discuss the administration of your estate in Colorado. Our telephone operator (635-3531) will connect you with a trust officer, or if you are in the bank any of our people will make an immediate appointment for you.

At its inception some 21 years ago women did not have to have a high school diploma to enter the corps. Today they do and the reason is twofold.

First of all the jobs that they do in the service are far too complicated to be done by the uneducated and secondly the WAC needs only 8,000 women in its ranks.

There are far more women desiring enlistment in the WAC than there are vacancies existing. Naturally, the WAC is taking advantage of this situation and selecting only the best qualified for its ranks.

Some of the present enlistment requirements in the WAC are 1. Must be a high school graduate or equivalent, 2. Must produce five references to include one from a minister or priest, 3. Must pass 10 mental tests and be found physically fit, 4. Must pass an interview before a board of officers.

When these requirements are met the applicant may enlist for two to six years. Two year enlistees are not promised any choice of training before enlistment while those enlisting for three years or more are given their choice of training, with a written guarantee, before enlistment. The WAC is the only service giving choice of school training before enlistment.

Those qualified young ladies interested in training and travel with the Womens Army Corps should contact the Colorado Springs Army Recruiting Office. Telephone 633-0632. If outside of town, call collect.

Special Sessions Will Discuss Redistricting

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love says here next month's special session of the Colorado Legislature would be devoted to consideration of congressional redistricting—nothing else.

Love's action apparently stymied, at least temporarily, two Denver district judges who had asked that legislators also consider amending the state's insanity laws during the proposed special session.

Dist. Judges Edward J. Keating and Mitchel B. Johns have asked for state changes in present insanity laws to correct weaknesses in the system.

COMMENDATION — For outstanding performance of duty as assistant cashier at the Ft. Carson Exchange, Mrs. Margaret E. Brown, center, receives a Letter of Commendation signed by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Ft. Carson and 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander. Maj. Geraldine Paul, at left, of post personnel office, makes the presentation while the Exchange officer, I. J. Hinman, observes. Mrs. Brown's keen observation and the speed with which she notified the Military Police lead to the apprehension of a fugitive sought by authorities in several states for cashing worthless checks.

8,000 Residents Of County Work For Government

How many El Paso County residents are holding down government jobs — Federal, state and local? How many of them are connected with the public administration part of government?

A special report, just released by the Department of Commerce, presents a social and economic portrait of workers in the United States and of the hundreds of types of work they perform. It is called "Occupational Characteristics."

From this and from other data on the subject, compiled by the Census Bureau, it appears that there are 8,335 local residents employed in civilian capacities by various governmental bodies.

Of these, 3,984 work for agencies of government whose activities come under the head of public administration. Included in this category are those with legislative, judicial and executive functions and, in addition, those in the postal service.

In terms of the total, number of working people in El Paso County, the proportion in public administration is equivalent to 93 per 1,000 workers.

There are many local people, besides these, who are in government employ in other capacities, outside the field of public administration.

In these other groups are school teachers, public health workers and those connected with municipally-operated services, to mention a few.

The number of El Paso County residents holding down government jobs that are not related to public administration is 4,351.

The overall total of those in public employment locally is given as 8,335.

As a proportion of the entire working force, it amounts to one person locally on a government payroll out of every 5 who are employed.

Thruout the rest of the United States, by way of comparison, the ratio is one government worker out of every 8 and, in the Mountain States, one out of 6.

Special importance is attached to the survey because of the finding that government, at nearly every level, has been growing larger and larger in terms of number of people employed.

Single Fund Agency Sponsors Arthritis Forum

The Rocky Mountain Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, in cooperation with the Fremont County United Single Fund, will sponsor a free forum on arthritis at the Court House Auditorium in Canon City, Wednesday, March 25, 1964 at 7:30 p.m.

This is a part of the lay education program of the Rocky Mountain Chapter, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, a member agency of the United Single Fund.

A panel of physicians will discuss various aspects of Arthritis and the audience will be invited to participate by writing questions to be discussed by the doctors. Dr. James Johnson, an orthopedic surgeon of Colorado Springs, will moderate the panel and will be assisted by Dr. George C. Christie and Dr. Jack F. Vincent, both of Canon City. Free literature on arthritis will be available.

More than 12,000,000 Americans are afflicted by some form of arthritis, according to the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. Nearly half of them are partially or totally disabled. Each year about 250,000 more are added to the toll. One family in five is affected. Altho many think of arthritis as an ailment of old age, the disease can strike anyone at any time—from infants to old folks. Rheumatoid arthritis, while it hits all ages, concentrates its crippling in the 20 to 45 "prime of life" years. For some reason yet unknown, it attacks three women for every man. On the other hand, gout and rheumatoid spondylitis number 90 per cent of their victims among men.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation is the only national voluntary health agency exclusively devoted to the problems of arthritis and allied rheumatic diseases. There will be no charge for the meeting next Wednesday evening and the public is urged to take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about our nation's number one crippler — arthritis.

Eating Dirt Prevalent in Many Areas

The ingestion of dirt is prevalent in many areas of the country, particularly the South, Drs. Charles E. Mengel and William A. Carter, Durham, N.C., report in the current (March) Journal of the American Medical Association.

The practice, medically termed geophagia, may result in anemia, severe illness, and even death, according to the authors.

"Geophagia is most common in the South, remains prevalent in the Negro population, occurs almost exclusively in females, and is usually exaggerated during pregnancy," they said.

The physicians described two cases, women, aged 17 and 34, who ate several handfuls of clay daily.

Clay (red, white, or yellow) is the type of dirt most frequently ingested, according to the report. "Good" clay has a slightly bitter-sour taste and is not gritty. Clay ingestion often accompanies regular meals. Once established, the habit is hard to break.

The reasons for ingestion of unusual materials remains obscure, the authors said, but some need to satisfy an unusual hunger is the most common reason at the present time.

One of the easiest things to postpone is the making of your will. You have spent your lifetime accumulating property for the benefit of yourself and your family. If you postpone the few hours necessary to plan and work out your will with your attorney, you can undo these years of work, because you have failed to complete the job.

Your Will in Colorado. In almost every case, persons moving into a new state should revise the estate plans which they have previously made. If you have moved to Colorado, there are reasons why you should review your will and other estate arrangements:

(1) The laws of the state where you previously lived may differ from those of Colorado both as to the validity of your will and as to the interpretation which will be placed upon its provisions.

(2) If the witnesses to your will are not residents of this state, they would have to come to Colorado to prove your will, or their depositions would have to be taken, or they may be difficult to locate. This would add to the cost of settling your estate. It may also delay the administration of your estate at a time when your family might be in serious need of the benefits which your will bestows upon them.

(3) You may also have named as the executor of your will someone who is not a resident of Colorado — leading to probable further delay and expense.

(4) Each state has its own tax laws dealing with property passing by will. It may be advisable to examine the effect of Colorado inheritance tax laws on your will made in another state.

We strongly recommend that you have your will rewritten by a Colorado attorney as soon as possible to make sure that your family will be protected and that your estate will be spared unnecessary expense and delay in probate proceedings.

The Trust Department of The FIRST NATIONAL BANK will be pleased to make an appointment to discuss the administration of your estate in Colorado. Our telephone operator (635-3531) will connect you with a trust officer, or if you are in the bank any of our people will make an immediate appointment for you.

Congregational Church Had College Minister

First Congregational Church was organized in 1874, the same year Colorado College was founded and just three years after Colorado Springs began. Its first minister was the first professor of Colorado College, the Rev. Mr. Jonathan Edwards. The president of the College, the Rev. Mr. James Dougherty, became the second minister five months later. The church's beginning was closely tied to Colorado College and today 90 years later, it still enjoys a close relationship to it.

A few years after its organization, during the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Theodore Cross, the church erected its first church building on Bijou Street opposite Acacia Park. In 1888, under the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. James B. Gregg, the present church building was erected at the corner of Tejon and St. Vrain Streets. The design of this building was taken in part from the Trinity Episcopal Church in Boston, Msas., having as its central form the Greek Cross. In recent years, a new Christian Education building and the modern Carey Gillman Memorial Chapel have been built adjoining the proud older structure. The new building houses the Gregg Memorial Library containing much literature.

In the 55 years since Dr. Gregg, the church has had ten ministers, each of whom has endeavored to bring the word of God more closely to the lives of men and women.

First Congregational Church is now a part of the United Church of Christ which was formed in 1957 by the union of the Evangelical and Reformed Churches and the General Council of Conrgegational Christian Churches. Congregationalism in America stems from the founding in the 1620's of the Plymouth Colony by the Pilgrims and of the Massachusetts Bay Colony by the Puritans. Around the turn of the 19th century, Congregationalists were joined by Congregational Methodists, Evangelical Protestants, and German Congregationlists. The Christian Church united Methodists from North Carolina, Baptists from Vermont, and Presbyterians from Kentucky. In 1931, these two groups joined to form the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches. The union of this body with the Evangelical and Reformed Churches in 1957 brought into being the United Church of Christ.

As a part of the United Church of Christ, the First Congregational Church is a free church, a church of the people, not dictated to by anyone as to the decisions it makes. But, this freedom is balanced by the self-discipline which confronts every individual in his response to the claim of Christ and of the fellowship of God's community on earth. The response of individuals to the task make the church as effective or ineffective as it may be. The church is not the clergy, nor its organization at higher levels; the church is not its officers and boards, missions and councils, tho all play a part in its life; but the church is people gathered for worship, work and witness.

The people of First Congregational Church and the United Church of Christ believe in God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ and our Father, and do to his deeds testify: He calls the worlds into being, creates man in his own image and sets before him the ways of life and death. He seeks in holy love to save all people from aimlessness and sin. He judges men and nations by his righteous will declared thru prophets and apostles. In Jesus Christ, the man of Nazareth, our crucified and risen Lord, he has come to us and shared our common lot, conquering sin and death and reconciling the world to himself. He bestows upon us His Holy Spirit, creating and renewing the Church of Jesus Christ, binding in covenant faithful people of all ages, tongues and races. He calls us into His church to accept the cost and joy of descipleship, to be His servants in the service of men, to proclaim the gospel to all the world and resist the powers of evil, to share in Christ's baptism and eat at his table, to join him in his passion and victory; He promises to all who trust him forgiveness of sins and fullness of grace, courage in the struggle for justice and peace, his presence in trial and rejoicing, and eternal life in his kingdom which has no end.

Holy Trinity Is Newest of Eight Catholic Parishes

Holy Trinity Catholic Parish is the newest of the eight Catholic parishes of the Colorado Springs area.

It was established in August of 1959, the founding pastor being the Rev. Mr. John Aylward.

The parish Church and hall, located at 3118 Poinsetta Dr., is responsible for the area north and east of the Rock Island and Santa Fe Railroad tracks.

The parish does not have its own parochial school; however, Franciscan Sisters from Mount Saint Francis and ten lay teachers conduct classes in Christian doctrine on Saturdays and Wednesdays for the children of the parish of grade and high school age. Over 500 children receive instructions each week. A parochial grade school is being planned for erection in the near future.

The present priest, the Rev. Mr. Walter R. Jaeger, is the successor to Father John Aylward who died in March of 1963.

Baptist Church Becomes One of Area's Newest

The Emmanuel Missionary Baptist Church was organized Sept. 1, 1963, at Carpenters Hall, 6 E. Costilla St., under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. J. E. Vaughn. 80 persons joined the church on this date and are "charter members." Since the date of organization, the membership has more than doubled.

The Holy Bible was adopted as the only constitution of the church. Bible classes are taught thruout the week in the various auxiliary meetings and at the church. Tithes and offerings are the only means of financial support used in the church.

On Sept. 8, 1963, a call was extended to Dr. Thomas J. Marigna, for the pastorship. Dr. Marigna answered the call Nov. 6, at the first business meeting. The members unanimously received and adopted his letter of acceptance.

Following Dr. Marigna's acceptance of the pastorship, the membership grew rapidly. The continuous growth necessitated a move to a more accommodating edifice. On Dec. 29, 1963, the church moved to its present place of worship, 324 N. Wahsatch Ave. All departments are staffed with trained leaders.

RISKY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Public Health Service study has confirmed that considerable percentage of pregnant women are "at risk" for German measles (rubella) infection, a cause of malformations in infants.

Testing blood sera of 600 pregnant women, National Institutes of Health investigators found 17.5 per cent of the women did not have demonstrable antibody against the rubella virus. If rubella vaccines now under development prove to be safe and effective, young girls and women would appear to be prime candidates for vaccination.

First Synagogue Constructed Is Sons of Abraham

The first synagogue in the region, constructed in 1909, is the small, box like structure at 111 S. Conejos St. known as the Sons of Abraham. It is considered by many to be the fountainhead of the Jewish faith in Colorado Springs.

The building, which has been deserted and on the "for rent" list for the last three years, is overshadowed by the concrete pillars of the Colorado Avenue viaduct. Its white paint is now dusty and peeling with age and some of the clapboard siding on its south side has been replaced with corrugated tin sheets.

The Sons of Abraham, an orthodox group of some of Colorado Springs' early Jewish settlers, formed a congregation in 1908. The members erected their synagogue first at 404 S. Conejost St., but four years later moved the building to "111" where it now stands, 53 years later.

In keeping with their orthodox beliefs, the congregation performed the ancient Jewish ritual of the "mikvah" — community baths for the cleansing of mind, soul and body; the only one the region has ever possessed.

The Sons of Abraham continued their worship in the tiny building until 1935 when the congregation merged with the Sons of Israel.

The merger of these two congregations has resulted in the evolvement of Temple Beth El (reformed) and B'Nai Israel Synagogue (conservative).

The Sons of Abraham sits quietly — a poignant reminder of the past.

Corpus Christi Church Begun By Rev. Abel

Corpus Christi Church is one of the oldest in Colorado Springs, established on Aug. 17, 1917, with the Rev. Mr. Felix Abel as its first pastor.

The Rev. Father Abel purchased a block and a quarter of land on North Cascade Avenue at Jackson Street and bought a Baptist church building at Tejon and Caramillo Streets. He had the church building moved to his newly-acquired parish site at the northwest corner of the 2300 block on Cascade Avenue.

In 1921 the first Corpus Christi parish school was established. The Rev. Father Abel won the assistance of the School Sisters of St. Francis, whose motherhouse was in Milwaukee, Wis., to run the new school, the second of the city's two Catholic schools. Their convent was an old railroad boarding house.

By 1925, the convent was no longer adequate for the increased enrollment, and a two-room frame school was built on the southwest corner of the block.

Ill health forced the retirement of Father Abel in 1941, and he was succeeded by the second and present Corpus Christi pastor, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony G. Elzi.

In 1950 a new school was built at 2400 N. Cascade Ave., and since then, two additions have been made to it to accommodate nearly 600 elementary students. In 1950, a rectory was also built at 2318 N. Cascade Ave.

The small brown frame church purchased by Father Abel was replaced by a new $400,000 red brick church, dedicated in June, 1956, by Urban J. Vehr, Archbishop of Denver. Altho the new church seats 750 persons, Msgr. Elzi found the growing number of worshippers made it necessary to hold six Masses each Sunday, two Masses each week day and three Masses a day during Lent.

Within the next few months another building will be added to the Corpus Christi parish, — a new convent for the Franciscan Sisters. The convent will be located within the 2400 block, north Cascade Ave.

Four priests of the Denver Archdiocese have been assigned to Corpus Christi parish to assist Msgr. Elzi.

In 1950, the Rev. Mr. Cornelius Flynn now resident chaplain at the El Pomar Retreat House, became the first assistant. He was followed by the Rev. Mr. Kenneth Funk, now pastor in Steamboat Springs, then the Rev. John LePenske, now assistant pastor in Golden.

Present assistant pastor is the Rev. Mr. Bernard O'Hayre, appointed in August, 1962.

The doctrine of the Catholic Church is that "Jesus Christ, the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity, the Son of God made Man, established the Catholic Church as a visible society to continue and perpetuate His work for the salvation of all men. The Church does this by teaching divine truth, by governing members with God-given authority, and by making available to all the means of grace instituted by Christ."

SHOVE CHAPEL

* * *

Eugene Shove Gifted College With Chapel

An announcement was made Nov. 17, 1928, of a gift of a quarter of a million dollars from Eugene P. Shove, a member of the Board of Trustees Colorado College, since 1912 for the erection of a new chapel building in the memory of his clergymen ancestors.

One year later, Mr. Shove generously augmented this original gift by the gift of a principal sum of $100,000 to establish the Eva Louise Shove Endowment Fund for the Shove Memorial Chapel. Subsequent additional gifts by Mr. Shove for the completion and equipment of the Shove Memorial Chapel, including provision for the chimes, the organ, stained glass windows, pews, hymn books, choir gowns and Bibles, increased the total cost of the building to $325,000.

Ground was broken for the new building on June 10, 1930, and the cornerstone was laid, with appropriate ceremonies on Friday, Oct. 17, 1930. The chapel was dedicated on Nov. 24, 1931.

"The Chapel as designed is of pure Romanesque Architecture and leans toward the severe Norman interpretation of this style rather than the more florid Southern type of Southern France and Italy. The ancient buildings of Normandy and England were the source of inspiration for the design.

"The general mass and proportion is similar to that of Winchester Cathedral, England, as this building may have been before the extensive remodeling in the 15th century."

The Chapel was rededicated on the occasion of its 25th anniversary.

Services are held in the chapel regularly with guest ministers from all denominations. The chapel is always open for meditation, and it is non-denominational.

The average family buying a new home spend $1,700 the first year to furnish it, authorities in the housing field report.

WhoSoEver Will Mission Has 'Help' Ministry

At the WhoSoEver Will Mission, 14 E. Colorado Ave., the Rev. Mr. Louis Sorabella, director, and his assistants, try to satisfy hunger with a bowl of soup, some crackers, a cup of coffee, and a few cookies; they provide clothing to shelter from the cold, and provide a room with a warm bed, and those who are stranded because of car troubles, or other reasons are given gas or a bus ticket to help them on their way.

More than 715 men, women and children have been given the immediate help they needed in the last 28 months. The WhoSoEver Will Mission began its unique faith ministry on Sept. 2, 1961, and has faithfully continued to provide food, clothing, lodging, travel expense, and most important, the Gospel message of Love, Peace, Joy, Power, and Hope.

Having provided for the physical needs of the individual, it is easy to counsel, and to deal with the spiritual needs. The heart is more receptive when all other needs are provided.

Why the mission? The mission provides the necessary and urgent needs when they are needed. There's no "wait until tomorrow."

The Rev. Mr. Louis Sorabella is a graduate of Rockmont College, Longmont, and attended the Conservative Baptist Seminary for one year. He has pastored churches at Idledale, Empire, Victor, Bijou Basin, Fondus, and Black Forest.

The WhoSoEver Will Mission operates as a non-profit, non-denominational faith ministry. No organization, no group, no church, no affiliation, no community funds; simply God directed people who realize the ministry, who give of their tithes, offerings, and their all for the continuation of this ministry.

The workers at the mission serve without remuneration of any kind, simply a labor of love, feeling that "Compassion Is Love in Action." And the Scripture that inspires their hearts is found in Matthew 25:40b — Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." Their solgan is "Sharing Christ With Others."

Besides the Rev. Mr. Sorabella, the following have a part in the duties at the mission: the Rev. Mr. John Krieser, Charles Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Ruf, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hathaway, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. George Seanor, Mrs. Naomi Jessup, and many others.

HUMAN RELATIONS TRAINING PROJECT

NEW YORK (UPI) — A year-long training program in human relations for 25 young Americans, men and women including Peace Corps veterans, was started recently with a two-week orientation institute conducted in Washington, D.C. by the American Jewish Committee's Institute of Human Relations under sponsorship of the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation.

The trainees, or human relations interns, will receive a salary of $5,000 for a year of work in cities throughout the country, labor unions, employment agencies, corporation personnel directors and other private and public groups which may require human relations aid and experience. After their year of training, it is planned that the interns take permanent jobs in human relations work.

The construction industry provided about 15 per cent of this country's jobs in 1963.

STATEMENT OF BELIEF

We have long believed that one day a week should be set aside so all people can attend church and relax from the week's work. For that reason we endorse and practice closing on Sundays. The rest of the week we offer the best in quality and service to all.

Corpus Christi Church Begun By Rev. Abel

The Rev. Father Abel purchased a block and a quarter of land on North Cascade Avenue at Jackson Street, and bought a Baptist church building at Tejon and Caramillo Streets. He had the church building moved to his newly-acquired parish site at the northwest corner of the 2300 block or. Cascade Avenue.

In 1921 the first Corpus Christi parish school was established. The Rev. Father Abel won the assistance of the School Sisters of St. Francis, whose motherhouse was in Milwaukee, Wis., to run the new school, the second of the city's two Catholic schools. Their convent was an old railroad boarding house.

By 1925, the convent was no longer adequate for the increased enrollment, and a two-room frame school was built on the southwest corner of the block.

Ill health forced the retirement of Father Abel in 1941, and he was succeeded by the second and present Corpus Christi pastor, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony G. Elzi.

In 1950 a new school was built at 2400 N. Cascade Ave., and since then, two additions have been made to it to accommodate nearly 600 elementary students. In 1950, a rectory was also built at 2318 N. Cascade Ave.

The small brown frame church purchased by Father Abel was replaced by a new $400,000 red brick church, dedicated in June, 1956, by Urban J. Vehr, Archbishop of Denver. Altho the new church seats 750 persons, Msgr. Elzi found the growing number of worshippers made it necessary to hold six Masses each Sunday, two Masses each week day and three Masses a day during Lent.

Within the next few months another building will be added to the Corpus Christi parish, — a new convent for the Franciscan Sisters. The convent will be located within the 2400 block, north Cascade Ave.

Four priests of the Denver Archdiocese have been assigned to Corpus Christi parish to assist Msgr. Elzi.

In 1950, the Rev. Mr. Cornelius Flynn now resident chaplain at the El Pomar Retreat House, became the first assistant. He was followed by the Rev. Mr. Kenneth Funk, now pastor in Steamboat Springs, then the Rev. John LePenske, now assistant pastor in Golden.

Present assistant pastor is the Rev. Mr. Bernard O'Hayre, appointed in August, 1962.

The doctrine of the Catholic Church is that "Jesus Christ, the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity, the Son of God made Man, established the Catholic Church as a visible society to continue and perpetuate His work for the salvation of all men. The Church does this by teaching divine truth, by governing members with God-given authority, and by making available to all the means of grace instituted by Christ."

Eugene Shove Gifted College With Chapel

An announcement was made Nov. 17, 1928, of a gift of a quarter of a million dollars from Eugene P. Shove, a member of the Board of Trustees, Colorado College, since 1912, for the erection of a new chapel building in the memory of his clergymen ancestors.

One year later, Mr. Shove generously augmented this original gift by the gift of a principal sum of $100,000 to establish the Eva Louise Shove Endowment Fund for the Shove Memorial Chapel. Subsequent additional gifts by Mr. Shove for the completion and equipment of the Shove Memorial Chapel, including provision for the chimes, the organ, stained glass windows, pews, hymn books, choir gowns and Bibles, increased the total cost of the building to $325,000.

Unity Will Celebrate Diamond Jubilee Soon

Unity School of Christianity, with International Headquarters at Lee's Summit, Mo., was founded in 1889 by Charles and Myrtle Fillmore of Kansas City, Mo.

Principally, the purpose of the Unity movement was to get a practical presentation of the teachings of Jesus Christ into the hands of every individual regardless of religious faith. In the beginning it was not intended that Unity Churches should be established but rather by the means of its literature, all churchgoers might be helped in applying Christian principles to their daily living.

The metaphysical approach of Unity is basically a postive, affirmative, attitude of Peace of mind, health of body, joy, prosperity, and good success in one's daily living as the Will of God, taught by Jesus Christ, as the principal tenet.

Emphasis is on man's unity with God, and brotherhood of man. Unity Churches and study classes are places of religious research in how the mind affects body and affairs in producing either harmony or discord, health or disease, prosperity or limitations and lack. God as the one Presence and one Power in the Universe, and inherent in the nature of man as the image and likeness of God is constantly acknowledged. With Paul, "Christ in you, the hope of Glory," is proclaimed.

Unity literature spread rapidly and was introduced to a few folk in Colorado Springs in 1915 and by 1922 the "Home of Truth" was embarked with Mrs. Maude B. Clark as its Leader. Meetings were held in the McIntyre Building.

Later, her Son, Dr. DeGroat, and Oxford man and Architect, carried on the work. In 1926, Peter Kontek, now retired but still living in this Area, became the Leader.

Mrs. Mabel Beach arrived in 1929 and what was to become known as the "Unity Truth Center," moved into the De Graff Building, and some of the Charter Members are still active in Unity Church. In 1950 the first Ordained Minister, Ann Winstead, arrived to assume the Leadership of the Unity work, and property at 1307 W. Colorado was purchased.

Charles A. Neal was sent by Unity School in August, 1958 to replace Ann Winstead, who moved to Great Falls, Montana, to assume the Ministry there. Upon the Rev. Mr. Neal's arrival, Unity moved into its present location, 317 E. Boulder St.

Under his Leadership, the Unity membership increased rapidly, including the Sunday School and the Youth of Unity Departments. Perhaps, for the first time, Unity as a Church began to be recognized in the Pikes Peak Area.

Thru Mr. Neal's influence Unity affiliated with the Council of Churches, and he became a Member of the Ministerial Alliance.

By this time, Unity literature was going into literally thousands of homes of the Pikes Peak area. Daily Word is today read by approximately 45,000 residents in this region.

In August, 1961, Charles Neal left Colorado Springs and is presently Minister of Unity Temple, a beautiful $2,000,000 structure with a membership of 5,000 in Detroit, Mich.

At the time of Mr. Neal's departure, the Rev. Mrs. Carol M. Guental assumed the Leadership of Unity-in-the-Rockies. She came here from Atlanta, Ga., where she had served as Minister of Unity Church for three and a half years. Prior to that she was employed at Unity School from 1938 and was Theological Instructor in the Ministerial Training Program for fifteen years.

Charles Neal was among the students which completed their training under her pedagogy. Mrs. Guental says that she is among the fortunate ones who sat at the feet of Charles Fillmore, Co-Founder of Unity School, and frequently states that Unity is all she knows, despite the fact that her Paternal Grandfather was a Presybterian Minister, and her High School and College years in Oklahoma City were spent in the Methodist Church under the direction of Forney Hutchinson.

Under Mrs. Guental's direction expansion and growth of the work has included remodeling of the former parsonage into a Church School Building, the installation of DIAL-A-PRAYER, 24-hr. Service, and continued cooperation with the Council of Churches, Ministerial Alliance and United Church Women.

Presently, Mrs. Guental is Vice-President of the South Central Unity Ministers Association and hopes next year, in the Office of Presidency, to bring the Conference to Colorado Springs. During the month of July there will be an Open House, celebrating Unity's 75 Years of Ministry. It is the hope of Unity-in-the-Rockies that the Mortgage will be paid off before the end of this year.

Salvation Army Began Area Work in 1889

The Salvation Army started its work in Colorado Springs in 1889 with its motivation of love for God and practical concern for the needs of humanity. This is expressed by a spiritual ministry and physical rehabilitation for all persons who come within its area of influence regardless of race or creed.

Shelter and food for the homeless, maternity homes and hospitals for unwed mothers, mobile disaster units, emergency lodgings, counseling sessions and many more services are offered because of the strong Christian faith and self sacrificing spirit of the Salvation Army workers.

This year, National Salvation Army Week will be officially celebrated May 17-24. The Week will present a good opportunity to become better acquainted with the community services operated by the "Army of the Helping Hand" in Colorado Springs.

Coffee and doughnuts served with a cheerful smile and a "God Bless You" have been familiar symbols of the Salvation Army ever since World War I. The Salvation Army continues to serve on the home front in the war against human misery and want.

There were 3,795 automobile accidents in the Yugoslavian capital of Belgrade last year, with 75 persons killed and 1,810 injured.

O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel
before the Lord our maker.
For He is our God; and we are the people of His pasture,
and the sheep of His hand.

Cragmor Church Numbers 125 Individuals

The Cragmor Christian Reformed Church was begun in December, 1958, with a mere handful of people. Since that time the church has grown into an organized church, located at 1225 Acacia Dr., with a regular full-time pastor. The church now numbers 30 families with a total of 125 individuals constituting the congregation.

The basic purpose is to serve the community in being a witness for Christ. For that reason, the Church has Sunday School, worship services, midweek fellowship meetings, and annual community Daily Vacation Bible School.

The Christian Reformed Church is first of all Christian because they follow the Lord Jesus Christ, whom they consider the Son of God, who died for our sins. The name "Reformed" signifies that this church is in the tradition of the historic Protestant Reformation, accepting the entire Bible as the authoritative and inspired Word of God. The system of church government is Presbyterian.

The Christian Reformed Church as a denomination was organized in 1857 and today has a total of 585 churches with a membership of 256,000.

In the area of missions, the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Argentina, Australia, Ceylon, Brazil, Formosa, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, New Zealand and Nigeria have Christian Reformed missionaries. As to education, the Christian Reformed Church maintains over 240 Christian grade and high schools, Trinity College in Chicago, Dordt College in Sioux Center, Iowa, Calvin College and Seminary and the Reformed Bible Institute in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The denomination is best known for its international Christian radio broadcast, "The Back-To-God Hour" originating from Chicago and broadcast here in the Pikes Peak Region Sunday mornings from Denver.

The pastor of the church is the Rev. Mr. William A. Bierling.

Sacred Heart Is Among Oldest In Archdiocese

The present Sacred Heart Parish is one of the oldest parishes in the Archdiocese of Denver. It dates back to what is called Old St. Mary's of Colorado City, which was a mission of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Parish of Manitou Springs. The first church of this parish was built and blessed in 1891 by Bishop Matz, Denver. Located at 26th and Robinson Ave., it was built to serve the needs of some 30 Catholic families.

For many years thereafter the church was large enough for the parishioners. Finally around 1920 it was evident that a larger building was needed. The pastor at that time, Father Brinker, worked with the poor people of the parish striving to obtain pledges for a new church.

Lots were purchased at the corner of 23rd and Colorado Avenue, but the bishop felt that they were too small so these were sold and property was bought at the present site of W. Colorado Avenue and 21st Street. Father H. V. Darley was appointed pastor and he undertook the task of building the new church and the rectory.

There were many obstacles between the time that construction began in 1921 and the completion of the church one year later. But the parishioners and the priest pushed the work on with preservance until its successful completion and dedication.

The debt on the new buildings was very large and the Catholic families were very few. The financial burden was so great that Father Daley asked to be relieved of his duties. In 1923, Father Louis Hagis was appointed pastor and, later in 1925, Father Henry Geisert.

However, in May, 1926, at the invitation of Bishop Tyhen, the Oblates of Mary Immaculate took over Sacred Heart Parish and its Missions. Father James McDermott, O. M. I., the first Oblate pastor, provided leadership and helped reduce the parish debts to a great extent. About this time, in 1928, the Sisters of St. Mary of Namur purchased property near the church for a convent rest home. They taught Sunday School for the children of the parish and gave much encouragement to the parishioners in regard to the building of a parish school.

In 1940, Father John Nelson, O. M. I., was appointed pastor, which position he occupied for the next 17 years. Father Nelson purchased houses and lots for the school and in 1954 grades 1 to 4 were conducted in two houses on church property until completion of the present school. After many struggles, including labor strikes, difficulty in securing materials, etc., the school was completed in 1955 at a cost of $155,000.00. It was dedicated by the Most Rev. Urban J. Vehr, D. D., Archbishop of Denver, in August of 1955.

Approval was given in 1962 by Archbishop Vehr for the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the present church building. Since the building of the school, all of the remaining property along Pikes Peak Avenue between 20th and 21st Streets has been added to the parish, giving a lareg playground and providing for further expansion of Sacred Heart facilities.

The present paster is Father George Julian, O.M.I., who is ably assisted by Father John Gibbons, O.M.I. and Father Joseph P. Laux, O.M.I.

They taught Sunday School for the children of the parish and gave much encouragement to the parishioners in regard to the building of a parish school.

In 1940, Father John Nelson, O. M. I., was appointed pastor, which position he occupied for the next 17 years. Father Nelson purchased houses and lots for the school and in 1954 grades 1 to 4 were conducted in two houses on church property until completion of the present school. After many struggles, including labor strikes, difficulty in securing materials, etc., the school was completed in 1955 at a cost of $155,000.00. It was dedicated by the Most Rev. Urban J. Vehr, D. D., Archbishop of Denver, in August of 1955.

Approval was given in 1962 by Archbishop Vehr for the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the present church building. Since the building of the school, all of the remaining property along Pikes Peak Avenue between 20th and 21st Streets has been added to the parish, giving a lareg playground and providing for further expansion of Sacred Heart facilities.

The present pastor is Father George Julian, O.M.I., who is ably assisted by Father John Gibbons, O.M.I. and Father Joseph P. Laux, O.M.I.

O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel
before the Lord our maker.
For He is our God; and we are the people of His pasture,
and the sheep of His hand.

Monument Mission Now Baptist Church

From the foresight and prayers of a few people and a heartfelt burden for the unsaved, the Monument Baptist Mission came into being.

This mission was organized and sponsored by the First Southern Baptist Church in Colorado Springs and began holding meetings in the Home Demonstration Building in Monument. August of 1957 Mr. Vernon H. Mitchell was pastor. Mr. Joe Cherry and Mr. Paul Carver conducted the music and singing, and Mr. Bill King of Colorado Srpings acted as Sunday School superintendent.

At these meetings, there were eight humble, but faithful members and a few visitors each Sunday morning and night. Under the leadership of Brother Mitchell, the mission slowly but steadily grew to eleven members. By May 1958, the church membership had increased to 12 and the Sunday School enrollment stood at 41.

At this time Brother Mitchell resigned and Mr. Verne Thompson was called as pastor. On November 20, 1959, Wayne Thompson was ordained pastor of the mission and by May 1959 the enrollment had grown to 56. Shortly after the ordination, the church was decorated by both members of the First Southern Baptist Church in Colorado Springs and a few members of our own little church. The ladies highlighted the decorating ceremony with a bountiful home cooked dinner at noon.

Exciting things were beginning to happen now. With a high attendance of 68, the first Vacation Bible School was truly a wonderful experienec. Our first Revival Service was brought to a close by Evangelist H. P. Lawder of Pasadena, Tex., and an addition of eight new members.

A Woman's Missionary Union was organized December 11, 1959, and the members told that a prominent resident of Monument had given 16 choice lots to the mission on which to build a church. In a short time, the mission was notified that the Baptist Home Mission Board had loaned $25,000 to the mission with which to build the church.

On May 1, 1960, after much planning and figuring, a large crowd gathered on the church site for the ground breaking ceremony. A beautiful new church with a lighted steeple was the result of much prayer and co-operation on the part of the members. With a church membership of 66 and a Sunday School enrollment of 100, the mission adopted the Covenant and the Articles of Faith and on December 4, 1960, became a full-fledged church. The dedication ceremony was held on April 23, 1961 with 88 present.

Gladness was turned to sadness when the pastor told the congregation he felt the Lord had called him to pastor another mission, and in October 1962, he left to pastor a new mission at La Veta, Colorado. At this time the church was furnished with interm pastors until the Rev. Mr. Jesse Shaver was called as the full time pastor in July, 1963.

The church has had many gifts of money and many blessings from the Lord, a Training Union for all ages, a Royal Ambassadors for boys, and a Girl's Auxiliary have been organized and enjoyed by many members. Today the resident-nonresident church membership is 108, and the Church Planning Board is making plans for additional floor space this spring.

The church holds to the following tenet:

"We believe man was created by God and in the image of God.

"We believe that man was tempted by satan and fell and can therefore be justified only by the atonement made by Jesus Christ.

"We believe that man is dead, depraved, blind, guilty, condemned, lost and helpless but for the grace of God. 'By grace are ye saved through faith.' Eph. 2 8b. That by repentance, faith and confession man can be regenerated or born again. (A devine work of the Holy Spirit.)

"We believe in baptism by immersion as a symbol of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ. Death to sin, burial of the old man, and raised to newness of life in Christ.

"We believe in the competency of the individual and the individual priesthood of the believer.

"We believe that a church of Jesus Christ is a body of baptised believers, associated together in one place to preach the gospel, to keep the ordinances, (baptism and the Lord's Supper) and represent the interests of Christ's Kingdom in the world.

"We practice democracy in governing a church and are ardent supporters of separation of church and state."

This is the Jubilee Year for Southern Baptists and the church will be participating in the Jubilee Revival effort in April of this year.

Late 1899 Saw Beginning of Saints Church

The Colorado Springs Branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with world headquarters in Independence Mo., was organized in 1899.

The congregation met first in homes, then purchased a building in the 700 block of E. Willamette Ave. In 1903, two lots and houses were purchased at 513 N. Prospect St. One of the buildings was used as a meeting place until money was raised to remodel and enlarge it. During the years, the building was changed and remodeled several times.

The congregation outgrew the building and a new building was erected in 1956 at the present location, 2502 Palmer Park Blvd. One of the charter members of the local branch organization in 1899 was Elder J. D. Curtis, who is still an active member. For many years he served as missionary for the church in Colorado.

Former pastors of the Colorado Springs Branch in the last 40 years have been Elders Bruce Brown, Joseph E. Ebeling, Floyd H. Engstrom, J. D. Curtis, Harold N. Schneebeck, Blair Wildermuth, and James C. Gregg. The present pastor is Elder Ray C. Ebeling and his two counsellors are Elders Earl Earl R. Brunson and Darrel E. Webb.

The World Conference of the Church, under the leadership of President W. Wallace Smith, will be held April 5-12, 1964. Delegates from the 50 states and many foreign countries will attend the bi-annual meeting, at the world headquarters in Independence, Mo.

Boy Scout Troop 59 is sponsored by the church and invites all boys of scout age not connected with other units to join with them. The meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. Monday nights at the church. Dayton Carter is the Scoutmaster.

An Easter play "The Story of Jesus" will be presented at 6 p.m. March 29. All are invited to attend any of the services.

The beliefs of the church are:

We Believe:

In God the Eternal Father, Creator of the heavens and the earth.

In the divine Sonship of Jesus Christ the Savior of all men who obey his gospel.

In the Holy Ghost, whose function it is to guide all men unto the truth.

In the gospel of Jesus Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation.

In the six fundamental doctrinal principles of the gospel, named in the sixth chapter of Hebrews: (1) faith; (2) repentance; (3) baptism by immersion in water and the baptism of the Holy Ghost; (4) the laying on of hands for the healing of the sick, conferring of the Holy Ghost, ordination and blessing of children; (5) the resurrection of the dead; (6) the eternal judgment.

In the justice of God, who will reward or punish every man according to his works and not solely according to his profession of faith.

In the same kind of organization that existed in the primitive church: apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, elders, bishops, seventies, etc.

In the word of God contained in the Bible and in the Book of Mormon.

In the willingngess and ability of God to continue the revelation of His will to men until the end of time.

In the present day powers and gifts of the gospel: faith, discernment of spirits, prophecy, revelation, healing, visions, tongues and their interpretation, wisdom, charity, temperance, brotherly love, etc.

In marriage as instituted and ordained of God whose law provides for but one companion in wedlock for either man or woman excepting in case of death or when the marriage contract is broken by transgression.

Lawrence Tyree Helped Begin Church of Christ

November of 1957 marks the beginning of the work of the Church of Christ, 2002 Palmer Park Blvd. Lawrence Tyree, the minister, helped establish the work while serving with the Army element of the North American Air Defense Command. Following retirement after 20 years service, Col. Tyree returned to work with the congregation.

This church group is autonomous and undenominational, patterned after thef Church o Christ which came into existence on the first Pentecost after Jesus ascended. It has as its foundation and creed none other than Jesus Christ.

The church uses as its rule of faith and practice the Word of God, the Bible, and more specifically, that as given in the New Testament.

Each service begins with congregational singing accompanied by the piano. Prayer and soul stirring evangelistic type preaching comprise the order of service. The Lord's Supper is observed each Lord's Day.

Revenue from the sale of cigarets in France totalled $892 million last year, a 10 per cent increase over 1962.

St. Raphael's Plans Church

Saint Raphael's Chapel was established as an organized mission by the Episcopal Diocese of Colorado in October, 1959. At that time there were 12 families concerned to have the Episcopal Church is Security. After meeting for worship in homes, the group rented a house on Evergreen Drive, and used this for a church building.

In 1960 on land donated by the Sprouls, a building was erected. This building, ultimately to be the Parish Hall, still serves for all church purposes. Plans call for the erection of a church building and a class room building in the near future.

In addition to offering the worship of the church, both on Sundays and on every week day, Saint Raphael's provides Sunday School classes for all ages, youth activities, and study and service guilds which meet on week days.

The congregation has grown steadily. The Rev. Mr. Hallidwell L. Duel has served as Vicar since Nov. 1, 1959.

Join with your family in worship at the church of your faith — where you may derive renewed spiritual strength from the hope of the life everlasting.

Community Church of God Began With Unity Stand

In the year 1880, there started a reaction against the division and strife of denominationalism, and in obedience to a sense of the divine imperative that God's people should be one, a number of pioneer ministers from "old line churches" stepped out and took a stand toward unity of God's people. The purpose was not to start another denomination, but to re-establish the New Testament Church on the basis that true unity is in Jesus Christ alone.

There are a number of churches who use the name "Church of God." This church has never had any connections with any of them. It is not a split from any church, and it is not Pentecostal. By this, the church means it does not believe in speaking in "tongues." They use the name "Church of God" because they found that in thirteen places the first churches in the very beginning in the New Testament were called "The Church of God."

The Church of God movement has been characterized by its simplicity of structure. It has never been encumbered with creeds, dogmas, traditions or rituals, nor with top-heavy organization. It always has been, and still is, basically a movement within Christendom. They use the Bible as a creed, etc., and nothing else.

The Bible itself is the rule of faith and practice, and rather than crystallize beliefs in creeds, members of the Church of God feel it is better to keep minds and hearts open to a growing understanding of the Bible. This is part of liberty and, it is believed, a proper characteristic of the church. "It is our privilege to seek truth with all our hearts in the light of the best biblical scholarship of our day."

The Church of God does not profess to have any monopoly on truth, nor do they believe that everyone who differs with them in some doctrine are not Christian. The pastor, the Rev. Mr. V. Ray Foster, says, "Vital religion, like good music, needs no defense, but simply rendition. When we start expressing truth in life rather than in theory, we find common ground. We believe and practice Being born again, John 3:3. We believe when you become a chirstian there must be a change in living. "If you were to ask, 'How do I become a member of the Church of God?' the answer would be, 'By giving your heart and life to Christ. When you belong to him, you belong to his body, which is the Church. As a matter of fact, you cannot belong to him without belonging to his body, the church. Nor can you belong to the church without belonging to him. We are open to fellowship to every one of God's children."

The local congregation of The Church of God, W. Pikes Peak Avenue and 15th Street came into begin seven years ago. There were thirty Church of God people living in this area who felt that they needed to establish a local congregation. These thirty people purchased the present building and began to have services in the community. A pastor was called, and at present, the congregation has grown to about 160 enrollment.

The Rev. Mr. V. Foster received his degree from Warner Pacific College, Portland, Ore. Mrs. Foster came from the British West Indies where they were seving the church doing Mission work.

"The Church people are friendly folks. We worship together, pray together, work together right here in your community. We're just average people, trying to raise our families and pay our debts and make ends meet and be good Christians. We like to have new faces in our congregation, and we like to see those new faces come back again and again. Our church doors are open to all. We have nothing to join, as we do not have membership in the church. We believe when you are saved, 'The Lord adds you to His church.' Acts 2:47.

The church has a trained staff of Sunday School teachers who teach the children the Bible and its stories, not only from the Bible lessons, but from their own personal lives. They believe this is important, as they feel it more important to be something than to just say something.

If we had a motto it would be this: "In our congregation, a christian experience make you a member, and we reach our hands of fellowship out to all of God's people in love and unity for one purpose: to build the Kingdom of God."

Two Men Helped Begin First Baptist Church

In the study of the First Baptist Church, Lubbock, Tex., two men knelt in prayer. They were J. Ralph Grant, pastor of the church, and John P. Baker, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church of that city.

The time was June, 1955, and the object of their praying was a western pioneer mission project in Colorado. As a result of God's leadership, the Skyway Baptist Church was born, and John P. Baker became its first pastor.

The first meetings were held in the pastor's home with 15 charter members. The present structure was erected in 1956 and James McKee is the present pastor.

The Skyway Baptist Church, 1625 S. 8th St., cooperates with the Southern Baptist Convention of Colorado and the Pikes Peak Association of Southern Baptist Churches. The Sunday School and Training Union are graded by ages and offer to all Bible Study, Christian Training and inspiration.

The Women's Missionary Union, thru its circles and auxiliaries provide missionary training and inspiration for women. The Brotherhood offers to the men a time of fellowship and missionary activities. The program for the children and youth includes modern nurseries, graded choirs, youth encampments, Boy Scouts, and social activities.

The total ministry of the church is to quicken a missionary and evangelistic spirit among God's people.

Church Receives Award for Its Steady Growth

The continuous growth and expansion of the First Foursquare Church of Colorado Springs resulted in the church receiving the Gold Lamp Award at the International Convention in Los Angeles last month. It was one of 34 churches in the nation to receive this honor.

First Foursquare is now ranked third among churches in the Midwest District and twenty-fourth among the churches in the entire organization in its Missionary giving.

First services at the church were held in a private residence. Soon a lot was donated and a church was built at 516 E. Kiowa. The congregation continued to grow and it became necessary to move to larger quarters. In 1951 the church erected a new building at 603 S. Hancock St., where it remained until early this year.

The church moved to its present location at 2403 Templeton Gap on February 2 when the needs of the congregation necessitated another change.

Current pastor of the church is the Rev. Glenn D. Metzler, who with his wife Norma and two young daughters, came to Colorado Springs from Scottsbluff, Neb., in October of 1961. Under his leadership, First Foursquare has continued to grow and with the newly acquired property on Templeton Gap there is land and space available for future expansion.

The significance of the name Foursquare is that the church embraces the four cardinal doctrines embodied in the teachings of the Old Testament and of the New Testament Church: that Christ is the Saviour, the Healer, the Baptizer and the soon Coming King. It is a fundamental church which believes that the Bible is the inspired Word of God.

Mennonite Church Dates From Reformation Time

The Beth-El Mennonite Church is a modern brick building, located at the corner of East Uintah and Yuma Streets. Organized in 1956, this church has a membership of 85 and an average attendance of 88 in Sunday school. The current pastor is the Rev. Mr. Darrel D. Otto.

During the first year after its organization, the congregation worshiped at the YWCA in downtown Colorado Springs. The average Sunday school attendance that year was 67. Then, one year later, the church moved to the Nob Hill Community Center. Here, the Beth-El Church worshiped for nearly five years.

The first step toward the construction of a permanent place of worship was the purchase of lots in the 1200 block of Yuma. Ground was broken in 1959, and construction began the following year. Two years later, the first services were conducted in the new sanctuary. Because the congregation was without a pastor at that time, the dedication service was postponed until the summer of 1963 when Darrel D. Otto, a recent graduate of Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Ft. Worth, Texas, was called as pastor.

The Rev. and Mrs. Otto and sons, Darrel II and John, resided at the Audubon Apartments while the parsonage, adjacent to the church, was under construction. The Otto family moved into the newly completed parsonage in August of last year.

The first pastor to serve the Beth-El church was the Rev. Mr. Jess Kauffman. Succeeding the Rev. Mr. Kauffman in 1959 was the Rev. Mr. Paul Wittrig who accepted a three-year term of service.

The Beth-El Mennonite Church is affiliated with the Rocky Mountain District Conference of The Mennonite Church. Serving the Beth-El Church, in addition to the 15 other churches in the district, is the Rev. Mr. E. M. Yost of Denver, the area overseer.

The Mennonite Church is a believers' church. That is, it is comprised of those who "by faith accept salvation and whose lives have been transformed by God." They hold that one must have a faith that works. Hence, they stress that Christ is not only savior, but also lord. Moreover, they attempt to put into practice the ethic of Christian love by helping the underprivileged and by witnessing to both the "down-and-out" and the "up-and-out."

The public is invited to the special events which are planned for the Easter season. The choir will present John W. Peterson's cantata, "No Greater Love," under the direction of Mr. Virgil Brenneman at 7 p.m. Sunday, March 22. And on Easter Sunday, at 7 p.m., the children and youth of the church will give their annual Easter program.

In the year 1880, there started a reaction against the division and strife of denominationalism, and in obedience to a sense of the divine imperative that God's people should be one, a number of pioneer ministers from "old line churches" stepped out and took a stand toward unity of God's people. The purpose was not to start another denomination, but to re-establish the New Testament Church on the basis that true unity is in Jesus Christ alone.

There are a number of churches who use the name "Church of God." This church has never had any connections with any of them. It is not a split from any church, and it is not Pentecostal. By this, the church means it does not believe in speaking in "tongues." They use the name "Church of God" because they found that in thirteen places, the first churches in the very beginning in the New Testament were called "The Church of God."

The Church of God movement has been characterized by its simplicity of structure. It has never been encumbered with creeds, dogmas, traditions, or rituals, nor with top-heavy organization. It always has been, and still is, basically a movement within Christendom. They use the Bible as a creed, etc., and nothing else.

The Bible itself is the rule of faith and practice, and rather than crytallize beliefs in creeds, members of the Church of God feel it is better to keep minds and hearts open to a growing understanding of the Bible. This is part of liberty and, it is believed, a proper characteristic of the church. "It is our privilege to seek truth with all our hearts in the light of the best biblical scholarship of our day."

The Church of God does not profess to have any monopoly on truth, nor do they believe that everyone who differs with them in some doctrine are not "Christian." The pastor, the Rev. Mr. V. Ray Foster, says, "Vital religion, like good music, needs no defense, but simply rendition. When we start expressing truth in life rather than in theory, we find common ground. We believe and practice Being born again, John 3.3. We believe when you become a chirstian there must be a change in living. "If you were to ask, How do I become a member of the Church of God? the answer would be, By giving your heart and life to Christ. When you belong to him, you belong to his body, which is the Church. As a matter of fact, you cannot belong to him without belonging to his body, the church. Nor can you belong to the church without belonging to him. We are open to fellowship to every one of God's children."

The local congregation of The Church of God, W. Pikes Peak Avenue and 15th Street came into begin seven years ago. There were thirty Church of God people living in this area who felt that they needed to establish a local congregation. These thirty people purchased the present building and began to have services in the community. A pastor was called, and at present, the congregation has grown to about 160 enrollment.

The Rev. Mr. V. Foster recieved his degree from Warner Pacific College, Portland, Ore. Mrs. Foster came from the British West Indies where they were seving the church doing Mission work.

"The Church people are friendly folks. We worship together, pray together, work together right here in your community. We're just average people, trying to raise our families and pay our debts and make ends meet and be good Christians. We like to have new faces in our congregation, and we like to see those new faces come back again and again. Our church doors are open to all. We have nothing to join, as we do not have membership in the church. We believe when you are saved, "The Lord adds you to His church." Acts 2.47.

The church has a trained staff of Sunday School teachers who teach the children the Bible and its stories, not only from the Bible lessons, but from their own personal lives. They believe this is important, as they feel it more important to be something than to just say something.

If we had a motto it would be this: "In our congregation, a christian experience make you a member, and we reach our hands of fellowship out to all of God's people in love and unity for one purpose: to build the Kingdom of God."

Two Men Helped Begin First Baptist Church

In the study of the First Baptist Church, Lubbock, Tex., two men knelt in prayer. They were J. Ralph Grant, pastor of the church, and John P. Baker, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church of that city.

The time was June, 1955, and the object of their praying was a western pioneer mission project in Colorado. As a result of God's leadership, the Skyway Baptist Church was born, and John P. Baker became its first pastor.

The first meetings were held in the pastor's home with 15 charter members. The present structure was erected in 1956 and James McKee is the present pastor.

The Skyway Baptist Church, 1625 S. 8th St., cooperates with the Southern Baptist Convention of Colorado and the Pikes Peak Association of Southern Baptist Churches. The Sunday School and Training Union are graded by ages and offer to all Bible Study, Christian Training and inspiration.

The Women's Missionary Union, thru its circles and auxiliaries provide missionary training and inspiration for women. The Brotherhood offers to the men a time of fellowship and missionary activities. The program for the children and youth includes modern nurseries, graded choirs, youth encampments, Boy Scouts, and social activities.

The total ministry of the church is to quicken a missionary and evangelistic spirit among God's people.

Church Receives Award for Its Steady Growth

The continuous growth and expansion of the First Foursquare Church of Colorado Springs resulted in the church receiving the Gold Lamp Award at the International Convention in Los Angeles last month. It was one of 34 churches in the nation to receive this honor.

First Foursquare is now ranked third among churches in the Midwest District and twenty-fourth among the churches in the entire organization in its Missionary giving.

First services at the church were held in a private residence. Soon a lot was donated and a church was built at 516 E. Kiowa. The congregation continued to grow and it became necessary to move to larger quarters. In 1951 the church erected a new building at 603 S. Hancock St., where it remained until early this year.

The church moved to its present location at 2403 Templeton Gap on February 2 when the needs of the congregation necessitated another change.

Current pastor of the church is the Rev. Glenn D. Metzler, who with his wife Norma and two young daughters, came to Colorado Springs from Scottsbluff, Neb., in October of 1961. Under his leadership, First Foursquare has continued to grow and with the newly acquired property on Templeton Gap there is land and space available for future expansion.

The significance of the name Foursquare is that the church embraces the four cardinal doctrines embodied in the teachings of the Old Testament and of the New Testament Church: that Christ is the Saviour, the Healer, the Baptizer and the soon Coming King. It is a fundamental church which believes that the Bible is the inspired Word of God.

Mennonite Church Dates From Reformation Time

The Beth-El Mennonite Church is a modern brick building, located at the corner of East Uintah and Yuma Streets. Organized in 1956, this church has a membership of 85 and an average attendance of 88 in Sunday school. The current pastor is the Rev. Mr. Darrel D. Otto.

During the first year after its organization, the congregation worshiped at the YWCA in downtown Colorado Springs. The average Sunday school attendance that year was 67. Then, one year later, the church moved to the Nob Hill Community Center. Here, the Beth-El Church worshiped for nearly five years.

The first step toward the construction of a permanent place of worship was the purchase of lots in the 1200 block of Yuma. Ground was broken in 1959, and construction began the following year. Two years later, the first services were conducted in the new sanctuary. Because the congregation was without a pastor at that time, the dedication service was postponed until the summer of 1963 when Darrel D. Otto, a recent graduate of Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Ft. Worth, Texas, was called as pastor.

The Rev. and Mrs. Otto and sons, Darrel II and John, resided at the Audubon Apartments while the parsonage, adjacent to the church, was under construction. The Otto family moved into the newly completed parsonage in August of last year.

The first pastor to serve the Beth-El church was the Rev. Mr. Jess Kauffman. Succeeding the Rev. Mr. Kauffman in 1959 was the Rev. Mr. Paul Wittrig who accepted a three-year term of service.

The Beth-El Mennonite Church is affiliated with the Rocky Mountain District Conference of The Mennonite Church. Serving the Beth-El Church, in addition to the 15 other churches in the district, is the Rev. Mr. E. M. Yost of Denver, the area overseer.

The Mennonite Church is a believers' church. That is, it is comprised of those who "by faith accept salvation and whose lives have been transformed by God." They hold that one must have a faith that works. Hence, they stress that Christ is not only savior, but also lord. Moreover, they attempt to put into practice the ethic of Christian love by helping the underprivileged and by witnessing to both the "down-and-out" and the "up-and-out."

The public is invited to the special events which are planned for the Easter season. The choir will present John W. Peterson's cantata, "No Greater Love," under the direction of Mr. Virgil Brenneman at 7 p.m. Sunday, March 22. And on Easter Sunday, at 7 p.m., the children and youth of the church will give their annual Easter program.

Trinity E.U.B. Combines With Matheson Church

Simla Trinity Evangelical United Brethren Church began as the result of missionary efforts by the Kansas Conference of the Evangelical Church in 1910. It was organized by the Rev. Mr. C. S. Steinmetz in 1911. The present building was constructed in 1913. There have been a number of improvements, the latest being a two room addition to the parsonage.

Membership numbers 164. There are 86 enrolled in Sunday Church School. Aside from two Sunday services, the church has an active Boys' and Girls' Fellowship, a Youth Fellowship, a Pastor's Class, and a Women's Missionary organization. It is a member of the Rocky E.U.B. Church, on a circuit with Matheson, and is presently served by Willis F. Goetel, an ordained minister. Dr. Lloyd Nichols is the conference superintendent and W. Maynard Sparks is the bishop of the western area in which the church is situated.

The denomination has always believed in cooperation and is the result of a merger of the Evangelical and the United Brethren Church in 1946. The senior bishop of the church, R. H. Mueller, is the president of the National Council of Churches.

The denomination holds to the Arminian doctrine, closely resembling that of the Methodists. The deity of Jesus and his perfect humanity and the divinity of the Holy Ghost are stressed. There is strong emphasis laid upon Christian perfection; and entire sanctification based upon this perfection. There is stress upon the Trinity, the authority of the Scriptures, justification, regeneration, the Sabbath, and the future state. Modes in baptism and the Lord's Supper, accepted as sacraments are left to individual preference. Liturgically the church belongs to the free tradition; orders of worship are optional; the rituals of the two sacraments are derived from the Book of Common Prayer.

The denomination is stressing the need for spiritual renewal during the present quadrennium. This year's specific emphasis challenges every member to experience spiritual rebirth in personal relationships with the Lord, in personal concern for the lost, in personal loyalty to the services of the church.

There will be services of baptism and membership reception on Palm Sunday and on Eastern. The congregation is jointly sponsoring a concert at the local high school on Palm Sunday afternoon by the Genoa Community Choir. Each night during Holy Week, Dr. Lloyd Nichols will speak in Lenten services at the church.

Army Chaplains Play Many Faceted Roles

In today's highly technological Army, the chaplain plays a many-faceted role at Ft. Carson and around the world. First he is the spiritual adviser to the troops assigned to his unit.

He acts as a religious leader to those outside of his denomination, when necessary. He is concerned with religious welfare, and moral welfare — a concern he shares with commanding officers — spiritual welfare and psychic well being of military men and their families.

Second, he must act as personal adviser to the men who come to his office to seek aid or solace. He must know to whom to send them if he cannot help them personally. In this respect, he is often called upon to act as a philosopher, a psychologist, an economist, a disciplinarian and of course, always, an Army officer.

The Army chaplain's job, it can be seen, is a round-the-clock one, seven days a week, and not just when services are being held. His office is always open to those seeking his guidance.

The requests he receives and the advice he gives are as varied as the texts he reads on Friday nights or Sunday mornings. Chaplains officiate at marriages, christenings and funerals. They perform all the services of a civilian clergyman and many others.

The chaplains are supported in their mission by the attitude of the Army. The United States Army strongly encourages men to attend religious services of their choice. When the men are in the field on training maneuvers, chaplains must go to the men.

New, permanent chapels are being erected or are already built at almost every Army installation in the country as evidence of the Army's interest in religion.

At Ft. Carson there are 11 chapels and a permanent post chapel is about to be built. There are 20 chaplains representing three major faiths, headed by the post chaplain, Col. H. F. Donovan. A Chapel Center on Specker Avenue in the troop area provides meditation facilities, refreshments, a small library and a place to relax and think.

The Army chaplain is a highly educated and devoted man. As a military man himself, he understands the problems of other military. Serving voluntarily, he receives specialized training at the U.S. Army Chaplains School, Ft. Hamilton, N.Y. The chaplain may serve from two years to an indefinite tour of duty, and can be found anywhere in the world where there is an American soldier in need of him.

Calvary E.U.B. Began With 23 Members

The Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church was organized on March 20, 1902 by the Rev. Mr. C. S. Steinmetz with 23 charter members.

A tent building was erected at 209 E. Rio Grande St., to use as a meeting place. Needing a permanent church building, a lot at Wahsatch and Uintah Streets was purchased at half price from Gen. Palmer, the founder of Colorado Springs. On this was built the first church in 1903 and a parsonage in 1907, the labor being donated.

This church building was replaced with a larger brick structure in 1926 which is still used today. The parsonage was removed and a new one built in 1958.

Eighteen pastors have served Calvary Church with the Rev. Mr. E. J. Ness the present pastor coming in 1956. A number of Calvary's young men have answered the call to the ministry. The present membership is 228 with active groups in all age levels and a special emphasis for the youth program.

First Presbyterian Church Began Services in 1872

The First Presbyterian Church of Colorado Springs was organized in 1872 by the Rev Mr. H .B. Gage and the Rev Mr Sheldon Jackson who was a pioneer missionary in the western half of the United States and Alaska

Eleven pastor have served the congregation thru its 92 years of history with the longest term being served by the present Pas Bailey Salem Ill will be the tor Dr Howard E Hanson who has just completed his 26th year

Begun with eight members the church now numbers 1134 with 2439 enrolled in the Sunday School Eleven full time and six part time members serve on the church staff

Thru the years, three different buildings have been occupied by the church, the first erected in 1872 stood where the city auditorium now stands the second was built in 1888 on the present site at the corner of North Nevada Ave and Bijou Street, with the third and present building replacing it in 1959

Services are held each Sunday with many other activities for all ages during the week. Four choirs furnish music for the various services

Four young men from the church are now in seminary preparing for the Presbyterian ministry and two others will soon go to foreign countries to serve under the Doulos program of the church, in which young people are sent to various parts of the world to serve for a while in mission projects of the church

The basic tenet of the church is the necessity of personal faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord, and the importance of expressing that discipleship in daily life This belief is the only requirement for membership.

LITTLE LOG CHURCH OF PALMER LAKE

* * *

PATCHWORK CAR

ESCONDIDO Calif (AP) -- Chemist Lee Uran has a "new" old tin Lizzie which he built himself from parts he found, begged bought and traded for

The open 1914 - model car's body was found on a Marine Corps bombing range the hood and two - section windshield frame were fruits of a parts-hunting trip into the ghost towns of Nevada, the frame was discovered in a canyon, and the brass radiator was purchased from an antique auto buff in Wisconsin

---

Lent is said to have received its name from the old Anglo-Saxon "lengtentide" when, as springs rears, the days lengthen

Little Log Church Is Unique Rustic Structure

The Little Log Church of Palmer Lake, built in 1925 and dedicated in 1954, is unique because the logs are fully visible within and without the building while the inside is very modern

This is a community church where members of many denominations belong. There is no strife for only the essentials of the gospel are emphasized

The pastor who served 29 years and who was largely responsible for the church's growth was Miss Evalena Macy, a Friends Minister The current pastor is the Rev Russell S. Jones, a retired Methodist Minister. He has been with the church nearly three years.

The 192 members of the congregation are active in many affairs. Ten different projects are listed in the Missionary program. The Junior Choir, directed by Marjorie Meckes, and the Senior Choir, directed by Donna Edgett, each have 15 members.

Junior and Senior Christian Endeavor meet every Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wiedonmier are the leaders of the Juniors and Arnie and Elaine Lavelette, the Seniors.

The Membership Society of the church prepares canceled postage stamps for sale, rugs for the making and engage in various other activities. The Columbine Circle also meets to make cook books for sale to pay for the church nursery, help in homes for orphans and help the church in other ways.

Possibly the most interesting activity for the church is the Adult Bible Class taught by Dr. J. A. Plantz. Dr. Plantz was a teacher of the Bible in Kansas Wesleyan at Salina, Kan. He reads the Bible in the original and so is easily able to answer any questions.

In Fellowship Hall below the church, 125 people can be served a meal. The Cub Scouts meet there monthly under the direction of Ralph Lavelett. The last Sunday of each month, covered dishes are brought and real fellowship is enjoyed by the members.

The Little Log Church has been the site of many weddings. Summer tourists come from all over to view the church and attend the service. All who have seen the church seem to remember it with fond memories.

Ivywild United Church Occupies New Sanctuary

The Ivywild United Presbyterian Church first occupied the old Ivywild Elementary School building when it was moved from Cascade Avenue to allow for the construction of its present plant in 1916 at 1626 S. Tejon St.

Thru the years alterations and additions have been made to permit the expansion of its congregation and program to its present 300 membership and full organizational activities. The latter include Sunday School, Youth Groups, Mariners for married couples, Women's Missionary Association and ladies Circles.

Last Dec. 1, the Ivywild congregation dedicated to the glory of God, its new Sanctuary with a fellowship center and additional Sunday School facilities. The former sanctuary now has been renovated, allowing for the full use of the building for Christian education purpose.

Dr. Harold W. Teed is the pastor.

COLOMBO—Ceylon is buying two large tugboats for use in the country's principal harbor.

Security Church Now Numbers Ninety-One

The Bradley Road Church of Christ in Security began meeting in a residence in Security on Oct 18, 1959, and has grown from thirty-nine charter members to ninety-one.

The present minister, Ches Wooten, has been with the congregation two and one-half years, and was preceded in his work by two other ministers, Homer Wolfe and Kenneth Ratcliff.

Besides its work program in Security, the congregation contributes to a missionary in India, Brother Donald Perry and his family, who are related to a family in the Security church, and to the Rocky Mountain Children's Home in Longmont

Andy Lewis, D. L. Campbell, and D. R. Kitchen have served the church as elders.

The present location of the church building is two blocks east of Main Street at 3301 Bradley Road, Security. The building with its equipment and grounds is valued at $75,000, and has a seating capacity of 310.

First Presbyterian Church Began Services in 1872

The First Presbyterian Church of Colorado Springs was organized in 1872 by the Rev. Mr. H. B. Gage and the Rev. Mr. Sheldon Jackson, who was a pioneer missionary in the western half of the United States and Alaska.

Eleven pastor have served the congregation thru its 92 years of history, with the longest term being served by the present pastor, Dr. Howard E. Hansen who has just completed his 26th year.

Begun with eight members, the church now numbers 3134 with 2419 enrolled in the Sunday School. Eleven full time and six part time members serve on the church staff.

Thru the years, three different buildings have been occupied by the church; the first erected in 1872 stood where the city auditorium now stands; the second was built in 1888 on the present site at the corner of North Nevada Ave. and Bijou Street, with the third and present building replacing it in 1959.

Services are held each Sunday with many other activities for all ages during the week. Four choirs furnish music for the various services.

Four young men from the church are now in seminary preparing for the Presbyterian ministry, and two others will soon go to foreign countries to serve under the Doulos program of the church, in which young people are sent to various parts of the world to serve for a while in mission projects of the church.

The basic tenet of the church is the necessity of personal faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord, and the importance of expressing that discipleship in daily life. This belief is the only requirement for membership.

LITTLE LOG CHURCH OF PALMER LAKE

* * * * * *

PATCHWORK CAR

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP) — Chemist Lee Uran has a "new" old tin Lissie which he built himself from parts he found, begged, bought and traded for.

The open 1914 - model car's body was found on a Marine Corps bombing range, the hood and two - section windshield frame were fruits of a parts-hunting trip into the ghost towns of Nevada; the frame was discovered in a canyon; and the brass radiator was purchased from an antique auto buff in Wisconsin.

Lent is said to have received its name from the old Anglo-Saxon "Lengtentide" when, as springs nears, the days lengthen.

Little Log Church Is Unique Rustic Structure

The Little Log Church of Palmer Lake, built in 1925 and dedicated in 1954, is unique because the logs are fully visible within and without the building while the inside is very modern.

This is a community church where members of many denominations belong. There is no strife for only the essentials of the gospel are emphasized.

The pastor who served 29 years and who was largely responsible for the church's growth was Miss Evalena Macy, a Friends Minister. The current pastor is the Rev. Russell S. Jones, a retired Methodist Minister. He has been with the church nearly three years.

The 192 members of the congregation are active in many affairs. Ten different projects are listed in the Missionary program. The Junior Choir, directed by Marjorie Meckes, and the Senior Choir, directed by Donna Edgett, each have 15 members.

Junior and Senior Christian Endeavor meet every Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wiedonmier are the leaders of the Juniors and Arnie and Elaine Lavelette, the Seniors.

The Membership Society of the church prepares canceled postage stamps for sale, rugs for the making and engage in various other activities. The Columbine Circle also meets to make cook books for sale to pay for the church nursery, help in homes for orphans and help the church in other ways.

Possibly the most interesting activity for the church is the Adult Bible Class taught by Dr. J. A. Plantz. Dr. Plantz was a teacher of the Bible in Kansas Wesleyan at Salina, Kan. He reads the Bible in the original and so is easily able to answer any questions.

In Fellowship Hall below the church, 125 people can be served a meal. The Cub Scouts meet there monthly under the direction of Ralph Lavelett. The last Sunday of each month, covered dishes are brought and real fellowship is enjoyed by the members.

The Little Log Church has been the site of many weddings. Summer tourists come from all over to view the church and attend the service. All who have seen the church seem to remember it with fond memories.

Ivywild United Church Occupies New Sanctuary

The Ivywild United Presbyterian Church first occupied the old Ivywild Elementary School building when it was moved from Cascade Avenue to allow for the construction of its present plant in 1916 at 1626 S. Tejon St.

Thru the years alterations and additions have been made to permit the expansion of its congregation and program to its present 300 membership and full organizational activities. The latter include Sunday School, Youth Groups, Mariners for married couples, Women's Missionary Association and ladies Circles.

Last Dec. 1, the Ivywild congregation dedicated to the glory of God, its new Sanctuary with a fellowship center and additional Sunday School facilities. The former sanctuary now has been renovated, allowing for the full use of the building for Christian education purpose.

Dr. Harold W. Teed is the pastor.

Security Church Now Numbers Ninety-One

The Bradley Road Church of Christ in Security began meeting in a residence in Security on Oct. 18, 1959, and has grown from thirty-nine charter members to ninety-one.

The present minister, Ches Wooten, has been with the congregation two and one-half years, and was preceded in his work by two other ministers, Homer Wolfe and Kenneth Ratcliff.

Besides its work program in Security, the congregation contributes to a missionary in India, Brother Donald Perry and his family, who are related to a family in the Security church, and to the Rocky Mountain Children's Home in Longmont.

Andy Lewis, D. L. Campbell, and D. R. Kitchen have served the church as elders.

The present location of the church building is two blocks east of Main Street at 3301 Bradley Road, Security. The building with its equipment and grounds is valued at $75,000, and has a seating capacity of 310.

Twelve classrooms, nursery, baptistry, office, and rest rooms contribute to the functional design of the building.

Spectacular Sights Seen At Many World's Fairs

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK (NEA) — The World's Fair opening on Long Island shortly will have to go some to equal such daring attractions as:

Belly dancers, an amusement ride higher than any building in town or a man who convinced authorities he could turn other metals into gold.

Seminakedness was the compromise reached at the 1893 Columbian Exposition in Chicago after a debate as to "whether customs of Cairo should be faithfully reproduced—or the morals of the public faithfully protected." The lady in question was "Little Egypt," of whom it was reported "Practice in the movement of her body had greatly developed her abdominal region."

Located on a swampy tract similar to the one at Flushing Meadows where the 1964 fair is located, this Chicago Exposition also delivered "America's answer to the Eiffel Tower." This was an iron wheel standing 250 feet high—four times larger than the biggest wheel then in existence—and driven by steam engines.

The brain child of Galesburg, Ill., engineer George Washington Ferris, it gave almost 1½ million visitors a sky ride overlooking Lake Michigan—though at first it was called a "monster" and few people would help build it. Today, at fairs and amusement parks, the Ferris wheel still amazes—and delights—"children of all ages."

Children were also entranced by an unusual exhibit at the 1933 Chicago Fair. Models of prehistoric monsters snorted, roared and lashed their tails in this exhibit while jets of steam suggested the tropical climate of the earth millions of years before man appeared.

Replicas of buildings lived or worked in by Abraham Lincoln were another feature of this fair. China's contribution was the Golden Temple of Jehol, a bejeweled replica that arrived in 28,000 pieces and had to be put together like a Chinese puzzle. Still another big thrill of the Chicago fair was the then new and fabulous transcontinental airplanes that flew over it at the colossal speed of "three miles per minute"—180 miles hour.

A sensation of the 1901 Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N.Y., was a gentleman named Stephen H. Emmens, who claimed to have a mysterious substance called agentaurum, with which he could increase the amount of gold in metallic alloys. Naturally, he creater a furore. Not only did the public clamor to buy some of his discovery, but even the U.S. government paid $1,000 for some of Emmens' magic elixir before it finally was unveiled as a complete fraud.

There will be no Soviet pavilion at this year's fair. But in the past Moscow did advertise communism at many international expositions. At the Paris fair of 1937, for instance, the Russian building was noted for its breath-taking map of the Soviet Union made of precious and semiprecious jewels. On top of the building stood two giant and heroic statues flaunting the hammer and sickle.

At an earlier Paris fair, in 1900, there was a large, revolving globe not unlike the Unisphere that will be a hub of the new fair. This attraction proved a commerical flop, however, because the public feared it was unsafe to enter. On the other hand, they weren't too afraid of a moving sidewalk that raced along at five miles an hour suspending 15 feet above ground. Said one reporter: "Nothing resulted in jollier laughter . . ."

Water seems essential; the 1964 fair is dotted with lagoons, fountains, lakes. Romantic Venetian gondolas have floated through such expositions as that of Philadelphia in 1926 and Chicago in '33. Sampans and junks came to the Nagoya (Japan) Fair of 1937. And U.S. warships to the Jamestown (Va.) Tercentenary fete of 1907. With much prasie of pioneer figures like John Smith and the faithful Pocahontas this exposition was located where the early cavaliers established America's first permanent settlement of Englishmen.

Fairs always seem to have a way of linking the purely beautiful with the commercially useful. The new one will have a Garden of Meditation directly across the road from something called a jaycopter ride. At the St. Louis wingding of 1903 there was a half-mile-long melange of flower beds and statuary that was called "Machinery Gardens."

The clash of grandiose and sublime may be traced to Daniel Burnham, the American architect who made a reputation for fair designs. "Make no little plans," he advised. "They have no magic to stir men's blood."

First Southern Baptist Began With 14 People

In the year 1951, Southern Baptists as a Convention, while expanding in all directions over the nation, had, as yet, no church in Colorado Springs.

A group of interested people met at the home of the Rev. Mr. M. B. Dunham Dec. 31, 1951, for the purpose of organizing a Baptist Church for the northeast section of the area. The fourteen people present organized into the Faith Baptist Church, but the name was changed in February, 1952, to the First Southern Baptist Church.

The Rev. Mr. W. C. Bryant of Amarillo, Tex., was unanimously called as pastor of the church, and the church grew rapidly under Dr. Bryant's leadership. At the time of Dr. Bryant's resignation in May, 1959, the church had a membership of more than 1,200.

Dr. Frank Baugh became the second pastor of the church in August, 1959, following a ten year pastorate at the Immanuel Baptist Church, Shawnee, Okla. The church continued to make progress under the leadership of Dr. Baugh.

The Rev. Mr. R. D. Yancey accepted the call of the church to become the third pastor in September, 1962. The Rev. Mr. Yancey has led the church in physical and spiritual growth since his coming as pastor.

The church now has a full-time Minister of Music and Youth, the Rev. Mr. Ralph Gibson, and a full-time Minister of Education, the Rev. Mr. Larry Shotwell, serving on the staff. The Sunday School now has an enrollment of more than 1,000 and the Training Union is nearly 500. The church provides a fully graded music program and a fine ministry to youth.

The church membership now stands at 1355 with an annual budget of $104,000.

The church believes in the authority of the Scripture, the Bible is the only basis for belief. They believe in salvation by grace thru faith in Jesus Christ, in the Lord's Supper and Baptism as the only two ordinances of the church and they are symbolic in significance, and in the autonomy of the local church and a congregational form of government.

Orphans Find New Homes in French Project

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

ROIEN, France (NEA) — In a nation noted for its quaint villages, rich in history, new villages are springing up rich in hope.

Clusters of homes, called "S.O.S. Villages," now number 30, mostly in northern France. They exist to give a normal life to hundreds of children forced to live without fathers or mothers.

The heart of the children's village plan—in more ways than one—is the "mother" who takes charge of from five to a dozen children, promising to raise them until they are 21.

The "mothers" are asked to put thoughts of marriage aside and take over a ready-made family. The home and the love which they give to their foster children must be real and permanent.

Surprisingly, there are hundreds of women throughout France eager to take over such demanding duties. Most are single women, some are widows, happy to pick up the threads of family life again.

Yet, the requirements are strict. After a team of medical, social and psychiatric investigators finished with 750 applicants last year, only 30 women qualified to take their places beside the children.

The idea for S.O.S. grew in the mind of Prof. Gilbert Cottau, who was inspired by the success of a similar Austrian experiment following World War II. It had all begun with a terrified child who had lost both parents in a bombing raid. He was placed with a permanent "mother." The plan seemed to work for him and for others who came after.

A typical children's village is built for 18 "families." The guiding theme is that the children are given the freedom and security of a real home — instead of the strict atmosphere of an orphanage. The children attend local schools. Brothers and sisters are kept within the same home.

A woman who passes the test as a "mother" is given a new house and a family. She is allowed the normal wages of a father (plus family allowances), given money to furnish a roomy living room, five bedrooms, kitchen and bathroom to her taste.

Then she is on her own, with no inspector to supervise her. She can shop where she likes. She is, in fact, urged to live exactly like the mother of a large family.

The children soon learn to call her "mother." She may even marry provided the man does not separate her from her family.

Every village has its man around who lives nearby, in the village itself. The children call him "uncle." As a married man with children of his own, he is there to help when needed.

Mme. Germain Taillon, 38, the first mother at Busigny in northern France, celebrated her 10th anniversary recently. "The love and affection of my children," she said, "have more than made up for the disappointments and setbacks at the beginning. I now realize that these years will remain with me as the richest in my life."

St. Mary's Held Mass in 1860

Father Joseh Machebeuf, the first Bishop of Denver, was the first pastor of St. Mary's Church. The first mass in the Pikes Peak Region was said on Oct. 15, 1860 by Father Machebeuf in the Colorado City home of John Longmayer.

The first church built on the southeast corner of Sahwatch and Rio Grande, moved to southeast corner of Cucharras and Cascade. This was sold in 1882 and a new church and parsonage built on the northeast corner of Cascade Avenue and Vermijo Street. It was then known as St. Anne's but in March 1891 the basement of a new building on Kiowa Street was dedicated and became known as St. Mary's Church. The cornerstone was laid Nov. 22, 1897 and with its completion in December of 1898, was dedicated.

Father Godfrey Raber became the pastor in 1902 and the Rev. Mr. William Kipp succeeded Father Raber after his death. St. Mary's Church has had twelve pastors since its beginning. Monsignor Robert F. Hoffman is the present pastor.

Parkview Church Was Organized In November, 63

The Parkview Christian Church met for it's first services Nov. 3, 1963, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rigor, 1306 Yosemite Dr., in Pikes Peak Park on the southeast side of the city.

Thirty-three persons attended the Bible school, which was organized with seven classes from cradle roll, thru adults. At the close of the morning worship service 17 persons transferred membership to the new congregation.

Efforts are now being made to secure a church building site, and the first Sunday of each month is designated as "Building Fund Sunday," with all offerings going to the Building Fund.

Rocky Mountain Christian Mission is leading in the establishment of the work and Robert M. Lillie, director of the mission, is minister.

There have been seven new additions to the congregation since Nov. 3, four of these being by Christian baptism, and three by transfer of membership.

The Bible School is now being led in an "Honor His Word" campaign by the Superintendent, Frank Rigor.

The basic belief of the Parkview Christian Church is the restoration of primitive Christianity, and consequent union of all the followers of Christ, in one body (John 17:21), and to exalt Christ above party and His Word above all human creeds, to build a church of Christ without denominational name, man-written creed, or other barrier to Christian unity, whose terms of fellowship shall be as broad as the conditions of salvation, and identical with them, to lead sinners to Christ in the clear light of the New Testament teaching, on non-essentials we admit the largest liberty; on the essentials we appeal to the New Testament. "Where the Bible speaks, we speak, and where the Bible is silent, we are silent."

Zimmerman President of Temple Beth-El

Temple Beth-El is a member of the Union of American Congregations, an organization of synagogues which belong to the liberal or reform movement in Judaism.

The temple was founded in 1945 and used the facilities of the All Souls Unitarian Church until the present building was completed and dedicated in 1949. The current president of Temple Beth-El is Dr. Robert Zimmerman. Rabbi Bernard Frankel has been the spiritual leader of the congregation since August, 1963.

The basic tenet of the faith is a belief in one God, that each man has a responsibility for the welfare of his fellow man, and that each man has the free will to choose between right and wrong, and thereby predetermine his own salvation or future.

On the night of March 27, Jews begin the religious holiday of Passover. On the first two nights of Passover, Jews have a Seder or family meal in their homes. At this time, the Haggadah is read, in which is recounted the slavery in Egypt and the exodus of the Jews under the leadership of Moses.

During Passover, Jews eat Matzah or unleavened bread which is symbolic both of the haste in which they left Egypt and the affliction that they suffered under the Pharaohs. The basic theme of Passover is freedom, not merely physical freedom but freedom with moral and ethical responsibilities.

Buying your spring bedding plants "in bulk", or in thin-walled synthetic containers or in pots that crumble doesn't always make them cheaper by the dozen. Bedding plants grown individually in rigid, porous clay containers arrive in your garden with stronger, healthier roots because the clay pots protect them against root disturbance or shock.

Area Christian Science Church Established in 1892

The Christian Science Church in Colorado Springs was established in 1892. This church is a branch of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Forty-six earnest students of Christian Science organized the local church and elected as their first pastor one who had worked closely with Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of this religion.

The first services were held in a lodge room upstairs in the Durkee Building, a three-story brick structure that stood where the Chief Theatre is now located. The congregation grew and had to move because of its increasing size. The members bought a church in the 500 block of East Colorado Avenue, then called Huerfano Street, and held services at this location for about eight years.

The membership continued to grow, and after much prayerful consideration, they moved to the building which still stands on the corner of Pikes Peak and Wahsatch Avenues. It was here they opened the first Christian Science Reading Room in Colorado Springs.

Five years later they rented the Unitarian Church, corner of Dale and Tejon Streets. The Unitarians met on Sunday afternoons, thus the time of their service did not conflict with the Christian Science service in the morning. Later, for about a year, services were held in Perkins Hall at Colorado College.

The congregation meanwhile had saved a substantial sum of money for a church of their own but in 1904, they voted to donate the entire sum toward the construction of the present Mother Church in Boston. Mrs. Eddy wrote a cordial letter of thanks which was subsequently printed in her book, "The First Church of Christ, Scientist and Miscellany."

The members continued to work and save, and by 1907 they had built and paid for their own church building on the corner of Cascade Avenue and Boulder Street, the site of the present church. In 1959, a new, modern auditorium with a seating capacity of five hundred was added, and services are now held there.

The church's pastor, as in every Christian Science Church, is the authorized King James version of the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

The church, as set forth in the Manual of the Mother Church, is "designed to commemorate the word and works of our Master, which should reinstate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing." (Church Manual, p. 17).

The services are conducted by a First and Second Reader. These readers are elected from the membership for a period of three years. Those presently serving are Capt. Charles A. Bond (USN, Ret.) and Mrs. Virginia A. Arnott.

The present Reading Room, 132 N. Tejon St., is maintained for the use of the public. Here they may ask questions about Christian Science or read the Bible and authorized Christian Science literature. A special open house will be held for the public in the Reading Room May 15.

Several times a year, the church sponsors free public lectures designed to explain Christian Science to those who wish to find out more about this religion. The next lecture is May 24.

Black Forest Chapel Started With Residents

The Black Forest Chapel was started in 1958 by a group of residents desiring a Bible Study on Sunday Evenings.

A cabin was donated to start a church. It began to grow and the need for a church building was met by the donation of a corner location. The building was started and when the basement was finished in 1959, the group moved in to worship there until the completion of the Sanctuary.

The dedication of the completed church was held July 17, 1960. Since the church was organized as inter-denominational, there are a number of denominations working together.

In August 1963, the mortgage was burned. All thru these years, there has been the Evening Bible Study, now having three age groups, children's, young people and adult Bible studies.

Other groups of the church are the Sunday School, Pioneers For Christ, Youth Group, Junior and Adult Choirs and Women's Missionary Group.

Under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. F. A. McGee and the Rev. Mr. Jack Havice, the church has experienced a steady growth and plans for expansion are underway.

The Black Forest Chapel contributes to the American Sunday School Union and sends youngsters to Camp Iana at Divide in the summer. This is an American Sunday School Union Camp.

Sunnyside Baptist Church Started Meeting Easter, 61

The Sunnyside Missionary Baptist church started meeting in Colorado Springs on Easter Sunday, 1961. The congregation has been meeting in a temporary meeting place, the Teamsters Union Hall, 701 S. Tejon St., since that time, however, a church building is being erected at 3700 E. Marion St. in the old Sunnyside Addition of Colorado Springs.

The church is the work of the churches of the American Baptist Association thru one of their Inter-State missionaries. The American Baptist Association is a group of Independent Baptist churches voluntarily cooperating together in missionary and other church related work. Some 5000 churches compose this Association thruout the world.

This church is Orthodox, Fundamental, Premillennial, Associational, and Militant. This church is Baptist because of Eight Peculiar Doctrines held by her. The doctrines are: Belief in the Bible is an all-sufficient, perfect rule of faith and practice; belief that the church of Jesus Christ was founded by Him during His personal ministry on earth; belief in The New Testament order of New Testament commandments reading Repentance, Faith, Baptism, The Lord's Supper; belief in a regenerated church-membership; belief in an absolute equality of membership; belief in restricted communion to the local church membership; belief in the perpetuity of the church since Christ instituted it; and belief that the baptism of John the Baptist was Christian baptism and besides it, there is no Scriptural baptism, which is: baptism of saved people, by immersion only, authority being from heaven intrusted in churches of like faith and order as the one Christ instituted with a lineage from that first church.

This church welcomes the public to visit her services at any time and invites any questions concerning her beliefs and practices. Information may be received thru the pastor, Paul A. Pound, by calling 633-7005.

Youth Prefers Fine To Spoiling Record

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A Scottish schoolboy accepted a fine for being in contempt of court rather than break his perfect attendance record at school and appear as a witness.

The boy was fined $8.40, and his mother said afterward she would have paid much more if necessary. The boy had been at necessary. The boy had been attending school for nine years and hasn't missed a day. He is due to leave school June 30 and didn't want to break the record for any reason.

World agricultural production is expected to rise one per cent in 1964, as compared to an estimated two per cent rise in population for the same period.

Zimmerman President of Temple Beth-El

Temple Beth-El is a member of the Union of American Congregations, an organization of synagogues which belong to the liberal or reform movement in Judaism.

The temple was founded in 1945 and used the facilities of the All Souls Unitarian Church until the present building was completed and dedicated in 1949. The current president of Temple Beth-El is Dr. Robert Zimmerman. Rabbi Bernard Frankel has been the spiritual leader of the congregation since August, 1963.

The basic tenet of the faith is a belief in one God, that each man has a responsibility for the welfare of his fellow man, and that each man has the free will to choose between right and wrong and thereby predetermine his own salvation or future.

Monument Church Was Begun With Pioneer Work

Monument Assembly of God is a "Pioneer Work" and is the outgrowth of families' desires in the community to have a church building of their own in which to worship.

The families had requested, in 1961, the Rev. Mr. W. E. Behrman, pastor of the Castle Rock Assembly of God Church, to hold services once a week in the homes.

In July of 1961, the Rev. Mr. S. L. Munyon, presently pastoring in Akron, was contacted to help formulate a regular Sunday School and worship service. The Rev. Mr. Munyon conducted a revival service in the Home Demonstration Club Building. From this grew the nucleus for the new church. The club building could not be secured permanently and a building was secured near the Freeway Exit and rented from Gene Higby. S. W. Kastl was selected as pastor in September, 1961, to help Pioneer.

The property directly north of the high school at 2nd and Jefferson was purchased during 1962. With the assistance of the Rocky Mountain District Council of the Assemblies of God, a loan was secured to dig a basement and move a building onto the property.

Groundbreaking services were held at the site July 22, 1962, with the Rev. Mr. Kenneth Crouse officiating.

A 30 by 78 foot building was bought and moved from the Air Force Academy alongside the freeway to the basement site, and moved on to the basement in September of that year. Remodeling began immediately with all the labor, as well as the entire project, being donated.

The present building houses the church sanctuary and Sunday School rooms, plus a parsonage apartment to temporarily house the pastor and his family until a time when a permanent parsonage can be built. The building is scheduled for a face-lifting soon outside, while on the inside, remodeling continues.

The first "Spring Revival Services" are scheduled for April 6-12. The Rev. Mr. Paul Wilson, pastor-evangelist from Canon City, will be the guest speaker.

The public is invited to hear the messages in song and word at the services.

HE'S LEARNING

GEORGETOWN, Tex. (AP)—Yusuf Aranki of Jerusalem, Jordan a freshman at Southwestern University, was puzzled and alarmed when told he was on the Dean's List.

"Dean's list? What have I done to him?" the young drama major exclaimed. He was relieved to hear it meant only that he had made high grades for the first semester.

Evangelical Church Was Organized 11 Years Ago

The Evangelical Presbyterian Church, 2511 N. Logan Ave., a member of the Rocky Mountain Presbytery of the national synod of the Evangelical Presbyterian Church, was organized eleven years ago on February 1, 1953.

The members of the congregation recognized two primary needs in organizing a new church: first, the need of a church in the rapidly expanding northeast section of the city, and second, the necessity of establishing additional evangelical churches in order to promote the basic teachings of Christianity, the Biblical doctrine of the Person of Christ and His Word, and the historic Presbyterian form of government.

The late Rev. Mr. F. O. Seamans was appointed Moderator of Session and Stated Supply until the arrival of the Rev. Mr. W. B. Leonard, Jr. on 1 May 1953 from the Navy Chaplaincy.

On September 12, 1954, exactly one year following the ground-breaking ceremony, the congregation gathered for worship services in the new sanctuary. In the fall of 1962, the second stage of the building program was completed with construction of a 6,300 sq. ft. educational wing.

At the Annual Meeting of the congergation in January 1963, the name "Evangelical Presbyterian Church" was adopted by the local church to avoid confusion resulting from the use of the original name, "The First Bible Presbyterian Church", by an eastern group of churches. Present membership is 410.

The local church is a member of Presbyterian denomination organized 27 years ago when a small group of ministers met in Philadelphia, organizing the Bible Presbyterian Church (later becoming the Evangelical Presbyterian Church;. It is one of some ten branches of the Presbyterian or Reformed churches. It was their conviction that serious doctrinal error was being taught by missionaries of the major Presbyterian denomination, by some professors in church - controlled seminaries, as well as by some ministers in Presbyterian pulpits, doctrines, which were contrary to the Confession of Faith and Creeds of historic Presbyterianism.

Today there are Evangelical Presbyterian churches in all parts of the country in eleven presbyteries, staffed by some 200 ordained ministers, missionaries, evangelists, teachers, who hold to the essential doctrines of Christianity and the doctrinal purity of the church. The denomination happily works in fellowship with other denominations loyal to the Word of God, and seeks to maintain an attitude of love and cooperation toward all who are faithfully seeking to further the cause of Christ in the world.

The Evangelical Presbyterian Church carries on its own extensive foreign mission program largely thru World Presbyterian Missions, Inc., of Wilmington, Delaware, with 64 adult missionaries on some ten fields in all major areas of the world, and aids in the support of hundreds of missionaries of many mission boards. It maintains a home mission work thru National Presbyterian Missions, Inc. St. Louis, Mo., aiding in the establishing of new churches and carrying on a mission among the Cherokees of Oklahoma.

It maintains a growing liberal arts college Covenant College, moving from St. Louis this summer to Chattanooga, Tenn. to its new "campus in the clouds" atop famed Lookout Mountain seven miles from downtown Chattanooga. The new campus will accommodate immediately some 500 students. Covenant Theological Seminary will remain at the original campus in Town and country in St. Louis, under a faculty of distinguished scholars.

The work of Christian Education for the denomination includes all age - levels, publications, teacher-training and outreach designed to introduce men and women and youth to Jesus Christ thru all methods consistent with the Scriptures.

The local church sponsors a "Pioneer Girls" program for all girls 3rd thru 10th grades with a Christ - centered pogram of activity and achievement. Midweek prayer and study classes are conducted in addition to home - study and many prayer - cell groups thruout the city.

An active youth program is conducted thruout the year which includes an outstanding summer Bible School program where the yearly enrollment exceeds by over a hundred the total membership of the church. Summer and winter camps and conferences are conducted for Jr. and Sr. High and college age youth. Special events in March include a special five-day series of meetings Mar. 15-20, with Dame Corrie ten Boom, noted author, world - traveler, and lecturer, who was knighted by the Queen of Holland for work with the underground in World War II and for continuing world - wide Chritsian service.

Pentecostal Church Was Begun in 1928

The Rev. Mr. J. L. Talley founded the Pentecostal Church of God, Cascade Avenue and Costilla Street, in 1928, and the original church building was purchased in 1945. The building was formerly the old detention home and is one of the oldest structures in Colorado Springs, being built by Winfield Scott Stratton in 1874.

In 1959, the Rev. Mr. Adas C. Talley started the addition onto the old structure, increasing the seating capacity to 150. He built all the knotty pine pews and supervised the building until his death in 1961.

The church is growing to a record of 131 in Sunday School.

Members believe in a born again experience in Christ, in Sanctification to enable them to live a holy life, in the Baptism of the Holy Ghost according to Acts 2:4 and in the Soon Coming of our Lord.

Homeowners in this country spend an average of about $150 annually for repairs and improvements.

Bethany Baptist Church Began With 7 Members

The First Baptist Church of Colorado City was organized Nov. 12, 1889. There were seven charter members: Jacob Stansbrey, Mary Stansbrey, Susan Eaton, Jane Quinsby, Sophina Bates, Martin Drake and Catherine Huston. The first pastor was the Rev. Mr. F. W. Hart. The lots for the building site were a gift to the church by Jane Quinby.

Colorado City was annexed to Colorado Springs in 1917. As there was already a First Baptist Church of Colorado Springs, the church changed its name to Bethany Baptist Church of Colorado Springs.

A building program was started in 1939 to raise money for an addition to southside to be constructed later. Plans for the new addition were presented on Aug. 14, 1940 and approved. The contract was let to I. Rucker for $3,500. The building was dedicated in December, 1940. In August, 1942 the church purchased a parsonage at 3206 W. Pikes Peak Ave.

Plans were made to sell the building at 24th and W. Pikes Peak Avenue in June 1948 and purchase the property at 1930 W. Colorado Avenue. It was purchased in September, 1948, at a cost of $28,000. The present church building was dedicated in May, 1930.

The new parsonage at 1818 W. Kiowa St. was dedicated in May, 1954. The church purchased the Hillside Baptist Chapel at 601 S. Prospect Ave. in July of 1955 and on Oct. 25, 1955 the building was dedicated as the Bethany Baptist Mission. In October, 1960, the new Education Building was completed.

The Rev. Mr. C. L. Moser has been pastor of this church since 1947.

Bethany Church belongs to the American Baptist Convention, originally the Northern Baptist Convention, which was formed in 1907 "to give expression to the opinions of its constituency upon moral, religious, and denominational unity and efficiency in efforts for the evangelization of the world."

Distinctive principles of Baptists are: The Bible as the only authority for their faith, right of the individual to interpret the Bible as led by the Holy Spirit; complete separation of Church and State, independence of the local church; baptism of believers only; and immersion as the proper mode of baptism.

Delegations and Secretariat members of the United Nations spend more than $78 million annually in the United States.

It is one of some ten branches of the Presbyterian or Reformed churches. It was their conviction that serious doctrinal error was being taught by missionaries of the major Presbyterian denomination, by some professors in church - controlled seminaries, as well as by some ministers in Presbyterian pulpits, doctrines, which were contrary to the Confession of Faith and Creeds of historic Presbyterianism.

Today there are Evangelical Presbyterian churches in all parts of the country in eleven presbyteries, staffed by some 200 ordained ministers, missionaries, evangelists, teachers, who hold to the essential doctrines of Christianity and the doctrinal purity of the church. The denomination happily works in fellowship with other denominations loyal to the Word of God, and seeks to maintain an atitude of love and cooperation toward all who are faithfully seeking to further the cause of Christ in the world.

The Evangelical Presbyterian Church carries on its own extensive foreign mission program largely thru World Presbyterian Missions, Inc., of Wilmington, Delaware, with 64 adult missionaries on some ten fields in all major areas of the world, and aids in the support of hundreds of missionaries of many mission boards. It maintains a home mission work thru National Presbyterian Missions, Inc. St. Louis, Mo., aiding in the establishing of new churches and carrying on a mission among the Cherokees of Oklahoma.

It maintains a growing liberal arts college, Covenant College, moving from St. Louis this summer to Chattanooga, Tenn. to its new "campus in the clouds" atop famed Lookout Mountain, seven miles from downtown Chattanooga. The new campus will accommodate immediately some 500 students. Covenant Theological Seminary will remain at the original campus in Town and country in St. Louis, under a faculty of distinguished scholars.

The work of Christian Education for the denomination includes all age - levels, publications, teacher-training, and outreach designed to introduce men and women and youth to Jesus Christ thru all methods consistent with the Scriptures.

The local church sponsors a "Pioneer Girls" program for all girls 3rd thru 10th grades with a Christ - centered pogram of activity and achievement. Midweek prayer and study classes are conducted in addition to home - study and many prayer - cell groups thruout the city.

An active youth program is conducted thruout the year which includes an outstanding summer Bible School program where the yearly enrollment exceeds by over a hundred the total membership of the church. Summer and winter camps and conferences are conducted for Jr. and Sr. High and college age youth. Special events in March include a special five-day series of meetings Mar. 15-20, with Dame Corrie ten Boom, noted author, world - traveler, and lecturer, who was knighted by the Queen of Holland for work with the underground in World War II and for continuing world - wide Chritsian service.

Pentecostal Church Was Begun in 1928

The Rev. Mr. J. L. Talley founded the Pentecostal Church of God, Cascade Avenue and Costilla Street, in 1928, and the original church building was purchased in 1945. The building was formerly the old detention home and is one of the oldest structures in Colorado Springs, being built by Winfield Scott Stratton in 1874.

In 1959, the Rev. Mr. Adas C. Talley started the addition onto the old structure, increasing the seating capacity to 150. He built all the knotty pine pews and supervised the building until his death in 1961.

The church is growing to a record of 131 in Sunday School.

Members believe in a born again experience in Christ, in Sanctification to enable them to live a holy life, in the Baptism of the Holy Ghost according to Acts 2:4 and in the Soon Coming of our Lord.

Homeowners in this country spend an average of about $150 annually for repairs and improvements.

Bethany Baptist Church Began With 7 Members

The First Baptist Church of Colorado City was organized Nov. 12, 1889. There were seven charter members: Jacob Stansbrey, Mary Stansbrey, Susan Eaton, Jane Quinsby, Sophina Bates, Martin Drake and Catherine Huston. The first pastor was the Rev. Mr. F. W. Hart. The lots for the building site were a gift to the church by Jane Quinby.

Colorado City was annexed to Colorado Springs in 1917. As there was already a First Baptist Church of Colorado Springs, the church changed its name to Bethany Baptist Church of Colorado Springs.

A building program was started in 1939 to raise money for an addition to southside, to be constructed later. Plans for the new addition were presented on Aug. 14, 1940 and approved. The contract was let to I. Rucker for $3,500. The building was dedicated in December, 1940. In August, 1942, the church purchased a parsonage at 3206 W. Pikes Peak Ave.

Plans were made to sell the building at 24th and W. Pikes Peak Avenue in June, 1948, and purchase the property at 1930 W. Colorado Avenue. It was purchased in September, 1948, at a cost of $28,000. The present church building was dedicated in May, 1950.

The new parsonage at 1818 W. Kiowa St. was dedicated in May, 1954. The church purchased the Hillside Baptist Chapel at 601 S. Prospect Ave. in July of 1955 and on Oct. 25, 1955, the building was dedicated as the Bethany Baptist Mission. In October, 1960, the new Education Building was completed.

The Rev. Mr. C. L. Moser has been pastor of this church since 1947.

Bethany Church belongs to the American Baptist Convention, originally the Northern Baptist Convention, which was formed in 1907 "to give expression to the opinions of its constituency upon moral, religious, and denominational unity and efficiency in efforts for the evangelization of the world."

Distinctive principles of Baptists are: The Bible as the only authority for their faith; right of the individual to interpret the Bible as led by the Holy Spirit; complete separation of Church and State; independence of the local church; baptism of believers only; and immersion as the proper mode of baptism.

Delegations and Secretariat members of the United Nations spend more than $78 million annually in the United States.

Fountain Free Methodist Site of State Conference

Located on the northeast corner of West Ohio Avenue and Race Street in Fountain, just 14 miles south of Colorado Springs, is the Fountain Free Methodist Church.

The church building is outstanding in the neighborhood and was built by pioneer Free Methodists in the year 1888.

Today, some of the members of the church are from these pioneer western families who came early to the vicinity of Fountain. For some years before this, a small group of Free Methodists had banded together and at one time worshipped in the old Quaker Church building, which was shared with them

In the year 1886, the Colorado Conference of the Free Methodist Church was organized in Fountain. A number of the brethren from other Colorado communities arrived for that purpose. From that time on, the work was expanded thruout the state.

Historically, the Free Methodist church was organized in the state of New York in the year 1860, and since that time has spread, having churches thruout the United States and Canada. Great world mission fields have resulted in many Free Methodist Churches in foreign lands

Strongly evangelical, and fundamental in its teaching, the Free Methodist Church believes in an experiential type of religion, regarding the Bible as the infallible Word of God, stressing repentance for sin, and faith in Jesus Christ, as Lord and Saviour, as essential to salvation.

The church urges that after regeneration, all Christians should have the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which brings heart purity, known also as entire sanctification, which is evidenced by the witness of the Holy Spirit and proven by the life of the individual. This is definitely a strong teaching in the original Methodist heritage of the church, which is of the Wesleyan-Armenian tradition.

A number of Fountain young people are attending Free Methodist Colleges at the present time. Believing strongly in higher education, with a Christian emphasis, the Free Methodist Church has five senior colleges, all accredited, and three junior colleges, also accredited, two Bible colleges and John Wesley Seminary Foundation.

Many outstanding ministers of the church have pastored in Fountain Free Methodist Church thruout the years One of these, having relatives in this region, and a former professor at Central College, McPherson, Kan., was the Rev Mr W W Loomis. His sister, Rose Loomis, was a member of the church and a missionary to Japan for many years.

The late Bishop R H Warren, during his youth, was a member of the Fountain church. The present pastor, the Rev Mr. E. Holmes Humphreys, came from ain serving his sixth year in Fount- Florida in 1958 and is now

On Friday evening, March 20, the revival services will start at the church and will extend thru Easter Sunday, March 29. The Rev Mr Curtis V. McCully, Denver, will be the evangelist.

Everyone is invited to the services. The pastor hopes that many will take this opportunity to become better acquainted with the Fountain Free Methodist Church

Emmanuel Church Holds Scriptures As Full Authority

Emmanuel Baptist Church is a New Testament Church holding forth the common practices of the Baptist faith. It declares the Scriptures to be the sole authority for its faith and practice. The churches aim and purpose is to know Christ and make Him known to others.

Emmanuel began seven years ago in a house on Hallam Avenue, under the guidance of Earnest D. Humphries. Later, when the church bylaws were drawn up and the church was established, Mel Taylor was called to minister to its people and to Security. The dream of its members became a reality as the church building and adjacent parsonage were completed early in 1960

Pastor Taylor and his family have been called to serve the Lord in Sun Valley, Calif ; and under the leadership of its new pastor, Bud McGuire, and thru the faith and work of its members, Emmanuel Baptist has taken the challenge of knowing better the Old and New Testament scriptures It is launching out on a new youth program, with one of the oustanding programs being the "Talent for Christ" service on the fourth Sunday night of each month. Along with this goes the Teens for Christ, a group for the youth of our church which meets every second and fourth Sunday.

At the present time, there are three active choirs under the direction of Elton Britton, Miniser of Music, who himself is a master at the piano. The Primary choir, ages six to eight, meet Wednesday nights; the Junior choir, ages nine to 11, and the Adult choir meet Thursday nights.

One of the highlights of the church in the near future is the Easter Cantata, "Anthem of the Ages" by Floyd W. Hawkins, which will be presented by our adult choir, under the direction of Elton Britton, at 7:30 p.m. Easter night. This will be the first Sacred Concert of the season to be presented by Emmanuel.

Vernon Castle, famous dancer, was killed in a plane accident in Texas, where he was instructing British pilots during World War I.

First Episcopal Service Was Held 92 Years Ago

The first service of the Episcopal Church in Colorado Springs was held on the evening of Jan. 13, 1872 ,and seems to have been, with one exception, the first religious service ever held in the city.

After that date, services were held for two years in the rooms over the old Gazette printing office, usually conducted by E. E. Liller, a lay reader.

The parochial organization was effected Oct. 14, 1872. The cornerstone for the church on East Pikes Peak Avenue and Weber Street was laid on July 12, 1873. Altho not entirely finished, the first service was held on June 28, 1874. Grace Church was consecrated on Aug. 8, 1880, however, the church was enlarged and improved in 1887, 1891, and 1894. Part of the buildings are still standing and are now occupied by the Village Inn. Also on the old site are the Standard Service Station and the Greyhound Bus Terminal.

The cornerstone for St. Stephen's Church at Monument and North Tejon was laid on Nov. 13, 1894. This church was merged with Grace Church on Dec. 19, 1923. The cornerstone for the new church at the Tejon Street location was laid on May 24, 1925, and the first service was held on Oct. 10, 1926.

At the time of the merger, the Rev. Mr. Chauncy Blodgett was the rector of Grace Church and the Rev. Mr. Arthur N. Taft was the rector of St. Stephen's. Mr. Taft became the rector of the merged churches with Mr. Blodgett as his associate. Both clergymen served until 1928 and united the members of their former churches into one strong parish. Mr. Blodgett died several years ago. Mr. Taft is now 96 years old and lives in Andover, Mass. Altho blind he still retains an active interest in all the activities of his old parish.

Mr. Blodgett was followed by the Very Rev. Mr. Paul Roberts who served from 1928-1936 before becoming dean of St. John's Cathedral, Denver. Dean Roberts is now retired and lives in Phoenix, Ariz.

In 1936, the Rev. Mr. Harry S. Kennedy became rector and served until he was elected bishop of Honolulu in 1944 and still serves as bishop in that area.

The Rev. Mr. J. Lindsay Patton became rector in 1944 and served for 19 years until July, 1963. He is now retired and living in San Francisco, Calif.

The present rector is the Rev. Mr. John C. Mott, who came in September, 1963, from Greensboro, N.C.

The Church of the Good Shepherd, formerly on West Pikes Peak Avenue, was merged with Grace Church in 1937. Epiphany Mission on Dale Street was merged with Grace Church in 1956.

In addition to the mother church at Monument and Tejon, the parish of Grace Church also includes three chapels. Work was started in 1952 and the first service was held in the present building of the Chapel of the Holy Spirit, 1131 N. Union, in 1955. The vicar is the Rev. Mr. Arthur W. Pierpoint. Work was started in the Broadmoor area in 1953 and the present property was acquired in 1954. The Chapel of Our Saviour is located at 4th and Polo Drive. The first service in that area was held in the parish house in 1954. Reconstruction of the chapel took place in 1959 with the first service being held Oct. 30, 1959. The vicar is the Rev. Mr James D. Burnette.

Work was started in the fall of 1957 by the Chapel of St. Michael the Archangel in a rented building on North Nevada Avenue. It was later moved to a rented building on Burgess Road where it continued until fire totally destroyed that building in 1961. The first service in the new chapel was held on June 3, 1962. It is located on the Pine Creek Estate near Highway 85-87 at the Woodmen Road interchange. The vicar is the Rev. Mr. Desmond C. O'Connell.

It is anticipated that all three chapels will become independent parishes in the near future.

The basic tenet of the Anglican Communion of which the Episcopal Church is a vital part is the Apostles and Nicene Creeds.

Lakeside Church of Christ Began in '57

The South Prospect Church of Christ, now called the Lakeside Church of Christ, was established in December 1957 under the forsight of the Elders of the Central Church of Christ.

With the increase in membership and visitors, it was necessary to purchase a larger meeting house. The building purchased in February 1964 is located on the corner of South Hancock Avenue and Moreno Street.

Courthouse First Site of Central Church Meetings

The Central Church of Christ, now worshiping at Boulder and Weber Streets, began meeting in the courthouse in 1943 with 29 members. The present building was purchased in 1950 and in 1959, a two - story dwelling just north of the building was purchased for use as additional class rooms.

The auditorium seats 334 and 20 class rooms are available.

The congregation is under the oversight of three elders: Kenneth L. Loney, Carl Watkins, and Wesley Weide. Lynn Shelton, the local evangelist, is now in his eighth year at Central.

In addition to the regular local work, Central has assisted in mission work in foreign fields and at home.

The church contributes regularly to the support of Mountain States Childrens' Home in Longmont, has established the congregation at 719 S. Prospect St. and contributed to its support since that time. This congregation now is known as Lakeside church of Christ 603 S. Hancock St.

The Central church conducts one gospel meeting each year, a Daily Vacation Bible School in June, and a Statewide Youth Meeting the second Sunday in July in the interest of Christian education.

In faith and in practice, the churches of Christ date back to the founding of the church of the New Testament on the first Pentecost after Jesus' resurrection. They call for a complete return to the New Testament Christianity. Rejecting all party names, creeds, and organizations in their abhorrence of divisional denominationalism in Christendom, they plead for unity of all believers on the basis of the Bible alone.

Though Churches of Christ are all free and independent of any general hierarchy, each local congregation having elders to oversee its affairs and deacons to assist them, they are united in a common faith and voluntarily cooperate in sending missionaries and in doing benevolent work under the direction of local churches.

Membership depends only on (1) faith in and confession of Jesus Christ as the Son of God; (2) repentance from sin; (3) baptism by immersion.

The worship each Sunday consists of five acts specifically authorized by the New Testament: (1) reading and preaching the Bible, (2) observing the Lord's supper as a memorial, (3) contributing money to the Lord's work; (4) praying; (5) singing (a cappella) psalms, hymns and spiritual songs.

Churches of Christ now number some two million people in some 17,500 congregations.

Northeast Bible Chapel Begins Conference Soon

The Northeast Bible Chapel, 1722 McArthur Ave., is a congregation of Christians who hold to the historic doctrines of the Christian faith.

The church believes in God, the Creator of all things; the Deity of Jesus Christ; His virgin birth; His substitionary death for the sins of men, and His bodily resurrection.

Members believe in the forgiveness of sins thru faith in Jesus Christ, and that all who believe in Him as Saviour become members of His Church; They believe in His personal return to earth, and in the final judgment of men before God.

The congregation meets in the Name of Lord Jesus Christ, according to the New Testament precept and example (Matthew 18:20), for the worship of God in the Spririt; for the proclamation of the Gospel of Christ to those who know Him not, and for the building up of God's people thru the ministry of His Word and prayer.

The Annual Conference for 1964 will be held March 27, 28 and 29 at the South Side Bible Chaple, 1725 S. Wahsatch Ave.

This is an effort in which these two assemblies cooperate in bringing nationally known Bible expositors together for the ministry of God's Word to His people.

The speakers for this year are: Tom M. Olson, Wawona, Calif.; Leonard Lindsted, Wichita, Kan.; and John Walden, Sr., Colorado Springs.

Church Leapers To Visit Services

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bishop Reuben H. Mueller, president of the National Council of Churches, and the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer will bring greetings from their home churches to U.S. service personnel overseas during Holy Week.

In what has become an annual Council tradition, the Easter visits this year will take the National Council president to Berlin. Other NCC presidents have visited U.S. armed forces in the Far East, Alaska, the Caribbean and North Africa.

The week preceding Easter is traditionally known as Holy Week. Thursday is called Holy Thursday or Maundy Thursday, and its worship services recall the Last Supper. Good Friday is the anniversary of Christ's crucifixion. Saturday is sometimes called Easter Eve of the Paschal Vigil.

U.S. Monuments Bring History Of Nation to Life

By RICHARD ARKIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vivid scenes of American history come to life at 20 historic frontier posts and coastal forts maintained by the National Park Service.

The sites, including America's oldest outpost and the largest fort in the western world, range from Fort Jefferson National Monument off the coast of Florida to Fort Vancouver National Historic Site on the Columbia River in Washington State, the Department of Interior reports.

The monuments include the scenes of historic battles, winter encampments of famous expeditions, headquarters of fur trading companies that blazed trails across the country, and immigrant landing posts.

Some, such as the Fort Union National Monument in New Mexico, remain ruins, preserved as they are, others, such as Fort Necessity in Pennsylvania, and Fort Raleigh in North Carolina, have been restored or reconstructed.

Built in 1833 as a frontier trading post, Bent's Old Fort National Historic Site in La Junta, Colo., was once one of the great centers of the Rocky Mountain fur trade.

The oldest masonry fort in North America, the Castillo de San Marcos National Monument, in Saint Augustine, Fla., was constructed by the Spanish around 1672 to protect Saint Augustine, the first permanent white setlement in what is now the United States.

The Castle Clinton National Monument in New York was built in 1808-11. It has served as a defense of New York Harbor, a promenade and entertainment center, and finally as an immigrant landing depot through which 7.5 million people entered America from 1855 to 1890.

The Fort Caroline National Memorial, in Jacksonville, Fla., overlooks the site of Lauxonnier's colony of 1564, an early French attempt at settlement within the present United States. Struggles here between the French and the Spanish began two centuries of European colonial rivalry in North America.

The Fort Clatsop National Memorial in Astoria, Ore., is a memorial to the 1805-06 winter encampment of the Lewis and Clark expedition. It was named after the friendly Clatsop Indian tribe by Capt. Meriwether Lewis.

Built in 1854 to protect the Texas frontier, the Fort Davis National Historic Site in Fort Davis, Tex., was used by early travelers headed for the Southwest and California.

Fort Donelson National Military Park in Dover, Tenn., was a civil war fortification controlling the Upper Cumberland River, captured by Gen. Grant in 1862.

Fort Frederica National Monument, Saint Simons Island, Ga., was built 1735 through 1748 by General James E. Oglethorpe during the struggle between Spain and England for control of what is now the southeastern United States.

The largest all-masonry fort in the Western World, the Fort Jefferson National Monument, Homestead, Fla., was built in 1846 for control of the Florida Straits. It also served as a Federal military prison during and after the Civil War.

Site of the fur trade Forts William and John, Fort Laramie National Historic Site, Fort Laramie, Wyo., retains the surviving buildings of the principal military post which guarded the covered wagon trails to Oregon, Utah and California, 1834-1890.

Fort McHenry National Monument, Baltimore, Md., is the site of the successful defense of Baltimore on Sept. 13-14, 1814, which inspired Francis Scott Key to write the National anthem.

The Spanish built Fort Matanzas National Monument, in Saint Augustine to protect the flank of the city of Saint Augustine. Neart he fort, two parties of French Huguenots were massacred by Pedro Menedez in 1565, determining that Florida remain Spanish rather than French territory.

Fort Necessity National Battlefield, Farmington, Pa., was scene of a battle between Colonial troops under George Washington and French forces assisted by Indians, July 3 1754 opening the French and Indian War.

Fort Pulaski National Monument, Savannah Beach, Ga., is an early 19th century fort with moat and drawbridge. Bombardment by Federal cannon in 1862 first demonstrated the ineffectiveness of old-style masonry fortifications against this new weapon.

Site of the first attempted English settlement within the present United States, Fort Raleigh National Historic Site, Manteo, N.C., is at the "Lost Colony" settlement of Sir Walter Raleigh, and is the birth place of Virginia Dare, first child of English parentage born in the New World.

Bastion of the Southwestern frontier from 1817 to 1827 was Fort Smith National Historic Site, Fort Smith, Ark., which later was to become the center of law enforcement and judicial activity for the Indian Territory between 1872 and 1896.

Fort Sumter National Monument, Charleston, S.C., is the scene of the engagement which started the Civil War in 1861 and the scene of a siege lasting from 1862 to 1865.

Fort Union National Monument, Watrous, N.M., is ruins of a key fort that shaped the destiny of the Southwest, 1851-1891. It is on the Sante Fe Trail in a region full of frontier history and romance, a base for both military and civilian adventures.

Western headquarters of Hudson's Bay Company, 1825 to 1849, and a U.S. military reservation for a century thereafter, Fort Vancouver National Historic Site, Vancouver, Wash., was for a time the hub of all trading activities and the seat of political and military power for the vast Pacific Northwest.

An outstanding example of an early 19th century fort, Fort Washington National Monument, Fort Washington, Md., stands on the site of the earliest fortification built to defend the nation's capital.

In the words of C. B. Colby, author of "Historic American Forts":

"Visit them if you can, for to do so is to step back into history for a few moments, to a site where our early history was being forged. Perhaps you will feel as I did that from the . . . stone bastions of these great forts 'America's future looks even brighter.'"

Build Your Greenhouse From Old Plastic Bags

You can build your own inexpensive, but effective greenhouse just by saving the polyethylene sacks that come from the dry cleaners.

Cut the plastic in strips about 16 inches wide and make a tent over the row of plants you want to protect. A taut string 6 to 8 inches off the ground between stakes at the ends of the row works fine. Cover edges with dirt. Leave ends of tent open for ventilation. If you see signs of too much heat under the tent cut holes in the plastic to increase ventilation.

Be sure to keep children and pets away from the tent.

Wheat exports during the second half of 1963 were about 100 million bushels over the 221 million for the same period in 1962.

Courthouse First Site of Central Church Meetings

The Central Church of Christ, now worshiping at Boulder and Weber Streets, began meeting in the courthouse in 1943 with 29 members. The present building was purchased in 1950 and in 1959, a two - story dwelling just north of the building was purchased for use as additional class rooms.

The auditorium seats 334 and 20 class rooms are available.

The congregation is under the oversight of three elders; Kenneth L. Loney, Carl Watkins, and Wesley Weide. Lynn Shelton, the local evangelist, is now in his eighth year at Central.

In addition to the regular local work, Central has assisted in mission work, in foreign fields and at home.

The church contributes regularly to the support of Mountain States Childrens' Home in Longmont, has established the congregation at 719 S. Prospect St. and contributed to its support since that time. This congregation now is known as Lakeside church of Christ 603 S. Hancock St.

The Central church conducts one gospel meeting each year, a Daily Vacation Bible School in June, and a Statewide Youth Meeting the second Sunday in July in the interest of Christian education.

In faith and in practice, the churches of Christ date back to the founding of the church of the New Testament on the first Pentecost after Jesus' resurrection. They call for a complete return to the New Testament Christianity. Rejecting all party names, creeds, and organizations in their abhorrence of divisional denominatitonalism in Christendom, they plead for unity of all believers on the basis of the Bible alone.

Though Churches of Christ are all free and independent of any general hierarchy, each local congregation having elders to oversee its affairs and deacons to assist them, they are united in a common faith and voluntarily cooperate in sending missionaries and in doing benevolent work under the direction of local churches.

Membership depends only on (1) faith in and confession of Jesus Christ as the Son of God; (2) repentance from sin; (3) baptism by immersion.

The worship each Sunday consists of five acts specifically authorized by the New Testament: (1) reading and preaching the Bible; (2) observing the Lord's supper as a memorial; (3) contributing money to the Lord's work; (4) praying; (5) singing (a cappella) psalms, hymns and spiritual songs.

Churches of Christ now number some two million people in some 17,500 congregations.

A

Northeast Bible Chapel Begins Conference Soon

The Northeast Bible Chapel, 1722 McArthur Ave., is a congregation of Christians who hold to the historic doctrines of the Christian faith.

The church believes in God, the Creator of all things; the Deity of Jesus Christ; His virgin birth; His substitionary death for the sins of men, and His bodily resurrection.

Members believe in the forgiveness of sins thru faith in Jesus Christ, and that all who believe in Him as Saviour become members of His Church; They believe in His personal return to earth, and in the final judgment of men before God.

The congregation meets in the Name of Lord Jesus Christ, according to the New Testament precept and example (Matthew 18:20), for the worship of God in the Spririt; for the proclamation of the Gospel of Christ to those who know Him not, and for the building up of God's people thru the ministry of His Word and prayer.

The Annual Conference for 1964 will be held March 27, 28 and 29 at the South Side Bible Chaple, 1725 S. Wahsatch Ave.

This is an effort in which these two assemblies cooperate in bringing nationally known Bible expositors together for the ministry of God's Word to His people.

The speakers for this year are: Tom M. Olson, Wawona, Calif.; Leonard Lindsted, Wichita, Kan.; and John Walden, Sr., Colorado Springs.

Church Leapers To Visit Services

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bishop Reuben H. Mueller, president of the National Council of Churches, and the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer will bring greetings from their home churches to U.S. service personnel overseas during Holy Week.

In what has become an annual Council tradition, the Easter visits this year will take the National Council president to Berlin. Other NCC presidents have visited U.S. armed forces in the Far East, Alaska, the Caribbean and North Africa.

The week preceding Easter is traditionally known as Holy Week. Thursday is called Holy Thursday or Maundy Thursday, and its worship services recall the Last Supper. Good Friday is the anniversary of Christ's crucifixion. Saturday is sometimes called Easter Eve of the Paschal Vigil.

Folks Need Work, Majority Leader Johnson Said

WASHINGTON (NEA) — "Folks who are out of work need action—not arguments." — Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, 1958.

But whatever action the President and his successors take in the decade ahead, key Johnson advisers and private economists interviewed by this correspondent agree that there will be no slow-down in automation, and that its effects on workers will be profound.

Twenty-one key government and private experts on automation, economics and labor recently gave testimony before a Senate committee on automation and unemployment. A consensus shows that in the decade ahead, the average worker — white-collar and blue—operator and manager, engineer, scientist and unskilled laborer alike will:

Change jobs more often, be unemployed more often, spend more time between jobs. The average worker may make between seven and nine job changes in his life-time.

Move more often from one section of the country to another or from one city to another to find work.

Probably change his specialty or his type of work, perhaps several times in his lifetime, as job specialties die out or become overcrowded with the changes in technology.

Learn that seniority means less as whole plants go out of business, as did the Studebaker plant in Indiana.

Discover that his pay will go up more slowly than it has on the average in the past decade. (Prices are likely to rise more slowly, too, to keep pace with foreign and domestic competition.)

Find it necessary much more often than in the past to continue his education after graduation, whether he starts out as a Ph.D. or a high school or grade school graduate. Some of this additional education will be required to achieve the new skills required in retraining to get a new job. Some will be needed to keep abreast of technological changes and new knowledge in his field.

Doctors, teachers, engineers, scientists already feel this need heavily today. In the decade ahead, a wider segment of the working population will find it a necessity to update formal education.

As automation takes an increasingly stronger grip on the nation, other predictions now come into focus:

Working hours will grow shorter, but only very gradually. More likely there will be longer vacations, annual or sabbatical.

There will be a higher and higher percentage of women in the work force. The percentage of women working is expected to push past 50 per cent. More women will, in effect, become financial heads of households as new educational and skill requirements pass their husbands by. The possible effect this will have on children already has drawn the attention of psychologists. It will certainly place strains on many marriages.

More men, if they want jobs, will move into types of work often held traditionally by women—secretarial, typing, nursing, elementary school teaching, office clerical.

By 1970, engineers, scientists, professional and technical workers, teachers, managers, clerical and service workers are expected to account for more than half of all U.S. employment.

Over-all employment will increase and many skilled and specialized jobs will go begging. But there will be growing groups of unemployables—men who find it more and more difficult to get jobs, even when there are many job openings.

There are even some authorities who believe that many men may never be regularly employed in their whole lifetimes as automation increases—unless there are radical changes in our education and job ogranization.

The hard - to - employ groups consist of the unskilled, the uneducated, the narrowly educated, the less aggressive, the unadaptable men who are overly specialized in lines that are dying out.

New education requirements cannot always be traced to automation. Often, in reality, automation requires less skill. But with the new machines goes new phychology. The employer demands a higher education for the same job because it's the trend—and because he can demand that higher education and get it.

His argument, often valid, is that he has so much invested in the new machines that a mistake can cost him too much money. He cannot afford to take chances.

He must have men who don't make mistakes and who know what to do in emergencies. But, at the same time, employers are requiring higher educational standards for the same old clerical jobs, too.

Men at Oxford Say They Want Locked Doors

By TOM A. CULLEN

OXFORD, England (nea) — Oxford University students have no locks on the doors of their rooms, and partially as a result of this lack or privacy, sex and marijuana are publicly rearing their heads at this ancient university.

In a report hailed as a Magna Carta of the 1964 sex revolt, the University's student council is demanding greater freedom for undergraduates. The demand is linked with the need for privacy and locks on doors. A student's private life is not a matter for college discipline, the report bluntly states.

The council also accuses the university of encouraging the college scouts, as the servants are called here, to spy on students and to report any irregularities in their conduct.

In calling for an end to these spying practices, the council demands that a male student caught with a woman in his room after 11 p.m. be disciplined for no greater offense than violating the rules concerning visiting hours.

The student revolt has been touched off by the recent suspensions of three male students found with women in their rooms. One of the suspended students was an American from Los Angeles who hid his girl friend in a cupboard.

Unfortunately for the student, the scent of perfume gave the girl's presence away when a scout entered the room. "Rustication" is the Oxford term for such suspensions, and it means that the student must leave the university for the balance of the term.

If students were allowed to lock their rooms, such incidents would not be reported, the undergraduates maintain. As matters stand, they are at the mercy not only of the scouts, but whoever else chooses to enter without knocking.

In fact, life after midnight at this otherwise sedate university often resembles a French bedroom farce, according to reports, with doors banging and figures dashing down corridors to avoid the scouts and the proctors, who are appointed to guard the university's morals.

If love can laugh at locksmiths, so apparently can marijuana. Despite the lack of privacy, "pot" parties are becoming increasingly popular at Oxford, according to reports.

The kind care of Oxford students who regularly smoke marijuana has been placed at 100, but there are also about 300 occasional smokers. "Two years ago there were only 15 of us," a third-year student remarked.

Thus far, university authorities have taken a complacent attitude towards the marijuana problem. "I know marijuana is now being smoked in Oxford," says Sir David Lindsay, the Master of Balliol, one of Oxford's 32 colleges.

"It is being used by the experimenter type of student and by some misfits to bolster their self-esteem. But there are worse things an undergraduate could be doing."

Matheson E.U.B. Church Was Organized in 1927

The Matheson Community Evangelical United Brethren Church was organized in 1927 as the result of missionary efforts by the Rev. Mr. L. G. Weide. The church building was taken over from the Methodist Church. In the 1950's, the building was completely remodeled and enlarged.

Membership today numbers 61. There are 71 enrolled in the Sunday Church School, and Wesley Maranville is the present superintendent. The church participates jointly with the Simla E.U.B. Church in carrying on a Youth Fellowship, a Boy's and Girl's Fellowship and a Pastor's Class. It is a member of the Southern District of the Rocky Mountain Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, with the superintendent, Dr. Lloyd Nichols stationed at Colorado Springs. The pastor is Willis F. Goettel who resides at Simla.

The local congregation will observe Maunday Thursday Communion in a joint observance with Simla E.U.B. Church, and membership reception will be held on Easter Sunday.

Security Church Plans New Unit

The Christian Church of Security began in a home on July 1, 1956. Since that time, the church has continued to grow and prosper, culminating in the dedication of a new building seating over 200 people.

This building was dedicated Feb. 18, 1962. From a small building fund in 1960, the church now has assets in buildings and property of more than $80,000. Plans for an educational unit to handle up to 350 in Bible School and worship services is being considered by the building committee.

The Christian Church of Security believes that the Bible alone provides the needs for the 20th century. Both his physical and spiritual well-being are clearly taught in the Sacred Word.

Baptism by immersion is practiced and communion is served each Lord's Day by opostolic precedent as a memorial.

Baptist Bible Began Meets On Foote St.

In August of 1961, there was a group of people that met in the basement of 1310 N. Foote St. for the purpose of worshiping the Lord as set forth in the New Testament. From that meeting, the Baptist Bible Temple came into existence.

In January of 1962, they rented the building at the corner of Boulder Street and Wahsatch Avenue in order to accommodate the growing congregation. The years of 1962 and 1963 were good and profitable years with a steady increase in attendance and interest.

In January of 1964, because of parking problems and facilities of the present building, it was decided to seek more favorable facilities. The Baptist Bible Temple changed their meeting place in February to the Knob Hill Community Center located at Dale and Iowa Streets. This is a temporary meeting place until the church can build its own building. At the present time we are negotiating for property in the eastern part of the city.

Easter Sunday will be a highlight for the Baptist Bible Temple as they are bringing a special offering of love to our Saviour. Just as Judas sold Jesus the Christ for thirty pieces of silver, we are bringing thirty pieces of silver for an offering of love. This offering will be used to purchase property for the future building. Also at this time, the Shook-Parker Gospel singers will appear. These folks are recording artists and are not only talented musicians but also dedicated servants of the Lord.

Vegetables Do Well as Border Of Flower Beds

Homemakers who have neither the time nor the inclination to plant and care for even a small vegetable garden, can grow a few fresh vegetables every year without having to expend a great deal of energy.

Did you ever think of using lettuce as a border for flower beds? It works, and the lettuce looks pretty, too. Tomatoes, which combine with lettuce in salads, may be grown beside the garage on either a trellis or on stakes. A few plants supply an average family, and the fruit is easy to pick.

Radishes fit into snug spots, such as outside your kitchen door. Cucumbers can serve a double purpose by adding color to an otherwise drab fence or by providing extra shade by growing on a trellis. They don't take up much space and are easy to pick.

Other vegetables which may be used for shrub or bed borders include green onions and spinach.

Automation to Put Heavy Strain on U.S. 'Economy'

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By a strange paradox, automation is going to put heavy strains on both management and the unions.

As in national defense many gambles in private industry are going to become so big and mistakes so costly that one or two wrong decisions by a manager may be disastrous.

This is the conclusion of government and private experts on automation, labor and economics interviewed in Washington.

A manager can pick the wrong product, like Ford's Edsel, or modernize too quickly and end up with a white elephant while his rival has leapfrogged ahead. Or he can modernize too slowly, like Studebaker's Indiana plant, and be out of business. He can let some tricky little mistake cause a disaster. Not long ago, a card was punched incorrectly and an 18 5 million rocket was blown to bits.

Relatively simple machines have been replacing the uneducated worker. One expert estimates a good modern machine has the equivalent of a high school education. But this is changing. In the works are machines which can make hour-by-hour or day-by-day decisions common to middle management.

It started out as war gaming in the Pentagon. That same technique is now beginning to be applied to company decisions. Machines work out the alternatives, describe the results of different possible decisions.

Such machines can for example, be used to "decide" which markets are best for a new product, what research leads are the best to follow, what would be the best way to finance a new plant, what would be the best time to come out with a new product. These new machines will hit many managers as hard as the first automated machinery hit labor.

Gradually, a manager capable of making only routine decisions will become a drug on the market. The machines will push up need for managers with roving imaginations and wide backgrounds. Two instances of this trend are:

Since companies will need more uninhibited creative research scientists to keep ahead of the opposition, the new managers will have to be men able to handle these unusual types and get the most out of them.

Since many of the operations of an automated industry will take place in markets that are internationally competitive, the new managers will have to have a wider undestanding of the world situation.

The unions in an age of automation are going to have as many problems as the managers.

Most unions have decided they cannot or should not fight automation. They will drive for security and a share in automation's profits instead.

They will aim at contracts which guarantee that workers won't be laid off because of automation; that declining employment rather will be achieved by attrition as workers retire or change jobs; that part of the slack be taken up with shorter hours and longer vacations; that workers be allotted a share of the new profits or savings created when a plant is automated.

They will push for more permanent labor - management committees to adjust to step-ups in automation. They will seek preservation of seniority when an employe is moved from one plant to another in the same company and a preservation of pension rights when a man moves from one job to another in the same industry.

But there is considerable pessimism now behind the scenes in unions. They fear the first effect of growing automation will be a weakening of organized labor. Scientists, engineers, female workers and a goodly chunk of other white - collar workers have been slow in joining unions.

As automation increases, the percentage and the prestige of union members in the work force will decline and the power of unions in industrial negotiations will go down.

As automation grows, the increasing labor turnover will leave a larger pool of unemployed, which will further weaken the bargaining power of union members.

There is hope among the union men that as the scientists, engineers and technicians increase in the work force, they will find they must band together to protect their rights. Some union officials believe that then they can tie the unskilled, the semi-skilled, the white-collar engineer - technician groups into companywide or industrywide unions. This, they believe, will give the less-trained the bargaining influence of the highly skilled groups.

Boating Across Florida Made Possible

By JACK WOLISTON

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI) — One of the finest of small boat cruises in Florida is the route that bisects the state from the Gulf of Mexico to the Atlantic Ocean, cutting through huge Lake Okeechobee.

We made the trip recently, starting from this bustling tourist center and heading north along the Gulf some 30 miles to the Caloosahatchee River, western terminus of the across-the-state run which is known officially as the Okeechobee Waterway.

Eastern end of the 130-mile run is St. Lucie Inlet on the Intracoastal Waterway near Stuart, about 100 miles north of Miami.

We made the trip in a 24-foot Lone Star cabin cruiser, an aluminum boat powered by two 60 - horsepower Johnson outboards.

From Fort Myers, the Caloosahatchee winds east and north through rugged pasture country where cattle graze peacefully on the levees, past orange groves lush with fruit, and alongside the squat, stuccoed "development" homes that have sprung up as retirement centers in Florida in the last decade.

The first lock is at Ortona, 38 miles east of Fort Myers, and the second is at Moore Haven, 17 miles further east, where the Caloosahatchee goes into Lake Okeechobee.

The waterway hugs the lake shore for seven miles east of Moore Haven, at which point the boatman may swing out across the lake through a marked channel directly to Port Mayaca, where the leg into the St. Lucie Canal begins. An alternate, across-the-lake run begins at Clewiston, five miles to the southeast.

A third route hugs the southern shore of the lake and winds northward to Mayaca. It is the route we followed, and is recommended for smaller boats. Frequently stiff winds whip the shallow Lake Okeechobee waters into mountainous waves.

The route across the lake is about 40 miles. The shore route is 11 miles longer. During the period we sailed it, there was considerable dredging activity, but it was no hindrance to navigation.

The trip through the St. Lucie Canal to Stuart is 38 miles, most of it through swamp country dotted with clumps of palmettoes and sawgrass.

Along the entire route there are more than a dozen marinas, but they are fairly well spaced and some are difficult to reach, especially for a larger boat, so a sufficient fuel supply and extra parts are a must.

Also be sure to have aboard the Coast and Geodetic Survey's Small-Craft chart for the route (855-SC). The chart contains tide tables, current tables, weather and other information, and also lists repair yards, supply house and marina accommodations.

Many of the boats making the trip through the waterway were trailered to Florida from almost every state in the nation. Good launching ramps are available along the way, and many start their cruises at spots other than the eastern and western terminals.

If you plan to sleep aboard—and it is advisable because overnight shore accommodations are not always available—be sure to bring along a good sleeping bag or sufficient blankets, especially in mid-winter, Florida weather in February and March is not always tropical.

'Old Doll' Will Be Mechanical At World's Fair

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Cynthia Robertson may be a little old to be playing with dolls, but at least she has the good taste to play with an old doll.

In fact, Miss Robertson is probably the only girl in the world who has played with a doll who is a grandmother. Granny, bless her blue plastic eyes, has had a career such as few dolls can boast.

Technically, Granny isn't even a real doll. She is an "audio-animatronic actor." The Walt Disney Studios built her, as part of General Electric Progressland exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Granny will have a family of ants, who will move, speak and otherwise cavort at the exhibit. But she is the first to be shown to the public.

Granny is full scale. Touch her hands and they feel like skin, although a bit on the clammy side. But every wrinkle, every nail, every hair seems as if it came right from a living breathing grandmother.

Miss Robertson and Granny flew first class—they sat side by side—from Los Angeles to Chicago and on to New York. Granny attracted some stares; Miss Robertson swears a 91-year-old passenger tried to pick her up.

In Chicago they went to the Pump Room and in New York to Sardi's, with Granny being transported in a wheel chair. In both restaurants, Granny held a cocktail and was given double-takes by the score.

As Miss Robertson, a level-headed girl with two small children of her own, found that she was beginning to talk to the lifelike doll. Disney's technicians will install talking equipment in Granny's now empty innards.

"I found myself," she says, "saying, 'Come on, Granny, hurry up and put on your gloves.' It was like I was playing with dolls again."

Bible Church Conference In Late March

The Bible Missionary Church, 420 N. 17th St., conducted its first Sunday's services in the Carpenters Hall Oct. 7, 1956.

Sunday services were conducted there, with mid-week services in the different homes of the families of the congregation, until January 1957, at which time a church building was rented.

Lots were purchased at 420 N. 17th St., where the present church building is located, and construction was started on the building in late September, 1958. On May the 24th, 1959, the congregation moved into the new building for the first service.

The building was financed by the members and friends of the church, and a large part of the labor was donated by members and friends of the local congregation. The church has been self-supporting from its beginning. The property, owned by the local congregation, is officially appraised at some $45,000. The congregation retains its original pastor, the Rev. Mr. Carl A. Dillard.

The Bible Missionary is Armenian in theology, Wesleyan in doctrine, Holiness in experience, informal in worship, and scriptural in standards.

The District Preachers' Convention of the Intermountain Conference of the Bible Missionary Church will be held in the church March 31 thru April 2.

The Rev. Mr. J. E. Cook, general moderator, will be the featured speaker.

Immediately following this convention, a revival meeting which begins April 3 and continues thru April 12, will be sponsored. The Rev. Mr. Claude Bailey, Salem, Ill., will be the evangelist. The public is invited.

Folks Need Work, Majority Leader Johnson Said

But whatever action the President and his successors take in the decade ahead, key Johnson advisers and private economists interviewed by this correspondent agree that there will be no slow-down in automation, and that its effects on workers will be profound.

Twenty-one key government and private experts on automation, economics and labor recently gave testimony before a Senate committee on automation and unemployment. A consensus shows that in the decade ahead, the average worker — white-collar and blue—operator and manager, engineer, scientist and unskilled laborer alike will:

Change jobs more often, be unemployed more often, spend more time between jobs. The average worker may make between seven and nine job changes in his life-time.

Move more often from one section of the country to another or from one city to another to find work.

Probably change his specialty or his type of work, perhaps several times in his lifetime, as job specialties die out or become overcrowded with the changes in technology.

Learn that seniority means less as whole plants go out of business, as did the Studebaker plant in Indiana.

Discover that his pay will go up more slowly than it has on the average in the past decade. (Prices are likely to rise more slowly, too, to keep pace with foreign and domestic competition.)

Find it necessary much more often than in the past to continue his education after graduation, whether he starts out as a Ph.D. or a high school or grade school graduate. Some of this additional education will be required to achieve the new skills required in retraining to get a new job. Some will be needed to keep abreast of technological changes and new knowledge in his field.

Doctors, teachers, engineers, scientists already feel this need heavily today. In the decade ahead, a wider segment of the working population will find it a necessity to update formal education.

As automation takes an inincreasingly stronger grip on the nation, other predictions now come into focus:

Working hours will grow shorter, but only very gradually. More likely there will be longer vacations, annual or sabbatical.

There will be a higher and higher percentage of women in the work force. The percentage of women working is expected to push past 50 per cent. More women will, in effect, become financial heads of households as new educational and skill requirements pass their husbands by. The possible effect this will have on children already has drawn the attention of psychologists. It will certainly place strains on many marriages.

More men, if they want jobs, will move into types of work often held traditionally by women—secretarial, typing, nursing, elementary school teaching, office clerical.

By 1970, engineers, scientists, professional and technical workers, teachers, managers, clerical and service workers are expected to account for more than half of all U.S. employment.

Over-all employment will increase and many skilled and specialized jobs will go begging. But there will be growing groups of unemployables—men who find it more and more difficult to get jobs, even when there are many job openings.

There are even some authorities who believe that many men may never be regularly employed in their whole lifetimes as automation increases—unless there are radical changes in our education and job ogranization.

The hard - to - employ groups consist of the unskilled, the uneducated, the narrowly educated, the less aggressive, the unadaptable men who are overly specialized in lines that are dying out.

New education requirements cannot always be traced to automation. Often, in reality, automation requires less skill. But with the new machines goes new phychology. The employer demands a higher education for the same job because it's the trend—and because he can demand that higher education and get it.

His argument, often valid, is that he has so much invested in the new machines that a mistake can cost him too much money. He cannot afford to take chances.

He must have men who don't make mistakes and who know what to do in emergencies. But, at the same time, employers are requiring higher educational standards for the same old clerical jobs, too.

Men at Oxford Say They Want Locked Doors

By TOM A. CULLEN

OXFORD, England (nea) — Oxford University students have no locks on the doors of their rooms, and partially as a result of this lack or privacy, sex and marijuana are publicly rearing their heads at this ancient university.

In a report hailed as a Magna Carta of the 1964 sex revolt, the University's student council is demanding greater freedom for undergraduates. The demand is linked with the need for privacy and locks on doors. A student's private life is not a matter for college discipline, the report bluntly states.

The council also accuses the university of encouraging the college scouts, as the servants are called here, to spy on students and to report any irregularities in their conduct.

In calling for an end to these spying practices, the council demands that a male student caught with a woman in his room after 11 p.m. be disciplined for no greater offense than violating the rules concerning visiting hours.

The student revolt has been touched off by the recent suspensions of three male students found with women in their rooms. One of the suspended students was an American from Los Angeles who hid his girl friend in a cupboard.

Unfortunately for the student, the scent of perfume gave the girl's presence away when a scout entered the room. "Rustication" is the Oxford term for such suspensions, and it means that the student must leave the university for the balance of the term.

If students were allowed to lock their rooms, such incidents would not be reported, the undergraduates maintain. As matters stand, they are at the mercy not only of the scouts, but whoever else chooses to enter without knocking.

In fact, life after midnight at this otherwise sedate university often resembles a French bedroom farce, according to reports, with doors banging and figures dashing down corridors to avoid the scouts and the proctors, who are appointed to guard the university's morals.

If love can laugh at locksmiths, so apparently can marijuana. Despite the lack of privacy, "pot" parties are becoming increasingly popular at Oxford, according to reports.

The hard core of Oxford students who regularly smoke marijuana has been placed at 100, but there are also about 300 occasional smokers. "Two years ago there were only 15 of us," a third-year student remarked.

Thus far, university authorities have taken a complacent attitude towards the marijuana problem. "I know marijuana is now being smoked in Oxford," says Sir David Lindsay, the Master of Balliol, one of Oxford's 32 colleges.

"It is being used by the experimenter type of student and by some misfits to bolster their self-esteem. But there are worse things an undergraduate could be doing."

Matheson E.U.B. Church Was Organized in 1927

The Matheson Community Evangelical United Brethren Church was organized in 1927 as the result of missionary efforts by the Rev. Mr. L. G. Weide. The church building was taken over from the Methodist Church. In the 1950's, the building was completely remodeled and enlarged.

Membership today numbers 61. There are 71 enrolled in the Sunday Church School, and Wesley Maranville is the present superintendent. The church participates jointly with the Simla E.U.B. Church in carrying on a Youth Fellowship, a Boy's and Girl's Fellowship and a Pastor's Class. It is a member of the Southern District of the Rocky Mountain Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, with the superintendent, Dr. Lloyd Nichols stationed at Colorado Springs. The pastor is Willis F. Goettel who resides at Simla.

The local congregation will observe Maunday Thursday Communion in a joint observance with Simla E.U.B. Church, and membership reception will be held on Easter Sunday.

Security Church Plans New Unit

The Christian Church of Security began in a home on July 1, 1956. Since that time, the church has continued to grow and prosper, culminating in the dedication of a new building seating over 200 people.

This building was dedicated Feb. 18, 1962. From a small building fund in 1960, the church now has assets in buildings and property of more than $80,000. Plans for an educational unit to handle up to 350 in Bible School and worship services is being considered by the building committee.

The Christian Church of Security believes that the Bible alone provides the needs for the 20th century. Both his physical and spiritual well-being are clearly taught in the Sacred Word.

Baptism by immersion is practiced and communion is served each Lord's Day by opostolic precedent as a memorial.

Baptist Bible Began Meets On Foote St.

In August of 1961, there was a group of people that met in the basement of 1310 N. Foote St. for the purpose of worshiping the Lord as set forth in the New Testament. From that meeting, The Baptist Bible Temple came into existence.

In January of 1962, they rented the building at the corner of Boulder Street and Wahsatch Avenue in order to accommodate the growing congregation. The years of 1962 and 1963 were good and profitable years with a steady increase in attendance and interest.

In January of 1964, because of parking problems and facilities of the present building, it was decided to seek more favorable facilities. The Baptist Bible Temple changed their meeting place in February to the Knob Hill Community Center located at Dale and Iowa Streets. This is a temporary meeting place until the church can build its own building. At the present time we are negotiating for property in the eastern part of the city.

Easter Sunday will be a highlight for the Baptist Bible Temple as they are bringing a special offering of love to our Saviour. Just as Judas sold Jesus the Christ for thirty pieces of silver, we are bringing thirty pieces of silver for an offering of love. This offering will be used to purchase property for the future building. Also at this time, the Shook-Parker Gospel singers will appear. These folks are recording artists and are not only talented musicians but also dedicated servants of the Lord.

Vegetables Do Well as Border Of Flower Beds

Homemakers who have neither the time nor the inclination to plant and care for even a small vegetable garden, can grow a few fresh vegetables every year without having to expend a great deal of energy.

Did you ever think of using lettuce as a border for flower beds? It works, and the lettuce looks pretty, too. Tomatoes, which combine with lettuce in salads, may be grown beside the garage on either a trellis or on stakes. A few plants supply an average family, and the fruit is easy to pick.

Radishes fit into snug spots, such as outside your kitchen door. Cucumbers can serve a double purpose by adding color to an otherwise drab fence or by providing extra shade by growing on a trellis. They don't take up much space and are easy to pick.

Other vegetables which may be used for shrub or bed borders include green onions and spinach.

Automation to Put Heavy Strain on U.S. 'Economy'

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By a strange paradox, automation is going to put heavy strains on both management and the unions.

As in national defense many gambles in private industry are going to become so big and mistakes so costly that one or two wrong decisions by a manager may be disastrous.

This is the conclusion of government and private experts on automation, labor and economics interviewed in Washington.

A manager can pick the wrong product, like Ford's Edsel, or modernize too quickly and end up with a white elephant while his rival has leapfrogged ahead. Or he can modernize too slowly, like Studebaker's Indiana plant, and be out of business. He can let some tricky little mistake cause a disaster. Not long ago, a card was punched incorrectly and an 18 5 million rocket was blown to bits.

Relatively simple machines have been replacing the uneducated worker. One expert estimates a good modern machine has the equivalent of a high school education. But this is changing. In the works are machines which can make hour-by-hour or day-by-day decisions common to middle management.

It started out as war gaming in the Pentagon. That same technique is now beginning to be applied to company decisions. Machines work out the alternatives, describe the results of different possible decisions.

Such machines can for example, be used to "decide" which markets are best for a new product, what research leads are the best to follow, what would be the best way to finance a new plant, what would be the best time to come out with a new product. These new machines will hit many managers as hard as the first automated machinery hit labor.

Gradually, a manager capable of making only routine decisions will become a drug on the market. The machines will push up need for managers with roving imaginations and wide backgrounds. Two instances of this trend are:

Since companies will need more uninhibited creative research scientists to keep ahead of the opposition, the new managers will have to be men able to handle these unusual types and get the most out of them.

Since many of the operations of an automated industry will take place in markets that are internationally competitive, the new managers will have to have a wider undestanding of the world situation.

The unions in an age of automation are going to have as many problems as the managers.

Most unions have decided they cannot or should not fight automation. They will drive for security and a share in automation's profits instead.

They will aim at contracts which guarantee that workers won't be laid off because of automation; that declining employment rather will be achieved by attrition as workers retire or change jobs; that part of the slack be taken up with shorter hours and longer vacations; that workers be allotted a share of the new profits or savings created when a plant is automated.

They will push for more permanent labor - management committees to adjust to step-ups in automation. They will seek preservation of seniority when an employe is moved from one plant to another in the same company and a preservation of pension rights when a man moves from one job to another in the same industry.

But there is considerable pessimism now behind the scenes in unions. They fear the first effect of growing automation will be a weakening of organized labor. Scientists, engineers, female workers and a goodly chunk of other white - collar workers have been slow in joining unions.

As automation increases, the percentage and the prestige of union members in the work force will decline and the power of unions in industrial negotiations will go down.

As automation grows, the increasing labor turnover will leave a larger pool of unemployed, which will further weaken the bargaining power of union members.

There is hope among the union men that as the scientists, engineers and technicians increase in the work force, they will find they must band together to protect their rights. Some union officials believe that then they can tie the unskilled, the semi-skilled, the white-collar engineer - technician groups into companywide or industrywide unions. This, they believe, will give the less-trained the bargaining influence of the highly skilled groups.

Boating Across Florida Made Possible

By JACK WOLISTON

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI) — One of the finest of small boat cruises in Florida is the route that bisects the state from the Gulf of Mexico to the Atlantic Ocean, cutting through huge Lake Okeechobee.

We made the trip recently, starting from this bustling tourist center and heading north along the Gulf some 30 miles to the Caloosahatchee River, western terminus of the across-the-state run which is known officially as the Okeechobee Waterway.

Eastern end of the 130-mile run is St. Lucie Inlet on the Intracoastal Waterway near Stuart, about 100 miles north of Miami.

We made the trip in a 24-foot Lone Star cabin cruiser, an aluminum boat powered by two 60 - horsepower Johnson outboards.

From Fort Myers, the Caloosahatchee winds east and north through rugged pasture country where cattle graze peacefully on the levees, past orange groves lush with fruit, and alongside the squat, stuccoed "development" homes that have sprung up as retirement centers in Florida in the last decade.

The first lock is at Ortona, 38 miles east of Fort Myers, and the second is at Moore Haven, 17 miles further east, where the Caloosahatchee goes into Lake Okeechobee.

The waterway hugs the lake shore for seven miles east of Moore Haven, at which point the boatman may swing out across the lake through a marked channel directly to Port Mayaca, where the leg into the St. Lucie Canal begins. An alternate, across-the-lake run begins at Clewiston, five miles to the southeast.

A third route hugs the southern shore of the lake and winds northward to Mayaca. It is the route we followed, and is recommended for smaller boats. Frequently stiff winds whip the shallow Lake Okeechobee waters into mountainous waves.

The route across the lake is about 40 miles. The shore route is 11 miles longer. During the period we sailed it, there was considerable dredging activity, but it was no hindrance to navigation.

The trip through the St. Lucie Canal to Stuart is 38 miles, most of it through swamp country dotted with clumps of palmettoes and sawgrass.

Along the entire route there are more than a dozen marinas, but they are fairly well spaced and some are difficult to reach, especially for a larger boat, so a sufficient fuel supply and extra parts are a must.

Also be sure to have aboard the Coast and Geodetic Survey's Small-Craft chart for the route (855-SC). The chart contains tide tables, current tables, weather and other information, and also lists repair yards, supply house and marina accommodations.

Many of the boats making the trip through the waterway were trailered to Florida from almost every state in the nation. Good launching ramps are available along the way, and many start their cruises at spots other than the eastern and western terminals.

If you plan to sleep aboard—and it is advisable because overnight shore accommodations are not always available—be sure to bring along a good sleeping bag or sufficient blankets, especially in mid-winter. Florida weather in February and March is not always tropical.

'Old Doll' Will Be Mechanical At World's Fair

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Cynthia Robertson may be a little old to be playing with dolls, but at least she has the good taste to play with an old doll.

In fact, Miss Robertson is probably the only girl in the world who has played with a doll who is a grandmother. Granny, bless her blue plastic eyes, has had a career such as few dolls can boast.

Technically, Granny isn't even a real doll. She is an "audio-animatronic actor." The Walt Disney Studios built her, as part of General Electric Progressland exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Granny will have a family of ants, who will move, speak and otherwise cavort at the exhibit. But she is the first to be shown to the public.

Granny is full scale. Touch her hands and they feel like skin, although a bit on the clammy side. But every wrinkle, every nail, every hair seems as if it came right from a living breathing grandmother.

Miss Robertson and Granny flew first class—they sat side by side—from Los Angeles to Chicago and on to New York. Granny attracted some stares; Miss Robertson swears a 91-year-old passenger tried to pick her up.

In Chicago they went to the Pump Room and in New York to Sardi's, with Granny being transported in a wheel chair. In both restaurants, Granny held a cocktail and was given double-takes by the score.

As Miss Robertson, a level-headed girl with two small children of her own, found that she was beginning to talk to the lifelike doll. Disney's technicians will install talking equipment in Granny's now empty innards.

"I found myself," she says, "saying, 'Come on, Granny, hurry up and put on your gloves.' It was like I was playing with dolls again."

Bible Church Conference In Late March

The Bible Missionary Church, 420 N. 17th St., conducted its first Sunday's services in the Carpenters Hall Oct. 7, 1956.

Sunday services were conducted there, with mid-week services in the different homes of the families of the congregation, until January 1957, at which time a church building was rented.

Lots were purchased at 420 N. 17th St., where the present church building is located, and construction was started on the building in late September, 1958. On May the 24th, 1959, the congregation moved into the new building for the first service.

The building was financed by the members and friends of the church, and a large part of the labor was donated by members and friends of the local congregation. The church has been self-supporting from its beginning. The property, owned by the local congregation, is officially appraised at some $45,000. The congregation retains its original pastor, the Rev. Mr. Carl A. Dillard.

The Bible Missionary is Armenian in theology, Wesleyan in doctrine, Holiness in experience, informal in worship, and scriptural in standards.

The District Preachers' Convention of the Intermountain Conference of the Bible Missionary Church will be held in the church March 31 thru April 2.

The Rev. Mr. J. E. Cook, general moderator, will be the featured speaker.

Immediately following this convention, a revival meeting which begins April 3 and continues thru April 12, will be sponsored. The Rev. Mr. Claude Bailey, Salem, Ill., will be the evangelist. The public is invited.

Automation to Put Heavy Strain on U.S. 'Economy'

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By a strange paradox, automation is going to put heavy strains on both management and the unions.

As in national defense many gambles in private industry are going to become so big and mistakes so costly that one or two wrong decisions by a manager may be disastrous.

This is the conclusion of government and private experts on automation, labor and economics interviewed in Washington.

A manager can pick the wrong product, like Ford's Edsel, or modernize too quickly and end up with a white elephant while his rival has leapfrogged ahead. Or he can modernize too slowly, like Studebaker's Indiana plant, and be out of business. He can let some tricky little mistake cause a disaster. Not long ago, a card was punched incorrectly and an 18.5 million rocket was blown to bits.

Relatively simple machines have been replacing the uneducated worker. One expert estimates a good modern machine has the equivalent of a high school education. But this is changing. In the works are machines which can make hour-by-hour or day-by-day decisions common to middle management.

It started out as war gaming in the Pentagon. That same technique is now beginning to be applied to company decisions. Machines work out the alternatives, describe the results of different possible decisions.

Such machines can for example, be used to "decide" which markets are best for a new product, what research leads are the best to follow, what would be the best way to finance a new plant, what would be the best time to come out with a new product. These new machines will hit many managers as hard as the first automated machinery hit labor.

Gradually, a manager capable of making only routine decisions will become a drug on the market. The machines will push up need for managers with roving imaginations and wide backgrounds. Two instances of this trend are:

Since companies will need more uninhibited creative research scientists to keep ahead of the opposition, the new managers will have to be men able to handle these unusual types and get the most out of them.

Since many of the operations of an automated industry will take place in markets that are internationally competitive, the new managers will have to have a wider undestanding of the world situation.

The unions in an age of automation are going to have as many problems as the managers.

Most unions have decided they cannot or should not fight automation. They will drive for security and a share in automation's profits instead.

They will aim at contracts which guarantee that workers won't be laid off because of automation; that declining employment rather will be achieved by attrition as workers retire or change jobs; that part of the slack be taken up with shorter hours and longer vacations; that workers be allotted a share of the new profits or savings created when a plant is automated.

They will push for more permanent labor - management committees to adjust to step-ups in automation. They will seek preservation of seniority when an employe is moved from one plant to another in the same company and a preservation of pension rights when a man moves from one job to another in the same industry.

But there is considerable pessimism now behind the scenes in unions. They fear the first effect of growing automation will be a weakening of organized labor. Scientists, engineers, female workers and a goodly chunk of other white - collar workers have been slow in joining unions.

As automation increases, the percentage and the prestige of union members in the work force will decline and the power of unions in industrial negotiations will go down.

As automation grows, the increasing labor turnover will leave a larger pool of unemployed, which will further weaken the bargaining power of union members.

There is hope among the union men that as the scientists, engineers and technicians increase in the work force, they will find they must band together to protect their rights. Some union officials believe that then they can tie the unskilled, the semi-skilled, the white-collar engineer - technician groups into companywide or industrywide unions. This, they believe, will give the less-trained the bargaining influence of the highly skilled groups.

Redeemer Church Holds Services, Runs Day School

Redeemer Lutheran Church, 2226 N. Corona St., was begun in 1949, with the first building dedicated on March 12, 1950. It began with 26 communicant members, and now has 689 baptized members and 414 communicant members. It has had three pastors in its 15 year history: Albert Schroeder, Robert Rippe, and its present pastor, Edward Busch.

A Christian Day School was organized in 1956 with Wayne Delventhal as principal. Today there are three teachers, with Charles Muhlenbruck as principal, and 80 pupils. Until this school term, the classes were held in the remodeled church basement. On Sept. 15, 1963, the new school building at 2221 N. Wahsatch Ave. was dedicated. The cost of this building was around $110,000, and it is used by the Sunday School and other organizations of the church besides the Christian Day School.

Redeemer Lutheran Church is a member of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod, the second largest Lutheran church body in America. As such, Redeemer participates in the world wide mission, educational, and charitable program of this church body.

It also carries on a full program of church activity in the community, seeking to serve its members and the community in every area of life. It teaches that all mankind are sinful, and are made acceptable to God only thru the gift of forgiveness and mercy that God offers because of the death of Jesus Christ, God's Son. As members accept this gift from God, they have the promise of God's love here, and eternal life beyond.

This colors their entire behavior, and prompts them to dedicate their lives in response to God's love. It is this principle of God's love in Christ being reflected in their love that motivates the entire program of Redeemer Lutheran Church.

American Man Was First To Clear Slum in London

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) — Today's low-cost housing planners would be appealed at George Peabody's project of 100 years ago. But this transplanted American's ideas of improving living conditions for the needy stood then as a shaft of light in the gloom of London's slums.

Peabody's empty grave stands not far from Westminster Abbey —a tribute to the philanthropist who is buried in Salem, Mass. It is one of the highest honors ever paid by Britain to a foreigner.

During his lifetime he spent $1½ million to build model dwellings for the poor, the first of which was completed just 100 years ago. The Peabody Donation Fund, still going strong, has spent $15 million to date in improving the living conditions of the needy.

Today, there are 7,300 Peabody dwellings in London, housing 17,000 people at rents varying from 50 cents to $7.50 per week, and the Peabody Donation Fund is spending $840,000 on modernizing old flats into new homes.

The first of these dwellings, the Spitalfields Estate was, by modern standards, little more than a slum. Its rooms are small and boxlike, and none of them have private baths. There were outside toilets and a communal water tap on the landing.

But to the industrious poor of London's East End this Peabody building must have looked like paradise, when it opened its doors in March, 1864.

In those days sanitation was almost unknown in East London (even Buckingham Palace stank of drains in hot weather). It was not until 1902 that East London was guaranteed a clean water supply. Meanwhile, in one court in the East End 250 people had to share on water tap, which was open for only 25 minutes a day, closed on Sundays.

The result of these unsanitary conditions was that infant mortality swept off one child in four, and that cholera epidemics were succeeded by smallpox.

George Peabody, who settled in London in 1837, was appalled by the condition of London's industrious poor, as distinguished from its paupers, whom he considered to be beyond redemption. He was determined that the former should be given a chance to live in decent surroudings at low rents, and he lived long enough to see many of his housing reforms relized.

The banker, however, did not forget his native land. In America he founded libraries, art galleries, music conservatories and museums. His gifts totaled over $8 million.

But it is in London that he is perhaps remembered best. His "princely munificence" so impressed Queen Victoria that she offered to make him a baronet, an honor which he politely declined.

When Peabody died in London in 1869 he was given a state funeral in Westminster Abbey. But Peabody's last wish was that he should be buried in Salem. So his body was borne with full honors to the United States aboard a British battleship.

Of the many tributes to Peabody perhaps the best epitaph is in the words engraved on his memorial in Westminster Abbey, from a statement made shortly before his death:

"I have prayed my Heavenly Father day by day that I might be enabled, beforre I died, to show my gratitude by doing some great good to my fellow men."

Quicker Color Development Is Announced

By BART KINCH
United Press International

The Kodak company has a new drum processor for processing 8x10 and 11x14 enlargements. Called the Kodak Rapid Color Processor, Model II, the 16-pound unit can produce a color print in less than eight minutes.

According to the manufacturer, the Model II utilizes high agitation and elevated temperatures to speed up home or studio color print making which normally takes about a half hour or more for conventional processing.

The processor should be of interest to advanced amateurs who want to make their own color enlargements. To this end, the steps involved have been minimized and an attempt has been made to keep costs down.

For example, the drum uses only four ounces of each of five processing solutions needed to make a print on Ektacolor Professional Paper. Only one tray is needed to pre-wet the print before processing.

The biggest obstacle to hurdle is the initial cost of the unit, about $200. But when one considers that many advanced amateurs pay considerably more for a camera than utilizes interchangeable lenses, plus an assortment of lenses, the price appears to be in line with other photographic equipment.

The unit itself measures 27 inches in length, 11½ in width and 12 in height. The drum and frame are made of corrosion resistent stainless steel; the motor housing is polypropylene and both the housing and switch are splashproofed.

A 1-70 horsepower electric motor is geared to provide a drum surface speed of 200 feet per minute. The unit operates on standard 105-125 volt, 60 cycle AC current.

According to the manufacturer, the hollow drum, which measures 8½ inches in diameter and 12 inches long, rotates at a constant speed. The specially textured surface of the drum "dip-contacts" the solution in the tray and is wetted uniformly by the rotation of the drum.

This rotation, in turn, ensures that fresh solution is continuously applied to the print surface while at the same time providing a high degree of agitation.

By tilting the processing tray, one solution is dumped and, after rinsing, the tray is ready for refilling from a premeasured supply.

The processing solutions are said to maintain proper temperature by the reservoir of water in the drum.

Photographer Mark Shaw's famous photographs of the late president John F. Kennedy and his family are being prepared for publication in book form. The book, entitled "The John F. Kennedys: A Family Album," is scheduled to appear this spring. The publisher is Farrar, Straus.

Norman C. Lipton of Camera Industries of West Germany reports that about 33,000 schools in West Germany now are equipped with darkrooms for their photographic curricula.

Religious Motif Leads During Easter Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cross of Calvary, a white Bible opened to the story of the resurrection, bunnies, a lamb in the arms of a shepherd, eggs, the ancient symbol of life and resurrection, and flowers are the time - honored symbols of Easter.

Again this year religious motifs are expected to lead all other classifications in popularity with the card-sending public, according to researchers at the 55,000-item Hallmark Historical Collection.

Biblical verse and sacred sentiments are framed in hand-lettered script suggested by the illuminated manuscripts of the Middle Ages. Easter cards from the middle of the 19th century have inspired 1964 designs bearing such sentiments as "Arise, Rejoice, Arise," and "Spring Bursts Today, for Christ Is Risen."

Trinity Church Participates in School Emphasis

Trinity Church of the Nazarene was organized early in 1953. It was a Home Missionary project of the Colorado District with the cooperation of First Church of the Nazarene, 500 W. Bijou St., and Palmer Heights Church of the Nazarene, which at that time was known as Central and was located at the corner of Platte and Wahsatch Avenues.

There were thirty charter members, who met in the home of Loren Madsen, who lived in the vicinity of the present location, Royer and Madison Streets, until the first unit of the church was completed in April of 1953. Trinity enjoyed a steady growth to a present membership of 147, a Sunday School enrollment of over 200 and an average weekly attendance of 157 last year.

In March, 1962, a new educational unit was completed with 7 class rooms, assembly and all-purpose room, nursery, kitchen, foyer, and pastor's study.

Trinity Church of the Nazarene earnestly strives to be a spiritual, evangelistic, and missionary church; emphasizes the Bible as the Word of God; firmly believes in the power of God to forgive and cleanse from all sin; emphasizes the work of the Holy Spirit in convincing the world of sin, regenerating those who repent and believe, santifying believers, and guiding into all truth as it is in Jesus; seeks to magnify the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ as the only Savior of the world.

The Church of the Nazarene is a friendly church where people come to worship and go out to live the Christian life. The church ministers to every member of the family thru children's and youth activities, missionary groups, prayer meetings, and a well staffed Sunday School for Bible Study. The type of worship service is non-liturgal; believe in baby dedication, Christian baptism, and the Lord's Supper.

The Rev. Mr. E. R. Verbeck has been the pastor for seven years. This month, the church is cooperating with a denomination-wide Sunday School emphasis called "Stand By Christ," in which the goal is a record-breaking attendance on Easter Sunday.

On Easter Sunday, Trinity Church of the Nazarene will particiate in an offering for world-wide missionary work.

Peabody's empty grave stands not far from Westminster Abbey —a tribute to the philanthropist who is buried in Salem, Mass. It is one of the highest honors ever paid by Britain to a foreigner.

During his lifetime he spent $2½ million to build model dwellings for the poor, the first of which was completed just 100 years ago. The Peabody Donation Fund, still going strong, has spent $15 million to date in improving the living conditions of the needy.

Today, there are 7,300 Peabody dwellings in London, housing 17,000 people at rents varying from 50 cents to $7.50 per week, and the Peabody Donation Fund is spending $840,000 on modernizing old flats into new homes.

The first of these dwellings, the Spitalfields Estate was, by modern standards, little more than a slum. Its rooms are small and boxlike, and none of them have private baths. There were outside toilets and a communal water tap on the landing.

But to the industrious poor of London's East End this Peabody building must have looked like paradise, when it opened its doors in March, 1864.

In those days sanitation was almost unknown in East London (even Buckingham Palace stank of drains in hot weather). It was not until 1902 that East London was guaranteed a clean water supply. Meanwhile, in one court in the East End 250 people had to share on water tap, which was open for only 25 minutes a day, closed on Sundays.

The result of these unsanitary conditions was that infant mortality swept off one child in four, and that cholera epidemics were succeeded by smallpox.

George Peabody, who settled in London in 1837, was appalled by the condition of London's industrious poor, as distinguished from its paupers, whom he considered to be beyond redemption. He was determined that the former should be given a chance to live in decent surroudings at low rents, and he lived long enough to see many of his housing reforms relized.

The banker, however, did not forget his native land. In America he founded libraries, art galleries, music conservatories and museums. His gifts totaled over $8 million.

But it is in London that he is perhaps remembered best. His "princely munificence" so impressed Queen Victoria that she offered to make him a baronet, an honor which he politely declined.

When Peabody died in London in 1869 he was given a state funeral in Westminster Abbey. But Peabody's last wish was that he should be buried in Salem. So his body was borne with full honors to the United States aboard a British battleship.

Of the many tributes to Peabody perhaps the best epitaph is in the words engraved on his memorial in Westminster Abbey, from a statement made shortly before his death:

"I have prayed my Heavenly Father day by day that I might be enabled, beforre I died, to show my gratitude by doing some great good to my fellow men."

Quicker Color Development Is Announced

By BART KINCH
United Press International

The Kodak company has a new drum processor for processing 8x10 and 11x14 enlargements. Called the Kodak Rapid Color Processor, Model II, the 16-pound unit can produce a color print in less than eight minutes.

According to the manufacturer, the Model II utilizes high agitation and elevated temperatures to speed up home or studio color print making which normally takes about a half hour or more for conventional processing.

The processor should be of interest to advanced amateurs who want to make their own color enlargements. To this end, the steps involved have been minimized and an attempt has been made to keep costs down.

For example, the drum uses only four ounces of each of five processing solutions needed to make a print on Ektacolor Professional Paper. Only one tray is needed to pre-wet the print before processing.

The biggest obstacle to hurdle is the initial cost of the unit, about $200. But when one considers that many advanced amateurs pay considerably more for a camera than utilizes interchangeable lenses, plus an assortment of lenses, the price appears to be in line with other photographic equipment.

The unit itself measures 27 inches in length, 11½ in width and 12 in height. The drum and frame are made of corrosion resistent stainless steel; the motor housing is polypropylene and both the housing and switch are splashproofed.

A 1-70 horsepower electric motor is geared to provide a drum surface speed of 200 feet per minute. The unit operates on standard 105-125 volt, 60 cycle AC current.

According to the manufacturer, the hollow drum, which measures 8½ inches in diameter and 12 inches long, rotates at a constant speed. The specially textured surface of the drum "dip-contacts" the solution in the tray and is wetted uniformly by the rotation of the drum.

This rotation, in turn, ensures that fresh solution is continuously applied to the print surface while at the same time providing a high degree of agitation.

By tilting the processing tray, one solution is dumped and, after rinsing, the tray is ready for refilling from a premeasured supply.

The processing solutions are said to maintain proper temperature by the reservoir of water in the drum.

Photographer Mark Shaw's famous photographs of the late president John F. Kennedy and his family are being prepared for publication in book form. The book, entitled "The John F. Kennedys: A Family Album," is scheduled to appear this spring. The publisher is Farrar, Straus.

Norman C. Lipton of Camera Industries of West Germany reports that about 33,000 schools in West Germany now are equipped with darkrooms for their photographic curricula.

Religious Motif Leads During Easter Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cross of Calvary, a white Bible opened to the story of the resurrection, bunnies, a lamb in the arms of a shepherd, eggs, the ancient symbol of life and resurrection, and flowers are the time - honored symbols of Easter.

Again this year religious motifs are expected to lead all other classifications in popularity with the card-sending public, according to researchers at the 55,000-item Hallmark Historical Collection.

Biblical verse and sacred sentiments are framed in hand-lettered script suggested by the illuminated manuscripts of the Middle Ages. Easter cards from the middle of the 19th century have inspired 1964 designs bearing such sentiments as "Arise, Rejoice, Arise," and "Spring Bursts Today, for Christ Is Risen."

Trinity Church Participates in School Emphasis

Trinity Church of the Nazarene was organized early in 1953. It was a Home Missionary project of the Colorado District with the cooperation of First Church of the Nazarene, 500 W. Bijou St., and Palmer Heights Church of the Nazarene, which at that time was known as Central and was located at the corner of Platte and Wahsatch Avenues.

There were thirty charter members, who met in the home of Loren Madsen, who lived in the vicinity of the present location, Royer and Madison Streets, until the first unit of the church was completed in April of 1953. Trinity enjoyed a steady growth to a present membership of 147, a Sunday School enrollment of over 200 and an average weekly attendance of 157 last year.

In March, 1962, a new educational unit was completed with 7 class rooms, assembly and all-purpose room, nursery, kitchen, foyer, and pastor's study.

Trinity Church of the Nazarene earnestly strives to be a spiritual, evangelistic, and missionary church; emphasizes the Bible as the Word of God; firmly believes in the power of God to forgive and cleanse from all sin; emphasizes the work of the Holy Spirit in convincing the world of sin, regenerating those who repent and believe, santifying believers, and guiding into all truth as it is in Jesus; seeks to magnify the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ as the only Savior of the world.

The Church of the Nazarene is a friendly church where people come to worship and go out to live the Christian life. The church ministers to every member of the family thru children's and youth activities, missionary groups, prayer meetings, and a well staffed Sunday School for Bible Study. The type of worship service is non-liturgal; believe in baby dedication, Christian baptism, and the Lord's Supper.

The Rev. Mr. E. R. Verbeck has been the pastor for seven years. This month, the church is cooperating with a denomination-wide Sunday School emphasis called "Stand By Christ," in which the goal is a record-breaking attendance on Easter Sunday.

On Easter Sunday, Trinity Church of the Nazarene will particiate in an offering for world-wide missionary work.

Evangelical Free Church Began During 1895

The First Evangelical Free Church of Colorado Springs was organized in 1895.

In the same year, the church at 317 East Boulder was built. The congregation moved to its present location in Westmoor Park, 3006 West Fontanero St. in 1959.

The church is affiliated with the Evangelical Free Church of American which is a fellowship of churches united to apread the Gospel of Jesus Christ thruout the world. The statement of faith is as follows:

"We believe the Bible to be the inspired Word of God, the complete revelation of His will for the salvation of men, and the Divine and final authority for all Christian faith and life.

"In one God, Creator of all things, infinitely perfect and eternally existing in three persons, Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

"That Jesus Christ is true God and true man, having been conceived of the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary. He died on the cross a sacrifice for our sins according to the Scriptures. Further, He arose bodily from the dead, ascended into heaven, where at the right hand of God He intercedes for us.

"That the minister of the Holy Spirit is to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ, and during this age to convict men, regenerate the believing sinner, indwell guide, instruct, and empower the believer for godly living and service.

"That man was created in the image of God but fell into sin and is therefore lost and only thru regeneraton by the Holy Spirit can salvation and spiritual life be obtained.

"That the shed blood of Jesus Christ and His resurrection provide the only ground for justification and salvation and only such as receive Jesus Christ are born of the Holy Spirit, and thus become children of God.

"That water baptism and the Lord's Supper are ordinances to be observed by the church during the present age. They are, however, not to be regarded as means of salvation.

"That the true Church is composed of all such persons who through saving faith in Jesus Christ have been regenerated by the Holy Spirit and are united together in the body of Christ of which he is the head.

"That only those who are thus members of the true Church shall be eligible for membership in the local church.

"That Jesus Christ is the Lord and Head of the Church, and that every local church has the right under Christ to decide and govern its own affairs.

"In the personal and premillenial and imminent coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and that this "Blessed Hope" has a vital bearing on the personal life and service of the believer.

"In the bodily resurrection of the dead; of the believer to everlasting blessedness and joy with the Lord, of the unbeliever to judgment and evelasing conscious punishment."

First Evangelical Church Was Begun in Late 1800

The First Evangelical United Brethren Church of Colorado Springs had its beginning in the late 1800's, meeting first in a building located on East Las Vegas Street.

It next held services in the upper floor of an old brick building on the corner of Costilla and South Tejon Streets.

In the early part of the twentieth century, lots were purchased in the east side of the 400 block on South Cascade Avenue where a church and parsonage were built. The church building is now used by the Isaac Walton group.

In 1910 or 1911, the present site, corner of South Nevada Avenue and Vermijo Street, was purchased and a basement structure with walls approximately 8 feet above ground was erected. It was to this congregation and building that the Rev. Mr. Walter G. Schaefer, D. D., was sent in 1916 by the Home Mission Board to assume the pastorate of the Tourist Memorial United Brethren Church of Colorado Springs. This was the Rev. Mr. Schaefer's first and only appointment as an Ordained Elder. He served the church for forty-one years.

A sanctuary and limited Sunday School facilities were built in 1917 on the existing foundation. The parsonage, east of the church on Vermijo Street, was completed in 1918. Due to expanding needs, the Green Gables House north of the church was purchased in the mid 1940's and housed the Sunday Church School and other Religious Educational activities.

As the church continued to grow in numbers, additional facilities were needed and in 1952, the Green Gables was sold to the Medical Center and the present Religious Educational unit was added to the rear of the old church ediface. Additional remodeling of the sanctuary took place in 1958.

After the long and successful pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Schaefer, who remains as pastor emeritus, the Rev. George L. Edie served from 1957 to 1963, and the present pastor, the Rev. E. Paul Gamber, assumed residence in 1963.

Evangelical United Brethren Churches hold to the following tenet:

"We believe in a personal God whose interest, concern and love for man is shown by the gift of His Son, Jesus Christ, in whom man by faith finds forgiveness, a release from the hold of sin and a way unto life eternal with His Creator.

"We believe that our new life in Christ comes thru faith in a personal experience with God, and demonstrates itself in a right relationship not only with God but with all mankind.

"We believe that our new life is cultured not only by a personal and vital fellowship with God, but is also enhanced in corporate worship.

"We believe that all men are equal before God, are worthy subjects of His salvation, and as such are the concern of His Church both in winning for and in Christian growth."

Good Shepherd Is Newest of E.U.B. Churches

The newest of the Evangelical Brethren Churches in Colorado Springs is the Good Shepherd Church, 1201 Leta Dr., Security.

This congregation began as a mission project of the Rocky Mountain Conference in June of 1959, with Bruce L. Grauberger assigned as pastor.

The worship unit of the church was constructed in 1960, at a cost of $55,000, with the membership of 46 at the time of dedication.

Since that time, both Sunday morning worship and Church Schools have grown rapidly. Attendance at morning worship averages 200, with the Church School in the 160's.

This young congregation dedicated its new $30,000 educational wing March 1 of this year; present membership is now 178.

PEN OR PENCIL?

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — School or jail? Some youthful offenders are going to get a choice under a new policy inaugurated by County Judge F. Ryan Duffy Jr.

Noting that at least 90 per cent of the defendants who appear in his court had dropped out of high school, Judge Duffy is applying his program only where he thinks it will do some good. Those deciding to return to school will be placed on probation until graduation and then the jail term will be dropped.

St. Andrew's Chapel Is Oldest Manitou Church

Saint Andrew's Episcopal Chapel is the oldest church in continous operation in the Manitou Springs area, and is one of the oldest Episcopal churches in the state. Located on a triangular lot at the intersection of Manitou and Canon Avenues, in the center of Manitou Springs, St Andrew's has been a community landmark for many years

The Episcopal Church has served Manitou Springs since 1874 when services were held in a tent In 1877, St. Andrew's was organized as a mission of the Diocese of Colorado, and in that same year the lot on which the present building stands was given by the late Dr W. A Bell A canvass for funds was conducted shortly thereafter and on St. Peter's Day, June 29 1880 the Right Rev. John Franklin Spaulding, Bishop of Colorado, laid the cornerstone

Funds were insufficient for a permanent structure, so a temporary wooden building was built which was moved in 1884 to a lot across Canon Avenue from the present church The building still stands and is now occupied by an antique shop The lot on which the buiding had stood was leased to the Mineral Water Company, which was responsible for the present landscaping and grading

Work began on the present church building after the turn of the century, and the cornerstone was re - laid by Bishop Spaulding on January 10, 1905

The present building is of English Gothic style and was designed by H A. Macomb, of Philadelphia The exterior is the famous Ute Pass sandstone, brought from the Manitou Quarry in Ute Pass, and the slate for the roof was imported from England. This slate was partially replaced a few years ago. The stained glass windows were executed by E. Frampton of London in 1906. The face of Simeon, in the "Presentation" window above the altar, is that of Bishop Spaulding.

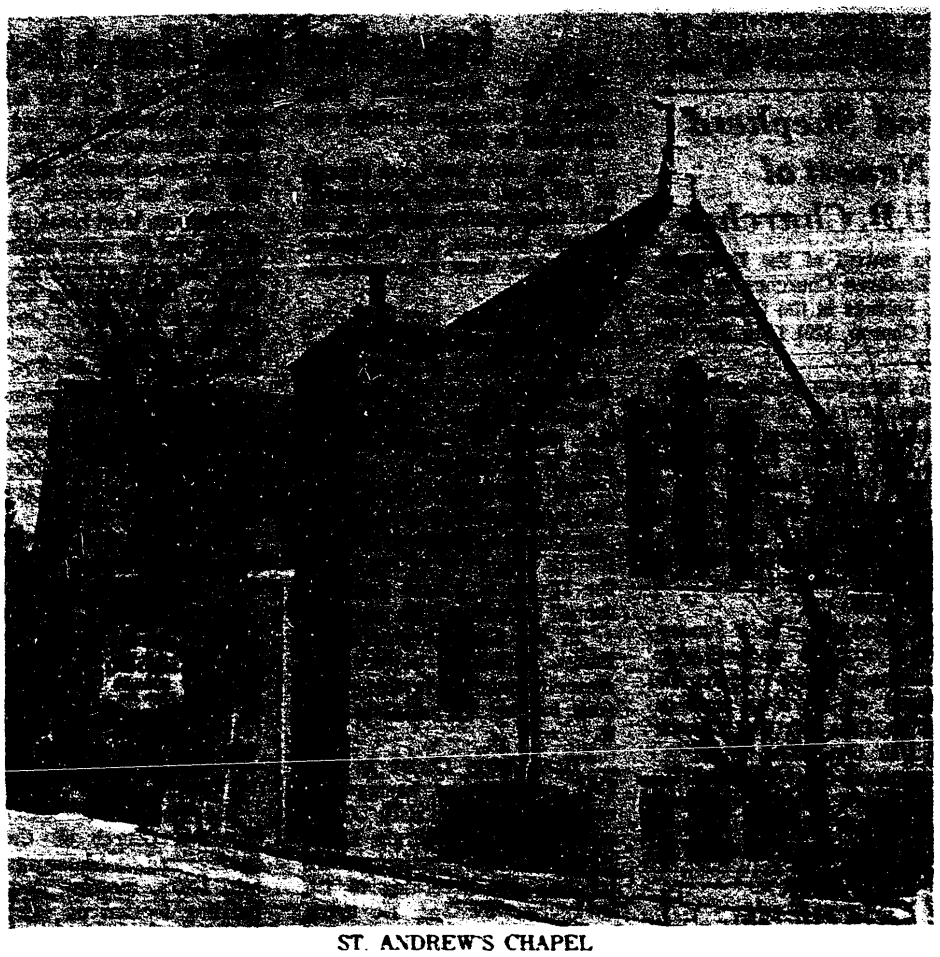
The Vermont marble altar and baptismal font were gifts of the E E. Nichols family. An ornate, hand - carved Bishop's throne was imported from England and is still in use.

With the exception of some remodeling of the Chancel and a general redecorating, St. Andrew's is very much as it was, nearly 60 years ago. The area beneath the nave has been excavated and is now occupied by a complete parish hall and kitchen facility

St Andrew's has had a part in the spiritual and community life of Manitou Springs since its founding as a mission. The congregation has always included many of the community's leading citizens, and, in recent times, its parish hall has been the gathering place for the community at the regular Smorgasbord dinners, which are held monthly during the winter. Tourists from all parts of the United States visit the church on Sundays and during the week thruout the summer season.

Since its founding, twenty priests of the Episcopal Church have served St. Andrew's, the present vicar being The Rev. C. Harry Christopher, who has been in charge since July, 1962.

Like all other Episcopal churches, St. Andrew's teaches that the basic beliefs of the Episcopal Church lie within the two creeds to which every Episcopalian subscribes — the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed — which date from the second and fourth centuries.



ST. ANDREW'S CHAPEL

Baptist Church Marks Ninety Second Birthday

Baptist Corner, location of historic First Baptist Church, is at Kiowa and Weber Streets, opposite City Auditorium. When Colorado Springs was one year old, that plot of ground was given to a little group of folk, less than two dozen in number. From the beginning, Baptist work has been carried on, first in a small brick and frame building, later in an impressive gotic - style sanctuary, still in use

The official organization of First Baptist Church took place Sept. 18,1872. The birthday is observed with fitting ceremonies each fall. This year will mark the ninety - second anniversary and the congregation looks forward already to its centennial not too many years hence.

In 1955, a modern Christian Education building was erected to accommodate the needs of the closely graded Sunday School and to provide space for the youth program, as well as other groups in the life of the church. Today the Sunday School members nearly 700 and has been growing steadily. New people are enrolled almost every week in the year.

A major renovation and beautifying project of the sanctuary building, both exterior and interior, took place in 1961 at a cost of $175,000, bringing the total values of land and facilities to more than three - quarters of a million dollars.

The present pastors are The Rev Mr. Ward B. Hurlburt and The Rev Mr. Allan Lee. The ministry of music is under the direction of Dr. M. Loyd Owens, with Mrs. Leah Hiscutt as organist. There are five choirs. Total membership of the church exceeds one thousand.

First Church is identified with the American Baptist Convention and the Baptist World Alliance. As such it holds to the following principles: believer's baptism, by immersion; membership of believer's only; the Bible as the only guide of faith and practice; independence of the local church; the priesthood of all believers as taught in the scriptures; separation of church and state.

WHY
DID JESUS DIE?

For more than 1900 years the eyes of the Christian world have been focused on the cross of Christ. What was the purpose of that cross? Why did Jesus die?

Men have given many answers to those questions. But what did Christ and His apostles have to say about the purpose of His death? Just listen:

"Christ died for our sins." "God commendeth His love toward us in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." "Christ suffered for our sins, the Just for the unjust."

"God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them." "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law, being made a curse for us."

In other words, when Jesus died on the cross He was suffering the punishment and removing the guilt of all the sins of all the world. He died as a substitute—for us.

Whether you realize it or not, it was for you that Christ died. You were "reconciled to God by the death of His Son." Salvation is now yours—full, free, and final. "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—That is why Jesus died!

If you would like to know more about the teachings of the Christian religion, or if you have no church affiliation and are in need of spiritual counsel, please write us.

First Lutheran Youth Build Worship Center

Youth of First Lutheran Church, 1515 N. Cascade Ave., are building a youth center in the church.

The youth center will be composed of a coke stand, lounge with a television set, dance floor and record playing facilities and a small chapel which will be located just off the main room.

The altar for the chapel was made by Ervin Benver. The chapel will be used as a prayer and devotional chapel.

Work on the youth center is being directed by the parish intern. Robert Tyce. Miss Ava Jones. Miss Pamela Girard, Miss Susan Girard and Jeffrey Posner are co-ordinating the work.

Wonderfully Rewarding

St. Andrew's Chapel Is Oldest Manitou Church

Saint Andrew's Episcopal Chapel is the oldest church in continous operation in the Manitou Springs area, and is one of the oldest Episcopal churches in the state. Located on a triangular lot at the intersection of Manitou and Canon Avenues, in the center of Manitou Springs, St. Andrew's has been a community landmark for many years.

The Episcopal Church has served Manitou Springs since 1874, when services were held in a tent. In 1877, St. Andrew's was organized as a mission of the Diocese of Colorado, and in that same year the lot on which the present building stands was given by the late Dr. W. A. Bell. A canvass for funds was conducted shortly thereafter, and on St. Peter's Day, June 29, 1880, the Right Rev. John Franklin Spaulding, Bishop of Colorado, laid the cornerstone.

Funds were insufficient for a permanent structure, so a temporary wooden building was built, which was moved in 1884 to a lot across Canon Avenue from the present church. The building still stands and is now occupied by an antique shop. The lot on which the buiding had stood was leased to the Mineral Water Company, which was responsible for the present landscaping and grading.

Work began on the present church building after the turn of the century, and the cornerstone was re - laid by Bishop Spaulding on January 10, 1905.

The present building is of English Gothic style and was designed by H. A. Macomb, of Philadelphia. The exterior is the famous Ute Pass sandstone, brought from the Manitou Quarry in Ute Pass, and the slate for the roof was imported from England. This slate was partially replaced a few years ago. The stained glass windows were executed by E. Frampton of London in 1906. The face of Simeon, in the "Presentation" window above the altar, is that of Bishop Spaulding.

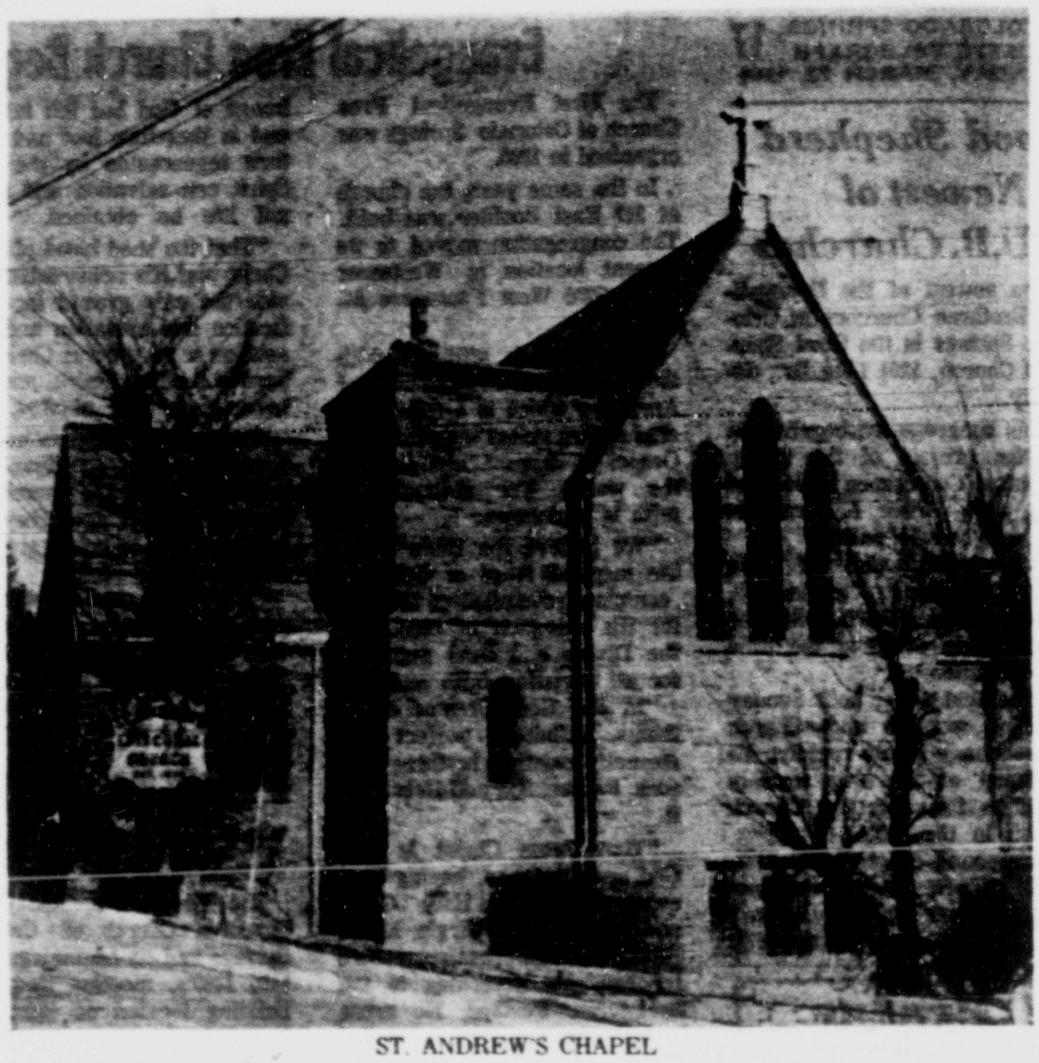
The Vermont marble altar and baptismal font were gifts of the E.E. Nichols family. An ornate, hand - carved Bishop's throne was imported from England and is still in use.

With the exception of some remodeling of the Chancel and a general redecorating, St. Andrew's is very much as it was, nearly 60 years ago. The area beneath the nave has been excavated and is now occupied by a complete parish hall and kitchen facility.

St. Andrew's has had a part in the spiritual and community life of Manitou Springs since its founding as a mission. The congregation has always included many of the community's leading citizens, and, in recent times, its parish hall has been the gathering place for the community at the regular Smorgasbord dinners, which are held monthly during the winter. Tourists from all parts of the United States visit the church on Sundays and during the week thruout the summer season.

Since its founding, twenty priests of the Episcopal Church have served St. Andrew's, the present vicar being The Rev. C. Harry Christopher, who has been in charge since July, 1962.

Like all other Episcopal churches, St. Andrew's teaches that the basic beliefs of the Episcopal Church lie within the two creeds to which every Episcopalian subscribes — the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed — which date from the second and fourth centuries.



ST. ANDREW'S CHAPEL

Baptist Church Marks Ninety Second Birthday

Baptist Corner, location of historic First Baptist Church, is at Kiowa and Weber Streets, opposite City Auditorium. When Colorado Springs was one year old, that plot of ground was given to a little group of folk, less than two dozen in number. From the beginning, Baptist work has been carried on, first in a small brick and frame building, later in an impressive gotic - style sanctuary, still in use.

The official organization of First Baptist Church took place Sept. 18,1872. The birthday is observed with fitting ceremonies each fall. This year will mark the ninety - second anniversary and the congregation looks forward already to its centennial not too many years hence.

In 1955, a modern Christian Education building was erected to accommodate the needs of the closely graded Sunday School and to provide space for the youth program, as well as other groups in the life of the church. Today the Sunday School members nearly 700 and has been growing steadily. New people are enrolled almost every week in the year.

A major renovation and beautifying project of the sanctuary building, both exterior and interior, took place in 1961 at a cost of $175,000, bringing the total values of land and facilities to more than three - quarters of a million dollars.

The present pastors are The Rev. Mr. Ward B. Hurlburt and The Rev. Mr. Allan Lee. The ministry of music is under the direction of Dr. M. Loyd Owens, with Mrs. Leah Hiscutt as organist. There are five choirs. Total membership of the church exceeds one thousand.

First Church is identified with the American Baptist Convention and the Baptist World Alliance. As such it holds to the following principles: believer's baptism, by immersion; membership of believer's only; the Bible as the only guide of faith and practice; independence of the local church; the priesthood of all believers as taught in the scriptures; separation of church and state.

WHY
DID JESUS DIE?

For more than 1900 years the eyes of the Christian world have been focused on the cross of Christ. What was the purpose of that cross? Why did Jesus die?

Men have given many answers to those questions. But what did Christ and His apostles have to say about the purpose of His death? Just listen:

"Christ died for our sins." "God commendeth His love toward us in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." "Christ suffered for our sins, the Just for the unjust."

"God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them." "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law, being made a curse for us."

In other words, when Jesus died on the cross He was suffering the punishment and removing the guilt of all the sins of all the world. He died as a substitute—for us.

Whether you realize it or not, it was for you that Christ died. You were "reconciled to God by the death of His Son." Salvation is now yours—full, free, and final. "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—That is why Jesus died!

First Lutheran Youth Build Worship Center

Youth of First Lutheran Church, 1515 N. Cascade Ave., are building a youth center in the church.

The youth center will be composed of a coke stand, lounge with a television set, dance floor and record playing facilities and a small chapel which will be located just off the main room.

The altar for the chapel was made by Ervin Benver. The chapel will be used as a prayer and devotional chapel.

Work on the youth center is being directed by the parish intern, Robert Tyce. Miss Ava Jones, Miss Pamela Girard, Miss Susan Girard and Jeffrey Posner are co-ordinating the work.

Wonderfully Rewarding

You and those you love will receive a wonderful and rewarding experience every Sunday in the church of your choice. Nothing is more gratifying than to hear anew the age-old message.

Three Miniature Chapels Nestle In Seclusion

Tucked away in two hospitals and the Young Women's Christian Association are three miniature chapels little known to residents of Colorado Springs.

Their seating capacity ranges from nine chairs at the Memorial Chapel of the YWCA, to 12 prie-dieus at Christus Rex Chapel in the Margery Reed memorial nurses residence at Penrose Hospital. The largest of the miniature chapels, Berneking Chapel at Memorial hospital, has 13 pews.

Originally a mimeographing room, Memorial Chapel at the YWCA was converted in 1952.

The altar, placed before a red velvet drape, is of soft wood. Lester Griswold handcarved the last phrase of the YWCA Purpose across the front of the altar. It reads: "To Grow In The Knowledge And Love Of God." The entire Purpose reads as follows:

"To build a fellowship of women and girls devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians.

"In this endeavor we seek to understand Jesus, to share his love for all people, and to grow in the knowledge and love of God."

An organ, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Mize, sits at the opposite end of the approximately seven by fifteen foot room from the altar

Mrs. Ethel Joe Hellgren, executive director of the YWCA, said the chapel's only wedding took place in 1962. The chapel is primarily used for meditation and is open so that people might enter and leave as they wish.

Christus Rex Chapel, built and dedicated in conjunction with the Margery Reed Memorial Nurses Home, is in memory of Sister Rose Alexius who was administrator of the hospital in the years before her death in 1939.

The entire nurses residence was given in memory of Margery Reed by her mother, Mrs. Verner Z. Reed.

The chapel's black Belgian marble altar holds the silver tabernacle and candlesticks. The drapery behind the altar was a part of the drapery material that hung in the Reed mansion in Denver. A small, chair-like prie-dieus sitting to the right of the altar is handcarved and imported from Europe. The prie-dieus used by the nursing students are covered with red leather.

Mass is held in the chapel twice a month for the nursing students; however, the chapel is always open to the nurses for metitation.

Berneking Chapel at Memorial Hospital, built in 1955-56 and dedicated in 1956, was provided by the Lions Club of Colorado Springs to provide a place for meditation and religious services for patients, employees and guests of the hospital.

A brass cross, suspended before a white damask hanging is hung above the altar. On either side of the cross are hangings of red velvet.

The walls of Georgian ice blue contrast softly with the white chancel furniture, the red velvet pew cushions and red carpet. An electronic organ sits to the left of the altar.

In 1959, the Lions Club and hospital officials decided to rededicate the chapel to the memory of the Rev. Gerald Berneking, who was president of the Lions Club when the chapel was built.

One wedding has been held in the chapel. The bridegroom's father could not get permission to leave the hospital to attend his son's wedding, so the wedding, brought to him, was held in the chapel.

The chapel is open to hospital personnel and the public 24 hours a day for meditation and prayer. Services are held at noon every Thursday for the students, employees, patients and nurses of the hospital.

Mountain View Extends From Missions Board

Mountain View Chapel, 2507 E. Buena Ventura St., is an extension church of the Board of Home Missions of the Brethren In Christ denomination.

The local congregation was organized in 1961. Its regular services include the Sunday School hour with classes for all ages, Children's Church, Morning worship, Sunday evening departmental groups, evening worship, Bible Study and prayer groups.

Earl Engle, Jr., formerly of Abilene, Kan., serves as the present pastor of Mountain View Chapel.

The sponsoring denomination of this extension church is the Brethren In Christ, founded in 1778 in Lancaster County, Pa. It is evangelical in doctrine and conservative in theology, missionary in outreach and simple in faith and practice.

St. Paul's Church Began as Mission

St. Paul's Methodist Church was begun as a mission Sunday School in 1890 and had several different locations until it was finally settled at Nevada Avenue and Vermijo Street in 1909. It remained in this location until 1959 when the congregation voted to relocate at 2111 Carlton St., just off East Constitution Street.

Since then, the church has experienced continued growth and now has a membership of 310. Attendance at worship services is excellent with 90.6 per cent of the membership in attendance on a recent Sunday. St. Paul's offers a varied program for all ages, including choirs for all and Bible study for nearly every group. An active youth group and Church School rounds out the program of the church.

St. Paul's stands in the Methodist tradition representing new life found in the love of God as revealed to us in Jesus Christ. Methodists have emphasized the warm heart, the trained mind, and the need for social action to seek to make real the values of the kingdom of God in society.

First Mennonite Church Began in Manitou Springs

The First Mennonite Church, 11 N. 22nd St., had its beginning in Manitou Springs in the year 1920, when a small building was erected on Deer Path Avenue and dedicated on Aug. 15 of that year.

The church filled a great need of the many people of the Mennonite faith who came to the region each year for vacations or for health reasons. A congregation was organized with 13 charter members on Oct. 1, 1922.

This church enjoyed a growth thru the years and people of many faiths came to worship with them, especially during tourist seasons. After many years the small building became too small and a new location was sought. Also, parking cars near the church became a problem as many visitors had come for health reasons and it was difficult for them to walk two or more blocks up the hill to the church.

In the summer of 1948, the property at 11 N. 22nd St., was purchased from the Church of the Brethren, the first service was held Sept. 19, 1948.

Services are held regular each Lord's Day, both morning and evening. A mid-week service is held Wednesday nights. A woman's organization meets each month to sew for needy causes and to give aid to other activities of the church. A young people's organization, known as Mennonite Youth Fellowship, is active and helpful in the church. A young girl's organization meets regularly at stated times. A summer Bible School is an annual occasion, usually held as soon as public schools close in June.

The first recorded Mennonite church was organized in Zurich, Switzerland in 1525. Since that time numerous branches of the church have been formed down thru the centuries with there being about 16 different branches today.

The faith of the Mennonites is based upon eighteen articles of faith called the Dorchrecht Confession of Faith drawn up in 1632. Most of these articles would be essentially the same as that of the major Protestant denominations.

Those doctrines which differ from the main stream of Christianity are as follows: A strong emphasis to follow as literally as possible the teachings of the New Testament. Baptism except in the use of armed force; Opposition to secret oaths and secret societies.

Mennonites have a strong intra-church program of mutual aid and a world-wide relief program thru an all-Mennonite relief organization called the Mennite Central Committee. They are strong on a service ministry to society in general. In Colorado five community hospitals are administered by them. Rehabilitation work is also done among emotionally disturbed and delinquent youngsters.

Local congregations are more or less autonomous and authoritative altho appeals can be taken to district conferences. There are two Mennonite congregations in Colorado Springs—First Mennonite Church at 11 N. 22nd St., and Beth-El Mennonite Church at Yuma and Unintah Streets. Rocky Mountain Mennonite Camp near Divide is owned by and serves three district conferences, Rocky Mountain, South Central, and Iowa-Nebraska.

Social Security Can Help Pay Funeral Bills

Free Booklet Gives Full Information

Social Security and Veterans' benefits are explained in the new INFORMATION booklet recently published by Swan Funeral Home. Many families are unaware of the extent to which they may benefit under Social Security — as much as $255 for funeral expenses!

Veterans are also entitled to special burial allowances which bring help to families in time of need.

CUBAN REFUGEES

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new push by voluntary agencies and the Federal Government to complete Cuban refugee resettlement was urged recently by John F. Thomas, director of the Cuban Refugee Program of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"During the next few months we must make an increased and sustained effort to move as many people as possible to as good opportunities as possible," Thomas said in a speech to the Committee on Resettlement Service by the United Presbyterian Church.

Assembly of God Was Organized 11 Years Ago

The Nob Hill Assembly of God Church was organized May 1, 1953. There were 40 in attendance the first Sunday in Sunday School.

The Rev. Mr. Gregory was the first pastor called and his term expired after a period of one year, and at this time, the Rev. Roy Brooks from the state of Oklahoma was called to be the pastor. Under his direction, the building was remodeled so that living quarters were supplied for the pastor in the rear of the present building.

There was a good growth during the time of the Rev. Mr. Brooks was pastor. The Sunday School had increased to an average of 106 at the time that the Rev. Brooks left this charge for other fields of labor in July, 1957.

The church then selected the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Bennett and their three children to assume pastoral duties. The Bennett children are presently enrolled in three of the schools of the city; Palmer High, South Junior High and Will Rogers Elementary Schools. During the Rev. Bennett's stay here, the church auditorium has been remodeled and enlarged to accommodate the Sunday School which has increased from an average of 106 in July, 1957, to an average of 206 in 1964.

The church has also purchased a new parsonage for the pastor's family during the last three years, located at 104 S. Garo St.

Due to the increased growth of the church, ground has recently been purchased at 619 Tia Juana St. for the erection of a new brick church building. This building will contain a sanctuary that will accommodate an overflow crowd of 400 with a two-story educational building attached.

One of the contributing factors of progress for the church is the daily prayer meetings that are held every morning. These prayer meetings have continued for the past four years.

Free Methodist Is 'Light, Life Hour' Church

The Free Methodist Church Weber and Cucharras Streets, is designated as "The Friendly Church of the Light and Life Hour.

As a denomination, it was organized at Pekin, N. Y. in 1860, coming from the parent body of Methodism and holding to the doctrines of original Methodism such as the New Birth, Witness of the Spirit, and Entire Sanctification, a work of the Holy Spirit by which the believer is cleansed from inward sin and empowered by the Holy Spirit.

The Free Methodist holds a high standard for its members, emphasizing clean living, witnessing, tithing, and regular church attendance.

The Light and Life Hour, international broadcast of the Free Methodist Church is a grea outreach of our church, in spreading the Good News of Salvation.

The First Free Methodist Church is a group of friendly people striving to fulfill the mission given by our Lord. Everyone is welcome to the worship services of this church. The First Free Methodist Church has been on the corner of Weber and Cucharras for a good many years but plans to relocate in the near future. Lack of parking facilities and the need for a larger plant are the reasons.

Calvary Baptist Church Has Had Two Pastors

Calvary Baptist Church, 1712 S. Corona St., is a Southern Baptist Convention affiliate, and was organized in May, 1953. Only two Pastors have led in the work of the Church. The first one was John Powell, who led in organization and the building of the first unit. The present Pastor is Norman E. Presley, who has led the Church since April 9, 1961. Mr. Presley was with Park Temple Baptist Church in Fort Worth, Texas, as its on Pastor for 11 years and 1 month.

The membership now stands at approximately 800, the Sunday School enrollment, 607, and Sunday Evening Training Union Organization with 270 enrollment. Average weekly attendance at Sunday School is well above 300. Average attendance of Training Union is consistently above 200.

Joe Matli is the Sunday School Superintendent, Frank Owens is Training Union Director, Charles Ercinas is Brotherhood President, and Mrs. Norman E. Presley, the Pastor's wife, is Woman's Missionary President. Mrs. Donald Giberson is Church Secretary and Clerk, and Donald K. Giberson is Church Treasurer.

Calvary Church, three years ago, dedicated its membership, facilities and service to an intensified program of Evangelism. The result of that dedication is seen in the fact that 468 converts have been won and baptized in the past 35 months. The Church has led the Colorado Convention, which takes in five and one-half states, in baptisms over the past two years, and is leading for the 3rd straight year with 74 since Sept. 1963. The "heart beat" of the Church, and the main motive of its leadership, is the winning of the unsaved and un-churched.

Due to the rapidly growing membership and crowded conditions, in both the Bible Teaching and Preaching Services, tentative plans are being made to double its building space. The financial status of the Church is the best in its history with all bills paid and 4 payments in one, being made monthly on present property debt of about $30,000.00. The financial needs of the Church are met by the "free will" giving of its member's tithes and offerings. The Church does not use the "Pledge Card" system.

The Pastor conducts a regular Tuesday morning Bible Study and Evangelism Class with an average attendance of about 40. Youth Training in character and Christian Service is also included in the Church curriculum of activities.

Today's vital Bible Word radio broadcast, heard daily, was begun on Nov. 6, 1961. Several listeners have become members of the Church. The cost of the program is supported by Claude Friend, a member of the Church.

For all who seek a Bible Teaching evangelistic program, the Calvary membership beckons for insepction. The Church is located at 1712 S. Corona St., in Stratton Meadows addition.

First Christian Began With 25 Charter Members

The First Christian Church of Colorado Springs, Platte and Cascade Avenues, is part of the Disciples of Christ Christian Churches. The Colorado Springs Church was organized in 1878 with twenty-five charter members.

After a fire destroyed the church building at 209 N. Nevada Ave., the present church was built in 1935 and the brick apartment building adjacent to the church property was purchased in 1953 for use as an Education Building and also to house the Memorial Prayer Chapel which is open at all hours.

Crescent Ranch, located 1½ miles East of Divide, on Highway 24, was purchased in 1953 for the use of the Church for Retreats. Crescent Ranch has one large lodge and five cabins and will accommodate 90 persons. Shuffleboard, ice skating, tobogganing and other outdoor games are enjoyed as well as the usual indoor games at the Ranch, which is available for church groups.

Twenty-four hours a day the Dial-A-Prayer service is available in the Pikes Peak region due to the foresight of the First Christian Church. One of the two ministers records a new short meditation with prayer each morning and this is available to all by just dialing 635-4000.

The Rev. Mr. Warren M. Hile became minister of First Christian in 1959 following the Rev. Dr. Gerald Berneking who had served the church for 17 years. The Rev. Mr. Malcolm McHarg has served as Minister of Education since 1959.

Special music for services either features the music of the Chancel Choir under the direction of Louise W. Dockstader or the Children's or Youth Choir under the direction of John D. Buck.

Youth groups meet weekly for study and fellowship. Drive-in Worship Services were begun the summer of 1963 and will continue.

Retail sales of United States-built automobiles totaled 7,300,000 cars in 1963, second only to the 7,400,000 cars sold in 1955.

The faith of the Mennonites is based upon eighteen articles of faith called the Dorchrecht Confession of Faith drawn up in 1632. Most of these articles would be essentially the same as that of the major Protestant denominations.

Those doctrines which differ from the main stream of Christianity are as follows: A strong emphasis to follow as literally as possible the teachings of the New Testament; Baptism except in the use of armed force; Opposition to secret oaths and secret societies.

Mennonites have a strong intra-church program of mutual aid and a world-wide relief program thru an all-Mennonite relief organization called the Mennite Central Committee. They are strong on a service ministry to society in general. In Colorado five community hospitals are administered by them. Rehabilitation work is also done among emotionally disturbed and delinquent youngsters.

Local congregations are more or less autonomous and authoritative altho appeals can be taken to district conferences. There are two Mennonite congregations in Colorado Springs—First Mennonite Church at 11 N. 22nd St., and Beth-El Mennonite Church at Yuma and Uintah Streets. Rocky Mountain Mennonite Camp near Divide is owned by and serves three district conferences, Rocky Mountain, South Central, and Iowa-Nebraska.

Social Security Can Help Pay Funeral Bills

Free Booklet Gives Full Information

Social Security and Veterans' benefits are explained in the new INFORMATION booklet recently published by Swan Funeral Home. Many families are unaware of the extent to which they may benefit under Social Security — as much as $255 for funeral expenses!

Veterans are also entitled to special burial allowances which bring help to families in time of need.

CUBAN REFUGEES

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new push by voluntary agencies and the Federal Government to complete Cuban refugee resettlement was urged recently by John F. Thomas, director of the Cuban Refugee Program of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"During the next few months we must make an increased and sustained effort to move as many people as possible to as good opportunities as possible," Thomas said in a speech to the Committee on Resettlement Service by the United Presbyterian Church.

Assembly of God Was Organized 11 Years Ago

The Nob Hill Assembly of God Church was organized May 1, 1953. There were 40 in attendance the first Sunday in Sunday School.

The Rev. Mr. Gregory was the first pastor called and his term expired after a period of one year, and at this time, the Rev. Roy Brooks from the state of Oklahoma was called to be the pastor. Under his direction, the building was remodeled so that living quarters were supplied for the pastor in the rear of the present building.

There was a good growth during the time of the Rev. Mr. Brooks was pastor. The Sunday School had increased to an average of 106 at the time that the Rev. Brooks left this charge for other fields of labor in July, 1957.

The church then selected the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Bennett and their three children to assume pastoral duties. The Bennett children are presently enrolled in three of the schools of the city; Palmer High, South Junior High and Will Rogers Elementary Schools. During the Rev. Bennett's stay here, the church auditorium has been remodeled and enlarged to accommodate the Sunday School which has increased from an average of 106 in July, 1957, to an average of 206 in 1964.

The church has also purchased a new parsonage for the pastor's family during the last three years, located at 104 S. Garo St.

Due to the increased growth of the church, ground has recently been purchased at 619 Tia Juana St. for the erection of a new brick church building. This building will contain a sanctuary that will accommodate an overflow crowd of 400 with a two-story educational building attached.

One of the contributing factors of progress for the church is the daily prayer meetings that are held every morning. These prayer meetings have continued for the past four years.

Free Methodist Is 'Light, Life Hour' Church

The Free Methodist Church Weber and Cucharras Streets, is designated as "The Friendly Church of the Light and Life Hour.

As a denomination, it was organized at Pekin, N. Y. in 1860, coming from the parent body of Methodism and holding to the doctrines of original Methodism such as the New Birth, Witness of the Spirit, and Entire Sanctification, a work of the Holy Spirit by which the believer is cleansed from inward sin and empowered by the Holy Spirit.

The Free Methodist holds a high standard for its members, emphasizing clean living, witnessing, tithing, and regular church attendance.

The Light and Life Hour, international broadcast of the Free Methodist Church is a grea outreach of our church, in spreading the Good News of Salvation.

The First Free Methodist Church is a group of friendly people striving to fulfill the mission given by our Lord. Everyone is welcome to the worship services of this church. The First Free Methodist Church has been on the corner of Weber and Cucharras for a good many years but plans to relocate in the near future. Lack of parking facilities and the need for a larger plant are the reasons.

Calvary Baptist Church Has Had Two Pastors

Calvary Baptist Church, 1712 S. Corona St., is a Southern Baptist Convention affiliate, and was organized in May, 1953. Only two Pastors have led in the work of the Church. The first one was John Powell, who led in organization and the building of the first unit. The present Pastor is Norman E. Presley, who has led the Church since April 9, 1961. Mr. Presley was with Park Temple Baptist Church in Fort Worth, Texas, as its on Pastor for 11 years and 1 month.

The membership now stands at approximately 800, the Sunday School enrollment, 607, and Sunday Evening Training Union Organization with 270 enrollment. Average weekly attendance at Sunday School is well above 300. Average attendance of Training Union is consistently above 200.

Joe Matli is the Sunday School Superintendent. Frank Owens is Training Union Director, Charles Ercinas is Brotherhood President, and Mrs. Norman E. Presley, the Pastor's wife, is Woman's Missionary President. Mrs. Donald Giberson is Church Secretary and Clerk, and Donald K. Giberson is Church Treasurer.

Calvary Church, three years ago, dedicated its membership, facilities and service to an intensified program of Evangelism. The result of that dedication is seen in the fact that 468 converts have been won and baptized in the past 35 months. The Church has led the Colorado Convention, which takes in five and one-half states, in baptisms over the past two years, and is leading for the 3rd straight year with 74 since Sept. 1963. The "heart beat" of the Church, and the main motive of its leadership, is the winning of the unsaved and un-churched.

Due to the rapidly growing membership and crowded conditions, in both the Bible Teaching and Preaching Services, tentative plans are being made to double its building space. The financial status of the Church is the best in its history with all bills paid and 4 payments in one, being made monthly on present property debt of about $30,000.00. The financial needs of the Church are met by the "free will" giving of its member's tithes and offerings. The Church does not use the "Pledge Card" system.

The Pastor conducts a regular Tuesday morning Bible Study and Evangelism Class with an average attendance of about 40. Youth Training in character and Christian Service is also included in the Church curriculum of activities.

Today's vital Bible Word radio broadcast, heard daily, was begun on Nov. 6, 1961. Several listeners have become members of the Church. The cost of the program is supported by Claude Friend, a member of the Church.

For all who seek a Bible Teaching evangelistic program, the Calvary membership beckons for insepction. The Church is located at 1712 S. Corona St., in Stratton Meadows addition.

First Christian Began With 25 Charter Members

The First Christian Church of Colorado Springs, Platte and Cascade Avenues, is part of the Disciples of Christ Christian Churches. The Colorado Springs Church was organized in 1878 with twenty-five charter members.

After a fire destroyed the church building at 209 N. Nevada Ave., the present church was built in 1935 and the brick apartment building adjacent to the church property was purchased in 1953 for use as an Education Building and also to house the Memorial Prayer Chapel which is open at all hours.

Crescent Ranch, located 1½ miles East of Divide, on Highway 24, was purchased in 1953 for the use of the Church for Retreats. Crescent Ranch has one large lodge and five cabins and will accommodate 26 persons. Shuffleboard, ice skating, tobogganing and other outdoor games are enjoyed as well as the usual indoor games at the Ranch, which is available for church groups.

Twenty-four hours a day the Dial-A-Prayer service is available in the Pikes Peak region due to the foresight of the First Christian Church. One of the two ministers records a new short meditation with prayer each morning and this is available to all by just dialing 635-4000.

The Rev. Mr. Warren M. Hile became minister of First Christian in 1959 following the Rev. Dr. Gerald Berneking who had served the church for 17 years. The Rev. Mr. Malcolm McHarg has served as Minister of Education since 1959.

Special music for services either features the music of the Chancel Choir under the direction of Louise W. Dockstader or the Children's or Youth Choir under the direction of John D. Buck.

Youth groups meet weekly for study and fellowship. Drive-in Worship Services were begun the summer of 1963 and will continue.

Retail sales of United States-built automobiles totaled 7,300,000 cars in 1963, second only to the 7,400,000 cars sold in 1955.

Regular Baptist Group Is Newly Organized

One of the latest churches to become established in the Colorado Springs area is the Regular Baptist Fellowship. For a church that has only been in existence for a short time, its progress has been rapid.

Initial investigations into the possibility of a General Association of Regular Baptist Church in Colorado Springs were made as early as 1958. Another survey was made only two and a half years ago.

In January of this year, Pastor and Mrs. F. Wesley Clem became available as new church missionaries. Upon arrival in Denver, they were approached concerning offering their services as missionaries to establish a church here.

Encouraged by the Regular Baptist Church Builders and a contact made with a former Regular Baptist Family from Long Island interested in helping establish a Regular Baptist Church, Mr. Clem met initially with a small interest group on Feb. 4. The next Tuesday, Feb. 11, representatives of the Regular Baptist Church Builders, The Rocky Mountain Association of Regular Baptist Churches, and interested parties surveyed possible church sites.

At an evening meeting, after discussing the policies and stand of the Regular Baptist Church Builders and the G.A.R.B., the group voted to form an initial Regular Baptist Fellowship with the intent of formal organization at a later date.

Officers elected at the meeting were: F. Wesley Clem-moderator, Mrs. Carl Wertz-secretary, Leon Houtchen-treasurer, with Vernie Houtchens, Carl Wertz, A. W. Ritchey, Leon Houtchens, and David Douglas as members of the service committee.

News of the new effort spread and many other families demonstrated their interest. On the first Worship Service of the group on Feb. 16, ten families were represented. Several other families have expressed their interest since that time with one family expected from Omaha during March.

The Fellowship is holding a full slate of meetings at its temporary location in the Youth Recreational Building of the YMCA at the corner of Bijou and Weber Streets, including Sunday School for all ages, a training union featuring a visitation seminar, and a Thursday evening Prayer Meeting with Bible study.

On Feb. 24, negotiations were completed with the aid of Regular Baptist Church Builders, for the purchase of church property at 1927 Murray Blvd. The property is situated near the corner of Murray Boulevard and Constitution Avenue in the Rustic Hills Subdivision.

Earlier this month, the group registered its future name, The Rustic Hills Baptist Church, with the State Department in Denver. Formal organization is expected to be announced in the very near future.

The Fellowship's building committee held its third meeting Feb. 28, this time in Denver with the president of the R.B.C.B., the Rev. Mr. Floyd A. Davis and the Builder's Architect, Edward Warner Associates. The building, now on the drawing board, will be phase one of the building complex planned which will include a future auditorium and additional educational structures as growth directs.

The proposed building, measuring 42 by 80 feet and including a full basement will later be converted to a complete educational unit. During the initial phase it is designed to accommodate from 200 to 250 in Sunday School and more than 300 in Worship Service.

The General Association of Regular Baptists was formally organized and launched in May, 1932, its stated purpose being: "To maintain an association of sovereign Bible - believing, Christ-honoring Baptist Churches, to promote the spirit of evangelism, to spread the Gospel, to advance Regular Baptist educational and missionary enterprises at home and abroad, to raise and maintain a testimony to the truth of the Gospel and to the purity of the church and to raise a standard of Biblical separation from worldliness, modernism and apostasy."

Believing in the historic Baptist position of complete autonomy of the local church, the General Association of Regular Baptists Council is only a co-operative fellowship holding national meetings yearly and regional or state fellowships at the prerogative of the churches. It maintains only enough paid employes to allow the association to function properly and to staff the Regular Baptist Press which produces its Sunday School literature.

It holds no church property and has no organizational connection with mission boards or education institutions. It does, however, approve mission board and educational institutions that are of like conviction and practice.

Approved at the annual meetings this year were Baptist Bible Seminary, Johnson City, N.Y., Cedarville College, Cedarville, Ohio, Grand Rapids Baptist Theological Seminary in Michigan, Los Angeles Baptist College at Newhall, Calif., and Omaha Baptist Bible College in Nebraska.

Mission boards receiving the approval of the association are: The Association of Baptists for World Evangelism in Philadelphia; Evangelical Baptist Missions in Paterson, N.J.; Baptist Mid - Missions, Cleveland; Fellowship of Baptist for Home Missions, Elyria, Ohio; and Hiawatha-Land Independent Baptist Mission, Escanaba, Mich.

In respecting the atuonomy of the local church, each church is independent of associational control and maintains its own program of evangelism and missionary effort.

Central Christian Began in 1892

Central Christian Church, 2002 W. Pikes Peak Ave., was started in the year 1892 as a Sunday School. It met in a Lutheran Church on Haggerman Street. Later, they moved to a Hall on West Colorado Avenue.

In 1896, J. T. Head came here with his tent, which he pitched on the corner of Fourth Street and Colorado Avenue. Here they had nine weeks of Biblical preaching and the charter membership of the church was formed.

The beliefs of the church are those basicly found in the Church of the New Testament. Central Christian Church is an independent congregation which is governed congregationally. They advocate no creed but Christ, no law, but love. And where the Bible speaks, they speak and where the Bible is silent, they are silent. Central Christian strongly advocates Christian unity of all believers on the basis of the Holy Scriptures.

Congregational Is Now E.U.B.

Trinity Evangelical United Brethren Church at the corner of 30th Street and Pikes Peak Avenue was built in 1904 by the Congregational Church and was known as the Pilgrim Congregational Church. The Rev. Mr. Hullinger was the pastor in its beginning.

The first Sunday school was organized in 1910. In 1925, the church was purchased by the Evangelical United Brethren of the Rocky Mountain Conference. For years, it served the community as a place to send children to Sunday School.

In 1956, the church was completely remodeled and a education wing was added. This has enhanced the beauty of the church and its functional use. It now has a strong worship program with the Sunday School taking second place.

During the Holy Week March 22-29, the following activities will be featured in the church. Sunday thru Wednesday nights' at 7:30 p.m., a series of Holy Week messages will be given by the pastor, the Rev. Mrs. Glenn O. McPherson. Thursday night, the church will celebrate the Last Supper Communion Service.

The English word for Easter apparently was derived from the name of an ancient Anglo-Saxon spring festival. In Romance languages, the celebration of Christ's resurrection is known by various names derived from the Latin word "pascha," which in turn is derived from the Hebrew word "pesach" meaning Passover.

FIRST ASSSEMBLY OF GOD

Pikes Peak at Walnut Pastor, George E. Smith

Dear Visitor:

While you are enjoying the scenic wonders in the heart of America's vacationland, we will be happy to have you worship with us in the house of God. As you have been thrilled by the majestic wonders of God's creation, may you also be blessed and lifted up in your worship with us.

As Christ came not to be ministered unto but to minister, so the desire of the First Assembly and its pastor is to serve and assist you in spiritual matters, trusting you will find this a church home while away from home. Your best compliment to us when you return home again, is to be able to say, "We felt the Spirit of God There"

Please plan to visit First Assembly of God again soon

All Souls Began After Guest Visit

In the spring of 1890, the Rev. Mr. Samuel A. Eliot, afterwards president of the American Unitarian Association, came to Colorado Springs to preach in the First Congregational Church in exchange with its minister His visit inspired a group of religious liberals to organize what is now All Souls Unitarian Church.

Organization was completed in February, 1891, and the Rev Mr. W. R. G. Mellen became the first minister. He laid the cornerstone of the present church building on July 2, 1892.

From its very beginning, even before the cornerstone was laid the church has been actively interested in everything pertaining to the welfare and progress of the community In the winter of 1891, Charles W Eliot president of Harvard University for many years, and Julia Ward Howe delivered two lectures given under the auspices of All Souls Church, the proceeds of which were given to the public library, then struggling to keep its doors open.

In 1897, four women of Colorado Springs, three of them associated with All Souls Unitarian Church, became interested in establishing a day nursery. They had been struck by the plight of a mother who had to work outside her home and had no place to leave her baby. At a meeting at the church, a large number of people drew up a constitution which resulted in the organization of the present Colorado Springs Day Nursery.

These early incidents set a pattern to which the church has adhered One of the All Souls members was responsible for the organization of the Humane Society Others have served our city county and school district in almost every manner and office conceivable.

The late Dr Hurley Begun, for many years minister here, was a member of the Colorado Springs Board of Education from 1943 to 1955, serving as president of the board for four years He was also president of the Colorado Springs Vocational Guidance Service board, member of the Colorado Springs Charter Association for Good Government, and active in the fields of labor relations and social welfare

At present organizations of the church include the Woman's Alliance a church school with part-time paid director and enrollment of 75, the Adult Discussion Group, the Sunday Night Discussion Group, and the Liberal Religious Youth organization. The Board of Trustees consists of nine members with Otto Gaeke as president. Church membership totals more than 160

The two discussion groups, to which the public is invited, carry on the Unitarian tradition of concern with civic and cultural life of our state and nation. The Adult Discussion Group has recently completed a series of lectures on international relations.

The basic principle of Unitarianism is individual freedom of belief. The late Rev. Mr. Hurley Begun wrote that Unitarianism "has come to mean primarily loyalty to the principles and practice of freedom in religion," adding that Unitarians soon learned that "if we claim freedom for ourselves, we must grant it to others. This is the only condition for mutual tolerance It is based ultimately on the conviction. . .that if thought be free, error will finally be discovered."

Altho the church has no creed, Unitarian Universalist Association members have agreed on the following purposes: To strengthen one another in a free and disciplined search for truth as the foundation of our religious fellowship; to cherish and spread the universal truths taught by the great prophets and teachers of humanity in every age and tradition, immemorially summarized in the Judeo-Christian heritage as love to God and love to man; To affirm, defend and promote the supreme worth of every human personality, the dignity of man, and the use of the democratic method in human relationships; To implement our vision of one world by striving for a world community founded on the ideals of brotherhood, justice and peace

Holy Family Church Plans on Future Building

Holy Family Catholic Parish was erected by the Most Rev. Mr. Urban J Vehr, D D, archbishop of Denver, August 29, 1957, and at that time, it included 270 families among a total of 9000 residents The Rev Mr. Joseph J. Leberer was named founding pastor

Immediately after his appointment, Father Leberer made arrangements to offer Mass temporarily at the Remple Memorial Chapel at the southern limits of Colorado Springs Ground-breaking rites were held on Dec 1, 1957, the Rt Rev Msgr. William J Kipp, pastor of St Mary's Church, officiating

Dedication ceremonies were held for the temporary church by Archbishop Urban J Vehr, D.D. one year to the day of the ground breaking The building was designed for use as a gymnasium for the parish school which is the next building on the over-all plans for parish development A permanent church will be the final stage of these plans.

The present building, located at 331 Main St., built of brick and concrete block with steel truss arches and with a poured concrete floor, cost about $50,000. Its dimensions are 50 by 120 feet. The architect was Gordon Sweet of Colorado Springs and the contractor was Leonard C. Kraushaar of the Colorado Steel Building, Inc., Colorado Springs.

The pews were made by the Hallack and Howard Lumber Co., Denver, and all the furnishings of the sanctuary were made by the men of the parish under the direction of Donald Sauve.

Today Holy Family Parish has 520 families numbering about 3000 persons. There are nine parish societies including Altar and Sanctuary Circles, Catholic Daughters of America, Knights of Columbus, Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Legion of Mary and C.Y.O. with national affiliations.

Over eight hundred children from the first thru twelfth grades attend weekly religion classes held in the church, parish hall, private homes and rented classrooms. These classes are taught by the Sisters from Our Lady of Victoryknoll, Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth and the members of the parish of the Confraternity of Christian Dictrine.

The next building project is a classroom building for a parish school for which about one tenth of the money is on hand. It is hoped that within two or three years this dream of both people and pastor of Holy Family Parish will be realized.

Fountain Baptist Began With Five Members

The First Baptist Church of Fountain was constituted in 1870, with five members, three men and two women. Meetings were held in the homes and in the Friends meeting House. The first building was erected near the Santa Fe Depot An explosion destroyed it, and it was rebuilt, then later removed to its present location, where it was remodeled and enlarged.

The home adjacent to the Church was purchased as a parsonage in 1958. This resident building is now being used to provide much needed Sunday School space and a fellowship hall. This building which is known as the "Fellowship House" has become the center of many fellowship meetings as well as quarters for the Children's Departments of the Sunday School.

The church celebrated its 90th anniversary Oct 9, 1960, with an all day program and a fellowship dinner at noon.

The history of the church has never been spectacular. However, firm and wise leadership have kept it true to the "Lord's Great Commission"

Thus, good pastors and strong Christian laymen have guided it thru many good years Altho there were years of adversity, the spirit of evangelism was never lost.

The following poem, written by the former pastor, the Rev Mr C. W. McAninch, on the church's 90th anniversary is a description of the Fountain church

THE BAPTIST CHURCH OF FOUNTAIN

It's just a little village church
A church so plain and white
It has no pillars great and strong
To catch the tourist's sight.
To charm the way — farers ears,
It's just a blessed little church
That's stood there ninety years
It's just a little village church
Not noted much by men.
But when it comes to praying folks,
They must rate God's top ten.
There's not much time for fancy looks,
Nor preaching man's desires
But teaching folks the Book of Books
Is all that God requires.
The boys and girls are welcome there,
And all the babies too.
(To hear a baby cry in church
Is God's sweet music too.)
The young folks in the choir loft
In accent clear and strong,
Give out the precious word of God,
In favorite hymns and song.
Great men have stood behind the desk,
And preached thruout the years.
Great men have preached the word of God,
And brought repentent tears.
God's men have raised His banner high,
Tall — like the mighty Mountain,
And may this spirit never die
In the Baptist Church of Fountain!

HAPPY ENDING

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Eudora Bates, Southern Bell business office supervisor, found herself in a predicament when all five members of her staff called in, one after another, to report that they were ill and couldn't come to work.

But it turned out that no mass malady had struck after all. At 8 a.m. they all arrived, bringing a cake and singing "Happy Birthday, Eudora."

First Assembly Of God Church Offers Profile

The First Assembly of God Church offers the following profile.

"It's friendly. You will enjoy the hearty welcome, friendly atmosphere and sincere interest shown in you.

"It's fundamental. We proclaim the whole Gospel of Christ and provide a preaching ministry to meet your personal needs.

"It's missionary. We maintain an expanding program of our own world missions and regularly contribute to others.

"It's growing. Evangelistic in doctrine and practice, we are enjoying a constant increase in all departments.

"It's educational. We are fully staffed with qualified teachers and our Sunday School is graded with a class for every age.

"It's busy. There is a definite place for YOU in our church program. Sunday School, Youth Groups, Men's Fellowship, Women's Missionary Council.

"Our" church appeals to every member of the family.

"If you are looking for a church home, we can help you.

"If you are looking for church work, you can help us."

"The Peak of Pentecostal Fellowship"

FIRST ASSSEMBLY OF GOD

Pikes Peak at Walnut Pastor, George E. Smith

Dear Visitor:

While you are enjoying the scenic wonders in the heart of America's vacationland, we will be happy to have you worship with us in the house of God. As you have been thrilled by the majestic wonders of God's creation, may you also be blessed and lifted up in your worship with us.

As Christ came not to be ministered unto but to minister, so the desire of the First Assembly and its pastor is to serve and assist you in spiritual matters, trusting you will find this a church home while away from home. Your best compliment to us when you return home again, is to be able to say, "We felt the Spirit of God There."

Please plan to visit First Assembly of God again soon.

George E. Smith

All Souls Began After Guest Visit

In the spring of 1890, the Rev. Mr. Samuel A. Eliot, afterwards president of the American Unitarian Association, came to Colorado Springs to preach in the First Congregational Church in exchange with its minister. His visit inspired a group of religious liberals to organize what is now All Souls Unitarian Church.

Organization was completed in February, 1891, and the Rev. Mr. W. R. G. Mellen became the first minister. He laid the cornerstone of the present church building on July 2, 1892.

From its very beginning, even before the cornerstone was laid, the church has been actively interested in everything pertaining to the welfare and progress of the community. In the winter of 1891, Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard University for many years, and Julia Ward Howe delivered two lectures given under the auspices of All Souls Church, the proceeds of which were given to the public library, then struggling to keep its doors open.

In 1897, four women of Colorado Springs, three of them associated with All Souls Unitarian Church, became interested in establishing a day nursery. They had been struck by the plight of a mother who had to work outside her home and had no place to leave her baby. At a meeting at the church, a large number of people drew up a constitution which resulted in the organization of the present Colorado Springs Day Nursery.

These early incidents set a pattern to which the church has adhered. One of the All Souls members was responsible for the organization of the Humane Society. Others have served our city, county and school district in almost every manner and office conceivable.

The late Dr. Hurley Begun, for many years minister here, was a member of the Colorado Springs Board of Education from 1943 to 1955, serving as president of the board for four years. He was also president of the Colorado Springs Vocational Guidance Service board, member of the Colorado Springs Charter Association for Good Government, and active in the fields of labor relations and social welfare.

At present, organizations of the church include the Woman's Alliance, a church school with part-time, paid director and enrollment of 75, the Adult Discussion Group, the Sunday Night Discussion Group, and the Liberal Religious Youth organization. The Board of Trustees consists of nine members with Otto Gaeke as president. Church membership totals more than 160.

The two discussion groups, to which the public is invited, carry on the Unitarian tradition of concern with civic and cultural life of our state and nation. The Adult Discussion Group has recently completed a series of lectures on international relations.

The basic principle of Unitarianism is individual freedom of belief. The late Rev. Mr. Hurley Begun wrote that Unitarianism "has come to mean primarily loyalty to the principles and practice of freedom in religion," adding that Unitarians soon learned that "if we claim freedom for ourselves, we must grant it to others. This is the only condition for mutual tolerance. It is based ultimately on the conviction. . .that if thought be free, error will finally be discovered."

Altho the church has no creed, Unitarian Universalist Association members have agreed on the following purposes: To strengthen one another in a free and disciplined search for truth as the foundation of our religious fellowship; to cherish and spread the universal truths taught by the great prophets and teachers of humanity in every age and tradition, immemorially summarized in the Judeo-Christian heritage as love to God and love to man; To affirm, defend and promote the supreme worth of every human personality, the dignity of man, and the use of the democratic method in human relationships; To implement our vision of one world by striving for a world community founded on the ideals of brotherhood, justice and peace.

Holy Family Church Plans on Future Building

Holy Family Catholic Parish was erected by the Most Rev. Mr. Urban J. Vehr, D.D., archbishop of Denver, August 29, 1957, and at that time, it included 270 families among a total of 9000 residents. The Rev. Mr. Joseph J. Leberer was named founding pastor.

Immediately after his appointment, Father Leberer made arrangements to offer Mass temporarily at the Remple Memorial Chapel at the southern limits of Colorado Springs. Ground-breaking rites were held on Dec. 1, 1957, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William J. Kipp, pastor of St. Mary's Church, officiating.

Dedication ceremonies were held for the temporary church by Archbishop Urban J. Vehr, D.D. one year to the day of the ground breaking. The building was designed for use as a gymnasium for the parish school which is the next building on the over-all plans for parish development. A permanent church will be the final stage of these plans.

The present building, located at 331 Main St., built of brick and concrete block with steel truss arches and with a poured concrete floor, cost about $50,000. Its dimensions are 50 by 120 feet. The architect was Gordon Sweet of Colorado Springs and the contractor was Leonard C. Kraushaar of the Colorado Steel Building, Inc., Colorado Springs.

The pews were made by the Hallack and Howard Lumber Co., Denver, and all the furnishings of the sanctuary were made by the men of the parish under the direction of Donald Sauve.

Today Holy Family Parish has 520 families numbering about 3000 persons. There are nine parish societies including Altar and Sanctuary Circles, Catholic Daughters of America, Knights of Columbus, Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Legion of Mary and C.Y.O. with national affiliations.

Over eight hundred children from the first thru twelfth grades attend weekly religion classes held in the church, parish hall, private homes and rented classrooms. These classes are taught by the Sisters from Our Lady of Victoryknoll, Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth and the members of the parish of the Confraternity of Christian Dictrine.

The next building project is a classroom building for a parish school for which about one tenth of the money is on hand. It is hoped that within two or three years this dream of both people and pastor of Holy Family Parish will be realized.

WARSAW — Poland's new transport minister has come up from telegrapher and station master.

Fountain Baptist Began With Five Members

The First Baptist Church of Fountain was constituted in 1870, with five members, three men and two women. Meetings were held in the homes and in the Friends meeting House. The first building was erected near the Santa Fe Depot. An explosion destroyed it, and it was rebuilt, then later removed to its present location, where it was remodeled and enlarged.

The home adjacent to the Church was purchased as a parsonage in 1958. This resident building is now being used to provide much needed Sunday School space and a fellowship hall. This building which is known as the "Fellowship House" has become the center of many fellowship meetings as well as quarters for the Children's Departments of the Sunday School.

The church celebrated its 90th anniversary Oct. 9, 1960, with an all day program and a fellowship dinner at noon.

The history of the church has never been spectacular. However, firm and wise leadership have kept it true to the "Lord's Great Commission."

PENTECOSTAL CHURCH OF GOD — This building, formerly the old detention home, was bought by the Pentecostal Church of God in 1945. It is one of the oldest structures in Colorado Springs, being built by Winfield Scott Stratton in 1874. The picture shows part of the original building. In 1959, additions were made to the structure and some remodeling was accomplished. The Pentecostal Church of God is located on the corner of Cascade Avenue and Costilla Street.

Pentacostal Church Was Begun by Carson Soldier

The United Pentacostal Church was first called to service in Colorado Springs in November 1952 when the Rev. Mr. Robert Burns, then a soldier at Fort Carson, assembled a few people in the basement of the library building on South Tejon Street for prayer and worship.

After a few weeks, this group obtained a building at St. Vrain and Mazeland Road where services were held for some time. The Rev. Mr. Burns continued to hold this group together until his discharge in the spring of 1954 when Wilbur Mouser, also a soldier at Fort Carson, took the leadership of the services. He was only here a few months before leaving in that summer.

At this time, the Rev. Mr. M. D. Owens from Louisana took the church and rented the Slovonic Hall on West Robinson Street for services. He pastored the church until October 1957 at which time the Rev. Mr. W. E. Scott from Indiana became the pastor. He resigned the church in October 1958 and the present pastor, the Rev. Mr. Garvin Tidrick, moved to Colorado Springs from Texas.

In January 1960, the St. Paul's Methodist Church building was purchased and the church moved to its present location, 2500 Busch Street, and with the congregation contributing the labor, the building was remodeled and placed over a full basement.

The first service in this building was held December 3, 1961 and a good solid growth has been enjoyed since. Our present Sunday School is averaging in the sixties.

This church is affiliated with the international organization of The United Pentacostal Church with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo. The doctrine of the church is as follows: "We believe the Bible to be inspired of God; the infallible Word of God (2 Tim. 3:16). The Bible is the only God Given authority which man possesses; therefore, all doctrine, faith, hope, and all instruction for the church must be based upon, and harmonize with, the Bible.

We believe in the one everliving, eternal God: infinite in power, Holy in nature, attributes and purpose; and possessing absolute, indivisible deity. The one true God has revealed Himself as Father through His Son, in redemption; and as the Holy Spirit, be emanation. (1 Cor. 8:6, Eph. 4:6, 2 Cor. 5:19, Joel 2:28).

This one God manifested Himself in the Old Testament in divers ways; in the Son while He walked among men, as the Holy Spirit after the ascension.

"The Jehovah of the Old Testament, took upon Himself the form of man, and as the Son of man, was born of the virgin Mary.

"We believe that in Him (Jesus) dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily (Col. 2:9, Col. 1:19; Therefore, Jesus in His humanity was and is man; in His deity was and is God. His flesh was the lamb, or the sacrifice of God. He is the only mediator betwen God and man (1 Tim. 2:5).

"Jesus on His father's side was divine, on His mother's side, human. Thus, He was was known as the Son of God and also the son of man, or the God-man.

"We believe in the beginning God created man innocent, pure and holy, but through the sin of disobedience, Adam and Eve, the first of the human race, fell from their holy state, and God banished them from Eden. Hence my one man's disobedience, sin entered into the world. (Gen. 1:27; Rom. 3:23; Rom. 5:12). We are cleansed and made righteous by the death of one, Christ Jesus, and faith in His Blood. (Rom. 3:25).

"We believe in pardon and forgiveness of sins by genuine repentance, a confessing and forsaking of sins. After a full repentance of our sins, we are baptised (immersed) in water in the Name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins. (Acts 2:38). This brings the promise of the Holy Ghost according to Acts 2:38-39, as received by the Apostles on the day of Pentecost, with the initial evidence of speaking in tongues Acts 2:4 10:46; Thus completing the new birth of John 3:1-8.

"After the completion of the new birth we believe Godly living should characterize the life of every child of the Lord and we should live according to the pattern and example given in the Word of God (Titus 2:11-12, 1 Pet. 2:21-23; 1 Pet. 1:5-19).

"We understand the scripture to teach the restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began (Acts 3:21).

"We believe in partaking of the sacrament or communion and foot-washing as instituted by the Lord on the night of His betrayal.

"We believe in seeking God for the healing of our physical needs as well as our spiritual needs. We believe tithing is God's financial plan to provide for His work, and has ben since the days of Abraham. Tithing came with faith under Abraham; Moses' law enjoined it and Jesus indorsed it.

"Moreover, we believe that the distress upon the earth is the beginning of sorrows and will become more intense until there shall be a time of trouble as there never has been since there was a nation and that period of tribulation will be followed by the dawn of a better day on earth and that for a thousand years there shall be peace on earth.

"When the thousand years are finished, there shall be a resurrection of all the dead, who will be summoned before the great white throne for their final judgement and all whose names are not found written in the Book of Life shall be cast into the Lake of fire, burning with brimstone which God hath prepared for the Devil and his angels, Satan himself being cast in first."

WRINKLE-FREE

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) — A rumpled dress or baggy trousers can spoil the first impression in an interview, according to Anette Tatelman, employment agent in the nation's capital.

She told the National Institute of Drycleaning here that a personnel man interviewing a sloppy, unkempt job applicant is immediately put on his guard. The first thing he sees is that the applicant is inattentative to detail and careless.

Bible Baptist Originated From Mission Church

The Bible Baptist Church 675 S. Eighth St., was started as a Mission Church from the Calvary Baptist Church of Ft. Collins, with the first service Jan. 5, 1952.

For the first 18 months they met in the Isaak Walton Hall 400 S. Cascade Ave. In July of 1953 they moved into the present location on South Eighth Street which has been rebuilt twice since then.

The Rev. Mr. Glen Smith has been the pastor from its inception. Before coming here he was the pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Ft. Collins for eight years.

The church is in fellowship with the American Council of Christian Churches also the International Council of Christian Churches. They cooperate with the Independent Bible Baptist Missions in the support and placements of missionaries. During the past three years they have paid for the construction of a building at Recife Brazil and are now building a church in Tempaln, Mexico.

The active membership at present is 375 — Bible Baptist is an evangelical, independent, fundamental, premillenial church holding the doctrines of the original Baptist Churches of America.

Church in the Wildwood Marks 75th Year in '64

This year marks the 75th anniversary of the Church in the Wildwood at Green Mountain Falls, a congregation of the United Church of Christ.

On July 17, 1889, the Congregational Society of Green Mountain Falls held a meeting to elect a Board of Trustees, who were John Potter, F. E. Dew, William G. Ribbock and H. H. Hall. The Board officially adopted the corporate name of "The Congregational Church of Christ In Green Mountain Falls."

A lot was purchased Sept. 1, 1889, from the Green Mountain Falls Town and Improvement Company as a site for the church. A trust deed was issued to B. F. Crowell on Sept. 26, 1889, for $1,000 in order to have money to begin the construction of the church. The church was finished in 1893.

The Church in the Wildwood's first minister was the Rev. Mr. Pembrook. The church parsonge was the present Outlook Hotel.

The church was parimarily used by summer visitors in the Green Mountain Falls vacation area until the early 1950's. Sunday School was held in the homes of church members during winter months, and a minister for special occasions was supplied by the state Congregational Missionary Society.

The church, on March 20, 1921, was made a Community Church sponsored by the Congregational Church Dr. Hopkins of Manitou Springs helped with the reorganization.

Aug. 13, 1939, marked the church's first 50 years and a bell was hung in the bell tower to commemorate the date.

In 1940, the annex was built, and the church began to show real growth during World War II, in 1943, particularly.

The first minister assigned during the winter months to the church was the Rev. Mr. Robert Reitinger, who was ordained there Dec. 5, 1949.

The Rev. Mr. Melvin Dorsett was minister for 10 months from April 17, 1955.

The church's first full-time minister the Rev. Mr. Conard Pyle, came in September, 1955. A small parsonage was purchased for the new minister and his wife, Wini. In 1960, a new parsonage was purchased in Chipita Park. At that time, a second floor was added to the church annex.

"The little white house" adjoining the church was purchased in 1963 for a nursery and kindergarten classes.

The membership of the Church in the Wildwood voted on Jan. 7, 1963, to become a congregation of the United Church of Christ.

The Rev. Mr. Pyle and his family are now on a four-month leave of absence in New York City where he is studying at Union Seminary. During his absence, the Rev. Mr. Jeffrey Hoy, president of the Colorado Council of Churches is the guest minister.

The Rev. Mr. Hoy and his wife, Loma, occupy the parsonage Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday each week.

The church's 75th anniversary celebration is under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Quinn.

The Church in the Wildwood "recognized the Bible as the sufficient rule of faith and practice and holds that living in accordance with the teachings of Jesus Christ is the true test of fellowship. Each member shall have the undisturbed right to interpret and follow the word of God according to the dictates of his own conscience with the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit."

Church of Christ Dates Back To Around 1900

The Church of Christ meeting at 950 E. Cimarron, dates back to around 1900. It is the original church of Christ in this city.

The first meeting took place in a small building in the 400 block on South Tejon Street. In 1906 John Beswick deeded the lot at our present location to the church and the building on South Tejon Street was moved on the lot. In 1915, the present building was erected.

Following is the basic tenet of the faith: "We believe the New Testament is the last revelation from God to man, and that it was sealed with the blood of Christ (Heb. 9th chapter), that the laws of the Old Testament were fulfilled in Christ (Rom. 10:4; Matt. 5:17; Gal. 3:24; Col. 2:14; Heb. 11:14; 8:7-13). The Old Testament gives us the history of God's dealings with man the first 4,000 years of his existence, and has been preserved for our learning (Rom. 15:4).

We believe the New Testament contains everything that God wants us to do in the Christian life (2 Pet. 1:3), that we dare not add nor subtract therefrom (Rev. 22:18,19; Gal. 1:6-9). We believe a sinner MUST believe in Christ (Jno. 8:24), repent (LK. 13:3,5), confess Christ to be the Son of God (Rom. 10:9,10), be baptized by immersion (Rom. 6:3,4; Col. 2:12) for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38; Mk. 16:16; Acts 22:16).

We believe Christians should follow the apostle's doctrine (Acts 2:42), which is found in the epistles from Romans to Jude. We observe the Lord's Supper each Lord's Day (First day of the week, Acts 20:7), finance the church by free will offerings ONLY (1 Cor. 16:1,2; 2 Cor. 8:12; 9:6,7) which are collected ONLY on the first day of the week, no special collections at any time.

We have vocal music ONLY (Eph. 5:19; Col. 3:16; Heb. 2:12). We have "mutual edification" by local talent (Rom. 14:19; 15:14; Eph. 4:16; 1 Thess. 5:11). We believe that evangelists are to be paid for their services (1 Cor. 9:9 - 14), but not to serve one local church as its pastor, but to go wherever needed to spread the gospel and strengthen the churches and organize new congregations (2 Tim. 4:1-4; Titus 1:5). The church is local in its government, with two or more elders (Acts 14: 23; Titus 1:5), to feed (teach) the flock (congregation) (Acts 20:29; 1 Pet. 5:1-3). We believe we should respect the silence of the Bible, that is, :"do just what it commands, no more, no less, and in order to receive eternal life, one must obey the commands (Rev. 22:14), and be faithful until death (Rev. 2:10)."

Immanuel Lutheran Church Held Services in 1888

The history of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, 846 E. Pikes Peak Ave., dates back to 1888 when services were first held in Colorado Springs. However, the congregation did not formally organize until 1902. Immanuel's first pastor was the Rev. Mr. O. Luessenhop who organized the building of the first church at the corner of Wahsatch Avenue and Boulder Street.

In 1942 the present pastor, Walter A. Enge, was called to Immanuel. Under his direction a new church was built in 1949 on the site now occupied by the present church. In 1962 the present church was dedicated to the glory of God.

While supporting a strong Sunday School program, the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod feels that this is not totally adequate. The spiritual, intellectual and physical training of a child should be integrated in order to train the whole child. For this purpose Immanuel Lutheran Church owns and operates an elementary and Jr. High School.

Thru this agency the church is able to give instruction in God's Word along with the study of God's World.

Immanuel Lutheran School was organized in 1951 with one classroom in the church basement. In 1954 a 6-room elementary school and gym was built near the church. In 1962 the school's program was enlarged with the addition of a Jr. High Department. The Jr. High classrooms were built in the basement under the new church. There are presently, four Jr. High classrooms plus a science laboratory and a library. This expansion program was directed by the present principal, Mr. John Bunge.

Immanuel Lutheran School presently has a staff of nine full-time teachers plus five part-time teachers. It has an enrollment of 300 students.

Immanuel Lutheran Church is a member of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod which presently has over 2½ million members in the United States and Canada. It is the church of "The Lutheran Hour" and the "This is the Life" television program.

Immanuel has an adult membership of 1100 and 1650 baptized members. A new church and Jr. High School was built in 1962 at a cost of about $275,000. The nave of the church seats 500 persons and the balcony 100 persons. There is additional seating space for 75 people in the Chapel for the Deaf. Bible classes for the deaf are held every Wednesday by Pastor Wm. Lange of Denver.

The Rev. Mr. Walter A. Enge and the Rev. Mr. Robert W. Clark are the pastors of Immanuel. Robert Bendick is vicar of the congregation and John Bunge is principal of the school.

Lutherans believe:

Almighty God, Maker of heaven and earth has redeemed the world through the all sufficient sacrifice of His Son, Jesus.

God the Holy Spirit freely brings to men the assurance of forgiveness of sins in Christ by means of the divinely inspired Word of God and the divinely instituted sacraments of Baptism and Holy Communion.

Faith in Christ, the Savior, is created in human hearts by the operation of God's Holy Spirit through the Gospel.

We accept the solemn obligations of proclaiming this Gospel to those who do not know Christ as their Savior and of educating and training our youth in the responsibilities of citizenship in Christ's Kingdom.

We serve God as citizens of His kingdom by serving our fellowmen in Christian love; and Christian faith and love compel us to minister to the needs of the poor, the sick, the broken in heart and the oppressed.

We recognize no authority greater than that of God and His Word and we owe obedience to no power which would cause us to violate the commandments of God.

Human government is part of the divinely established order, and we are pledged to uphold and defend just laws and beneficent institutions for the welfare of our country and of the world.

The advent of the atomic age has not shortened the hand of God nor removed Christ from His throne as Ruler of the world and Head of His Church.

There is a Heavenly City prepared by God for those that love the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ Who will return in glory on the last day to judge the world in righteousness.

In the midst of insecurity and amid the false hopes of this present time the living Christ is the sure Hope of all such as believe and trust in Him.

Church Is Now Ten Times Its Original Size

The Faith United Presbyterian Church is ten times the size it was when it was officially organized by the Presbytery of Pueblo on Nov. 6, 1955.

The congregation, which first worshipped in a private home, and later in the church's manse, now worships in the sanctuary located at the intersection of Palmer Park Boulevard and North Circle Drive.

The church's first pastor was the Rev. J. Lars Hamerson who served until 1961. The present pastor is the Rev. Wayne Benson.

Faith United Presbyterian church is a part of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. which stands in the Reformed Tradition as it was led by John Calvin in the 16th century. The belief of the church is stated in the Westminster Confession of Faith, which emphasizes the sovereignity of God, the saving act and Lordship of Jesus Christ and the sole dependability of the Bible as a guide for faith and practice.

Church in the Wildwood Marks 75th Year in '64

This year marks the 75th anniversary of the Church in the Wildwood at Green Mountain Falls, a congregation of the United Church of Christ.

On July 17, 1889, the Congretional Society of Green Mountain Falls held a meeting to elect a Board of Trustees, who were John Potter, F. E. Dow, William G. Ribbock and H. H. Hall. The Board officially adopted the corporate name of "The Congregational Church of Christ In Green Mountain Falls."

A lot was purchased Sept. 1, 1889, from the Green Mountain Falls Town and Improvement Company as a site for the church. A trust deed was issued to B. F. Crowell on Sept. 26, 1889, for $1,000 in order to have money to begin the construction of the church. The church was finished in 1893.

The Church in the Wildwood's first minister was the Rev. Mr. Pembrook. The church parsonge was the present Outlook Hotel.

The church was parimarily used by summer visitors in the Green Mountain Falls vacation area until the early 1950's. Sunday School was held in the homes of church members during winter months, and a minister for special occasions was supplied by the state Congregational Missionary Society.

The church, on March 20, 1921, was made a Community Church sponsored by the Congregational Church. Dr. Hopkins of Manitou Springs helped with the reorganization.

Aug. 13, 1939, marked the church's first 50 years and a bell was hung in the bell tower to commemorate the date.

In 1940, the annex was built, and the church began to show real growth during World War II, in 1943, particularly.

The first minister assigned during the winter months to the church was the Rev. Mr. Robert Reitinger, who was ordained there Dec. 5, 1949.

The Rev. Mr. Melvin Dorsett was minister for 10 months from April 17, 1955.

The church's first full-time minister, the Rev. Mr. Conard Pyle, came in September, 1955. A small parsonage was purchased for the new minister and his wife, Wini. In 1960, a new parsonage was purchased in Chipita Park. At that time, a second floor was added to the church annex.

Baha'i Faith Teaches Oneness of Religion

The Baha'i Faith is a Universal Religion which teaches the oneness of mankind and the fundamental oneness of religion, and has just brought to a close a Ten Year World Crusade culminating in the election of the supreme administrative body of the Baha'i world, the Universal House of Justice, and in a World Congress held in London, England, April 28-May 3, 1963.

Little publicized, but fast spreading out to the farthermost post of the globe, the Baha'i Faith in the last 100 years has spread from the land of its birth, Persia (now Iran) to 259 countries, and its writings have been translated into 310 languages. Its followers are men and women from widely diversified cultures, races and nations, living from one end of the globe to the other.

The story really begins in far-off Persia in the year 1844, when a new messiah was announced to a bewildered and unbelieving world. His name was Baha'u'llah — meaning "The Glory of God."

Baha'u'llah's life was like those of earlier prophets in many ways. Not only did he suffer long persecution, which seemed to stimulate his spirit, but his coming was heralded by a precursor, who has been compared with John the Baptist.

The forerunner of the Prophet was a direct descendant of Muhammad and called himself the Bab (The Gate). At the age of 25, in 1844, he suddenly felt a divine command upon him. He spread the news, and 18 disciples who had joined him were sent by him to different parts of Persia and Turkistan to proclaim the imminent appearance of the new messiah. The Bab himself went to Mecca, where he proclaimed the new Faith to the Muhammadan leaders, who rejected the Bab's authority, symbolizing the turning of Islam's back on the new religion.

As the years went on, the alarm and hatred in the hearts of the Orthodox and of Government officials caused more and more ruthless suppression of the Bab and his disciples. Houses of the Bab's many believers were pillaged and destroyed. Women were seized and carried off, and thousands of believers were put to death. Many were beheaded, hanged, blown from the mouths of cannons, burned or chopped to pieces. And yet, the response to the Bab's teachings increased.

Finally, on July 9, 1850, the Bab himself, then 31, fell a victim to the fanatical fury of his persecutors. At the time of this martyrdom, Mirza Husayn Ali was well known as one of the most fearless exponents of the new Faith. He came of a wealthy and distinguished family in the capital city of Teheran, and he possessed an almost unbelievable power of attraction, which was felt by all who knew him. His face had a look of profound wisdom, and even at the age of 13, he had often been known to discuss intricate religious questions in large gatherings in such a way as to hold his listeners in awed silence.

After suffering a severe imprisonment in a dungeon because of his unorthodox convictions, and once the torture of the bastinado (caning on the soles of the feet), Mirza Husayn Ali had a dream in which a voice told him he was to be the great prophet announced by the Bab and thru whom the Holy Spirit would be made manifest on earth.

He assumed the title of Baha'u'llah (Glory of God) and began to teach all who came to Him about the new Faith. After being exiled to Mesopotamia by the Shah, he spent two years in lonely meditation in the wilderness. Later He was exiled to Turkey, and from there to Akka in the Holy Land, thus fulfilling in 1868, believe his followers, a prophecy made in both the Old and New Testaments. (Micah 7 11-16)

During all this time Baha'u'llah wrote and taught with astounding wisdom and with a factual knowledge far beyond his apparent education, and which his disciples attributed to his being the direct mouthpiece of God. His understanding of things in the western world, totally alien to his surroundings, was amazing, and he wrote a series of letters to the principal crowned heads of Europe, the Pope, the Shah of Persia and the President of the United States, announcing his divine mission and calling on them to help establish true religion, just government and international peace.

After he died in 1892 at the age of 75, his son and successor, 'Abdu'L-Baha' (Servant of Baha) became by his will the interpreter and exemplar of the Faith. In his will, 'Abdu'-Baha' appointed his eldest grandson, the late Shoghi Effendi Rabbani, first Guardian of the Baha'i Faith, a capacity in which he served for 36 years.

Chicago, centrally situated and from which the Columbian exposition in 1893 launched the new Faith in the new world, was logically chosen as the site of the first American Baha'i House of Worship at Wilmette, Illinois, near the shore of Lake Michigan, stands the beautiful Baha'i House of Worship, and properly designated the "Mashriqu'l-Adhkar" ("Dawning Point of Praises to God"). The first of its kind in the western hemisphere, it was dedicated on May 2, 1953 and today is valued at close to 5 million dollars. Built by contributions from Baha'is all over the world, it opens its doors to all peoples, and is dedicated to the "Three fundamental verities animating and underlying the Baha'i' Faith — the Unity of God, the Unity of His Prophets, and the Unity of Mankind."

There is no classical term of architecture to describe the House of Worship. It is unique among structures, altho in it one may recognize characteristics of widely separated lands and civilizations. In the delicate tracery of its ornamental exterior, viewed as a whole and not closely analyzed, and in certain of its arches, the oriental influence may be observed. In the outline of the great windows of its gallery is a suggestion of the Gothic. Students of architecture have identified in the design touches of Egyptian, Greek, Romanesque, Arabic Gothic, Renaissance and Modern.

The House of Worship was designed by Architect Louis Bourgeois, who spent 20 years on plans for the building. He died at Wilmette on August 19, 1930, at the age of 74, without having seen the building rise above its foundations. John J. Earley, an architectural sculptor at Washington, D. C., executed the method to carry out the designs, by pouring a mixture of white cement and ground quartz into molds. Hardening around a core of reinforcing steel, each casting was cured and then polished by hand. Some of these decorative units were as long as 25 feet. They emerged with more delicate lines than carved stone and are stronger than any natural stone except the hardest types of granite. Other Houses of Worship are located in Sidney, Australia; Kampala, Africa; and Frankfurt, Germany, and Baha'is plan eventually to construct a House of Worship in every city, to symbolize their conception of the universality of true faith.

The essence of Baha'u'llah's teachings, all so universal in scope, were summarized in a number of basic principles by His son 'Abdu'l-Baha' when he spoke before western audiences in 1912. These seemed beyond any practical possibility of realization, yet have ever since in their various ways, come nearer and nearer to the grasp of people everywhere. These principles are: Unfettered search for truth, world concord as the fruit of world religion, abolition of prejudices and superstitions, harmonious cooperation of science and religion, equality of men and women, universal compulsory education, elimination of extremes of poverty and wealth, an auxiliary universal language, an intenational tribunal, institutions of world federation, reduction of armaments and lasting world peace.

The teachings of Baha'u'llah are the source of spiritual education for humanity in its present stage of development, and expression of the law of evolution, which in this age is destined to establish cooperation, amity and justice when the world has learned the full bitterness of servitude to the principles of competition and struggle dominating the past.

The first and basic teaching is man's dependence on God from those qualities and virtues which confer immortality upon the individual and establish the very foundation of the existence of society.

As part of the teaching work around the world, Bah'is are establishing schools and in the United States. There are eight such schools which have summer sessions, one of which was previously located in Pine Valley on property given to the Baha'i Faith by Mrs. Loulie Matthews, a former resident of Colorado Springs. This property was included in land purchased for the U. S. Air Force Academy.

The Administrative Center for the United States is located in Wilmette, Ill., near the House of Worship, and the World Administrative and Spiritual Center is in Haifa, Israel, and its properties extend up the slope of Mount Carmel. There is no paid clergy in the Baha'i Faith, therefore all Bah'is are working around the world to establish unity and peace among all peoples by putting these spiritual principles to work. The administrative structure, as designed by Baha'u'llah, provides for election of local, national and international governing bodies, two of which are located in the Colorado Springs metropolitan area, and they direct the activities of two local Baha'i communities. Baha'i meetings include worship services, public lectures, study classes and discussion groups for inquirers.

Village Christian Seven Years Old

The Village Christian Church, Primrose and Marigold Drives, celebrated its seventh anniversary in January.

It was begun thru donations of $15,000 by the First Christian Church of Colorado Springs. The city church also donated a building site, and services of 70 of its leading members.

The Rev. Mr. C. William Bryan is minister, called in August, 1957. Membership is more than 500 persons.

The present building includes offices, classrooms, a fellowship hall also used for a sanctuary, and two Christian education annexes. Pans are underway for a new sanctuary.

The church is a member of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) which came into existence in the early 1800's.

The Disciples of Christ believe the church is, "essentially, intentionally and constitutionally one." Their plea is, "No creed but Christ, in essentials, unity; in opinions, liberty; in all things, love."

The Decathlon most grueling of track and field events, consists of the 100 meter dash, broad jump, shot put, high jump, 400 meter run, 110 meter hurdles, discus throw, pole vault, javelin throw and 1,500 meter run.

Baha'i Faith Teaches Oneness of Religion

The Baha'i Faith is a Universal Religion which teaches the oneness of mankind and the fundamental oneness of religion, and has just brought to a close a Ten Year World Crusade culminating in the election of the supreme administrative body of the Baha'i world, the Universal House of Justice, and in a World Congress held in London, England, April 28-May 3, 1963.

Little publicized, but fast spreading out to the farthermost post of the globe, the Baha'i Faith in the last 100 years has spread from the land of its birth, Persia (now Iran) to 259 countries, and its writings have been translated into 310 languages. Its followers are men and women from widely diversified cultures, races and nations, living from one end of the globe to the other.

The story really begins in far-off Persia in the year 1844, when a new messiah was announced to a bewildered and unbelieving world. His name was Baha'u'llah — meaning "The Glory of God."

Baha'u'llah's life was like those of earlier prophets in many ways. Not only did he suffer long persecution, which seemed to stimulate his spirit, but his coming was heralded by a precursor, who has been compared with John the Baptist.

The forerunner of the Prophet was a direct descendant of Muhammad and called himself the Bab (The Gate). At the age of 25, in 1844, he suddenly felt a divine command upon him. He spread the news, and 18 disciples who had joined him were sent by him to different parts of Persia and Turkistan to proclaim the imminent appearance of the new messiah. The Bab himself went to Mecca, where he proclaimed the new Faith to the Muhammadan leaders, who rejected the Bab's authority, symbolizing the turning of Islam's back on the new religion.

As the years went on, the alarm and hatred in the hearts of the Orthodox and of Government officials caused more and more ruthless suppression of the Bab and his disciples. Houses of the Bab's many believers were pillaged and destroyed. Women were seized and carried off, and thousands of believers were put to death. Many were beheaded, hanged, blown from the mouths of cannons, burned or chopped to pieces. And yet, the response to the Bab's teachings increased.

Finally, on July 9, 1850, the Bab himself, then 31, fell a victim to the fanatical fury of his persecutors. At the time of this martyrdom, Mirza Husayn Ali was well known as one of the most fearless exponents of the new Faith. He came of a wealthy and distinguished family in the capital city of Teheran, and he possessed an almost unbelievable power of attraction, which was felt by all who knew him. His face had a look of profound wisdom, and even at the age of 13, he had often been known to discuss intricate religious questions in large gatherings in such a way as to hold his listeners in awed silence.

After suffering a severe imprisonment in a dungeon because of his unorthodox convictions, and once the torture of the bastinado (caning on the soles of the feet), Mirza Husayn Ali had a dream in which a voice told him he was to be the great prophet announced by the Bab and thru whom the Holy Spirit would be made manifest on earth.

He assumed the title of Baha'u'llah (Glory of God) and began to teach all who came to Him about the new Faith. After being exiled to Mesopotamia by the Shah, he spent two years in lonely meditation in the wilderness. Later He was exiled to Turkey, and from there to Akka in the Holy Land, thus fulfilling in 1868, believe his followers, a prophecy made in both the Old and New Testaments. (Micah 7.11-16).

During all this time Baha'u'llah wrote and taught with astounding wisdom and with a factual knowledge far beyond his apparent education, and which his disciples attributed to his being the direct mouthpiece of God. His understanding of things in the western world, totally alien to his surroundings, was amazing, and he wrote a series of letters to the principal crowned heads of Europe, the Pope, the Shah of Persia and the President of the United States, announcing his divine mission and calling on them to help establish true religion, just government and international peace.

After he died in 1892 at the age of 75, his son and successor, 'Abdu'L-Baha' (Servant of Baha) became by his will the interpreter and exemplar of the Faith. In his will, 'Abdu'-Baha' appointed his eldest grandson, the late Shoghi Effendi Rabbani, first Guardian of the Baha'i Faith, a capacity in which he served for 36 years.

Chicago, centrally situated and from which the Columbian exposition in 1893 launched the new Faith in the new world, was logically chosen as the site of the first American Baha'i House of Worship, at Wilmette, Illinois, near the shore of Lake Michigan, stands the beautiful Baha'i House of Worship, and properly designated the "Mashriqu'l-Adhkar" ("Dawning Point of Praises to God"). The first of its kind in the western hemisphere, it was dedicated on May 2, 1953 and today is valued at close to 5 million dollars. Built by contributions from Baha'is all over the world, it opens its doors to all peoples, and is dedicated to the "Three fundamental verities animating and underlying the Baha'i' Faith — the Unity of God, the Unity of His Prophets, and the Unity of Mankind."

There is no classical term of architecture to describe the House of Worship. It is unique among structures, altho in it one may recognize characteristics of widely separated lands and civilizations. In the delicate tracery of its ornamental exterior, viewed as a whole and not closely analyzed, and in certain of its arches, the oriental influence may be observed. In the outline of the great windows of its gallery is a suggestion of the Gothic. Students of architecture have identified in the design touches of Egyptian, Greek, Romanesque, Arabic Gothic, Renaissance and Modern.

The House of Worship was designed by Architect Louis Bourgeois, who spent 20 years on plans for the building. He died at Wilmette on August 19, 1930, at the age of 74, without having seen the building rise above its foundations. John J. Earley, an architectural sculptor at Washington, D. C., executed the method to carry out the designs, by pouring a mixture of white cement and ground quartz into molds. Hardening around a core of reinforcing steel, each casting was cured and then polished by hand. Some of these decorative units were as long as 25 feet. They emerged with more delicate lines than carved stone and are stronger than any natural stone except the hardest types of granite. Other Houses of Worship are located in Sidney, Australia; Kampala, Africa; and Frankfurt, Germany, and Baha'is plan eventually to construct a House of Worship in every city, to symbolize their conception of the universality of true faith.

The essence of Baha'u'llah's teachings, all so universal in scope, were summarized in a number of basic principles by His son 'Abdu'l-Baha' when he spoke before western audiences in 1912. These seemed beyond any practical possibility of realization, yet have ever since in their various ways, come nearer and nearer to the grasp of people everywhere. These principles are: Unfettered search for truth, world concord as the fruit of world religion, abolition of prejudices and superstitions, harmonious cooperation of science and religion, equality of men and women, universal compulsory education, elimination of extremes of poverty and wealth, an auxiliary universal language, an intenational tribunal, institutions of world federation, reduction of armaments and lasting world peace.

The teachings of Baha'u'llah are the source of spiritual education for humanity in its present stage of development, and expression of the law of evolution, which in this age is destined to establish cooperation, amity and justice when the world has learned the full bitterness of servitude to the principles of competition and struggle dominating the past.

The first and basic teaching is man's dependence on God from those qualities and virtues which confer immortality upon the individual and establish the very foundation of the existence of society.

As part of the teaching work around the world, Bah'is are establishing schools and in the United States. There are eight such schools which have summer sessions, one of which was previously located in Pine Valley on property given to the Baha'i Faith by Mrs. Loulie Matthews, a former resident of Colorado Springs. This property was included in land purchased for the U. S. Air Force Academy.

The Administrative Center for the United States is located in Wilmette, Ill., near the House of Worship, and the World Administrative and Spiritual Center is in Haifa, Israel, and its properties extend up the slope of Mount Carmel. There is no paid clergy in the Baha'i Faith, therefore all Bah'is are working around the world to establish unity and peace among all peoples by putting these spiritual principles to work. The administrative structure, as designed by Baha'u'llah, provides for election of local, national and international governing bodies, two of which are located in the Colorado Springs metropolitan area, and they direct the activities of two local Baha'i communities. Baha'i meetings include worship services, public lectures, study classes and discussion groups for inquirers.

Baptist Pastor For Year-Old Cascade Church

Cascade's only Protestant church is the year-old Ute Pass Bible Church whose minister is the Rev Mr Paul Hutchens, internationally-known writer and author of the Sugar Creek Gang series of books for youngsters.

The non - denominational church held its first worship service on Jan 10, 1963. Both Sunday School and church services are held in audtiorium of the Cascade Firehouse

The church was incorporated Sept 26, 1963, and the first official board meeting was on Nov 11 The Rev Mr Hutchens, an ordained Baptist minister, was selected to be the pastor

Future plans call for the young church to continue services in the auditorium until the new four-lane freeway on U S. Highway 24 is completed, and a building site is selected.

The hoped-for chapel would be named "Cascade Mountain Chapel," and its motto would be, "A Mountain Church at the Foot of the Peak, Teaching and Preaching That Christ Is the Only Way Up"

Witnesses Are Seekers of Clear Understanding

Jehovah's Witnesses are Christian people living under all forms of government, coming from all nations, peoples and tongues, but having one form of worship. Individually, their goal in life is to have a clear understanding of God's Word and to the divine will

Locally, a small group known as the International Bible Students, began meeting together around 1919. It wasn't until 1931 when they met in international assembly at Columbus Ohio that they adopted the name "Jehovah's Witnesses," in accordance with the Scripture at Isaiah 43 10-12 From this time on these Bible students met not only for study but also began to ccarry their increased knowledge and understanding to others by means of the printed page

By 1941 the local group had doubled in number and there were 33 who met together In 1943, when the Theocratic Ministry schools were organized in all congregations thruout the world the local congregation had an enrollment of 10 At present in the six local congregations, there are 356 enrolled in the Theocratic Ministry schools One of these congretations is made up of Spanish speaking people

As to doctrines, Jehovah's witnesses teach that JEHOVAH is the Almighty God (Psalm83:18) that He is the Creator of the heavens and earth (Genesis 1 1); that His creation is perfect (Deuteronomy 32:4); that sin and death entered the world thru the rebellion of Adam and Eve and the one now called Satan (Romans 5:12, Genesis 3: 1-5); that the punishment for sin was and is death (Romans 6 23); that God sent His son, Jesus Christ, into the world to die and pay the ransom for obedient humans (Matthew 20: 28); that Christ's one sacrifice was sufficient (Romans 6:10; Hebrews 10 12); that Christ was raised from the dead as an immortal spirit (I Peter 3 18); that there is only one road to everlasting life, and that's thru Christ (Matthew 7:13; I Timothy 2 5); that Christ's second presence is in spirit (John 14:19; Matthew 24:3; II Corinthians 5:16); that we are now in the world's time of the end (Matthew 24 3-14; II Timothy 3 1-5); that the earth will never be destroyed or depopulated (Ecclesiastes 1 4, Isaiah 45:18); that God will destroy this present wicked system of things at the battle of Armageddon (Revelation 16 14, 16, Zephaniah 3 8; Daniel 2 44; Isaiah 34 2); that Armageddon will come within this present generation (Matthew 24 34), that all the wicked who do not take their stand for His kingdom will be eternally destroyed (Psalm 37 10; 145 20, Proverbs 10 24, Isaiah 26-14); that the kindgom under Christ will rule the earth in righteousness and peace (Isaiah 9:6,7, 11 1-5, Psalm 46 8,9; Matthew 6 10); that the hope for the dead is the resurrection (I Corinthians 15 20-22); that only a little flock is chosen to rule in Heaven with Christ Jesus (Luke 12 32, Revelation 14:1, 3, I Corinthians 15 40-53; Revelation 20 4,6); that a great multitude of others will live on earth under Christ's Kingdom rule (Matthew 5:3,5; 6 9-10, Proverbs 2 21, 22, 10 29, 30; Malachi 4:1-3, that the Kingdom will bring ideal living conditions to earth (Isaiah 11:6-9; 32:16, 18; 33 24; 65 17-25); that His kingdom will be everlasting (Isaiah 9 6,7); that death and all forms of human misery will be destroyed forever (Isaiah 25 6-8; Revelation 21 4), and that wickedness and affliction will never rise a second time (Nahum 1:9).

The most important event for Jenovah's Witnesses is the yearly celebration of the Memorial of Christ's death, which falls this year on March 28. It will be celebrated by all of the 22,761 congregations around the world after sundown on that date. All interested persons are invited to attend this event It will be held at the Kindom Hall at 1703 N Cooper Street at 6:30 p.m., in English, and at 8 p.m., in Spanish.

120 Members For First Church Of The Brethren

The First Church of the Brethren in Colorado Springs, 627 N Circle Dr., began as a mission point on Feb 16, 1909, and was organized as a congregation on Jan 18, 1910

The first church building, at 22nd and Bijou Streets, was dedicated June 8, 1913, by the Rev Mr Ernest Sherfy, and was used until 1949 when it was sold to the Mennonite Church

From 1949 to September, 1953, the congregation met in three different places the IOOF Hall, Carpenter's Hall, and the Seventh Day Advent Church. The new building was dedicated on Sept 27, 1953

Since then, the congregation has purchased an organ for the sanctuary in 1955, a new parsonage at 1517 Edith Lane, a nursery in the church in 1959, a pastor's study and new pews.

The Rev Mr Samuel J. McCaman is the present minister to the 120 members.

Worldwide membership in the Church of the Brethern is 221,166 The church originated in 1708 in Schwartzenau, Germany and was known as the German Baptist Brethern, called "Dunkards" because of their practice of "dipping in baptism."

The first principle laid down by the founders was the doctrine of peace, meaning they were opposed to war, there there should be no force in religion and they would have no litigation in the pagan courts. Baptism is administered only by trine immersion.

The communion service holds a central place in the ordinances of the Brethren. In most instances, they observe it in the setting of the love feast, which consists of the feet-washing service as a symbol of cleansing, humility and service to man.

The full meal symbolizes the fellowship of Christians with one another and the eucharist symbolizes the communion of the believer with his Lord.

TOO MUCH, TOO SOON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vaccination of infants at too early an age not only often fails but may also result in undue exposure to disease, warns a team of researchers headed by Dr. Gordon Brown of the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

In a three year study of 373 children, each of whom had received whooping cough and polio shots before the age of seven months, tests made after booster shots given a year later showed 35 per cent failure for whooping-cough vaccinations, 39 per cent for type III polio, and 50 per cent for polio types I and II. Dr. Brown and associates reported in "Medical World News a journal for doctors.

Bible Chapels Were Originally Bible Study Meets

A group of individuals began meeting in 1931 in a private Colorado Springs home to study the Bible without denominational affiliation The Bible Study group grew numerically and was incorporated in 1939. The next step taken that same year was to build a meeting place at Pikes Peak and Prospect Avenues, next to the site of the new Gazette Telegraph building. This unpretentious building was named the Bible Hall.

The small congregation at the Bible Hall engaged in an active Sunday School program until the size of the Sunday School, about 200 adults and children, forced them to expand. Instead of enlarging the Bible Hall, the old Bethany Baptist Church building was purchased in 1950 and became the Westside Bible Hall. Sunday School and Gospel meetings were conducted in both places, but the congregation chose to remain together for worship, and for Bible study and prayer. Consequently a new building, large enough for the whole congregation was erected in 1954, and both the Bible Hall and Westside Bible Hall were sold. This new building was called the Southside Bible Chapel and is located at 1725 S. Wahsatch Ave.

By 1958, the Sunday School had grown to such a size, around 400 individuals in regular attendance, that part of the congregation who lived in the Northeast section of Colorado Springs began meeting in a private home there. In 1960, this group erected the Northeast Bible Chapel at 1722 MacArthur Ave.

For several years Friday evening children's meetings have been conducted on the Westside at 1940 Armstrong St. A midweek prayer and Bible study is planned on the Westside, too.

Closely associated with these non - sectarian fellowships of Christians is the Christian Home for Children Inc., 6 W. Cheyenne Rd., begun by Mr. and Mrs. John Walden, Sr., and now superintendent by Robert W. Sawyer. In the 28 years since this children's work was begun over three hundred children from broken homes, mostly from the Colorado Springs area, have been cared for in this home.

The basic tenet of those who meet at the Southside Bible Chapel and the Northeast Bible Chapel is that the Bible is inspired by God, inerrant in the original manuscripts, and the final authority in every area of a person's and a church's life.

Those who meet at the Southside and Northeast Chapels are having an Easter Bible Conference at the Southside Bible Chapel, 1725 S. Wahsatch Ave. No offering will be taken. All those who are interested in simple teaching from God's Word are cordially invited.

Cheyenne Rd., begun by Mr. and Mrs. John Walden, Sr., and now superintendent by Robert W. Sawyer. In the 28 years since this children's work was begun over three hundred children from broken homes, mostly from the Colorado Springs area, have been cared for in this home.

The basic tenet of those who meet at the Southside Bible Chapel and the Northeast Bible Chapel is that the Bible is inspired by God, inerrant in the original manuscripts, and the final authority in every area of a person's and a church's life.

Those who meet at the Southside and Northeast Chapels are having an Easter Bible Conference at the Southside Bible Chapel, 1725 S. Wahsatch Ave. No offering will be taken. All those who are interested in simple teaching from God's Word are cordially invited.

Seventh-day Adventists Are Building New Church

There are 277 members of the Seventh - day Adventist Church in Colorado Springs, meeting temporarily — until their new church is built — in the Southern Baptist Church, Palmer Park Boulevard at Uintah Street.

Seventh-day Adventism came to Colorado Springs about 1889, when small groups of believers who had moved here from eastern states began to hold Sabbath meetings in their homes, in 1890, at the home of the first pastor, Smith Sharp. At that time there were 20 members.

For one whole winter about that time, meetings were held in a tent pitched in the 100 block on South Wahsatch Avenue. Elder Harold Everson, an evangelist, preached sermons on the street and then took his followers to the tent.

The first church constructed by the local Adventists was a small, one-room building located then at the corner of Nevada Avenue and Las Animas Street, where the present South Junior High School stands today.

Later, in October, 1915, the building was moved to a new location at 640 E. Willamette St. and a lean-to added to the back to provide space for the first church school. There were about eight pupils enrolled. (The newly completed Seventh - day Church School, now located at 1033 N. Franklin St., has an enrollment today of 41 pupils.)

A few years later, the church undertook construction of the building located at 324 N. Wahsatch Ave., where services were conducted — at first in the basement of the uncompleted structure — from before the First World War until last year. That church was completed when members purchased an old tabernacle used by famed evangelist Billy Sunday during a series of Colorado Springs meetings. Lumber from the tabernacle was used on the building. Men of the church donated nearly all of the labor, under the direction of the late William Eames, whose widow, Mrs. Emma Eames, now 97, lives at the Hill Haven Home, 225 W. Brookside.

In 1963, the decision was made to move into the present temporary quarters so that the entire congregation may meet at one time. Meanwhile, preparations are being made to commence construction of a new church, to be located on the east side of North Union Boulevard in the 1300 block.

"The Seventh-day Adventist denomination is Protestant," states the local church's pastor, Dwight S. Wallack. "Its doctrines are Bible-centered, its members following the example of Christ in such matters as baptism by immersion and obedience to the ten commandments, including observance of the seventh-day Sabbath.

"The church is an outgrowth of the Advent movement of the first half of the 19th century and, altho Seventh-day Adventists have never set a date for the second coming of Christ, they believe that signs foretold in the Bible point to this event taking place soon. A strong missionary spirit has carried the church's beliefs around the world in the last century. This evangelism stems from the desire to hasten Christ's return by fulfilling the mission given followers by Christ himself — to preach the gospel as a witness to all the world."

The local church is one of 14,000 Adventist churches in the world today, membership having grown during the last century from 3500 members, all in the United States, to some 1,400,000. Missionaries carry on the church's work in 900 languages and dialects, with medical missionary work known as "the right arm of the Advent message." Loma Linda University, largest of all institutions of the denomination and located near San Bernardino, Calif., has an enrollment of 1100 students. More than 300 physicians—about one of every 10 of the School of Medicine's graduates — have served in overseas mission hospitals of the denomination, as have 150 of the graduate nurses.

There are 4820 Seventh-day Adventist schools, including colleges, thruout the world, with an enrollment of 300,500. Some 42 publishing plants of the denomination produce more than $25 million worth of books, tracts, and magazines each year.

Pastor Wallack has been minister in Colorado Springs since October, 1961, coming here from Grand Junction, where he was pastor six years and helped the congregation there complete its new building.

Pilgrim Holiness Is Combination Of Seven Bodies

The history of the Pilgrim Holiness Church is, in a great measure, the combined histories of seven bodies of people. These have been drawn together in the unity of the Spirit because of a similarity of views — not alone as to the doctrine of entire sanctification as a second definite work of grace — but also regarding the blessed hope of the premillennial return of Jesus, the evangelization of the world, and the privilege of healing for the body in answer to the prayer of faith.

What is now know as the Pilgrim Holiness Church, with International Headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., was first organized in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1897. The Rev. Mr. Seth C. Rees was the first general superintendent of the church. In 1900, the first missionaries were sent out, which was the beginning of a foreign missionary work that has become a strong world missionary enterprise. Most of this work has become virtually indigenous.

From the beginning, an emphasis was placed on Bible training and centers for this purpose have been established in every area of operation. In 1957, Owosso Bible College was designated as the liberal arts college of the Pilgrim Holiness Church and became known as Owosso College. In addition to the liberal arts college, four Bible colleges are maintained in the United States for the training of Christian workers.

The growth of the Pilgrim Holiness Church in Colorado Springs has justified the establishment of three congregations: First Church, 502 N. Walnut St., the Rev. Mr. W. J. Brown, was organized in 1927; Knob Hill Church, Bonfoy and East Dale Street, the Rev. Mr. Y. G. Story, in 1947 and Bethel, 917 S. 25th St., the Rev. Mr. C. C. Darr, in 1956.

The members of the Pilgrim Holiness Church are to be commended for their Bible-method of giving. Surveys show that for several years they have been among the top four of all Protestant churches in per capita giving.

Gateway United Church Began In Manse Basement

The Gateway United Presbyterian Church was organized Jan. 26, 1958. For two years the church used the basement of the Manse, 723 Castle Rd., for Church School and Morning Worship. Sunday, April 10, 1960, the present Sanctuary was dedicated, a most modern structure for Christian fellowship and worship.

The Rev. Mr. Louis F. Meek was the organizing Pastor and served approximately four years when he was succeded by the Rev. Mr. Herman G. Heuser, a retired Minister of the Presbyterian fellowship who is today the Pastor of the former Westminister Presbyterian Church merged and provided the necessary strength and financial support to make possible the beginning of this splendid work in Pleasant Valley of Colorado Springs.

Today there is a Church School enrollment of 150. Morning Worship, and youth meetings of Junior, Junior High and Senior High. Two Women's organizations meet regularly every month for Christian Fellowship, Missionary and Community Service. The membership of the Church numbers 150.

An Adult Class taught by John Hoffman, a Choir directed by Mrs. Elaine Osborne, and faithful Elders, Trustees, and Deacons complete this fellowship of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. They share in the Pike's Peak Colorado, and National Council of Churches of the Christian Fellowship.

Jesus Christ, Son of God and Man, crucified for the sin of the world is the Gospel precahed for faith and life of all.

Rev. Johnson Helped Start Baptist Church

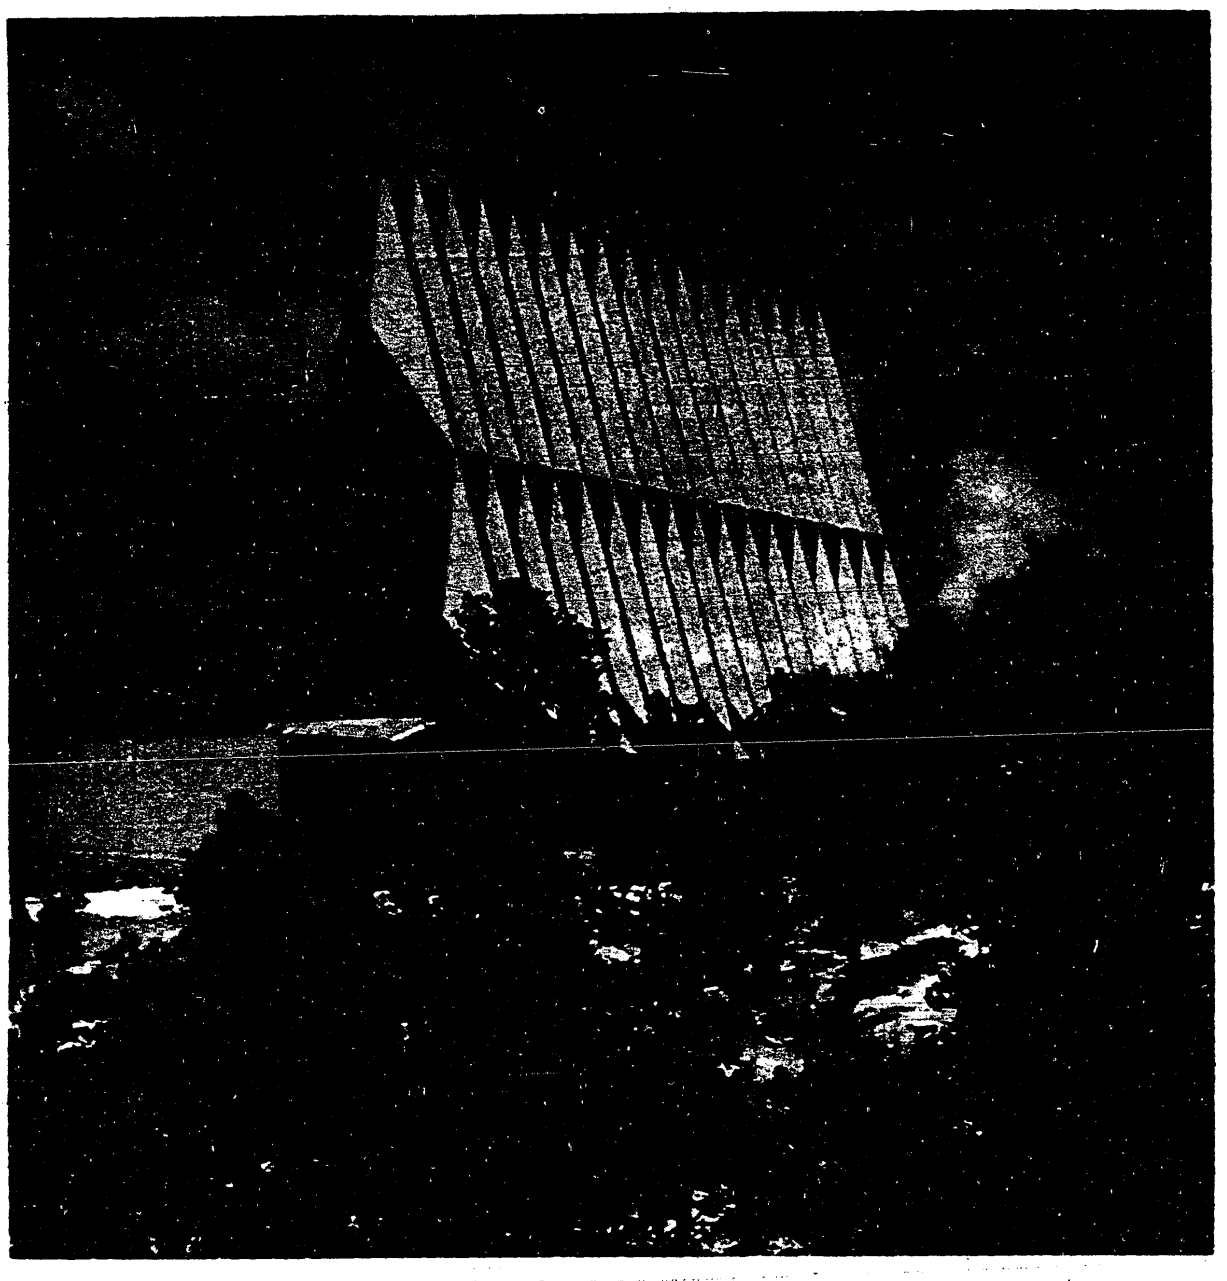
The Baptist Tabernacle Church was organized December 19, 1960. The Church called the Rev. Mr. Ken Johnson, who led in the organization, as pastor of the church.

The church met in a rented building at 330 N. Wahsatch Ave., until Sept. 1, 1961, when it purchased the building at 1218 Prairie Rd., in the Knob Hill area. The present meeting place is a new modern church plant with a large auditorium and class rooms for classes of all ages in Sunday School.

The Rev. Mr. Ken Johnson, who brought this New Testament Church together, remained as Pastor until Aug. 1, 1963, at which time he resigned as pastor to return to school. He is now attending Tennessee Temple Bible College at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Upon resignation of the Rev. Mr. Johnson, the church called the Rev. Mr. Ralph L. Flye from Grand Junction as their pastor. The Rev. Mr. Flye is a graduate of Orthodox Baptist Bible College, Ardmore, Okla.

The Baptist Tabernacle Church is an Independent Baptist Church being democratic in rule, governed only by the Oricals of the Holy Bible. Our Doctrinal Basis is as follows: The divine inspiration and consequent authority of the whole canonical scriptures. The doctrine of the Trinity. The Fall of Man, his consequent moral depravity and his need of regeneration. The Atonement thru the substitutionary death of Christ. The Doctrine of Justification by Faith. The Resurrection of the body, both in the case of the Just and the Unjust. The eternal life of the saved and the eternal punishment of the lost.



AIR FORCE ACADEMY CHAPEL

AF Academy Chapel Is New Modern Structure

"One of the outstanding examples of modern religious architecture in the United States" was the way Life Magazine photographer Dmitri Kessel described the Air Force Academy Chapel which was dedicated last September.

Kessel chose the Academy Chapel for inclusion in his book on the development of religious architecture — the only American church to be represented.

Seventeen metal spires soar 150 feet into the air, giving a strong feeling of flight and motion. Strip windows of multi-colored glass appear as dark lines alongside the spires of tetrahedrons.

At the end, huge gables of tinted architectural glass admit most of the radiant heat striking them, but relatively little light.

The synagogue in the chapel is the first designed place of worship for Jewish service on a U.S. military base.

Architecturally, it is a circle within a square; the circular design symbolizing the global mission of the Air Force. The square forms a surrounding foyer paved with Jerusalem stone. Outside walls are of purple colored glass panels alternated with green and blue glass strip windows. Inner walls are translucent glass panels set between stanchions of cypress.

The Roman Catholic chapel, which shares the terrace level with the synagogue, has sidewall panels of amber glass, alternated with strip windows of multi-colored glass.

Behind the altar is an abstract mural of Venetian glass carrying two figures of Italian marbel: the Holy Mother and the Guardian Angel. Above and between these figures is a marble dove, symbolic of the Holy Ghost. The 14 Stations of the Cross are in bas-relief.

Sloping walls of the Protestant chapel soar 95 feet to the vaulted roof. The overhead area of this chapel, on a level above the other two, is formed by the under surfaces of the tetrahedrons that compare the 17 repetitive spires on the exterior.

Colored glass strip windows form ribbons of muted light alongside the tetrahedrons. The terrazzo floor of the Protestant chapel is heavily sound-proofed, so services can be held simultaneously in the various sanctuaries.

The reredos, the curved 14-foot wall behind the altar, was designed by Lumen Martin Winter, creator of "The Conversion of St. Paul" for the Cacade of the Church of St. Paul the Apostle in New York City.

The Israeli Air Force donated the 1,631 pieces of Jerusalem stone for the foyer which surrounds the Jewish worship center.

The chapel was designed by the Chicago firm of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, and was built by the Robert E. McKee Inc. of Santa Fe at a cost of more than $3.5 million.

Rock of Ages Serves West Side

Rock of Ages Lutheran Church, 3704 W. Colorado Ave., was organized here in 1956 when a committee decided a Lutheran church was needed to serve the west side.

Committee members, Alex Bachoroski, Ray Hein and Lawrence Krause, directed purchase of a restaurant building which was converted into the present church sanctuary, Sunday school rooms, office and fellowship hall.

The church, which now has 230 members, is affiliated with the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Its pastor is the Rev. Mr. Daryl Schmidt.

The Rock of Ages Lutheran Church is dedicated to "Bringing the message of Jesus Christ, the Rock of Ages, to people's lives, that on Him, Son of God and Son of man, they may build their faith and trust in God's forgiveness of sins alone thru the merits of Jesus' death on the cross of Calvary."
